Enrollment for Fall Term Breaks All Records

Friends of the Library Lead New Fund Drive

Ten Thousand Dollars in Awards to Lucky Members of Library Fund Group

By J. P. MALLICK

Finally, after five years of discussion, and planning, Villanova is prepared to erect a modern library that will add much to the institution. Plans for the building which is designed to harmonize with the present buildings on the campus, are complete.

The proposed library will be in the shape of a rectangle and be three stories high. It will be 130 feet long, 100 feet deep and over 50 feet tall and will face on the walk to the Pennsylvania Railroad. The exact location will be just below the grotto between the walk and St. Mary's Hall. Although this site is not the physical center of the campus, nevertheless, it will be near the center of activities. Constructed of native rock, the building will be set high with the entrance a few steps above the ground. The entrance to the building will be constructed at a level that is half-way between the basement and the first or main floor.

The entire building will comfortably seat 500 students and provide space for over 400,000 books. It is one of the buildings on the campus used by all students regardless of course. The library is necessary for seminarians, Sisters during summer school, engineers, science and art students.

An approximate cost of the library will be $500,000, although the final figure may be more. Ground breaking is expected to be started in the early part of next year due to present shortages and restrictions, although it may be sooner.

In order to defray this expense, the students and Alumni of Villanova are asked to sell tickets for awards amounting to $10,500. These awards are to be divided as follows: one award of $5000, four awards of $1000 each, and 10 awards of $100 each. The person selling the winning ticket will receive 5 percent of the award.

The student selling the most tickets will receive as first prize two tickets to the Army-Navy game and $100, the second prize being two tickets to the game and $50.

Awards will take place in the Field House on Thanksgiving Eve, November 27th, at 11 P. M. Therefore all returns must be in on or before November 25.

Most students have received chance books by mail, but the students who are on campus for the first time or have been absent for military service are requested to see Fr. Falvey for chance books.

This library will benefit the underclassmen more than the upperclassmen; therefore, it is expected that the freshmen will get behind this drive.

The membership setup is a very attractive one. Father Falvey says the drive is going well, but not up to set expectations. Freshmen, who will be the ones most benefitted by the new building when erected, should get behind this drive with more enthusiasm.

Father Falvey, who heads the library at the present time, says membership books are available at the library and those needing additional books are requested to see him any time they chance to be in the library.

Can You Serve Mass?

Students desiring to serve Mass in the Villanova College Chapel are asked to report any morning to the Chaplain's office, Room 121 Mendel Hall. Rev. James Hannan, O.S.A., will conduct a beginners class in the Latin and the rubrics of the Mass.

Opening Day Mass Celebrated In Capacity Filled Chapel

Reverend Frances X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., President of the College, Celebrant in Solemn High Mass

By DICK SHINNERS

In the crowded chapel on October 1, 1946, Villanova opened its Fall term with a Solemn High Mass celebrated by the President of the College, Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., assisted by Rev. Robert M. Sullivan, O.S.A., as Deacon and Rev. Ralph J. Handran, O.S.A., as Subdeacon. Minor offices were filled by seminarians from St. Mary's and in attendance were approximately 1900 students.

The enrollment this semester is the highest in Villanova's 104 years. The total of 3042 men includes 1946 full time students, 320 on Philadelphian campuses at night and 776 in the Saturday extension courses.

There are 1434 veterans, 101 NROTC and 21 Navy pilots being instructed. These are among the 100 percent increase in students over normal pre-war scholastic enrollment.

Former Villanovans constitute 40 percent of the full time student body of 969 residents and 977 non-residents.

With the October term Villanova reverts to two semesters a year although there will be a Summer session of eight weeks for underclassmen.

There are 710 Freshmen enrolled with 40 percent of them in Engineering, 26 percent in Commerce and Finance and the remainder in Science and Arts.

Conditions will not permit Freshmen to enroll in February but former Villanova upperclassmen will be admitted as they are separated from the service.

Pennsylvania leads the states claiming 75 percent of the student body as native sons. She is follower by the Middle Atlantic States, New England and the West in that order.

By way of further information, the student Council assisted in the direction of registration traffic. Fathers Burke and Sullivan headed this committee which sold hats and buttons to the incoming Freshmen and helped generally in directing the new boys around to the different parts of the campus.

The Chapel, by the way, was actually filled to overflowing for the Mass, and some students missed it because of the crowds. However, plans are now being made for the accomodation of the large number attending chapel services.

Field House Provides Temporary Housing

Approximately two hundred Freshmen are being housed in the gym until the completion of the new dormatories. Material shortages, among other things, has been the cause of the delay in the building program. Despite the inconveniences, students have given their utmost cooperation.

Many Activities Mark Summer Semester List

Marked Improvement in Many Things Manifest Extent of Repairs; Additions

This summer has been the first since 1942 that Villanova has been without a regular semester of studies. It was the first real opportunity that the college had to do any repairs to its buildings and equipment that stood up under four consecutive years of use. Lastly, but by no means the least, it was the first real opportunity that the Faculty had to take a long due vacation, but not too long as there was a two month's summer course here on the campus for the freshmen class.

At the same time, Villanova held its regular summer course at Rosemont College through hospitality of the Sisters of the Holy Child. This was all the more appreciated because it was then possible to carry on the planned repairs and constructions.

Good Counsel Hall, which has been under renovation for some time was made ready for occupancy. The men who now live there insist that it is the best of the larger halls, and if you doubt them, just take a trip inside and see for yourself. Sorry, no vacancies!

Good Counsel Hall is not the only hall that has had its face painted. Mendel also has been under the caressing brush of the painters. Furthermore, as soon as materials are available, new floorings and new lighting systems are on the agenda for this sturdy veteran.

There are other halls that have had work done on them. Delurey had a new porch added to it, and Alumni, which has been recently overhauled, has been having its windows repainted.

Since we are on the subject of dormitories, it is appropriate to mention here that the Federal Housing Commission has offered the College four barracks for the use of its student veterans. Unfortunately, the materials were not available in order to have them ready for the opening of the current semester. As a result, a good many students are being temporarily accommodated in the spacious gymnasium. Everything is being done to speed the ereotion of these buildings, but as yet the date of their completion is indefinite.

Within the Administrative Building, the Veteran's office was temporarily situated in the Faculty Room, while its new office was being renovated. This new office was formerly the Navy Office which later was vacated with the withdrawal of the V-12 Unit from the College.

Repairs were also started on the roadways and the work is still going on as this column is being written. The brick curbs are being replaced by stone and a new macadam layer is being placed over the older roadway.

The men who were here during the spring semester will also have observed the new location of the Infirmary, Middleton Hall, formerly situated in a wing of Mendel Hall. The Infirmary was too small and unsuitable for the enlargened student body. In a short time, it is hoped that the work in Middleton Hall will be completed to meet satisfactorily the needs of the men.

Finally, the Stadium also has been dressed up. There were new wood replacements and new painting done prior to the Rodeo held there by the Pennsylvania State Troopers late this summer.

On August 12th, the Summer enrollment was somewhat increased with the return to the campus of the candidates for the 1946 football team. For their short summer stay, the gridmen were housed, one and all, in Austin hall. As the semester opened they were subsequently diffused throughout the regular dorms and halls.

When the Navy left, just before the past semester, the cafeteria added the old "tray and plate" system for serving food. However, most of the rudiments of Navy diet were kept.

According to Mr. Voelker, Dining-hall Manager, the meat situation may, in a few months, take a turn for the better. His view is based on the assumption that when the ranchers are faced with the high price of feed this winter, they will take the alternative of sending their livestock to market.

Aside from voicing his cheerful opinion on the meat problem, Mr. Voelker conducted us on a tour through the inner-recesses of the

THE VILLANOVAN

With the opening of the Fall semester, more than 1900 students returned to the campus. Among these are men who had their schooling interrupted by the war, those who are entering as Freshmen after their service to their country, and those who are entering from preparatory and high schools throughout the country. They have all become Villanova men. And to each one, on behalf of the Faculty and the Villanovan, we extend a most hearty welcome.

By way of introduction to those who are not familiar with the Villanovan, we take this opportunity to present the college weekly newspaper to them.

This publication is one run by the students, under the able guidance of a Faculty Advisor, for the students. We strive to keep you well informed on the happenings on and about the Campus. This enterprise is not a one-way affair. The Villanovan is your paper as much as it is ours. It is Villanova's campus news.

Beyond the shadow of a doubt, the war affected your paper to an appreciable degree. Writers, as well as workers, were scarce. But we are going to forget World War II, and with you help we are going to return to a happy way of college life.

We welcome any comments and criticism you may have to offer. Remember, it is our earnest desire to give you the the best in college publications and be a credit to our college. Let's all do our part in making our college move on to greater heights than ever before, RELIGIOUSLY, SCHOLASTICALLY AND SOCIALLY.

The Editor.

A Luxury or Necessity?

It is not uncommon that one hears the expression that college education is a luxury; or, on the other hand, it is dubbed a necessity. Too many are imbued with the idea that it is a luxury on the grounds that a college education is beyond the grasp of the average family and therefore an attainment only of the wealthy or the extraordinarily brilliant student. Such a conviction is not only false, as the register of any university will bear testimony, but an impediment in the path of progress. Many are the men who have worked their entire way in the seeking and attaining of a higher education. Knowledge is fruit, not only for the brilliant ones who can enjoy the transportation of the few scholarships being offered, or for the rich who can afford to pay the high expense with little discomfort, but also for those who want it and are willing to work and sacrifice in order to attain their noble quest.

Still there are some who look at college education in a different light of luxury. It means a free education as far as the student individuals are concerned, whether at the expense of the parents or of the government. For it is of little consequence to them except that it affords the so called luxury of a college life. They think only of the coming proms, dances, and week-ends, and their chief concern scholastically is but to pass their courses by the skin of their teeth. Fortunately, men of such scant ambition are few today, but never the less, their plight is disturbing enough to demand attention. They are not only wasting valuable time and money but they are being unjust to themselves. They are deliberately neglecting the harvesting of a valuable knowledge which they could later use to their immense benefit.

Is college education a necessity? If the question is asked in the sense that it is indispensable, then higher education is not a necessity. Throughout the ages men have been living harmoniously and successfully with a high school foundation or less. The price of a successful and harmonious life is not merely the acquisition of a great mass of knowledge, but the true evaluation of the relativity of facts and their use in a just and proper way.

In the Western hemisphere, one sees progress at its best. Transportation is being revoluntionized in leaps and bounds. Sciences have been advanced far beyond the concept of the comman man, and the mode of life is becoming progressively competitive. The realization of these facts has prompted the youth of today to flock to the universities, where they are willing to undergo the congestion of a housing crisis and the irregular study hours, in order to become as proficient, if not more so, than their fellow men in their chosen fields.

It has now become to them a question of being a good chemist, a good physicist, a good lawyer, a good doctor, or a good what not, so they may wend their way successfully through the future years . Fully cognizant of the problems that confront the world, the faculties are prepared to do more than merely train specialized men. No better can their aims be expressed than in the words of the president of this institution in his welcoming speech to the students: "We do not want good chemists, good physicists, good lawyers, or good engineers, but good chemists who are good men, good physicists who are good men, good lawyers who are good men, and good engineers who are good men."

The conflicts that have torn man's heart from Nanking to Warsaw and from the Suez to Singapore were not the result of the lack of highly authorized men in special fields. On the contrary, such men were the keys in the most devastating crisis the human race has yet undergone.

Education can certainly give the answers to all man's problems but it is his actions that make and unmake, that create or destroy. Atomic energy and bacterial potency are of little consequence except when in the hands of man. The fear of atomic and bacterial warfare can only be eliminated when man not only learns the truth but acts the truth as well.

Yes, college education is both a luxury and a necessity. We make it so.

Our Editorials

Editorials are the views of individuals on current events, and their philosophies on unlimited subjects. As presupposed by many, editorials are written by the Editors only. This is not the Villanovan policy. We welcome and desire your views, too.

During the past two semesters, our paper has carried articles by boys from all the branches of Villanova, as well as letters from Villanova men who have been in the service. In keeping with democracy we have no alternative.

Not that we are against this "everybody write" practice, but we know that by publishing views from every point, we are working in the interest of a better paper, and are tending toward improving our very school.

There is contained in a current magazine, an account of a man who had the philosophy, "Say It Where It Will Count." Many brilliant ideas die in the minds of men who are afraid to come out and say what they think. The world condition as it exists today could have been appreciably altered if men such as these had said what they thought to the right people and in the right places.

On the other hand, we do not intend to knock every action of our school with our writings. Villanova is behind us and not against us. Previously, articles have been "let through" by other editors which contradicted the college's policy.

We cannot hope to give better ways or different ways of running things in view of the fine job the college administration has done and is doing at this very moment.

It's true that Villanova has some "Sore Spots" at the present time, but for that matter what college hasn't during these trying days. We have been assured and it has been demonstrated to us that Villanova is taking measures to clear all 'problem points" in the shortest possible time.

We, therefore, bid you to do your part in helping and cooperating so that again people can acknowledge another Villanova "first."

In regard to your general problems affecting all or most of the Students, the Student Council has been elected by you to present your problems to the proper authority. If yours is a complaint of a large body of students, see your representative on the Student Council. Teamwork is just as essential in running an institution of higher learning as it is on the field of sport. Let's get together on going to school.

Our policy should be clear. Villanova belongs to us and we belong to Villanova. We'll stand by our pledge to do everything in our power to further the interests of both you, the Student, and Villanova, your College.

So, once again, we welcome your editorials regardless of the subject. Any one of our staff will accommodate you. Let's have the Students' viewpoint on our items of current interest.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Gang:

The number of buddies and downright good friends that I have met during my Army days from 1942 to 1946, followed by four months at Villanova College, has made it very difficult to make a hurried announcement to each one by mail.

Well, the one thing in the world I was hoping wouldn't happen has happened, and there's nothing I can do about it. While working this summer I chanced to get something in my eye which necessitated a rush visit to the doctor. After removing the particle, Doctor Reynolds (reputedly one of the finest eye specialists in New England) examined my eyes thoroughly and then informed me that I should give up college and forget my dreams of studying law. It seems that I have compound myopia to a rather high degree in both eyes and it is, therefore, advisable that I do not use them for any intensive study. Any ordinary work which entails some reading, and so forth, is all right so long as it does not involve any intensive study. In view of this, I was asked to drop my studies in favor of something a little less strenuous to the old peepers.

Fortunately for me I had made some good contacts the early part of the summer with Pan-American-Grace Airways in an attempt to secure temporary summer employment in one of the South American countries. Though this was an odd request and almost impossible to fulfill, I was asked to accept a more permanent position. This, of course, I turned down in favor of a college degree and an LLB. However, after receiving the sad news from Dr. Reynolds, I phoned New York to inquire about that permanent offer. A few trips to the big city followed, accompanied by several interviews. At last I signed a three year contract.

I am just finishing up some work I was doing for the EMFC, and then I shall concentrate on leaving the country within three weeks (as soon as my passport comes through from Washington). I am being sent to Pan American-Grace Airways' main offices in Lima, Peru, as an Assistant Manager. The position carries with it a good salary, a two weeks vacation every year with pay, and a two months furlough at the end of three years with pay and free transporation back to the states. So, it's "Goodbye" college and "Hello" Peru!

The opportunities are wonderful and numerous in South America, and this job can lead to almost anything. I have big hopes, and am looking forward to a broad and profitable future.

As Ever,
William M. Golden,
Ex '49, Managing Editor, The Villanovan.

GOLDEN, EDITOR

Bill Golden, whose article appears above, was appointed Editor in Chief of The Villanovan for this year. However, due to health, he was forced to retire.

Bill has been with The Villanovan for some time, being on the Editorial staff last year.

While in the Armed Forces of our country, he did quite a little writing and gained nationwide acclaim with his poem, "Mom's Battle." This work was published across the nation, Golden has also written other poems.

New Editors Take Over Student Weekly as Villanovan Begins

Staff Is Studded With Veterans, Eager and Apt, Yearning to Write

Matt Kearney, junior arts student, has been appointed Editor-in-Chief of the Villanovan for the coming scholastic year it has been announced by Rev. John A. Klekotka, O.S.A., moderator of the publication He succeeds Russell L. Welsh, who has entered medical school.

Kearney, a former member of the V-12 Unit here at Villanova, is a graduate of Trenton Catholic High School. Although his high school extra-curricular activities favored dramatics, the paper's new chief joined the staff as a columnist in November, 1944, served later as a sports writer, becoming Sports Editor in June, 1945, his position prior to the present appointment.

Head man of pages one to four and boss of the reporters is former sports writer Jim Bonner, the new Copy Editor. Another former V-12 man and graduate of St. Joseph's Prep, Jim McNamara, holds the position of Sports Editor.

Other editorial positions are held by Charles Laferty as Feature Editor and John Brinjac as Photography Editor.

Succeeding William Wescott as Business Manager will be Louis Meccariello, who served in this line on last year's Villanovan. He controls the financial and advertising aspects as well as a general supervision of all the business affairs of the paper.

Working in conjunction with him will be Peter McManus, Circulation Manager. With the college's swelled enrollment the staff is faced with one of the greatest distribution problems in the history of its operation.

With this edition the Villanovan enters its 22nd year of existence. Among the wealth of experienced workers on its staff, which is one of the largest of its colorful history, there are studded returning veterans, some of them top ranking editors and business chieftains of past years.

Among the changes planned this year, as announced by the Editor, will be news articles written more concisely and giving wider representation of all the activities and doings of the college, and columns of deeper interest and higher literary caliber.

Death Comes to Father Hammond

On the Morning of September 4, Rev. John F. Hammond, O.S.A., died in his sleep in the Villanova monastery, at the age of 51. Father Hammond had taught organic chemistry at the college for the eleven years before his death. He was buried in the college's cemetery on Sept. 7.

A native of Philadelphia, he entered Villanova Academy in 1907 and joined the Augustinian order here in 1915. He was ordained to the priesthood in 1917. After receiving his masters degree here, Father was sent to Chicago where he taught chemistry at Saint Rita's High School while attending classes at the Armour Institute there. In 1935 he returned to Villanova to teach chemistry. Father Hammond was well known in Philadelphia, through his preaching in the parishes, principally at Holy Child Parish.

By FRANCIS J. HANSSENS

The odds are ten to one that if you, the reader, had realized a dozen words or so sooner, that you were in the process of reading the traditional religious column of the Villanovan, you would never have ventured forth past that poorly chosen initial word "THE." But since you have gone this far, you might as well strain the eyeballs for a few lines more.

Today, Tuesday, the fifteenth of October, initiates for those of us who were not victims of that dread disease, "Dean's Dilemma," the beginning of our third week back at school after a layoff of several months, or several weeks for those of us who attended summer sessions. But whether it has been several months or several weeks, each and every one of us has felt a certain relief, a certain satisfaction, in once more renewing that journey along the road of Catholic education in an atmosphere truly Catholic.

Well, you are probably asking yourself, what of this Catholic atmosphere you talk about? What makes it so special, so important; in fact, just what is it? If we said that, in answer, we could draw a picture of it, the doubting population would be innumerable. Draw a picture of Catholic atmosphere? Never. But as we proceeded with our sketch; as each line added significance to the others, and all of a sudden we found ourselves gazing upon the twin spires of our chapel, then would we realize that—"Oh yes, this is what Catholic atmosphere means. It means OUR chapel, with Our Spiritual Quarterback residing within. "Oh, if we'd only let Him call the signals; if we'd only let Him lead the interference as He wishes to do, and is so capable of doing.

So next time we find ourselves making that arduous trip betwen Mendel Hall and C&F, let's stop in for a glimpse of that "Catholic Atmosphere" some guy talked about in the Villanovan. The Catholic atmosphere is there. Yes, He's there, and He won't be found wanting in love and understanding.

EDITORIAL ABUNDANCE

Many ex-Editors of this publication are currently enrolled here and they will assist the present staff in turning out the Villanovan. Their suggestions will help to maintain the All-America rating which was consistenly achieved by the paper in pre-War days.

Symphonic Band Again Active

After an absence of four years, Villanova's symphonic band is once again in the ascendant. The first of a group of primary gatherings was held on October 4 to size up the material on hand. Hereafter regular rehearsals will be held every Monday evening. Rev. Ralph Handran, O.S.A., the moderator and conductor, announced that the band was looking for more members, especially from the freshman class. He expressed a desire to expand the present membership of 45 to about 70 in the near future.

While the band will not march at any of the remaining football games this season, nevertheless plans are being formulated for a concert or series of concerts to be held this season. In previous year this was done in connection with the band of Immaculata College.

Father Handran has just returned to the College after an eventual career as naval chaplain aboard the aircraft carrier Cowpens in the Pacific zone of operations. He saw service through the Gilberts and Marshalls to Tokyo and Yokahama.

Anyone interested in joining the band should consult either Father Handran or James Rogers, manager of the band.

Plans are also being considered for a Glee Club. While they are not very far advanced, nevertheless anyone who wishes to join such an organization should make his desire known to Father Handran.

Office Changes On the Campus

Upon your return to the campus and during your first two weeks stay, you no doubt notice the regularity with which various offices were changed from room to room in Mendel Hall. Among these changes you will find:

1. The Villanovan moved from the old Belle Air office on the second floor of Mendel back to their old office, which for the past four months has been occupied by the bookstore.

2. The bookstore has moved from the old Villanovan office to Room 103 Mendal, which was formerly a classroom.

3. The Veterans Bureau has moved from the Old Faculty room to what was the Navy Office during the Navy's stay here.

4. The NROTC Offices have been moved to Room 101 Mendal, formerly a Civil Engineering classroom.

5. NROTC Instructers have been moved to where the Veterans Bureau formerly was. (Confusing, isn't it?)

6. Alumni Secretary, Mr. Friel, has moved to Publicity Director Haughton's former office.

7. Meanwhile, Mr. Haughton moves to the Field House.

Now while you untwist your now somewhat baffled mind, we would like to add that there is now a vacant space on the second floor of Mendal where we used to have our offices.

Photostat Machine

The College has also added to its facilities a new photostat machine to be used in photographing Certificates of Eligibility. These are the forms used in carying out the payment by the Government to the college the tuition of the men using the GI Bill. This machine is now located directly across from the Villanovan office.

Upon completion of the Army barracks, work will begin on the new Pie Shop Building and the Day Room for non-resident students. Further information on this will be forthcoming in subsequent issues.

NEW INFIRMARY

Another important change is the moving of the College infirmary from Mendal Hall to Middleton Hall. The latter was the Navy sickbay while the V-12 was stationed here.

This change will help to facilitate the handling of sick from the enlarged student body and will give more room in caring for the sick.

Middleton Hall contains several wards whereas the old infirmary had only one. A fire slide is also a feature which is new to the infirmary. It would enable the escapé of the patients in the event of a fire.

Father Francis Boyle is still in charge of the College sick cases. Medical examinations for the students are taking place at the present time.

NOW IS THE TIME!

Now is the best time to start studying. Don't put off until finals roll around, get a head start.

Foreign Correspondent

By Mother Mary Giles, S.H.C.J.

[Ed. Note: In order to enable us to fill the gap in Villanova history, between our last issue in the Spring of 1946 and this present edition, our foreign correspondent, Mother Mary Giles, S.H.C.J., has graciously covered the Summer session at the Rosemont Campus branch of the Villanova Summer School. Mother Mary Giles was in attendance there during the Summer at which time she majored in history. During the school year, Mother Mary Giles is a member of the faculty of Hallahan Catholic Girls' High School in Philadelphia, teaching Spanish.]

The history of the medieval universities and the students who attended them presents a picture to fascinate even the casual reader. Who is not impressed to read of young men setting out in search of learning, attending lectures at the University of Paris, hearing of a great teacher now lecturing at Bologna, traveling the several hundred miles to that great Italian city, famous for the study of law, spending a few months or years there, then moving on—perhaps in company with the very lecturer who first attracted them—to Salamanca, several hundred more miles away, in Spain, there, in the study of theology, to round out already cultured minds. It was a common enough fate. In fact, it was seldom that a real scholar of the middle ages ever completed his full course of studies in just one university.

The gaiety of their life on the roads between universities was balanced by the dangers to life and fortune—though often enough the scholars were poor, their entire stock of belongings being carried in a little pack slung across their shoulders. Light-hearted young men had to be alert for the serious business of defending themselves against bandits along the highways and through the forests and mountain passes. Then too, they were not always of an angelic turn of mind. The stories of their gallantry and their intellectual achievements are familiar enough. So too are the stories of the disorders in the university towns—so serious indeed that rectors of universities had to be invested with real police powers to enable them to handle the unruly.

But not all the traveling students lived in the Middle Ages! Ask the Priests, Brothers, and Sisters, men and women, who attend summer classes at Villanova—either on the campus or at Hallahan High School in the city. Especially should you ask the Sisters! The Sister who has been able to take at one college all the courses for a simple Bachelor's degree is a rarity.

Nor are all the great lecturers lying under ivy-covered tombstones. The Order that gave Fray Luis de Leon to Salamanca has given of her intellectual treasure to Villanova, too. And serious students in places much farther distant from Villanova than Paris is from Bologna and Salamanca come yearly to its campus which, for the past four summers, has been at Rosemont, but which next summer returns to its own grounds. Texas was represented; Oregon sent its quota; Vancouver and Quebec heard and came—as did China, the Philippines and Hawaii—to say nothing of next door neighbors like thousand-mile-distant Illinois. Of course, Philadelphia, once called the Athens of America, was bound to send the largest representation to this century-old seat of Catholic learning.

Happily, though the parallel of a thirst for learning, seriousness of purpose, willingness to travel, gaiety of heart, is easily drawn—the Villanova summer school students do not present a discipline problem to the Faculty. The same obedience that determines their school and their courses, assures the observance of the smallest regulation—and they meet inconveniences and disappointments with a surprising good humor. Even the weather does not greatly disturb them. If there is a special reason for really needing fine weather—a picnic sponsored by the Science Department, for instance — they simply pray for it, and the matter is settled. So it was this summer when the Faculty and the student body of the summer school were the guests of the scientists in the clearing behind Kistler Library.

Father Burke and the Sisters in the different science classes were responsible for arrangements which included particularly effective posters done by an S.H.C.J. at the rate of one in three minutes, chairs, tables, a piano, a victrola, loud speaker, excellent records, and of course the picnic lunch. The delightful afternoon was a needed relaxation from the study packed hours of the six weeks of science, languages, history, philosophy — courses which filled the rooms to overflowing. In one room the student chairs were lined straight up to the blackboards in the front of the room. The Priests, Seminarians and boys who occupied these inconvenient places are probably still wondering why so many girl-teaching Sisters were interested in the equipment, architecture, tactics and strategy of the navies of the world from the earliest times to the present day.

The summer term opened on July 1 with Holy Mass celebrated by Father Bartley, Dean of the Summer Sessions. After Mass, Father's address of welcome combined words of encouragement to the students with comments on world affairs. Four hundred twenty-five students attended the campus sessions while 212 made up the Hallahan division. Of these numbers, five were Priests, two were Brothers, 550 were Sisters (representing 43 orders) and 12 were Seminarians. The Faculty was made up of 22 Priests, five Sisters, and seven Lay Teachers.

As soon as the Mass was concluded, work began in earnest. Almost simultaneously the different professors began assigning term papers, giving dates for tests, exams, and reports — and piling books on the reserve shelves! Practically everything was reserved! Day and night the labor went on, and daily and nightly the students or could they? Only time (exam time) would tell.

" . . . wonder grew
That their small heads
Could carry all they knew"

But there were days of joy unalloyed—days of spiritual rejoicing, intellectual feasting, and even a little bodily refreshment.

On July 4, according to a custom as old as Rosemont College, the Sisters took their supper al fresco. This year, bagged and bottled, it was transported across the road to New Sharon. After supper the visitors toured the grounds and buildings which, when finished, will be the Motherhouse and Novitiate of the Society of the Holy Child Jesus.

On July 13 the Society had its first public event in a year of commemorative celebrations in honor of its centenary. The Society is officially one hundred years old on October 13, 1946. The July celebration took the form of a Symposium on the Teaching of Religion in Schools.

The day opened with the Gregorian Missa cum Jubilo, celebrated by Father Robert M. Sullivan and sung by the Sisters' choir. Again, Father Bartley spoke beautifully of the Foundress, Mother Cornelia Connelly, and the spirit and works of the Society.

In a flower-decked hall, the Holy Child with arms outstretched presiding on the stage, several hundred Sisters of many different orders heard a panel of distinguished scholars speak eloquently on the Liturgy, Scripture, the Encyclicals, and Apologetics. After each address, questions were asked and answered. The speakers were Very Rev. Gregory E. Borgstedt, O.S.B., of Portsmouth, R. I.; Rev. John J. Dougherty of Immaculate Conception Seminary, Darlington, N. J.; Rev. Gerald C. Treacy, S.J. of America Press, and Rev. Robert E. Regan, O.S.A. of Washington and Villanova. The chairman of the morning session was Rev. William E. Campbell and of the afternoon session, Rev. Anthony L. Ostheimer.

Between the two sessions luncheon was served with a quiet efficiency and an amazing speed which drew appreciative comments from the visitors.

It was a day of great spiritual refreshment, and it closed with Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament given by Father Sullivan in the beautiful Collegiate Gothic Chapel of Rosemont College. The Sisters of the Holy Child were more than happy to be able to have this first event at a time when so many interested people could conveniently attend, and it was a pleasure to the Augustinian Fathers to be able to assist the College which has been so close to them—literally and spiritually—since it came into being in 1921 with Reverend Mother M. Ignatius and Reverend Mother M. Cleophas at the helm, two "valiant women" who have gone to receive their reward from the King they served so well.

Now followed some days of deep —serious — hushed — apprehensive study. A strained look appeared on some faces—a troubled air hung about the grounds. People walked into trees, or stood still in the middle of a path, or raised one foot to mount a staircase or cross a doorsill and forgot to lower it, or stared blankly at table companions who asked for ordinary things like salt and sugar and water. However, these temporary seizures passed when the comprehensive examina-

THE VILLANOVAN

With the opening of the Fall semester, more than 1900 students returned to the campus. Among these are men who had their schooling interrupted by the war, those who are entering as Freshmen after their service to their country, and those who are entering from preparatory and high schools throughout the country. They have all become Villanova men. And to each one, on behalf of the Faculty and the Villanovan, we extend a most hearty welcome.

By way of introduction to those who are not familiar with the Villanovan, we take this opportunity to present the college weekly newspaper to them.

This publication is one run by the students, under the able guidance of a Faculty Advisor, for the students. We strive to keep you well informed on the happenings on and about the Campus. This enterprise is not a one-way affair. The Villanovan is your paper as much as it is ours. It is Villanova's campus news.

Beyond the shadow of a doubt, the war affected your paper to an appreciable degree. Writers, as well as workers, were scarce. But we are going to forget World War II, and with you help we are going to return to a happy way of college life.

We welcome any comments and criticism you may have to offer. Remember, it is our earnest desire to give you the the best in college publications and be a credit to our college. Let's all do our part in making our college move on to greater heights than ever before. RELIGIOUSLY, SCHOLASTICALLY AND SOCIALLY.

The Editor.

A Luxury or Necessity?

It is not uncommon that one hears the expression that college education is a luxury; or, on the other hand, it is dubbed a necessity. Too many are imbued with the idea that it is a luxury on the grounds that a college education is beyond the grasp of the average family and therefore an attainment only of the wealthy or the extraordinarily brilliant student. Such a conviction is not only false, as the register of any university will bear testimony, but an impediment in the path of progress. Many are the men who have worked their entire way in the seeking and attaining of a higher education. Knowledge is fruit, not only for the brilliant ones who can enjoy the transportation of the few scholarships being offered, or for the rich who can afford to pay the high expense with little discomfort, but also for those who want it and are willing to work and sacrifice in order to attain their noble quest.

Still there are some who look at college education in a different light of luxury. It means a free education as far as the student individuals are concerned, whether at the expense of the parents or of the government. For it is of little consequence to them except that it affords the so called luxury of a college life. They think only of the coming proms, dances, and week-ends, and their chief concern scholastically is but to pass their courses by the skin of their teeth. Fortunately, men of such scant ambition are few today, but never the less, their plight is disturbing enough to demand attention. They are not only wasting valuable time and money but they are being unjust to themselves. They are deliberately neglecting the harvesting of a valuable knowledge which they could later use to their immense benefit.

Is college education a necessity? If the question is asked in the sense that it is indispensable, then higher education is not a necessity. Throughout the ages men have been living harmoniously and successfully with a high school foundation or less. The price of a successful and harmonious life is not merely the acquisition of a great mass of knowledge, but the true evaluation of the relativity of facts and their use in a just and proper way.

In the Western hemisphere, one sees progress at its best. Transportation is being revoluntionized in leaps and bounds. Sciences have been advanced far beyond the concept of the comman man, and the mode of life is becoming progressively competitive. The realization of these facts has prompted the youth of today to flock to the universities, where they are willing to undergo the congestion of a housing crisis and the irregular study hours, in order to become as proficient, if not more so, than their fellow men in their chosen fields.

It has now become to them a question of being a good chemist, a good physicist, a good lawyer, a good doctor, or a good what not, so they may wend their way successfully through the future years. Fully cognizant of the problems that confront the world, the faculties are prepared to do more than merely train specialized men. No better can their aims be expressed than in the words of the president of this institution in his welcoming speech to the students: "We do not want good chemists, good physicists, good lawyers, or good engineers, but good chemists who are good men, good physicists who are good men, good lawyers who are good men, and good engineers who are good men."

The conflicts that have torn man's heart from Nanking to Warsaw and from the Suez to Singapore were not the result of the lack of highly authorized men in special fields. On the contrary, such men were the keys in the most devastating crisis the human race has yet undergone.

Education can certainly give the answers to all man's problems but it is his actions that make and unmake, that create or destroy. Atomic energy and bacterial potency are of little consequence except when in the hands of man. The fear of atomic and bacterial warfare can only be eliminated when man not only learns the truth but acts the truth as well.

Yes, college education is both a luxury and a necessity. We make it so.

Our Editorials

Editorials are the views of individuals on current events, and their philosophies on unlimited subjects. As presupposed by many, editorials are written by the Editors only. This is not the Villanovan policy. We welcome and desire your views, too.

During the past two semesters, our paper has carried articles by boys from all the branches of Villanova, as well as letters from Villanova men who have been in the service. In keeping with democracy we have no alternative.

Not that we are against this "everybody write" practice, but we know that by publishing views from every point, we are working in the interest of a better paper, and are tending toward improving our very school.

There is contained in a current magazine, an account of a man who had the philosophy, "Say It Where It Will Count." Many brilliant ideas die in the minds of men who are afraid to come out and say what they think. The world condition as it exists today could have been appreciably altered if men such as these had said what they thought to the right people and in the right places.

On the other hand, we do not intend to knock every action of our school with our writings. Villanova is behind us and not against us. Previously, articles have been "let through" by other editors which contradicted the college's policy.

We cannot hope to give better ways or different ways of running things in view of the fine job the college administration has done and is doing at this very moment.

It's true that Villanova has some "Sore Spots" at the present time, but for that matter what college hasn't during these trying days. We have been assured and it has been demonstrated to us that Villanova is taking measures to clear all 'problem points" in the shortest possible time.

We, therefore, bid you to do your part in helping and cooperating so that again people can acknowledge another Villanova "first."

In regard to your general problems affecting all or most of the Students, the Student Council has been elected by you to present your problems to the proper authority. If yours is a complaint of a large body of students, see your representative on the Student Council. Teamwork is just as essential in running an institution of higher learning as it is on the field of sport. Let's get together on going to school.

Our policy should be clear. Villanova belongs to us and we belong to Villanova. We'll stand by our pledge to do everything in our power to further the interests of both you, the Student, and Villanova, your College.

So, once again, we welcome your editorials regardless of the subject. Any one of our staff will accommodate you. Let's have the Students' viewpoint on our items of current interest.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Gang:

The number of buddies and downright good friends that I have met during my Army days from 1942 to 1946, followed by four months at Villanova College, has made it very difficult to make a hurried announcement to each one by mail.

Well, the one thing in the world I was hoping wouldn't happen has happened, and there's nothing I can do about it. While working this summer I chanced to get something in my eye which necessitated a rush visit to the doctor. After removing the particle, Doctor Reynolds (reputedly one of the finest eye specialists in New England) examined my eyes thoroughly and then informed me that I should give up college and forget my dreams of studying law. It seems that I have compound myopia to a rather high degree in both eyes and it is, therefore, advisable that I do not use them for any intensive study. Any ordinary work which entails some reading, and so forth, is all right so long as it does not involve any intensive study. In view of this, I was asked to drop my studies in favor of something a little less strenuous to the old peepers.

Fortunately for me I had made some good contacts the early part of the summer with Pan-American-Grace Airways in an attempt to secure temporary summer employment in one of the South American countries. Though this was an odd request and almost impossible to fulfill, I was asked to accept a more permanent position. This, of course, I turned down in favor of a college degree and an LLB. However, after receiving the sad news from Dr. Reynolds, I phoned New York to inquire about that permanent offer. A few trips to the big city followed, accompanied by several interviews. At last I signed a three year contract.

I am just finishing up some work I was doing for the EMFC, and then I shall concentrate on leaving the country within three weeks (as soon as my passport comes through from Washington). I am being sent to Pan American-Grace Airways' main offices in Lima, Peru, as an Assistant Manager. The position carries with it a good salary, a two weeks vacation every year with pay, and a two months furlough at the end of three years with pay and free transporation back to the states. So, it's "Goodbye" college and "Hello" Peru!

The opportunities are wonderful and numerous in South America, and this job can lead to almost anything. I have big hopes, and am looking forward to a broad and profitable future.

As Ever,
William M. Golden,
Ex '49 Managing Editor, The Villanovan.

GOLDEN, EDITOR

Bill Golden, whose article appears above, was appointed Editor in Chief of The Villanovan for this year. However, due to health, he was forced to retire.

Bill has been with The Villanovan for some time, being on the Editorial staff last year.

While in the Armed Forces of our country, he did quite a little writing and gained nationwide acclaim with his poem, "Mom's Battle." This work was published across the nation. Golden has also written other poems.

New Editors Take Over Student Weekly as Villanovan Begins

Matt Kearney, junior arts student, has been appointed Editor-in-Chief of the Villanovan for the coming scholastic year it has been announced by Rev. John A. Klekotka, O.S.A., moderator of the publication He succeeds Russell L. Welsh, who has entered medical school.

Kearney, a former member of the V-12 Unit here at Villanova, is a graduate of Trenton Catholic High School. Although his high school extra-curricular activities favored dramatics, the paper's new chief joined the staff as a columnist in November, 1944, served later as a sports writer, becoming Sports Editor in June, 1945, his position prior to the present appointment.

Head man of pages one to four and boss of the reporters is former sports writer Jim Bonner, the new Copy Editor. Another former V-12 man and graduate of St. Joseph's Prep, Jim McNamara, holds the position of Sports Editor.

Other editorial positions are held by Charles Laferty as Feature Editor and John Brinjac as Photography Editor.

Succeeding William Wescott as Business Manager will be Louis Meccariello, who served in this line on last year's Villanovan. He controls the financial and advertising aspects as well as a general supervision of all the business affairs of the paper.

Working in conjunction with him will be Peter McManus, Circulation Manager. With the college's swelled enrollment the staff is faced with one of the greatest distribution problems in the history of its operation.

With this edition the Villanovan enters its 22nd year of existence. Among the wealth of experienced workers on its staff, which is one of the largest of its colorful history, there are studded returning veterans, some of them top ranking editors and business chieftains of past years.

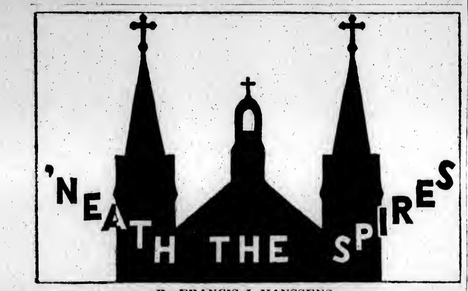
Among the changes planned this year, as announced by the Editor, will be news articles written more concisely and giving wider representation of all the activities and doings of the college, and columns of deeper interest and higher literary caliber.



Death Comes to Father Hammond

On the Morning of September 4, Rev. John F. Hammond, O.S.A., died in his sleep in the Villanova monastery, at the age of 51. Father Hammond had taught organic chemistry at the college for the eleven years before his death. He was buried in the college's cemetery on Sept. 7.

A native of Philadelphia, he entered Villanova Academy in 1907 and joined the Augustinian order here in 1915. He was ordained to the priesthood in 1917. After receiving his masters degree here, Father was sent to Chicago where he taught chemistry at Saint Rita's High School while attending classes at the Armour Institute there. In 1935 he returned to Villanova to teach chemistry. Father Hammond was well known in Philadelphia, through his preaching in the parishes, principally at Holy Child Parish.

By FRANCIS J. HANSSENS

The odds are ten to one that if you, the reader, had realized a dozen words or so sooner that you were in the process of reading the traditional religious column of the Villanovan, you would never have ventured forth past that poorly chosen initial word "THE." But since you have gone this far, you might as well strain the eyeballs for a few lines more.

Today, Tuesday, the fifteenth of October, initiates for those of us who were not victims of that dread disease, "Dean's Dilemma," the beginning of our third week back at school after a layoff of several months, or several weeks for those of us who attended summer sessions. But whether it has been several months or several weeks, each and every one of us has felt a certain relief, a certain satisfaction, in once more renewing that journey along the road of Catholic education in an atmosphere truly Catholic.

Well, you are probably asking yourself, what of this Catholic atmosphere you talk about? What makes it so special, so important; in fact, just what is it? If we said that, in answer, we could draw a picture of it, the doubting population would be innumerable. Draw a picture of Catholic atmosphere? Never. But as we proceeded with our sketch; as each line added significance to the others, and all of a sudden we found ourselves gazing upon the twin spires of our chapel, then would we realize that—"Oh yes, this is what Catholic atmosphere means. It means OUR chapel, with Our Spiritual Quarterback residing within. "Oh, if we'd only let Him call the signals; if we'd only let Him lead the interference as He wishes to do, and is so capable of doing.

So next time we find ourselves making that arduous trip between Mendel Hall and C&F, let's stop in for a glimpse of that "Catholic Atmosphere" some guy talked about in the Villanovan. The Catholic atmosphere is there. Yes, He's there, and He won't be found wanting in love and understanding.

EDITORIAL ABUNDANCE

Many ex-Editors of this publication are currently enrolled here and they will assist the present staff in turning out the Villanovan. Their suggestions will help to maintain the All-America rating which was consistently achieved by the paper in pre-War days.

Symphonic Band Again Active

After an absence of four years, Villanova's symphonic band is once again in the ascendant. The first of a group of primary gatherings was held on October 4 to size up the material on hand. Hereafter regular rehearsals will be held every Monday evening. Rev. Ralph Handran, O.S.A., the moderator and conductor, announced that the band was looking for more members, especially from the freshman class. He expressed a desire to expand the present membership of 45 to about 70 in the near future.

While the band will not march at any of the remaining football games this season, nevertheless plans are being formulated for a concert or series of concerts to be held this seasoin. In previous year this was done in connection with the band of Immaculata College.

Father Handran has just returned to the College after an eventual career as naval chaplain aboard the aircraft carrier Cowpens in the Pacific zone of operations. He saw service through the Gilberts and Marshalls to Tokyo and Yokahama.

Anyone interested in joining the band should consult either Father Handran or James Rogers, manager of the band.

Plans are also being considered for a Glee Club. While they are not very far advanced, nevertheless anyone who wishes to join such an organization should make his desire known to Father Handran.

Office Changes On the Campus

Upon your return to the campus and during your first two weeks stay, you no doubt notice the regularity with which various offices were changed from room to room in Mendel Hall. Among these changes you will find:

1. The Villanovan moved from the old Belle Air office on the second floor of Mendel back to their old office, which for the past four months has been occupied by the bookstore.

2. The bookstore has moved from the old Villanovan office to Room 103 Mendal, which was formerly a classroom.

3. The Veterans Bureau has moved from the Old Faculty room to what was the Navy Office during the Navy's stay here.

4. The NROTC Offices have been moved to Room 101 Mendal, formerly a Civil Engineering classroom.

5. NROTC Instructers have been moved to where the Veterans Bureau formerly was. (Confusing, isn't it?)

6. Alumni Secretary, Mr. Friel, has moved to Publicity Director Haughton's former office.

7. Meanwhile, Mr. Haughton moves to the Field House.

Now while you untwist your now somewhat baffled mind, we would like to add that there is now a vacant space on the second floor of Mendal where we used to have our offices.

Photostat Machine

The College has also added to its facilities a photostat machine to be used in photographing Certificates of Eligibility. These are the forms used in carrying out the payment by the Government to the college the tuition of the men using the GI Bill. This machine is now located directly across from the Villanovan office.

Upon completion of the Army barracks, work will begin on the new Pie Shop Building and the Day Room for non-resident students. Further information on this will be forthcoming in subsequent issues.

NEW INFIRMARY

Another important change is the moving of the College infirmary from Mendal Hall to Middleton Hall. The latter was the Navy sick-bay while the V-12 was stationed here.

This change will help to facilitate the handling of sick from the enlarged student body and will give more room in caring for the sick.

Middleton Hall contains several wards whereas the old infirmary had only one. A fire slide is also a feature which is new to the infirmary. It would enable the escape of the patients in the event of a fire.

Father Francis Boyle is still in charge of the College sick cases. Medical examinations for the students are taking place at the present time.

NOW IS THE TIME!

Now is the best time to start studying. Don't put off until finals roll around, get a head start.

Foreign Correspondent

By Mother Mary Giles, S.H.C.J.

[Ed. Note: In order to enable us to fill the gap in Villanova history, between our last issue in the Spring of 1946 and this present edition, our foreign correspondent, Mother Mary Giles, S.H.C.J., has graciously covered the Summer session at the Rosemont Campus branch of the Villanova Summer School. Mother Mary Giles was in attendance there during the Summer at which time she majored in history. During the school year, Mother Mary Giles is a member of the faculty of Hallahan Catholic Girls' High School in Philadelphia, teaching Spanish.]

The history of the medieval universities and the students who attended them presents a picture to fascinate even the casual reader. Who is not impressed to read of young men setting out in search of learning, attending lectures at the University of Paris, hearing of a great teacher now lecturing at Bologna, traveling the several hundred miles to that great Italian city, famous for the study of law, spending a few months or years there, then moving on—perhaps in company with the very lecturer who first attracted them—to Salamanca, several hundred more miles away, in Spain, there, in the study of theology, to round out already cultured minds. It was a common enough tale. In fact, it was seldom that a real scholar of the middle ages ever completed his full course of studies in just one university.

The gaiety of their life on the roads between universities was balanced by the dangers to life and fortune—though often enough the scholars were poor, their entire stock of belongings being carried in a little pack slung across their shoulders. Light-hearted young men had to be alert for the serious business of defending themselves against bandits along the highways and through the forests and mountain passes. Then too, they were not always of an angelic turn of mind. The stories of their gallantry and their intellectual achievements are familiar enough. So too are the stories of the disorders in the university towns—so serious indeed that rectors of universities had to be invested with real police powers to enable them to handle the unruly.

But not all the traveling students lived in the Middle Ages! Ask the Priests, Brothers, and Sisters, men and women, who attend summer classes at Villanova—either on the campus or at Hallahan High School in the city. Especially should you ask the Sisters! The Sister who has been able to take at one college all the courses for a simple Bachelor's degree is a rarity.

Nor are all the great lecturers lying under ivy-covered tombstones. The Order that gave Fray Luis de Leon to Salamanca has given of her intellectual treasure to Villanova too. And serious students in places much further distant from Villanova than Paris is from Bologna and Salamanca come yearly to its campus which, for the past four summers, has been at Rosemont, but which next summer returns to its own grounds. Texas was represented; Oregon sent its quota: Vancouver and Quebec heard and came—as did China, the Philippines and Hawaii—to say nothing of next door neighbors like thousand-mile-distant Illinois. Of course, Philadelphia, once called the Athens of America, was bound to send the largest representation to this ancient-old seat of Catholic learning.

Happily, though the parallel of a thirst for learning, seriousness of purpose, willingness to travel, gaiety of heart, is easily drawn—the Villanova summer school students do not present a discipline problem to the Faculty. The same obedience that determines their school and their courses, assures the observance of the smallest regulation—and they meet inconveniences and disappointments with a surprising good humor. Even the weather does not greatly disturb them. If there is a special reason for really needing fine weather—a picnic sponsored by the Science Department, for instance — they simply pray for it, and the matter is settled. So it was this summer when the faculty and the student body of the summer school were the guests of the scientists in the clearing behind Kistler Library.

Father Burke and the Sisters in the different science classes were responsible for arrangements which included particularly effective posters done by an S. M. at the rate of one in three minutes, chairs, tables, a piano, a victrola, loud speaker, excellent records, and of course the picnic lunch. The delightful afternoon was a needed relaxation from the study packed hours of the six weeks of science, languages, history, philosophy — courses which filled the rooms to overflowing. In one room the student chairs were lined straight up to the blackboards in the front of the room. The Priests, Seminarians and boys who occupied these inconvenient places are probably still wondering why so many girl-teaching Sisters were interested in the equipment, architecture, tactics and strategy of the navies of the world from the earliest times to the present day.

The summer term opened on July 1 with Holy Mass celebrated by Father Bartley, Dean of the Summer Sessions. After Mass, Father's address of welcome combined words of encouragement to the students with comments on world affairs. Four hundred twenty-five students attended the campus sessions while 212 made up the Hallahan division. Of these numbers, five were Priests, two were Brothers, 550 were Sisters (representing 43 orders) and 12 were Seminarians. The Faculty was made up of 22 Priests, five Sisters, and seven Lay Teachers.

As soon as the Mass was concluded, work began in earnest. Almost simultaneously the different professors began assigning term papers, giving dates for tests, exams, and reports — and piling books on the reserve shelves! Practically everything was reserved! Day and night the labor went on, and daily and nightly the students' "... wonder grew or could they? Only time (exam time) would tell...

But there were days of joy unalloyed—days of spiritual rejoicing, intellectual feasting, and even a little bodily refreshment.

On July 4, according to a custom as old as Rosemont College, the Sisters took their supper al fresco. This year, bagged and bottled, it was transported across the road to New Sharon. After supper the visitors toured the grounds and buildings which, when finished, will be the Motherhouse and Novitiate of the Society of the Holy Child Jesus.

On July 13 the Society had its first public event in a year of commemorative celebrations in honor of its centenary. The Society is officially one hundred years old on October 13, 1946. The July celebration took the form of a Symposium on the Teaching of Religion in Schools.

The day opened with the Gregorian Missa cum Jubilo, celebrated by Father Robert M. Sullivan and sung by the Sisters' choir. Again, Father Bartley spoke beautifully of the Foundress, Mother Cornelia Connelly, and the spirit and works of the Society.

In a flower-decked hall, the Holy Child with arms outstretched presiding on the stage, several hundred Sisters of many different orders heard a panel of distinguished scholars speak eloquently on the Liturgy, Scripture, the Encyclicals, and Apologetics. After each address, questions were asked and answered. The speakers were Very Rev. Gregory E. Borgstedt, O.S.B., of Portsmouth, R. I.; Rev. John J. Dougherty of Immaculate Conception Seminary, Darlington, N. J.; Rev. Gerald C. Treacy, S.J. of America Press, and Rev. Robert E. Regan, O.S.A. of Washington and Villanova. The chairman of the morning session was Rev. William E. Campbell and of the afternoon session, Rev. Anthony L. Osthelmer.

Between the two sessions luncheon was served with a quiet efficiency and an amazing speed which drew appreciative comments from the visitors.

It was a day of great spiritual refreshment, and it closed with Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament given by Father Sullivan in the beautiful Collegiate Gothic Chapel of Rosemont College. The Sisters of the Holy Child were more than happy to be able to have this first event at a time when so many interested people could conveniently attend, and it was a pleasure to the Augustinian Fathers to be able to assist the College which has been so close to them—literally and spiritually—since it came into being in 1921 with Reverend Mother M. Ignatius and Reverend Mother M. Cleophas at the helm, two "valiant women" who have gone to receive their reward from the King they served so well.

Now followed some days of deep —serious — hushed — apprehensive study. A strained look appeared on some faces—a troubled air hung about the grounds. People walked into trees, or stood still in the middle of a path, or raised one foot to mount a staircase or cross a doorsill and forgot to lower it, or stared blankly at table companions who asked for ordinary things like salt and sugar and water. However, these temporary seizures passed when the comprehensive examina-

Racial Group Plans Meeting

By J. P. MALLICK

An important meeting of the Catholic Intercollegiate Interracial Group of Villanova College will be held on Thursday, October 17 in Room 212 Mendel. Because of the conflict of rosters two meetings have been arranged at 12:45 and 1:45.

The purpose of this organization is the recognition of the Brotherhood of Man under the Fatherhood of God. It aims for the establishment of a truly Christian Democracy, i.e., "a society in which the God-given dignity and destiny of every human person is fully recognized, in laws, government, institutions and human conduct." Therefore, a two-fold aim is implied, the combating of race prejudice and the attainment of social justice for the whole group regardless of race.

In order to cope with race prejudice, this society presents to all Villanovans an opportunity to make a thorough study of interracial justice and the teachings of the Church, under the guidance of teachers conversant with this field. Periodic conferences and discussions on subjects pertaining to interracial justice will appear throughout the year.

The plans of this organization there includes: organizing of debates on interracial topics, development of trained speakers, and cooperation with other Catholic Interracial Groups.

All students who are interested in this organization and cannot be present at either of these meetings can notify either Rev. William J. Kearney, O.S.A., moderator, or John P. Mallick, president of 443 Mendel Hall.

tions were over toward the end of July.

A delightful and completely unexpected pleasure came to the Summer School this year when, through a series of interesting coincidences, Mr. Benjamin Musser gave readings from some of his own poetry to a most appreciative audience. Many, who came merely as a courtesy, stayed, completely satisfied to give Mr. Musser as much time as Mr. Musser would give them. His City of God, read in a voice that went to the heart of the listener, bore his audience to the mountain heights and to the depths of the sea, it thundered with the violence of the Church Militant, and it breathed sweetly the message of the Holy Spirit. His poetry, much of it mystical, some of it whimsical, was sometimes majestic, sometimes Celtic to and simple—but always satisfying. The poet won the hearts of the students and Faculty who were fortunate enough to be free to hear him and were pleased when, in his friendly manner, he told them how happy he was to renew an old relationship with the Augustinians who had been instrumental in his joining the Catholic Church many years ago, before he moved to New Jersey to become the poet laureate of that state. He explained that he had accepted the title and position on condition that he should not be bound to spend all his time writing on the beauties and riches of that state.

The National Catholic Rural Life Council made its annual visit to the Summer School. However, this year Msgr. Ligutti did not attend the discussions and his absence was noted with regret. The economy of cooperative buying was discussed, and, of course the aims of the Council were explained and illustrated with examples.

A happy, busy, fruitful summer closed with Commencement Exercises in the Rosemont Chapel on Saturday morning, August 10, 1946

Fr. McGuire Convenes Student Council for Talk

School Policies Subject of Address; Stresses Function of Council

Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, President of Villanova College, presented to the college Student Council in Mendel Hall on October 8, 1946, the latest facts and developments pertaining to the enrollment, housing, and the veteran situations on the campus. He explained the reasons for the delay of the completion of campus housing units. He requested that all those directly affected by these delays bear with these circumstances and the college authorities until these units have been constructed. Hope was expressed that this would be done within two or three months.

College progress on these matters, it was said, it contingent upon the several government agencies directly concerned with the business of college enrollments and veterans affairs. At Villanova College the FHA could only bring the housing materials to be later erected into dormitories. A bill sponsored to get Federal aid in erecting other units at the various institutions has been blocked in Congress and is thereby holding back the flow of this much needed assistance and material. Through the FWA a bill has been passed creating a new agency whereby these problems can be dealt with and handled accordingly. It is with this organization that Villanova's particular problems are being lodged.

It is expected that within the next four weeks the second project will include the setting up of the new student lounge and Pie Shop. Furniture for the former has been received and awaits only the completion of the lounge quarters Material for the pie shop is expected to arrive from California in the very near future.

Villanova's enrollment has swollen to 1946 students making it the largest of any in the school's history In addition 1100 are attending Saturday and evening classes. Twenty-two professors have been added to the faculty to care for this overflow. Schedules have been set up to run from 8 A. M. to 8 P. M. five days a week with Saturday morning classes added. Much money has been spent to improve the campus facilities. The faculty is well aware of the present difficulties and asks that the men do their best under the crowded conditions.

—the fourth and last year of Villanova's sojourn in that hospitable spot. Honorary degrees of Doctor of Laws were conferred on Rev. James W. Gibbons of Malvern, Pa. and on Very Rev. James M. Hurley, OSA of Havana, Cuba. Thirty-nine Masters' degrees and 58 Bachelors' degrees were bestowed on Priests, Brothers, Sisters and laity. The Rev. Francis X. McGuire, O.S.A., President of Villanova, celebrated the Mass and addressed the graduates and their friends afterward. He dwelt on the value of these particular degrees—the fruit of many long hours snatched at odd times from days already full of labor in the King's vineyard—the assurance of being more fit instruments for the Hand of the Master—the evidence of a self-sacrificing devotion to religion and the cause of Catholic education.

Debating Team Elects Officers

Arrangements Made For This Semester; New Members Invited

On June 6th, the debating society of Villanova College held their last meeting of the 2nd semester last year. Among the many major points under consideration was the reorganization of the society for the coming fall semester.

Members of the society, along with the moderator, Rev. William J. Krupa, O.S.A., unanimously nominated and elected Peter Turney, president of the society for the next term. Turney has been a regular member since the advent of the society. The position of secretary went to Edward Sulivan who is a veteran on the debating team. Along with these enthusiastic orators are added the capable efforts of Bill Turner, Bill Chester, and Amien Walsh, holdovers from last year.

The president and secretary-elect were presented with all the necessary material for the debates last spring and the debating society is ready to open their season.

Interest in the debating society was great last year and the society hopes to keep it that way. However, with a big schedule, there is need for new members. Many new students have joined the society and any student who is interested should attend the meetings, the first of which will be Friday, under the auspices of the Benjamin Franklin Debating Society at the University of Pennsylvania. The B.F.D.S. determines the topics to be contested during the forensic year.

In a short preview the following tentative debates are planned, many of them to take place at the respective colleges, which means that there are many trips in the offing for prospective candidates. Annapolis, Syracuse, Rosemont, Chestnut Hill, University of Pennsylvania, Temple, Pennsylvania University for Women, Haverford, Swarthmore, Rider, Rutgers, Bryn Mawr, St. Joseph's, Ursinus, Boston University, Boston College, and Princeton University are on the schedule. The first debate should be about the last of October, and the schedule runs from October to May. The majority of the debating contests will be on the campus of the team competing against Villanova.

Villanova is a member of the Benjamin Franklin Debating Society which holds debates once during the course of every college year. During the past year Villanova was judged fifth.

This year a freshman team has been organized under the sponsorship of the varsity. We again stress the point that all newcomers are invited and encouraged to join. Villanova will uphold its good reputation of last year, and aims to do better this year, with its nucleus of veterans and promising material.

HOW ABOUT WRITING?

There are still positions to be had on the staff of the Villanovan. Writing, photography, circulation and business are still some of the fields open.

In addition to experience gained, there are many other advantages to being the member of the staff.

There is the annual Villanovan Dinner Dance which will be held around the middle of the school year. Dining, dancing and a guest speaker are just some of the activities planned.

At this dinner-dance the awarding of keys takes place. Each member of the staff who has put in the required amount of time and is graduating is presented with one of the keys, with his name engraved thereon.

So at your earliest convenience, drop into Room 119, the Villanovan office, and leave your name and room number.

Homecoming Football Game, Dinner Feature Annual Weekend Reunion

Large Alumni Turnout for First Reunion in Five Years

The Villanova Alumni held the largest annual weekend reunion in its history on Sept. 13th, 14th, and 15th on the college campus. Coupled with this year's reunion was the annual homecoming football game with Kings Point M. M. Academy in the Villanova staduim, thereby adding greatly to the festivities. This was the first reunion since 1941.

Homecoming Weekend was filled with many attractions starting with a big jamboree Friday evening at the Field House. Memorial Mass was celebrated in the college chapel Saturday morning in honor of those who have given their lives in this war. Rev. Joseph M. Dougherty, O.S.A., delivered the address at the memorial services. The annual dinner was held Saturday evening at the Field House and was a great success. The principal speaker, Frank Braham, '21, spoke on the relationship between the employer and employe and stressed the fact that the Alumni, themselves, should take an active part in trying to straighten out the labor situation. Robert McGrory '36, toastmaster, read a telegram of greeting received during the banquet from the Alumni's former secretary, Rev. Robert E. McGrath, O.S.A. A well delivered speech on the physical developments of Villanova college was given by Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., President of the College. Other addresses were given by Jordan Olivar, head football coach, and Paetus F. Banmiller '35, President of the Alumni Association expressed his thanks to the Alumni for the very successful reunion.

Including those at the banquet table were Martin L. Gill '32, chairman of the reunion and First Vice President of Association, J. Bradley McManus, '40, William F. Friel 34, '43, Secretary, Rev. E. B. McKee, Rev. R. M. Sullivan, and Rev. Joseph Hickey, Assistant General of the Augustinian Order, of the class of '03, the oldest Alumni member at the reunion.

EIGHT PAGES

The Villanovan will consist of an eight page coverage every week for the coming school year, Matt Kearney, Editor in Chief, announced last week. During the war, paper shortages necessitated a brief four page issue.

Italian Cross For Buckley

Second Lieutenant Francis E. Buckley, U.S. Army, and graduate of Villanova in the class of 1942, was posthumously awarded the Cross of Military Valor by the Italian government, it was announced last week by William F. Friel, 3d, Alumni Secretary.

Lieutenant Buckley was killed in action May 12, 1944, during the push on Rome which began on the 11th of May. For his actions in the engagement, in which he was killed, he was decorated by both the American and Italian governments. The decoration was delivered to Mrs. Mary F. Buckley, mother of the Lieutenant, by the U.S. War Department. It was accompanied by the following citation: "Hubert of Savoy, Prince of Piedmont, Lieutenant-General of the Realm, by his decree under date of September 15, 1945, in view of Royal Decree number 1423 of November 1932 and successive modifications: upon suggestion of the Secretary of State for War has conferred on his own motion the Military Valor Cross upon Second Lieutenant Francis E. Buckley. In the Italian campaign he distinguished himself by valor and splendid spirit of self sacrifice. The Secretary of State for War therefore issues the present document as proof of honorific insignia conferred. Rome, October 5, 1945."

The late Lt. Buckley received the highest award conferred on any Villanovan in World War II when on February 12, 1945 President Franklin D. Roosevelt awarded him the D.S.C. posthumously for extraordinary heroism in the engagement opening the push on Rome on May 11, 1944.

J. W. Haggerty '29 Killed in Action

Lt. (jg) James W. Haggerty of the class of 1929 at Villanova College died during a naval engagement off Okinawa April 28, 1945, it was reported recently.

Haggerty, who attended Villanova two years before going to Brown for his degree, was serving as Assistant Navigator and Executive officer on the Hospital Evacuation Ship USS Pinckney which was off Okinawa.

After graduation from St. Louis High in 1925, Haggerty came to Villanova. After two years he left to study at Brown. In July of 1941 he entered the Navy, and served as a pharmacist mate at Chelsea, Mo. Then he was transferred to Panama where he served for two years. Following this he was sent to Norfolk and Ft. Schuyler Intern, and promoted to the rank of lieutenant junior grade.

Haggerty is survived by his mother and three sisters, two of whom are married.

The injury riddled Villanova squad amazed the New England fans with their spirited comeback.

Blue and White Rally Brilliantly To Defeat Favored Holy Cross Team

Ollie's Men Take Close Decision in the Proverbial Sea of Mud as Capriotti Does Flashy Running; Team Points for Georgetown with Smoother Play

By JIM McNAMARA

The Villanova Wildcats, now moving in high gear, squeezed out a thrilling victory over a formidable Holy Cross team last Saturday at Fitton Field, Worcester, Massachusetts, 14-13.

Guard Al Barker's two placements after touchdown proceed to be the margin of victory. Villanova fought an uphill battle and came from behind to win. It was the first time a Wildcat team ever triumphed over a Crusader eleven.

The Cross started moving early in the first period. The passing combination of DeFilippo to Deickleman moved from the Crusader 43 to the Wildcat 28 yard line. At this point, Pavalko, sturdy Cat lineman and game captain, fell on a loose ball and halted the home team's threat.

Andy Gordon sent a 55 yard boot sailing to the opponent's 25 yard line after three line plays lost eight yards.

The linemen, led by Ferry and Kane, threw back two sweeping plays for losses of ten and seven yards and the Cross was in a hole on the eight yard line.

Cats Miss Chance

Olivar's men found themselves in a scoring position when Romeo Capriotti returned Bob Sullivan's punt to the 35. The chance to score died when two of Gordon's passes fell incomplete in the end zone.

Starting from their own 30, the Crusaders then powerhoused their way 70 yards to score in rolling off five first downs. Sullivan's hard running and the rifle passing of Delbello featured the long trek to pay dirt. A Delbello pass to Walt Roberto covered the final ten yards and DeFilippo added the extra point. First period: Holy Cross 7, Villanova 0.

In the second period, a determined Wildcat machine moved 51 yards following a Doherty interception of Walt Komar's wayward heave. This attack bogged down on the opponent's seven after Rogers and Capriotti had negotiated three successive first downs.

Zehler Goes Over

Refusing to be denied a six-pointer, the Cats moved from the enemy 39 into paydirt in seven plays following another short boot by Sullivan. A flat pass from Gordon to Zehler was the payoff heave that covered 14 yards. Barker added the extra point with two minutes and 20 seconds until halftime remaining.

A furious home team came roaring back through the air and reached the Cat 2 yard line on Delbello's long canter. Sullivan rode the crest of the hard-charging Crusader line as they pushed through for the score with only four seconds remaining until halftime. The placement try hit the upright.

Barker Decides

In the third period a 30 yard heave from Gordon to end Dan Brown was taken by the latter on the ten and he squirmed on over for the game tying points. Left-footed Al Barker calmly split the uprights for the clincher.

Villanova beset by penalties and unable to get another sustained drive going, settled back into a more defensive game as the clock rolled on.

An alert pass defense and charging line enabled Ollie's team to hang on until the final whistle. The air was filled with passes as the Cross tried desparately to keep their victory sheet over Villanova clean. Final score: Villanova 14, Holy Cross, 13.

Siano Appointed Coach of 150's; Rutgers 1st Foe

Coach Pleased with Kittens in Drills; Paruta Will Lead Team from Single Wing

John Siano, stalwart lineman on the '43 Wildcat eleven was appointed to coach the 150 lb. football team. The first practice was called for Oct. 2 and about 80 candidates turned out. With the first game scheduled for next Saturday, Oct. 19, against Rutgers in our own stadium, Siano faced the task of whipping together a team in two weeks. The new coach has done a swell job of teaching his charges the fundamentals of the single wing with an unbalanced line. Returning Kittens like Tony Paruta, Jim Bonner and Bob Merriweather gave a big lift to the coach's job.

The backfield in the latest practice sessions looked very impressive. Bill Leighton, a ram-rod fullback and Dick Divine, former St. Joe's Prep ace, are waging a keen battle for a starting berth. Both are good punters and Divine's passing is the highlight of our aerial offensive. Tony Paruta who sparked the "50's" back in '41 and '42, is almost certain to regain his blocking back role. Tommy's Joe Reilley is giving Tony a strong battle for distinction of leading the team in the league opener Saturday. "Red" O'Donnell has the cool poise and hard drive that should make him a valuable man when the going gets rough.

In the forward wall Coach Siano is well pleased with his wings and center. Bob Merriweather and Walt "Gunner" Glaser are two good receivers and rough enough on defense to keep shifty lightweights from running to the outside. The race for pivot between Ned Hoffner and Bob Fitzmyer is a toss up so far. Ned played for a Kansas City high team for two years and specializes in backing up the line like Bob David (synonomous with blood and thunder). Fitz was an all-Catholic selection when he played for St. Joe's in Phila. and what he didn't gain in weight he has added in ruggedness since.

Strong side tackle will be capably handled by Jim Bonner, a starter on the '41 and '42 teams before entering the service. Jim's running mate, from latest showings, should be Ben Paradee. Ben gained experience with a service team in Manila. Larry "Crusher" Lyons, left guard, who plays running guard from the strong side on offense, looks very good. He is a hard tackler on defense and a good down field blocker.

Coach Siano is well pleased with the play of these men and equally pleased with his reserves. The time element which is bucking his efforts of forming a well coordinated machine is the only obstacle.

The 150's should field a formidable team and all signs point to an inaugural victory over Rutgers. Game time 2:00 o'clock Saturday in Villanova's stadium.

Wildcats Meet Georgetown Sunday; Hoyas Underdogs

Team Looks for Third Straight Win at Home in Renewal of Rivalry

By DAN REDMOND

Villanova will lay its undefeated home record on the line next Sunday afternoon when Coach Jordan Olivar's charges play host to Georgetown University at Shibe Park. The kick-off is slated for 2:00 P. M.

Taking up the gridiron sport for the first time in four years, the Hoyas have as the nucleus of this year's eleven nine members of that 1942 team. Also returning is Jack Hagerty, coach of many successful Georgetown teams before the war. He has gathered in quite a few former high and prep school stars and with these men around to augment the abilities of his veterans, he hopes to make his post-war debut in Philadelphia a memorable one.

Strong at Guard

Hagerty has four members of the '42 aggregation starting in his forward wall. Of these, Elmer Oberto, 206-pound guard, stands out as one of the best in the South. Bus Werder, his running-mate, was also on the Hoyas' last team. This pair gives Georgetown a steady combination at the guard slots.

Larry Koncelik at end and Lou Robustelli, a bruising tackle, are the other two vets in the line. At present they are teaming up with George Benigni and George Antonovsky at end and tackle respectively. Two local boys are not far behind in the battle for these two positions. Frank Desmond, a former teammate of Lou Ferry's at St. James High Chester, has been mentioned on occasions as a first string end. Jerry Kane, an All-Catholic selections from last year's West Catholic eleven, has stood out in many of the Washington club's scrimmages.

Three other Philadelphians who

SEEN From the Sidelines

George Guida, "Dutch" McCarthy, Ed Fitzgerald and Bob O'Sullivan—the quartet that represented Villanova in mile relays before the war—have all reported to coach "Jumbo" Elliot for the coming indoor season. Prospects look good.

Joe Lord, who broke the all-time Villanova high-scoring season mark last year with 303 points and also held down second base on the diamond, won the most valuable player award in the Main Line baseball league this summer.

An extensive intramural program is now being planned by moderators, Fathers Kemme and Geroloml. It will be the most complete that Villanova has ever carried.

Ed Lawles, quarterback on last year's Wildcat eleven, is holding down the first string blocking back role on this season's powerful Penn team.

Vince McPeak, Bill Sullivan and Sig Gory are the only seniors on the Wildcat football team. Since most of the team is made up of freshmen, the outlook of raising Villanova to the national grid prominence held in the pre-war days of 1933-39 looks terrific.

John Siano, coach of 150 lb. football, is reported ready to play for the varsity following the Georgetown game.

Ollie's Comments

Although the school semester has barely begun, we find ourselves with the football season half over; and at least three major games completed. Our victory over Holy Cross last Saturday was a long sought one and one that may be the turning point of our season? It marked the first time this year that we were able to come from behind, not once but twice and win.

Holy Cross has a fine football team with many good backs and excellent ends, but a real spirit of determination in the second half by Villanova made the game a thriller and branded our boys as a good football team. It would be impossible to pick out stars of the game as each man played his position well. "Cap" Capriotti turned on a few unbelievable runs that had the spectators wild; Andy Gordon was remarkably accurate with a wet ball; throwing two touchdown passes and booting over fifty yards from our end zone on another occasion; Bud Kane reached his peak and did as good an end job as any coach could desire; Dan Brown, Tom McCarthy, Al Barker (with the blessed left foot), Downey, Sandusky, Ferry and the others all played well.

If you want a real thrill in the future, watch George Pavalko, our captain against Holy Cross, especially on a kick-off or in a crucial moment. Pavalko is one of the best guards to represent Villanova since the days of Eddie Michaels and in many ways he resembles him.

Some fine defensive work was exhibited by Bob David, Syl Yanelli, Milt Komarnicki, and Steve

Rogers Sparks Team To Rout Marquette 26-13; Smith Hurt

By JIM LYONS

After successive, but hotly contested defeats by Army and Navy, the nation's number one and two teams last year, the Wildcats unleashed a powerhouse ground aerial offensive, which crushed the Marquette Hilltoppers, 26-13, at Shibe Park before 21,000 delighted home team fans.

The Cats, working like a precision machine, crossed the double stripe just seven plays after the opening kickoff. Shortly afterwards, proving themselves ideal opportunists, they turned a recovered Marquette fumble into another score. This satisfied the point thirsty Cats for the first half, but they returned ferociously in the second half to tally two more touchdowns, while holding in check the highly vaunted passing attack of the Wisconsin team. Only then, with victory beyond their reach, did the previously stymied Hilltoppers score.

McCarthy Goes Over

Acting captain, Sylvio Yanelli, won the toss and elected to receive. Right end Frank Kane returned the kick-off to the 28. The next five plays, one of them a brilliant 17 yard run by Joe Rogers, the nation's second leading ground gainer, carried to the five-yard line. After a slight loss, Fullback Tom McCarthy swept around right end for a score from the seven.

Marquette's John Alcock fumbled the kickoff, and John Sandusky recovered on the visitors' 25. The running and passing of Romeo Capriotti, who tossed thirteen yards to Frank Kane for the score, was the spearhead of this phase of the Cats attack. Barker added the point to make the score 13-0 at 5:15. Although they continued to outplay the Hilltoppers the Villanova eleven failed to score again in the first half.

Gordon Connects With Polidor

Early in the third period the Cats traveled 67 yards in a drive that culminated in a flat pass from Andy Gordon to Bob Polidor, who scooted down the sidelines for 21 yards and the third Cat score. Barker again added the point.

Villanova drew blood again at the outset of the fourth period when Quarterback Bob Wolf lateraled to Chick Welde who went around the short side along the left sideline for 21 yards and a score.

At this point the heralded aerial attack of the Hilltoppers, the greatest exponents of passing in collegiate football today began to click on successive plays. Previously, Marquette passers, Schuette and Polczynski, working from the "T," had piled up first downs, but never in a sustained drive. This wide open play (they attempted 39 passes) aided by an interference penalty, was good for two scores in the waning moments of the contest.

Fear Loss of Smith

The Cats paid a costly price for this victory, for X-rays have shown that regular left guard Tom Smith, who was injured in the second period, has a fractured left ankle and he will probably be out for the remainder of the season.

Rogers compiled 123 yards in eight carries which installed him in second place in the national collegiate ground gaining race. In first place is Mobly, little All-American from Hardin-Simmins. Mobly has 288 yards to his credit and Rogers is two behind with 286. Joe's average of 6.7 yards gained per try is the better of the two.

In The Sportlight

By DAVE MARANO

As the first beams of the fall term 1946 sportlight scans the field of eligible athletes, one man in particular stands above the crowd. Although residing in Bristol, Pa., Vincent Joseph McPeak decided that the fulfillment of his quest for culture lay in Phila. After matriculating at St. Joseph's High, Vince's hands fell upon an oval pigskin, and since then he hasn't let go. The zenith of McPeak's high school career was reached when in 1943, his first year as a fullback, Vince scored 135 points, to break Northeast High's Bud Sutton's city scoring record of 121 points set in 1942. In the same year Vince came through with All-Catholic and All-Scholastic honors, and wound-up the season as 1943 Maxwell Award winner. Vince's 135 points fell just one shy of a state mark, when a Hazleton High back scored 136 points the same year.

A sample of McPeak's versatility is evidenced by his capturing All-Catholic and All-Scholastic honors in 1942 as an end, and by his having played every position in the backfield.

High school now completed, Vince matriculated at Villanova in July of 1944. Although still a freshman, he made the varsity his first year out, and was instrumental in defeating Muhlenberg College that year. Hampered by rain all afternoon, McPeak was still capable of pulling in four of the Mules' intended passes, one of which set up the game's only scoring play.

In 1945 as a sophomore Vince started his second year of varsity football. Although we took a 26-7 lacing from the Holy Cross Crusaders, it was Mac who saved us from a whitewash by crashing over from the four for our only score.

Due to the accelerated schedule followed throughout '44 and '45, Vince is now a senior hoping to enter Jefferson Medical School in September. Through all these gruelling years of football, Vince was still able to follow a difficult Pre-Med course and remain on the honor roll every term.

With the overabundance of material returning this Fall, Vince hasn't seen as much action as in previous years, but while in action he still gives his all and shows that he hasn't lost any of the old go that gained him past honors.

Alumni Plans Big Rally

Olivar and Game Captains to Speak; All Followers Invited to Attend

The greater Boston Villanova Club has announced plans for a mammoth football rally and dinner to be held Thursday evening, October 24, starting at 8 P. M. at the Hotel Lenox, Boston.

All members of the Alumni, students and friends are cordially invited to attend. Cards will be sent out to all the members of the Alumni residing in Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and Connecticut inviting them to attend along with their friends and family.

It will be an informal dinner at $3.50 and a real get-together with songs, cheers and all the trimmings.

The Very Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, President of Villanova College; Rev. E. V. Standford, past president of the College; Rev. E. B. McKee, Vice-President, and Paetrus F. Banmiller '35, President of the Alumni Association will be among the many guests. Others will include Joseph Tomasello '29, Toastmaster; William F. Friel 3d, '38, Secretary; Jim Traughton, Publicity Director; Denny Myers, Coach of Boston College; and Jordan Olivar of the fighting Wildcats.

Friday night, October 25, the two teams will clash at Bears Field. The Villanova side will be the section of the bleachers just built.

Romanik. Steve knocked himself loco with two head-on crashing tackles.

Probably the real answer to a well deserved win can be found in the words of Russ Strait, Holy Cross 220 pound halfback who was injured in the game. When I asked him how he felt later, he said, "Boy, I've never been hit so hard in all my life!"

This game is simple fellows, just block 'em and sock 'em!

To date we have been very fortunate with our replacements. We had to travel to Holy Cross with four of our regular starters sidelined. Big Ralph Pasquariello had two chipped bones in his elbow and will be out of action at least two weeks; George Schreiber, our pile driving halfback who looked so good against Navy, was out with a severe Charley Horse. This was the second game he missed. Billy Sullivan, the all around end, has a shoulder separation and it's hard to tell when he will be ready to play; and Tom Smith probably our best blocking lineman, had a broken bone in his ankle and won't be ready for three weeks. Fortunately the substitutions for these men came through in grand style and helped bring that Worcester pigskin home.

'Cap' Directs Team

Romeo Capriotti, Wildcat halfback, has been calling the plays for the past few games. His splendid job of leading the Cats in their thrilling victory over Holy Cross drew praise from Coach Jordan Olivar. "Cap's" fine judgment in mixing up plays figured heavily in the upset win. Olivar, himself, drew nation-wide recognition when he directed the Wildcats under Clipper Smith from his tackle post through a perfect 1937 campaign. The coach feels that "Cap's" experience favors him over less battle tested quarterbacks.

Trounce King's Point 40-6 Set Back by Army, Navy

Homecoming Crowd Sees Olivar Unleash Terrific Ground Attack; Fumbles, Weak Pass Defense Costly Against National Champs

Opening its 53d intercollegiate football season, Villanova's Wildcat eleven engaged three service academies on successive weekends and emerged victorious only once. Tearing through an inferior Merchant Marine team, from King's Point, N. Y., the Wildcats racked up a 40-6 win on Saturday, September 14. Defeats at the hands of Army 35-0 and Navy 7-0 followed in that order on the following two Saturdays.

Fumbles Costly

Plagued with fumbles from the very first game, the Wildcats, nonetheless, were not outdone by the service academies, taken as a whole. The opponents rang up a count of 18 fumbles, as did Villanova. However, the bobbles came at less crucial points in the games for the servicemen, and they managed to grab off 14 Main Line fumbles, while the best that Villanova could do was to get hold of only six of the enemies'. While this condition in no way seriously affected the outcome of the Merchant Marine contest, it did lead to damaging results in the Army game and was most disastrous at Annapolis.

After the Wildcats had piled up a 14 point margin with touchdowns by Pasquariello, in the first period, and Rogers, in the second, the Mariners came back into the fight immediately following the second Wildcat score. With less than three minutes remaining in the second quarter, Jack McCrane, who shone for the New Yorkers all afternoon, uncorked a 49 yard aerial to end Ed Michalski, who covered the remaining ten yards to pay dirt.

Schmidt Lost for Season

Easily the most sensational play of the afternoon was, as well as the most costly, Bill Zehler's touchdown run late in the final quarter. Receiving Bob Groover's punt on his own 38 yard line, Zehler skillfully eluded three would-be tacklers, picked up a horde of blockers and was off on a 62 yard scoring jaunt.

Injured on the play while blocking was Al Schmidt, who was taken to the Misericordia Hospital with severe back injuries. It is unlikely that Schmidt will see much, if any more, action before the end of the season.

In ringing up its 40 points, Villanova took the air only eight times, completing four passes. One of these completions, however, was good for six points when Andy Gordon chucked a 23-yard bullseye heave to Dan Brown in the early minutes of the final stanza. Another pass, Gordon to Capriotti, who lateraled to Rogers, was good for 18 yards, and set up the Wildcats for their score in the second period.

The only effective King's Point offensive weapon was the pass. Gaining 174 yards by the overhead route, King's Point completed 11 out of 28 tosses.

Army Capitalizes on Breaks

The many Army scouts who were on hand at Goodreau Stadium to see Villanova play its first game on the campus since 1938 were treated to quite an eyefull. The information they carried back with them to West Point, however, had relatively little to do with the final outcome of the Wildcats' encounter with the Cadets. Army just had too much to offer the Main Liners in size, experience, passing, running and an alert defense.

It rained throughout almost the entire contest and the wet ball seemed to hurt the Villanova offense far more than Army's. Fourteen fumbles were chalked up during the game, an equal number going to each team. Three of these bobbles on the part of the Blue and White set up Cadet scores and a fourth squelched a definite Villanova threat.

Because their running attack was functioning smoothly enough and because the ball was so difficult to handle, Army took to the airways only nine times. However, four completions were good enough to net 77 yards and two touchdowns. George Poole, tall Army end, made both of the Cadets' aerial scores. The first touchdown came late in the third period when Arnold Tucker flipped an 18 yard pass to Poole. Early in the final quarter, starting out to his right, Davis drew over almost the entire Wildcat eleven, then hurled a rather weak toss to Poole who was wide open, deep in the secondary. Picking up the one necessary blocker, Poole headed for the score.

Blanchard, Davis Lead Way

Although they picked up a net of 280 yards by rushing, Army's three scores on the ground came as a direct result of Villanova fumbles which they covered on the Blue and White 33, 38 and 27 yard lines. Opportunists throughout, Army never did let one of these good breaks get away and capitalized upon them in short order. The first score came after the 33 yard line fumble when Davis went to the outside for 23 and Doc Blanchard slammed his way up through the middle for the remaining ten and the first score of the ball game. Including two penalty plays which set them back a total of twenty yards, Army, in the person of Glenn Davis, scored after nine tries after the second fumble. Ug Fuson, Cadet center for the past two years, playing his first game as halfback, scored from two yards out, on the eighth play following the 27 yard line fumble.

Against Cadet reserves, the Wildcats played good defensive ball, especially during the latter part of the first quarter and throughout the second period. Without the fullback power running of bull-like Doc Blanchard, Glenn Davis, his All-American running mate, was held well in check.

Kane's Tackle Feature

Midway in the third period Frank Kane, speeding downfield while covering Capriotti's punt, gave the spectators their biggest and best thrill of the afternoon. Kane blasting Arnold Tucker with the most vicious tackle of the game as the latter caught the punt, picked him up and dumped him three yards behind the point of reception.

Joe Rogers, playing heads-up ball most probably prevented an Army score midway in the second period when he threw a well executed block on Davis at the line of scrimmage. Instead of attempting the almost impossible task of covering the Cadet speedster in full flight Rogers elected to dump him before he could get started. The ball sailed into thin air instead of the waiting arms of Davis.

Several short, but hard runs by Schreiber, and a twenty yard gallop by Dost were the Wildcats' pest offensive offerings of the day.

Was Army slipping or does Villanova have such an improved ball club? The game brought up this question. At Annapolis, one week later, Villanova proved that it had a good ball club. However, it also evidenced, once again, that fumbling was its chief weakness, and that its inept pass defense could very well be its undoing in the tough games that lay ahead.

Ironically, concerning fumbles, Navy did outdo Villanova. But the Middies recovered seven of their nine, while the Wildcats held on to only two of their six.

Hawkins Goes Over

The only score of the ball game came in the waning seconds of the initial period. Roy Russell, sub Navy end, grabbed a Villanova bobble on the Blue and White 2 yard line. Jack Welsh, Villanova halfback in 1943, quarterbacked his team across to pay dirt within five plays. Welsh himself took the ball to the 18. From there he heaved a lateral to Al McCully, who rounded end to the five.

Pistol Pete Williams drove from there to the one foot line. Hawkins slammed over for the six points. Newbold Smith, left tackle converted for the point-after-touchdown. That was the last of the day's scoring.

Constantly threatening all afternoon, the Wildcats had all the air of being ready to explode with a scoring play at any time. The nearest to reality that this came, however, was in the middle of the third period when Romeo Capriotti's brilliant burst of 34 yards off tackle set the Wildcats on the Middies' 29 yard line. Four plays later Navy had the ball on its own 34.

Aside from the sequence of scoring plays, Capriotti's dash and Williams' run of 35 yards in the third period, the game presented no other really outstanding plays. In fact wise can it be said, however, that it was devoid of either color or suspense. The threat of a mild upset cast an air of drama over the scene. Best of all, though, is the fact that there was plenty of good football played, with the boys up front standing out.

The overall appraisal of the three academy games shows a definite improvement in the Wildcats. Scouts who watched the game and the sports writers in the press box were lavish in their praise of Olivar's charges. The team feels their chance of two losses for this season is now behind.

War Surplus Equipement Added to School Facilities

War surplus equipment, newly acquired by Villanova College, through donations, and purchase from the War Assets Administration, will be playing a leading part, this year, in the training of our future engineers, whether Mechanical, Electrical, Chemical, or Civil. The addition of many thousands of dollars worth of equipment will be a boon especially to the incoming classes. The Dean of Engineering, Prof. J. L. Morehouse, M.E., has indicated that much more equipment had been ordered and that most of it is now enroute. Process of modernization of the labs is going on day by day, as the new equipment is being moved into position from its temporary storage spaces.

Belt System Goes

Among the new equipment already on hand in the Mechanical Shop are nine big engine lathes, turret lathes, shapers, millers, drill presses, grinders, power saws, and a proud new "do-all" metal bandsaw worth $2000. All the old overhead belt-driven machines are being replaced by individual-drive units.

The Internal Combustion Shop received a 152 H. P. Naval type Diesel Engine of 8 cylinders, connected to a 100 kw. generator, slightly battle damaged; a National Supercharger, 2-cyl. Diesel engine driving a 10 kw. generator. Arrangements are being made for early delivery of a 4-cyl. Waukesa-Heiselman automotive type engine connected with a 25 kw. generator, and a 4-cyl. Willys engine.

Materials Testing Lab received an assortment of airplane parts, drift and bank gauges, gyro-compasses, a Rockwell Hardness Tester, Solaroscope and numerous other war surplus materials to fill all available shelves.

New Lab Steam Plant

Prof. Morehouse spoke glowingly of an $18,000 Westinghouse Lab Steam Plant which has been purchased for temporary installation in the new Chemical Engineering Building, which will be started soon.

The Woodworking Shop has not been overlooked with the addition of new band-saws, planers and joiners.

A trip through the various shops, which are located in the basement of Mendel Hall, will reveal that progress has been made in setting up the new equipment for immediate use.

The Electrical Shop is justly proud of the new Navy TBM-12 Transmitting Equipment, built by Westinghouse, and awaiting the prying hands of Electronics students. Top-Secret wartime Radar units will soon be added.

answer Coach Hagerty's call for substitutions are end Bill Resch and guard Jack Buoy, both of St. Joe Prep, and tackle Andy Ronan of Malvern Prep.

The center position seems to be nailed down by pivotman Banonis with runner-up honors being pretty well divided by three others.

Walsh Dangerous

Quarterback in the Hoyas split T formation is Elmer Raba. Filling the two halfback positions are Pete Walsh, a pre-med student hailing from New York, and Len Bonforte a veteran of the '42 team. Walsh has been the most consistent back in all of the practice sessions and has looked good in both games to date. Walt O'Connell, at fullback, rounds out a fast, well drilled set of backs.

Two men likely to break into the starting backfield before Sunday are Jack McTamney and Jack O'Connor. Both attended St. Joseph's Prep in Philadelphia where they both captured All-Catholic honors. O'Connor played with his army outfit in the ETO during the war while McTamney was a member of Bainbridge's powerful service eleven.

Sunday's game will be the first between the two contestant teams since 1931 when the Mainliners dropped a 16-6 verdict to the Hoyas. This was a reversal of the decision of the previous year when the Blue and White emerged victorious by a 13-0 count.

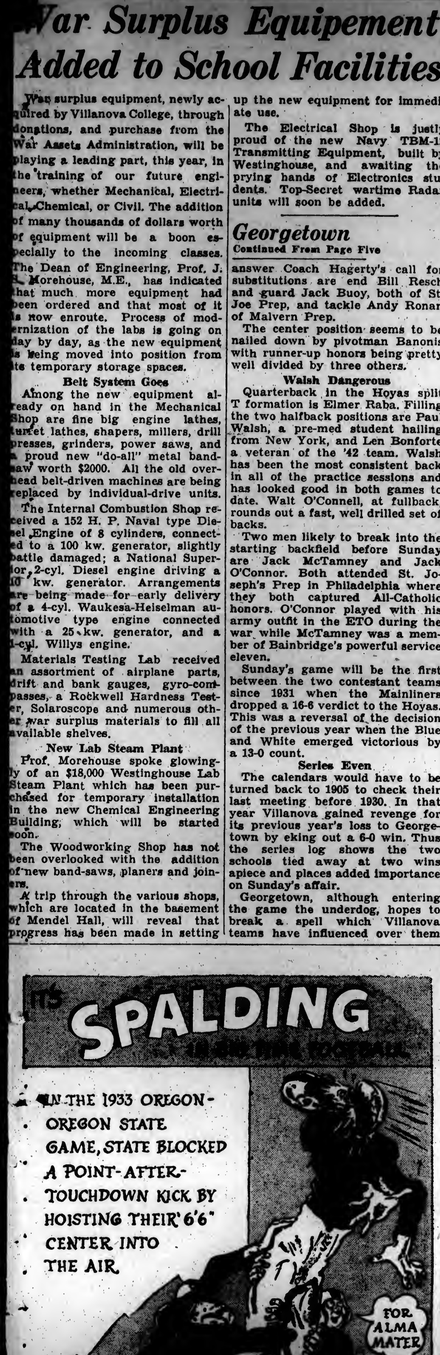
Series Even

The calendars would have to be turned back to 1905 to check their last meeting before 1930. In that year Villanova gained revenge for its previous year's loss to Georgetown by eking out a 6-0 win. Thus the series log shows the two schools tied away at two wins apiece and places added importance on Sunday's affair.

Georgetown, although entering the game the underdog, hopes to break a spell which Villanova teams have influenced over them since their post-war return to collegiate athletic competition. The Hoyas have met the Blue and White once on the basketball court and twice on the baseball diamond since the beginning of 1946 and they have yet to carry home a decision. This fact should be an extra incentive to both teams; to the Olivarmen, the incentive of preservation of a fine record; to the Jesuit school, one of termination of a recent Villanova domination.

Roger's Second in Country on Scoring

Villanova, Pa., Oct. 15—Speedy Joe Rogers, Villanova College halfback, is living up to the advance predictions Coach Jordan Olivar made about him before he ever donned a college grid uniform.



Olivar knew about Rogers' ability because he coached him at Roman Catholic High School, Philadelphia, in 1942. Rogers also played basketball under Olivar that season, winning all-city honors. Joe entered the Coast Guard upon graduation.

When he was released from service, Rogers entered Villanova last winter. He participated in spring practice and his running was sensational. Joe wasted little time moving to the front as one of the country's top backs.

In the early NCAA ratings, he held eighth place after just two games, Rogers collected 127 yards. But he made his biggest early-season gains against Marquette, gaining 123 yards in the eight times he lugged the leather. Joe's brother is a member of the Temple University squad.

Rogers Sparks Team To Rout Marquette 26-13; Smith Hurt

By JIM LYONS

After successive, but hotly contested defeats by Army and Navy, the nation's number one and two teams last year, the Wildcats unleashed a powerhouse ground aerial offensive, which crushed the Marquette Hilltoppers, 26-13, at Shibe Park before 21,000 delighted home team fans.

The Cats, working like a precision machine, crossed the double stripe just seven plays after the opening kickoff. Shortly afterwards, proving themselves ideal opportunists, they turned a recovered Marquette fumble into another score. This satisfied the point thirsty Cats for the first half, but they returned ferociously in the second half to tally two more touchdowns, while holding in check the highly vaunted passing attack of the Wisconsin team. Only then, with victory beyond their reach, did the previously stymied Hilltoppers score.

McCarthy Goes Over

Acting captain, Sylvio Venelli, won the toss and elected to receive. Right end Frank Kane returned the kick-off to the 28. The next five plays, one of them a brilliant 47-yard run by Joe Rogers, the nation's second leading ground gainer, carried to the five-yard line. After a slight loss, Fullback Tom McCarthy swept around right end for a score from the seven.

Marquette's John Alcock fumbled the kickoff, and John Sandusky recovered on the visitors' 25. The Running and passing of Romeo Capriotti, who tossed thirteen yards to Frank Kane for the score, was the spearhead of this phase of the Cats attack. Barker added the point to make the score 13-0 at 5:15. Although they continued to outplay the Hilltoppers the Villanova eleven failed to score again in the first half.

Gordon Connects With Polidor

Early in the third period the Cats traveled 67 yards in a drive that culminated in a flat pass from Andy Gordon to Bob Polidor, who scooted down the sidelines for 21 yards and the third Cat score. Barker again added the point.

Villanova drew blood again at the outset of the fourth period when Quarterback Bob Wolf lateraled to Chick Welde who went around the short side along the left sideline for 21 yards and a score.

At this point the heralded aerial attack of the Hilltoppers, the greatest exponents of passing in collegiate football today began to click on successive plays. Previously, Marquette passers, Schuette and Polczynski, working from the "T," had piled up first downs, but never in a sustained drive. This wide open play (they attempted 39 passes) aided by an interference penalty, was good for two scores in the waning moments of the contest.

Out For Season!

TOM SMITH

The Cats paid a costly price for this victory, for X-rays have shown that regular left guard Tom Smith, who was injured in the second period, has a fractured left ankle and he will probably be out for the remainder of the season.

Rogers compiled 123 yards in eight carries which installed him in second place in the national collegiate ground gaining race. In first place is Mobly, little All-American from Hardin-Simmins. Mobly has 288 yards to his credit and Rogers is two behind with 286. Joe's average of 6.7 yards gained per try is the better of the two.

Alumni Plans Big Rally

Olivar and Game Captains to Speak; All Followers Invited to Attend

The greater Boston Villanova Club has announced plans for a mammoth football rally and dinner to be held Thursday evening, October 24, starting at 8 P. M. at the Hotel Lenox, Boston.

All members of the Alumni, students and friends are cordially invited to attend. Cards will be sent out to all the members of the Alumni residing in Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and Connecticut inviting them to attend along with their friends and family.

It will be an informal dinner at $3.50 and a real get-together with songs, cheers and all the trimmings.

The Very Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, President of Villanova College; Rev. E. V. Standford, past president of the College; Rev. E. B. McKee, Vice-President, and Patrus F. Banmiller '35, President of the Alumni Association will be among the many guests. Others will include Joseph Tomasello '29, Toastmaster; William F. Friel 3d, '43, Secretary; Jim Haughton, Publicity Director; Denny Myers, Coach of Boston College; and Jordan Olivar of the fighting Wildcats.

Friday night, October 25, the two teams will clash at Bears Field. The Villanova side will be the section of the bleachers just built.

In The Sportlight

By DAVE MARANO

As the first beams of the fall term 1946 sportlight scans the field of eligible athletes, one man in particular stands above the crowd. Although residing in Bristol, Pa. Vincent Joseph McPeak decided that the fulfillment of his quest for culture lay in Phila. After matriculating at St. Joseph's High, Vince's hands fell upon an oval pigskin, and since then he hasn't let go. The zenith of McPeak's high school career was reached when in 1943, his first year as a fullback, Vince scored 135 points, to break Northeast High's Bud Sutton's city scoring record of 121 points set in 1942. In the same year Vince came through with All-Catholic and All-Scholastic honors, and wound-up the season as 1943 Maxwell Award winner. Vince's 135 points fell just one shy of a state mark, when a Hazleton High back scored 136 points the same year.

A sample of McPeak's versatility is evidenced by his capturing All-Catholic and All-Scholastic honors in 1942 as an end, and by his having played every position in the backfield.

High school now completed, Vince matriculated at Villanova in July of 1944. Although still a freshman, he made the varsity his first year out, and was instrumental in defeating Muhlenberg College that year. Hampered by rain all afternoon, McPeak was still capable of pulling in four of the Mules' intended passes, one of which set up the game's only scoring play.

In 1945 as a sophomore Vince started his second year of varsity football. Although we took a 26-7 lacing from the Holy Cross Crusaders, it was Mac who saved us from a whitewash by crashing over from the four for our only score.

Due to the accelerated schedule followed throughout '44 and '45, Vince is now a senior, hoping to enter Jefferson Medical School in September. Through all these grueling years of football, Vince was still able to follow a difficult Pre-Med course and remain on the honor roll every term.

VINCE McPEAK

With the overabundance of material returning this Fall, Vince hasn't seen as much action as in previous years, but while in action he still gives his all and shows that he hasn't lost any of the old go that gained him past honors.

Trounce King's Point 40-6 Set Back by Army, Navy

Four plays later Navy had the ball on its own 34.

Aside from the sequence of scoring plays, Capriotti's dash and Williams' run of 35 yards in the third period, the game presented no other really outstanding plays. In no wise can it be said, however, that it was devoid of either color or suspense. The threat of a mild upset cast an air of drama on the scene. Best of all, though, is the fact that there was plenty of good football played, with the boys up front standing out.

The overall appraisal of the three academy games shows a definite improvement in the Wildcats. Scouts who watched the game and the sports writers in the press box were lavish in their praise of Olivar's charges. The team feels their quiet of two losses for this season is no behind.

War surplus equipment, newly acquired by Villanova College, through donations, and purchase from the War Assets Administration, will be playing a leading part, this year, in the training of our future engineers, whether Mechanical, Electrical, Chemical, or Civil. The addition of many thousands of dollars worth of equipment will be a boon especially to the incoming classes.

The Dean of Engineering, Prof. J. S. Morehouse, M.E., has indicated that much more equipment had been ordered and that most of it is now enroute. Process of modernization of the labs is going on day by day, as the new equipment is being moved into position from its temporary storage spaces.

Belt System Goes

Among the new equipment already on hand in the Mechanical Shop are fine big engine lathes, turret lathes, shapers, millers, drill presses, grinders, power saws, and a proud new "do-all" metal band-saw worth $2000. All the old overhead belt-driven machines are being replaced by individual-drive units.

The Internal Combustion Shop received a 152 H. P. Naval type Diesel Engine of 8 cylinders, connected to a 100 kw. generator, slightly battle damaged; a National Superior, 2-cyl. Diesel engine driving a 10 kw. generator. Arrangements are being made for early delivery of a 4-cyl. Waukesa-Heiselman automotive type engine connected with a 25 kw. generator, and a 4-cyl. Willys engine.

Materials Testing Lab received an assortment of airplane parts, drift and bank gauges, gyro-compasses, a Rockwell Hardness Tester, Solaroscope and numerous other war surplus materials to fill all available shelves.

New Lab Steam Plant

Prof. Morehouse spoke glowingly of an $18,000 Westinghouse Lab Steam Plant which has been purchased for temporary installation in the new Chemical Engineering Building, which will be started soon.

The Woodworking Shop has not been overlooked with the addition of new band-saws, planers and jointers.

A trip through the various shops, which are located in the basement of Mendel Hall, will reveal that progress has been made in setting up the new equipment for immediate use.

The Electrical Shop is justly proud of the new Navy TBM-12 Transmitting Equipment, built by Westinghouse, and awaiting the prying hands of Electronics students. Top-Secret wartime Radar units will soon be added.

Georgetown

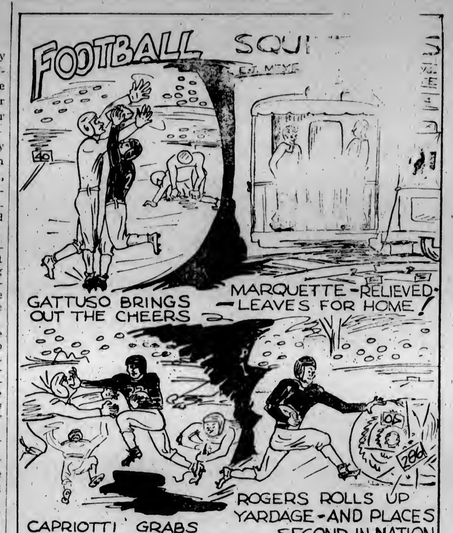
answer Coach Hagerty's call for substitutions are end Bill Resch and guard Jack Buoy, both of St. Joe Prep, and tackle Andy Ronan of Malvern Prep.

The center position seems to be nailed down by pivotman Banonis with runner-up honors being pretty well divided by three others.

Walsh Dangerous

Quarterback in the Hoyas split 'T' formation is Elmer Raba. Filling the two halfback positions are Paul Walsh, a pre-med student hailing from New York, and Len Bonforte a veteran of the '42 team. Walsh has been the most consistent back in all of the practice sessions and has looked good in both games to date. Walt O'Connell, at fullback, rounds out a fast, well drilled set of backs.



Two men likely to break into the starting backfield before Sunday are Jack McTamney and Jack O'Connor. Both attended St. Joseph's Prep in Philadelphia where they both captured All-Catholic honors. O'Connor played with his army outfit in the ETO during the war while McTamney was a member of Bainbridge's powerful service eleven.

Sunday's game will be the first between the two contestant teams since 1931 when the Mainliners dropped a 16-6 verdict to the Hoyas. This was a reversal of the decision of the previous year when the Blue and White emerged victorious by a 13-0 count.

Series Even

The calendars would have to be turned back to 1905 to check their last meeting before 1930. In that year Villanova gained revenge for its previous year's loss to Georgetown by eking out a 6-0 win. Thus the series log shows the two schools tied away at two wins apiece and places added importance on Sunday's affair.

Georgetown, although entering the game the underdog, hopes to break a spell which Villanova teams have influenced over them since their post-war return to collegiate athletic competition. The Hoyas have met the Blue and White once on the basketball court and twice on the baseball diamond since the beginning of 1946 and they have yet to carry home a decision. This fact should be an extra incentive to both teams; to the Olivarmen, the incentive of preservation of a fine record; to the Jesuit school, one of termination of a recent Villanova domination.

Roger's Second in Country on Scoring

Villanova, Pa., Oct. 15—Speedy Joe Rogers, Villanova College halfback, is living up to the advance predictions Coach Jordan Olivar made about him before he ever donned a college grid uniform.

Olivar knew about Rogers' ability because he coached him at Roman Catholic High School, Philadelphia, in 1942. Rogers also played basketball under Olivar that season, winning all-city honors. Joe entered the Coast Guard upon graduation.

When he was released from service, Rogers entered Villanova last winter. He participated in spring practice and his running was sensational. Joe wasted little time moving to the front as one of the country's top backs.

In the early NCAA ratings, he held eighth place after just two games. Rogers collected 127 yards. But he made his biggest early-season gains against Marquette, gaining 123 yards in the eight times he lugged the leather. Joe's brother is a member of the Temple University squad.

LESS BOOKS WITH MORE BUSINESS

Veterans Cause Most Difficulties Here

This semester the college bookstore has witnessed an unprecedented demand for, and an equally unprecedented shortage of books. The four year backlog of students has torn apart the bare stocks supplied by the reconversion-harrassed publishers.

The bookstore has handled the difficulties with the greatest possible efficiency by enlarging its personnel to fourteen and by moving to larger quarters in the west wing of Mendel Hall. The biggest difficulty has been the great numbers of veterans, whose accounts must be recorded in duplicate. In the first few days the distribution was carried out by classes and courses, but after the Freshmen were supplied, numbered cards were distributed to the remaining students. By next semester it is probable that a new system will be devised.

The situation here is just an instance of the difficulties faced by colleges over the country. The half-million veterans under the educational benefits of the G.I. Bill have swamped the publishers with orders that they cannot possibly fill. The paper scarcity is one of the most pressing and it has been estimated that thirty percent of the veterans in schools will begin this semester without new books. Trouble with labor and the O.P.A. has built up a six month backlog in orders and the pressure shows little hope of lessening for many months.

kitchen where emphasis is placed on sanitary and efficient handling and storing of food-stuffs.

These ends have been furthered by recent improvements. Separate tiled cold storage units have been insta[illegible] for meat, dairy products and produce. A dumb-waiter now brings up supplies from the lower floor where as before it was carried up. An exhaust system keeps the air in the kitchen and cafeteria free of smoke and cooking odors. Ice for cooling drinks, etc. is now made right in the kitchen from Springfield water and comes out of the machine already flaked. Also the entire cafeteria has been freshly painted.

An improvement that is still to be worked out is the elimination of the long chow lines and Mr. Voelker has some ideas on how this is to be accomplished in the near future.

Students are requested to do their part in helping to keep the dining hall clean. When finished eating, all bottles, glasses and utensils should be taken to the scullery with their trays. Straws should be removed from bottles. Have regard for your fellow students and don't unnecessarily delay the movement of the line or the occupancy of the tables.

Debating Society Active Monday in Fall Series

Season Schedule Lists Eight Meetings Against Teams in Ben Franklin League

Rosemont College will help Villanova's debating society open its season in the Commerce and Finance Auditorium on Monday, October 28. The debate is scheduled to open at 8 P. M. with a large delegation from Rosemont in attendance.

Beta Gamma, Villanova's major debate organization, is setting out on one of its longest and most important seasons in its long history this year. The group is a member of the Benjamin Franklin Debating Society, an important local organization engaged in supplying coherence and purpose to the forensic societies of colleges in this district. Outside this league, Beta Gamma has lined up a schedule which includes many schools from outside this district.

Twenty-One Naval Aviators Attending College

From the office of Thomas C. Thomas, Captain, U. S. Navy, comes the announcement that the NROTC organization has been revised, This semester, students have been enrolled either as Regular or Contract students.

Regular students are appointed Midshipmen, USNR, and their tuition, fees and text books are paid for by the Navy. They are uniformed at Government expense and receive a retainer pay of $600 per year. Aside from completing the Naval Science Curriculum, Regulars are obligated to attend three summer cruises or training periods of from six to eight weeks, upon graduation, accept a commission and serve on active duty for a period of two years.

Draw Ration Pay

Contract students pay their own tuition but do receive uniforms at Government expense and in their Junior and Senior years draw ration pay amounting to aproximately $20 per month. Although they are required to attend only one cruise, Contract students must follow the same Naval Science Curriculum as prescribed for the regulars, and upon graduating, to accept a commision in the Reserves. However, they are not obligated to serve the additional two years on active duty. their Junior year, elect to follow commission (or reserve commission) in the USMC.

In a statement issued by the executive officer, Albert J. Roose, Lt. Col, USMC, there is a total of 98 students in the NROTC program. Also attending Villanova, are 21 Navy aviators, most of whom have seen action, and 11 Aprentice Seamen in the Naval Aviation Cadet Program.

Last week the prospective enlistees in the naval program took their physical examinations at the Philadelphia Naval Base. In keeping with its war time records, the requirements for the NROTC were high, for the Navy demands the higest in physical fitness. During the coming semester and during the course of the year the navy men will receive their booster shots.

First Nite-Rally In Five Years Huge Success

New Band Shows Up Well Before Big Crowd at Villanova Stadium Friday Night

On Friday, October 18, at 8 o'clock the Villanova campus resounded to the tramp of marching feet and reverberated to traditional victory songs. The event was the giant rally for the game with Georgetown University, the first large rally on the campus since the pre-war days. The student body, swelling with freshmen, was introduced to Coach Jordan Olivar and many of the players who would wear the Blue and White in the game against the Hoyas.

To add to the excitement, the Wildcat Band, making its first appearance in years, stired on the group with scintillating martial airs and songs.

March to Stadium

After gathering in the back of Mendel Hal, the boosters marched in a body to Villanova Stadium, where they were addressed by the above - mentioned notables. To insure clear and loud speaking, loudspeaker trucks were placed under the lights in the stadium.

Wildcat cheerleaders led the group in a select group of cheers, with th hope of getting the freshmen to learn them in time for the game on Sunday.

Sam Canning, '47, who inspired the affair, was picased with the turnout and the spirit of the student body. Sam told reporters that he wished to hold more rallies and expects to have the next one before the Miami University football game.

Sam Canning, Master of Ceremonies, started the rally off with a brief introduction speech and then introduced to the already jubilant crowd the Vice-President of the College, Rev. E. B. McKee, O.S.A. Father McKee warned the crowd that the season is by far not over and the Wildcats have a good portion of the schedule left. He further emphasized that this team has a good record and will try to keep it.

Next on the program was a speech by the popular coach of the Wildcats, Jordan Oliver. The coach had much praise for his eleven and went so far as to introduce each member of the squad present at the rally.

Following a few cheers in which the student body showed much spirit there were a few short speeches by the moderator of the band and the coach of the one fifties.

Pepping It Up!

Villanova's cheering squad leads the cooperative student body in a cheer during Friday night's Pep Rally. The entire south stand of the stadium was filled to capacity, as the student body really let out their vigor to the team.

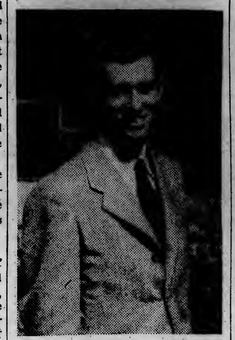
Photographer To Be On Campus for Seniors During End of October

By JOE D'AMBRISI

Thomas Schubert, editor-in-chief of the 1947 Belle-Air yearbook, announced last week that Sam Canning, C & F senior, will be the photography editor of the annual publication for the coming year.

Canning disclosed that a representative of Zamsky's studios will be on hand at the college during the last week of October to photograph the members of the senior class and to take group pictures of the various classes, clubs, fraternities, committees and organizations.

Since the photographer will be on the campus for only three days, it is imperative that all seniors see Sam Canning for an appointment with the photographer which will not conflict with class schedules. Also in conjunction with the pictures, all seniors are requested to leave their full name, address, course, whether they are Senior I or Senior II and whether they ar residents or dayhops at the Information Desk. As this information is to be printed with the pictures of the yearbook, it is necessary that this request be complied with immediately.



Two Pictures to be Taken

Seniors will be photographed in the room previously occupied by the bookstore, across from the Villanovan Office. This year, as before, two (2) pictures will be taken; one in cap and gown, and one in street clothes. It is promised that these photographs will be ready before the Christmas holidays.

Because of the staggered school hours, all class pictures will be taken in sections this year. The cooperation of all class officers is expected in turning out their respective section at the designated time.

From previous experience it has been noted that many dayhops failed to have their photographs in the yearbook because they left the campus at the completion of their classes instead of waiting for the group pictures to be taken at the specified time. This time, however, a 100% turnout of dayhops is expected.

Intensive organization mixed with marked interest is bringing into prominence on the Campus three musical groups, a symphonic band, a dance band, and a Glee Club.

The symphonic band, now in weekly practice sessions, will be ready for one or more pre-Christmas concerts. Father has said that rehearsals are going very smoothly and expressed satis faction in the high caliber of the band. Several outstanding soloists are to be featured by the musicians.

Dance Band Revived

In conjunction with the above group, a dance band is being regimented. Expected to be ready for an appearance about November 1, this all-veteran outfit will be featured at many Villanova social functions throughout the year. Numerous outside engagements are also planned.

After a war-time slack, the revival of the above musical bodies Students returning to the campus after a few years lapse will recall the many excellent performances rendered by the two bands. Such events as the combined musical by the symhonic bands of Immaculata and Villanova, the presence of the symphonic band at sport contests, and of the dance band at the numerous social functions which dot the scholastic calendar, are again eagerly anticipated.

Re-Place Campus Life

LET US not forget the war, but, let us put World War II into the part where it belongs. Similarly, let us put into the past those things which war made, of necessity, integral parts of our personal business, social and scholastic lives. During the past few years each one of us as an individual has had to alter his life in some way or other to fit into the all-out war effort in which our country was engaged. Villanova was no exception to this change. Now, let us return things to normal as soon as it is humanly possible.

As in the case of most of the educational institutions in the United States, Villanova opened her gates of education to the services of the government in order to train men for the armed forces. The U. S. Navy and the U. S. Marine Corps moved onto the grounds and set up their training schedule in conjunction with the college authorities to best fit the needs of these services In doing this most of the non-scholastic activities were cut down to the smallest proportions possible ar cut out altogether. Thus the social, athletic, and generally, the extra-curricular life of this institution was all but stopped. However, with the aid of the faculty and the few Villanovans who loyally stood by the fighting Wildcat, the traditions of old remained in spirit awaiting the day when once again the normal pulse of school life would return to put Villanova on top in every phase of college life.

The scholastic standing of Villanova never fell from the high point where it has always been. In sports the standards fell short of former Wildcat glory only due to the limitations of time, and now once again our sports teams are knocking on the door of fame. However, when it comes to extra-curricular activities and overall student school spirit Villanova has not progressed substantially since the end of the war. Many of us find that as students we are older and more settled than in pre-war days. Many of us believe that the spirit of school life is lost forever. This should not be so* On the contrary, the higher age average of the veterans and their understanding of life coupled with the fresh enthusiasm of the younger students should make the life, whether it be scholastically, socially, or athletically, even fuller and more profitable for both veteran and non-veteran. Therefore, let not your life at Villanova be an index of book facts, but make your work here at Villanova more than a routine. Make it an interesting, enjoyable and profitable way of life!

Just last week we had our first big pep rally in more than five years. The large turnout of students speaks for itself, indicating just such a return of the college spirit. The way the gang yelled, the way they sang the school songs served also to give the yellers and the singers some part of this spirit.

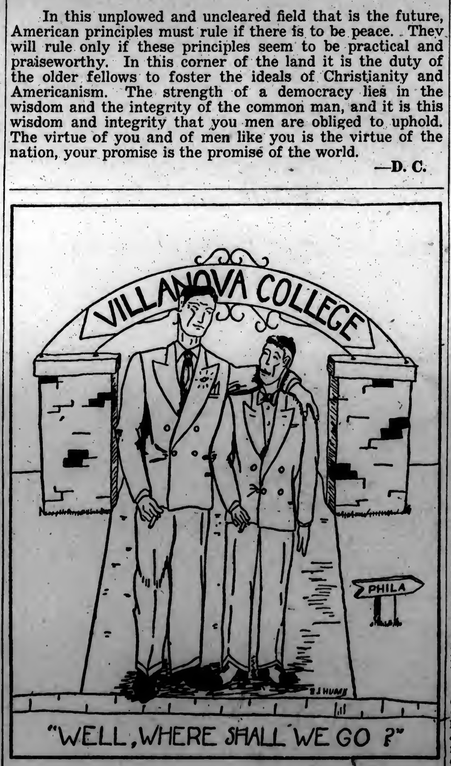
This thing is something which has to be acquired and only you can do that with the aid of both logical thinking and determination. Bear with the powers that be and help get the spirit you want back to Villanova.

The Vet Leads the Way

TO SAY that Villanova is back the way it was before the war is a gross error. The question of whether it ever will be that way again is seriously in doubt. The American people have gone through a great war and its effects together with those occasioned by world leadership have etched themselves deeply in American thought. Since colleges must reflect as well as mould a nation's ideas, Villanova has been altered by our new conciousness.

One of the most direct (and, therefore, one of the most obvious) manifestations of the war's effect on our college is the heterogeneity of the student body. One may pass through the halls of the schools and see men side by side whose ages differ by fifteen years or more. The eyes that follow a professor's scroll may be those that have seen horror or those recently accustomed to Coke ads in the high school drug store. The callow youth and the seasoned man read the same books, sleep in the same dorms, eat in the same hall. Backgrounds drawn from opposite poles meet and merge, and in the resulting union one must predominate.

With few exceptions the veteran will lead the way. His store of age and experience is not only more powerful but is the more romantic. He will have a large share in the formation of the new Villanova atmosphere. Directly and indirectly those who shape the student policies of our college will have a great effect on the lives of many men; it is a responsibility not lightly to be held.



Looking up to the older and more experienced, the younger fellows will shape their social lives along that of the veteran. Their thoughts, expressions, and recreations will be patterned after those of the older men. Wherever and however the older man may go, the other will follow and immitate. That is the point of this editorial: here is our purpose in speaking. Be careful of your language, for by this a man is most readily known. A great many expressions which were picked up in the service shock the uninitiated, and are, when analyzed in relation to your present status, definitely out of place if not immoral.

On week-ends, many of the younger boys will be "pitching liberty" with you. Much of the say as to where both will go and what both will do will be yours. Here the influence will be greatest of all, here your opportunity for good or for evil.

It is fairly certain that no real good will be done by just pragmatic acts of good example. A real change for the better should be undertaken by you for the sake of the younger fellows, but primarily for yourself. Excuses for careless talk and thoughtless living no longer exist. Separated from danger and surrounded by opportunities for moral and cultural advancement, there is no longer any reason for postponing any reform on your part. The true, the beautiful and the good are realities, perhaps the only ones when all else has slipped into the perspective of eternity. The flask-toting college boy of post World War I should have no place in an era with the fate of that life before it.

In this unplowed and uncleared field that is the future, American principles must rule if there is to be peace. They will rule only if these principles seem to be practical and praiseworthy. In this corner of the land it is the duty of the older fellows to foster the ideals of Christianity and Americanism. The strength of a democracy lies in the wisdom and the integrity of the common man, and it is this wisdom and integrity that you men are obliged to uphold. The virtue of you and of men like you is the virtue of the nation, your promise is the promise of the world.

About The Campus

With the return of many of the old Villanovans, the surrounding campuses which, incidentally boast of many beautiful girls, have for the first time seen an excess of men.

Rosies Are Red

Rosemont's Tea Dance on the sixth of October was very successful according to all reports. There were many new friendships started and many old ones being renewed. Some of the regulars who returned this year were Bill Boyle, John Burke, Lovey Quinn and Jim Bonner. I guess this group decided it was best not to change horses in mid-stream, no reflection on their dates of course.

Bryn Mawr "Darby"

Rumor has it that a new hall to be dedicated at Bryn Mawr will be called KELLERUSO in honor of Ed Kellar and Tony Caruso. This new hall incidently will boast of an extra room where these two can be put up in case of foul weather.

Harcum Harrier

At the first event given by Harcum which was a recital, Ted Doyle, Kevin McChesney and Fred Price were given the nod. This invitation also included dinner and from all reports it seems that Harcum is pushing Villanova for the title of "The Best Food Away From Home." Also seen at Harcum was Ed Sullivan (The Shortest Man on The Campus) leading a group of fifteen freshman on a foray which ended in defeat, with the night watchman playing a major role.

Daisy Chain

This part of the column would like to offer a word of praise to Bill Boyle for his part in arranging the end off and also Charlie Mamsic's cheer leading before the Holy Cross game. It is this kind of spirit which is the difference between a good team and a great team. Thanks too, to the students who turned out to make it the success that it was. Get behind the team because they are out in front for you.

The Sundae Boys

The 'GREEKS' still seems to be the favorite spot in the evenings for the residents of O'Dwyer Hall. Is it true that this particular group of students gets a discount? The customers in the Greeks have finally seen a man that can beat our own Bob Whelan. Of course it is another Villanovan. He is none other than George Pavalko. At his last sitting he had a large coke, a chocolate milkshake, bacon, lettuce and tomato, ham, lettuce and tomato, grilled cheese and one glass of milk. About this time the waitress gave up.

Summer Summary

The fair haired boy of Austin Hall who is known as Bill "I was a lifeguard at Ocean City" Dost seems to be doing very well with a friendship that had its origin in aforesaid place. And while we are on the subject of lifeguards we would like to ask John Cadden and his sidekicks Ed Walsh how they made out with their Nosey friends a few weeks ago.

Bit by Bit

Also rans: Francis J. "Wexall" McBride, scholar and gentleman, is back and "Huggie" Johnson's got him—to sign up parties for the "boys" . . . Bob "Benova" O'Conner has really gone places in the shuffle board racket. He's working on a shuffle Bowl Game for New Year's Day, now . . . Sam Canning persists in driving his friends' cars in the ruts on Lancaster Pike. Look, Sam, read the "Under Repair" slngs, O. K.? . . . Lee Wolf took it on the "lamp" on one of his recent excursions into the regions beyond . . . Vince McPeak and Matt Kearney are vieing for honors as "Best Dressed Man on Campus" . . . We knew that Paul "Needle" Walsh was a Rube, but this latest deal is the payoff, a hayride, no less . . . And here's a tribute to Homer "Sweater Boy" Halm of Fedigan-ville . . .

Frank "Basher" O'Niell is now teaching Scharnberg how to trap coons . . . R. Herman Keesler, (Bob that is) is now running for Mayor of Jenkintown . . . "Mother" Kelm simply refuses to let "Junior Mc-Chesney out of his sight . . . on the party "line" were Al Schmidt, Dom Longo, "Stretch" Homan and James Flunkett . . . Ray Cummings did all right eating spaghetti on Di Flavius' money (you mooch) . . . "Jack Foster might be on time for that N. S. class someday, who knows?

In Conclusion

"Hoop" Gibson doesn't mind traveling with Oscar Olson so long as Oscar doesn't roll him . . . When is Bill Doherty going to pay "Jittery Joe" Bremer that sandwich and milkshake (?) which the little man owes the thin man because of a few games of chance.

Share the Ride

This time a year ago, everyone had heard of car pools and share-the-ride plans. The benefits of such alleviated the parking situation, helped workers to arrive at their jobs on time, and also proved to be a remedy for the critical gas shortage.

Today there is a serious parking problem here at Villanova, as well as the problem of students arriving late for their classes. Lateness for class results in a cut for the particular student who hapepns to be late, for he is marked as an absentee. At present there seems to be no end in view to this trend of lateness. If this situation does not change, the figures will increase, and serious difficulties will be encountered.

Car pools proved invaluable to the defense workers in enabling them to arrive at work promptly and, at the same time, in its solution of the parking problem. Both of these situations existed here today at Villanova. Both of these situations can be handled now as they were in wartime.

The Villanovan, your newspaper, is planning a drive to clear up this situation. However, nothing can be done without the cooperation of each and everyone of the students. If you drive to school, it is up to you to help out the other fellow. If you are having trouble getting to school, it is up to you to make your situation known, for nothing can be done for you if no one knows who you are.

Though entailing some responsibility on each of the persons involved, the advantages to be gained are manifold and easily counterbalance any inconveniences. No definite schedules will be made. Those who wish to join such a share-the-ride plan should leave their names, addresses, and other pertinent information at the office of the Villanovan. Information will be sent out to each as to how to contact the other riders in their particular area.

BUILDING

Good progress is being made in the construction of the building project, adjacent to the gym which is to house the students now quartered in the Field house.

Radio Racket Panned

By FRANK DITURI

Number one on "What's wrong with America Parade" these days seems to be the radio industry. The FCC issues ultimatums; commentators quit their jobs because they can't stand the commercials; editorials are written; and a comedian puts over a brand new idea in radio comics, panning the other fellows commercials. Mr. Wakeman has cashed in on this rising tide of criticism with a best seler poking fun at the advertising end of the business.

Why is it that American radio with the technical equipment and know how, the fantastic amounts of money to spend for the best in talent and skill, and a glamour and popularity second only to Hollywood can do such a poor job? Mr. Wakeman's answer to this is that radio is no longer a means of entertainment and education, but a way of convincing the American population that one manufacturer's product is better than the other's.

Victor Norman, just out of the service, goes back to a job as an advertising executive for the firm that handles the account of Evan Lewellyn Evans, manufacturer of Beautee Soap. He finds to his great disgust that Evans' approach to radio is one of how many bars of soap a program can sel for him. "Build the most glamorous, high Hooperating show on the air," he says, "it ain't going to do us any good unless you can sell soap on it. There's no difference between soaps. Except for perfume and color. The difference is selling and advertising."

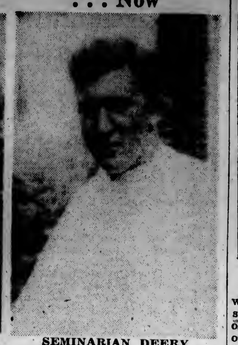
Evans thoroughly dominates the advertising program of his company, demanding the programs that suit him and firing somebody if it doesn't click—an sell soap. When the book first came out, many thought that the prototye of the soap king was the late George Washington Hill, president of American Tobacco Company. Mr. Hill personally supervised the radio budget of his concern and was responsible for such radio slogans as "Lucky Strike Green has gone to War," and "L.S.M.F.T."

After struggling with Evans' whims and tempers, Norman becomes thoroughly disgusted with his job and himself. He explains, "A man cooks up some fat and presses it into a bar of soap. He perfumes it: Wraps it up in a fancy package. Then he needs a barker to sell this miraculous ocmbination of herbs, roots and berries. So he calls me in to bark for him. Hucksters, that's all we are."

There follows a series of incidents spreading from New York to Hollywood, which illustrate the conflicts between good ideas and the sponsor's wishes, the throat cutting and shallowness that is generally believed to characterize the entertainment industry. All this culminates in Norman quitting because he can't face himself in the mirror.

The novel does a good job of summarizing the evils that beset the radio industry, but make no attempt at a solution; unless the solution is for the good people to quit, leaving the job to the yes men. The result is a tabloid type expose, written in the so-called realistic style whose measure of down-to-earthness is the number of cuss words per page.

On top of that, Mr. Wakeman seems to have taken out insurance on the failure of a book lampooning radio, by including a wholly unnecessary and very uninteresting excursion of the hero into a love affair with some other man's wife.



The whole trouble with a book like "The Hucksters" is that it is written to sell (like the radio shows advertising Beautee Soap) rather than in an attempt to improve the conditions the author criticises. At no point was there any indication of the important purpose that radio can serve; at no time does he indicate that radio has an important informative and educational function as well as one of entertainment.

The solution does not exist in the few small attempts at constructive use of this medium that can be found. WNYC, in New York, offers without commercials an excellent selection of programs to every taste; it lacks only the big time name programs that make up just a small part of regular commercial radio. Another example is the University of Wisconsin radio station, also commercial-free, which provides University Extension Courses over the air in such a variety of subjects that the state legislature provided radios for all country schools to widen their curricula.

SEMINARIAN DEERY

Eight Former Villanovans To Study for Priesthood

Service Veterans Among Thirty-Four Postulants to Enter Augustinian Order; Deery, Former Wildcat, Is One

By JASPER CHEN SEE

Ever since the beginning of Christendom, the Catholic Church has always had need of young men to carry on its work. Today, with the threat of Communism in the east and in our midst, and with the increasing indifference towards a true philosophy of life, more than ever before are men required to champion the cause of the Church by teaching and spreading the true doctrines of Christ. From the office of our Chaplain, comes this report of former Villanovans who have given up a layman's life for one of greater love.

Among the thirty-four postulants who received the white habit of the Augustinian novice recently, was Jack Deery of the class of 1943. Jack entered Villanova in September 1940, and pursued an Arts course. At the end of his third year he entered the United States Army.

Stephen Chester, a pre-medical student and brother of Bill Chester now on campus, also entered the Augustinian Order as a postulant at Staten Island. Other Villanova students who have entered the priesthood in the past year include: George Baehr, who is attending the Secular Seminary of St. Thomas, Bloomfield, Conn. Also preparing for the diocesan Clergy of Philadelphia are: Louis De Simone of Bridgeport, Pa., and William Stanton of Philadelphia, Pa. All three are veterans.

Recently returned from the Army Air Corps in the South Pacific is James F. O'Connell of West Chester. An ex '44 Chemical Engineering student, Jim is entering the Missionary Society of the Maryknoll Fathers of Maryknoll, N. Y. Word has also been received from William Levkulic of Hazleton. He is at present in the Seminary of St. Procopious in Lisle, Illinois, where he is preparing for the Catholic Greek Uniat priesthood.

Two former Marines, members of the Villanova V-12 training program; have entered religious orders. Edward J. Dolan of Sharon, Pa., is now studying with the Holy Cross Fathers at Notre Dame, Indiana, while William A. Dawson of Baltimore is making the Thirty-day Retreat preparatory to being received in the Jesuit Novitiate at Wernersville, Pa.

After one year of novitiate, the professed clerics of the Augustinian Order who are training in the religious and spiritual life for the aspirants to the priesthood will return to Villanova College, and then will go to the Augustinian College at Washington, D. C. They shall there pursue a four year course of theology in preparation for ordination.

More Repairs

In addition to the various repairs which are taking place around the campus, the Chapel is now under the process of being painted. This is one of the number of buildings which are receiving and have received face-lifting during the present campaign.

Work progresses steadily on the repair of the college roads and within the next few weeks all work should be completed. A new walk has been put in to facilitate the students living in Delurey Hall and thereby it is hoped that the grass will get some attention.

At this writing, two of the barracks have been erected and with the exception of painting and partitioning they are completed. Another will most likely be completed this week.

When the present work is done, Villanova will be in the finest condition it has been in recent years.

Unfortunately, one of the finest pieces of work in repair is not open to public scrutiny, that being the Gym floor. During the summer, the floor was scraped, sanded and done over with a durable finish.

By FRANCIS J. HANSSENS

As much as we'd like to feel that we, the Catholic youth of today, are staunch upholders of Catholic philosophy and teaching, in each one of us there seems to be a touch of the materialist. No trifling example of this would be the typical Villanova Engineer. An Arts student, acclaiming himself to be a philosophy major in the presence of said engineer, will immediately be greeted with an "Are you wacky?" look, folowed closely by a verbal "What good is that stuff? Industry will scorn you; science will pass you by. Besides, you'll never be able to hammer nails as fast as I can." And in turn, with an understanding smile gracing his philosophical countenance, the Arts student begins the defense of his beloved subject.

But how many of us, be we Arts, Business, or Engineer, have stopped to think of how wonderful and glorious a defense or perhaps better, offense, we could offer for our most beloved subject, the Holy Eucharist.

Almost every one of us, at some time or another, in conversation with our high school pals, or service or college buddies, has heard someone talking along the following line: "Gee, those Apostles really had it easy. I admit that sometimes the going was tough," he would say, "but how easy it was for them to believe, to follow, to do right. After all, they saw God in the flesh, They walked with Him; talked with Him, and doubtless smiled and wept with Him. Boy, would I be a good Catholic if I could actually see God, shake hands with Him. I guess we Catholics today just don't get the breaks."

And so goes our embryonic materialist. He has to "see" God; he has to "shake Christ's hand." He "doesn't get any breaks."

But isn't our friend forgetting something; a something which gives us the jump even on the Apostles? You bet he is. For ours is not merely the "break" of shaking Christs' hand. Ours is the glorious privilege of having Christ Himself, in His own Flesh and Blood, dwelling within us; flesh of our flesh, blood of our blood, nurturing our existence with His very own in the Eucharist.

Now who's getting the "breaks?" Let's you and I consider the cause and then, yes, be materialists; that is, if we still can.

Rosemont College Celebrates Holy Child Order Centennial

Dennis Cardinal Dougherty Celebrates Pontifical Mass on Neighboring Campus

Rosemont College observed the centennial anniversary of the founding of the Society of the Holy Child Jesus, together with all the other houses of that society, last week.

A Solemn Pontifical Mass was held at the Cathedral of Saints Peter and Paul in Philadelphia on Saturday, October 12, at which the Most Reverend Hugh T. Lamb, Auxiliary Bishop of Philadelphia, officiated as celebrant, Rev. Robert M. Sullivan, O.S.A., assisted at the altar. At this Mass a sermon was delivered by the Rev. Anthony Flynn of the Philadelphia Archdiocese.

Cardinal Dougherty Guest

On Monday a solemn Pontifical Mass was celebrated on the Rosemont Campus at which Dennis Cardinal Dougherty, Archbishop of Philadelphia, presided. Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., was Deacon of honor An address was delivered by the Rev. Henry A. Caffrey, O.S.A., Prior of Saint Rita's Parish in Philadelphia. Father Caffrey traced the history of the order of the Holy Child from its beginnings to the present day. He dwelled on the contribution to Catholic education made by these holy women as they give up their lives in the world for Christ. Other Augustinian priests and seminarians assisted at the Mass.

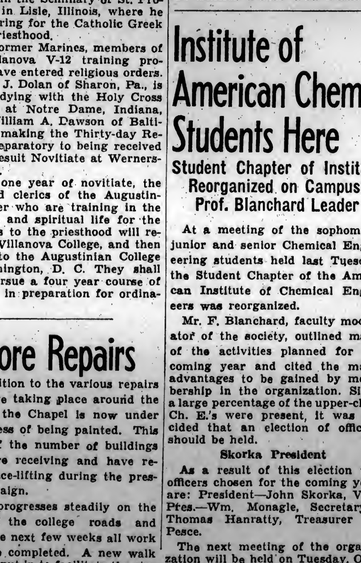
Institute of American Chem Students Here

Student Chapter of Institute Reorganized on Campus; Prof. Blanchard Leader

At a meeting of the sophomore, junior and senior Chemical Engineering students held last Tuesday, the Student Chapter of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers was reorganized.

Mr. F. Blanchard, faculty moderator of the society, outlined many of the activities planned for the coming year and cited the many advantages to be gained by membership in the organization. Since a large percentage of the upper-class Ch. E.'s were present, it was decided that an election of officers should be held.

Skorka President



As a result of this election the officers chosen for the coming year are: President—John Skorka, Vice Pres.—Wm. Monagle, Secretary—Thomas Hanratty, Treasurer—Pesce.

The next meeting of the organization will be held on Tuesday, Oct. 29, in room 410 Mendel Hall. The Moderator urges any eligible students to attend this meeting and to join the A. I. Ch. E. in order to bring the chapter up to its prewar position of importance on the campus.

SPANISH CLUB

The Spanish Club, under the direction of Father Lozano, will hold its first meeting on Wednesday, October 23, in Room 215 Mendel at 8:00 P. M. All men interested in joining this club should be on hand. One need not be enrolled in a Spanish course in order to become a member.

On October 17th, 18th and 19th the Catholic Educational Association of Pennsylvania held their Twenty-sixth Annual Convention in Philadelphia.

The Most Reverend Hugh L. Lamb, D. D., V. G., Auxiliary Bishop of Philadelphia, was the celebrant of the Solemn Pontifical Mass held in the Church of St. Francis de Sales, on Friday morning, October 18, at nine o'clock.

More than eight hundred delegates representing twenty-five or more religious congregations of teachers in the five dioceses of Pennsylvania and the Archdiocese of Philadelphia, attended the Mass.

The sermon was delivered by

FATHER McGUIRE

Reverend Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., President of Villanova College.

Father Boyle Treasurer

Reverend Joseph J Boyle, O.S.A., Registrar of Villanova is the Treasurer of the Association. His Eminence Dennis Cardinal Dougherty was host to the delegates and members.

Among the other features and activitics of the convention was a concert by the combined orchestras of the Catholic Girls High Schools of Philadelphia. Mr. Jeno Donath directed the orchestra for the concert.

Of the many points stressed in the meeting was the need for remedial reading in high schools throughout the state Current educational problems were discussed and, where it could be done, solved by the members of the convention.

Sister Marie Eugenie Speaker

On Saturday, Sister Marie Eugenie, faculty member of Immaculata College delivered an address to the College Department of the convention. The address was entitled "Educating Our Catholic Women As Women."

The convention closed Saturday morning at 11:30 A. M. The convention was held on the grounds and in the buildings of West Catholic Boys and Girls High Schools.

DO YOUR PART!

Since our last issue we have received many comments on the fact that we have overlooked this meeting and that, this event and that. We are only human. Sometimes we slip up. You can help us give you what you want by letting us know if and when things are going to happen and we appreciate every suggestion that you may have to offer.

When the paper comes out on Tuesday, please remember that there exists today a serious shortage of newsprint (paper on which we print). So take one only, please. Remember that we are limited in the number of copies we may have printed and there is a large number of names on our ouside mailing list. Thanks. —The Staff.

Immaculata Has Alumnae Dance

Twenty-Fifth of October Date Set; Bellevue-Stratford Scene of Affair

The Alumnae Association of Immaculata College is holding a formal dance on the 25 of October at the Bellevue Stratford Hotel in Philadelphia. It is to be held for the benefit of the College Building Fund.

Music for the evening will be supplied by Bob Shebly and his Orchestra. This dance will mark the first social of this year by the Alumnae Association.

In past years the dances that have been held have been more than successful both socially and financially. Nancy Roberts, class of '45, is the chairman of the dance. While a student at Immaculata, Nancy was chairman of both the Junior Prom and the Senior Ball. Both of these affairs met with tremendous success.

Other officers of the dance are: Mrs. Landau, Honorary Chairman; Mrs. Joseph Coady, Publicity Chairman; Mrs. Frank McFadden, Advertising Chairman; Mrs. Pat Schulte, Chairman of Patrons and Sponsers Committee and Miss Helen Conboy, Program Chairman.

Poetry Club Being Formed; Fr. McShea Leads Group

A meeting of local college students interested in the study and composition of Catholic Poetry was held last Sunday, October 13 at Immaculata College. Villanova College was represented by four students and two faculty members.

The meeting was for the purpose of organizing what will be called the Philadelphia Regional College Unit of the Catholic Poetry Society of America. The constitution of the proposed group was adopted and the method of selecting officers was determined. The President of the group will be a student of Immaculata College and will be selected by the Immaculata group. The secretary of the unit will be a Villanova student, yet to be chosen.

To Study Catholic Poetry

Immaculata College has long had a poetry group on the campus, under the leadership of Sister M. Donatus, I.H.M., but for other local colleges the venture will be a new one. The local groups will meet and work on their own, but the region-

Wildcats Crush Georgetown in Thriller, 19-2

VILLANOVAN SPORTS

Team Travels to Meet Eagles of Boston College

By DAVE MARANO

With their talons razor sharp, after the impressive victory scored the last time they invaded New England, Villanova's Wildcats will travel northward trying to make it two straight in that section of the country, when they face Boston College in the twelfth game of that series. Starting in 1922, but not continuously since then, Villanova had faced the Boston College Eagles three times before they gained their first victory. This came in 1927 when the Wildcats came through with a 12-7 score. Since then Villanova has either won or tied every game except the 1934 meeting when they bowed 6-0. As the series now stands Villanova has won 5, lost 4, and tied 2.

Fresh from a 59-7 thumping the Eagles handed King's Point Merchant Marine Academy, Coach Denny Myers and his crew are confident that they will even the series with the Main Liners. More than this they are anxious to avenge the 41-0 walloping handed them last year.

Led by the "slingshot" arm of "Bud" Clasby, and the hard running of "Red" Mangene, B. C. has completed an enviable record to date. Their only defeat was a heartbreaking 12-6 loss at the hands of the power studded Wake Forest eleven. The Eagles rebounded on successive Saturdays and downed favored Michigan State 35-21, then swamped King's Point, 59-7.

From past performances, Villanova's ground gainers are going to have to work extra hard to get by the Eagles' rugged line. The fine play of Pipke at end and Giangelli and Ssiti were very instrumental in Boston College's previous victories.

A stalwart forward wall, combined with a flashy backfield, is expected to combine to give the Wildcats plenty of trouble. "Red" Mangene, rated as the best back in New England is being counted upon to keep the Villanova secondary up close. Then Coach Myers hopes to unleash the accurate arm of "Bud" Clasby, who has completed 20 out of 32 attempted passes. A double dose of trouble will be administered by John Killeles, who scored two touchdowns against King's Point, one of which was an 80-yard jaunt.

Blocking and Long Runs Feature Game; Rogers Scores Twice, Cap Once

Functioning in a manner which belied some earlier performances this season, Villanova downed Georgetown on Sunday afternoon at Shibe Park before 22,000 spectators. Paced by the sensational runs of Joe Rogers and the outstanding play of "Rambling" Romeo Capriotti, game captain, the Blue and White rang up a 19-2 win, which score, indeed, is a fairly good measure of the relative merits of two opponents.

An effusion of plaudits are due as well to the Wildcat forward wall men who set a season's new high for fine blocking and tackling. It was they who chewed apart the highly vaunted Hoya line and tore through that same line to take the effectiveness out of the Blue and Grey offense.

As difficult as it is to single out the outstanding linemen, for the very nature of their play seems to place them in a position of at least semi-obsurity, there is no gainsaying that Bill Lilienthal was brilliant at tackle, George Pavalko, as well, stood out at guard, as did Lanigan and Barker. Sam Brown and Frank Kane are due for their share of the glory, too.

The men from south of the Mason and Dixon Line were able to field several good backs and the shining light among these was Philadelphia's own Jack McTamney, erstwhile Saint Joseph's Prep ace. This gent's deft ball handling from the quarterback position when the Hoyas employed the 'T' formation was a thing of beauty. From both the double wing and 'T' he heaved aerials which came close to spelling six points for the Blue and Grey.

Hoya Ace Sidelined

Harry Baranowski, who had been billed as the ace of the Hoya backfield had little opportunity to show his wares. Suffering an injury midway in the second period, he did not play for the remainder of the contest.

John Preston tore off a "spectator's delight" of 70 yards very late in the second period. This run by Preston, who was pulled down by Polidor from behind on the eight, was the longest run of the day and set the Hoyas up in scoring position.

Rogers Scores

Villanoa chalked up its first score of the afternoon in the first stanza following a Georgetown land on its own 21. After two Hoya attempts at the line, Elmer Raba booted to Capriotti, who gathered in the ball on the Blue and White 30 and returned it to the Southerners' 38. From there Joe Rogers exploded off tackle for 38 yards and a touchdown, neatly aided by Frank Kane, who executed one of the blocking gems of the day.

Barker's attempted conversion after the touchdown was blocked, and Capriotti, who scooped up the crazily bouncing ball, was stopped short of the goal.

Score: Villanova 6; Georgetown 0. Time: 6:12, first period.

In less than four and a half minutes, Villanova was to score again. Capriotti set this one up when he pushed the Hoyas back to the shadows of their own goal posts. Cap let go from his 33 with a quick kick which stopped cold on the three yard line, for a total of 64 yards. Raba punted out from the end zone to Romeo, who returned it five to the Hoya 42. Rogers went to the 24 for a first down. David then slammed the line for three. Here Gordon handed it to Capriotti on an off tackle play. Combining his own running ability with fine interference, he rambled up the middle for a score without a hand being laid upon him.

Kittens Drop Opener 7-0 to Rutgers; Screen Pass Decides

Last Period Score Wins for Scarlet After Villanova Halts Foe Four Times Inside 15; Divine, Fitzmeyer Standouts on Defense

By JIM LYONS

The new 150 lb. Intercollegiate Football League made a successful debut before several hundred spirited spectators at Villanova Stadium, Saturday.

In a hotly contested battle, the smooth working T-exponents of Rutgers University, fought to a score late in the last period, and eked out a 7-0 victory over a rugged Villanova College eleven.

Both teams displayed the fast, deceptive offenses and bruising tackling, for which this revived league was noted. Although league rulings prohibit practice before the semester begins, both coaches fielded polished combinations. Coach Don White's Rutgers T combination, and Coach John Siano's single wing team. Each exhibited finesse, power and determination in their play.

In the first half each team fought the other to a stalemate, which was punctuated by occasional sprints and aerial gains. However, neither team clicked in a sustained drive and the score was 0-0 at the half time gun.

Kittens Make Brave Stand

Both teams were eager for a score when they returned to the field and both unleashed their most potent plays. Late in the third period, Sullivan, the Rutgers center, blocked Devine's kick on the Kittens' 28 yard line. This was the turning point in the game; for Rutgers launched an unrelenting drive for a score and on four occasions they had first and goal to go. Three times the Kittens' defense held but on the fourth series of plays Rutgers, after three ground plays that netted nothing, executed a perfect screen pass, Co-Capt. Shallcross to Co-Capt. Klein for 7 yards and the decisive score. Only 2½ minutes of converted playing time remained and the Kittens' desperate attempts for long gains were unsuccessful.

After winning the toss, acting captain Bob Fitzmeyer elected to receive. Mettam kicked to the ten and Dick Devine brought it out to 22. Two plays failed to make the necessary yardage and Devine kicked. Rutgers tested our line twice then punted to the 22. Walt Bogdanski carried around the weak side for a first. Rutgers held and Devine kicked. Shallcross and Klein alternated in a series of plays that clicked for three first downs. Then the Kittens stiffened and Shreve punted. This period continued in this see-saw fashion and deteriorated into a punting duel between Devine and Shreve.

Interception Saves

In the second period both teams took to the air and early in the period Shallcross hit Thayer and Walp on successive plays that carried to Villanova 26. Two sweeps failed to gain and Shallcross attempted to hit Klein on the 8 but Devine, who played a brilliant defensive game, intercepted and kicked out. This was the only sustained drive in this period.

Rutgers elected to receive at the outset of the second half. After several exchanges on downs Rutgers made the first break when Small blocked Devine's punt and it rolled out of bounds on 32. However, Bob Fitzmeyer threw Rutgers backs for losses on two successive plays and Joe Rodgers, who last week was rated as the No. 4 running back of the country, picked up a total of 172 yards, while losing 3, for a net gain of 169 against Georgetown. Joe carried only 12 times, for an average of a fraction above 14 yards per try.

Six of the eight Philadelphia area players listed on the Georgetown roster saw action against Villanova on Sunday. Several of them were high school teammates of some of the Wildcats.

Ollie's Comments

The Georgetown game was a good one to salt away for many reasons. It was the first time that we ran into a double wing outfit and we experimented with a defense concocted by Art Raimo and Jerry Neri. Except for one long run by Georgetown the defense was clicking in good fashion. Our big pre-game problem was "How to rush Georgetown's passer?" Soon after the opening kick-off we knew that problem was solved as our linemen really hit Raba, Spiess and Baronowski and forced them to retire involuntarily.

Probably the best performances in our line were turned in by two unheralded men, one a last minute starter and the other going in on the second play and completing most of the game. Bill Lilienthal started for the injured Lou Ferry and did a remarkable job crashing in there on numerous occasions spilling Georgetown passers and runners. When big John Sandusky was injured on the opening kick-off we had to depend on Al Zimba and he came through in grand style, especially on offense where he put on some good blocks, helping to spring Rogers and Capriotti loose on those dazzling runs.

These two halfbacks continue to amaze us with their ability to get into the open although we do know that those linemen are doing a pretty fair job up front. "Cap" and "Rog" should be well up in national standings this week although "Cap" had the misfortune to have fine runs nullified by inadvertent misdues. (Don't those officials ever miss a trick?)

The two best blocks of the day were put on by a pair of ends. Bud Kane put the final clean-up on Joe Rogers' first touchdown with an upending sock and Dan Brown wiped out two Hoyas on Rogers' second marker. By the way, if anyone knows any jet propulsion secrets, please let Joe Rogers in on them.

Behind the Scene With the Football Team

Question of the week! Everyone wants to know who the mystery man of the 150's is. When the practice pants arrived in the equipment room, Charlie discovered someone had made a grave miscalculation. For among the pants there was a pair of size 50's—fifty that is. The only man large enough to fill them out is John Sandusky, 260 pound tackle. Mighty large for a 150 pounder, we would say. If anyone doubts our word, ask "Dusky."

Most people are under the impression that there is only one barber shop on the campus. However, a select few have had the pleasure (?) of having their locks trimmed in "Zimba's Tonsorial Emporium" located in room 101 Austin. To keep the customers satisfied "Zim" provides free entertainment in the form of his famous stories. Due to the pressure of his studies (humn) Al is temporarily out of business, but he wants everyone to know that he will be back when things slow down.

One of the guards on the squad may have been the inspiration for the famous Yale cheer — Bulldog Bow Wow Wow. Anyone desiring further information on this point will please contact Bulldog Pete Limanni. Any resemblance between Pete and the Yale Bulldog is strictly intentional.

We thought that the National Anthem was the Star Spangled Banner. Anyone who knows "Barbells" Riley is aware of this misunderstanding. According to Bob it is the Mulville High School song. Someone should let the men in Washington know about this.

Most of you know that George Guida (better known as the Bullet) is really speedy on the cinder path. What most of you do not know is that we have another comet in our midst. He is Lou Ferry, the Chester Flash. Lou holds the world's record for the three yard dash (time 6 secs.). Milt Komarnicki, the man he defeated to win the title, claims that Lou jumped the gun. Coach Elliot please note.

The biggest argument in the Field House at the present time is who has the curliest hair—Bill Dost or Bill Lilienthal? Lilienthal has quite a few backers, but the pride of Haddonfield has pulled up in the last few weeks. From this point of view it looks like a toss up.

Speaking of spirit a few bouquets should be tossed up New Philly ways. Ed Barrang and George Palvallo must have the local citizenry really pepped up. Six of their boys have seen every Villanova game. This doesn't sound like a big story, but when you consider the fact that they made these jaunts in a taxi of 1921 vintage, it becomes quite a feat. To make things interesting they carry no spare, just one wrench. They made it safely to Worcester and their slogan now is "Detroit or Bust."

noticed in the grandstand was the fine ball handling by Andy Gordon. He has become very adept at this and on many plays the Georgetown defenders were taking a step or two in the wrong direction which gave us a jump on them.

When the whole game is analyzed it is realized that it was another team victory. Though there were a few spectacular plays men like Lanigan, David, Pavalko, Barker, Berrang and the rest did their individual jobs and that won for us.

The future holds no let-ups for us. This week we travel to Massachusetts to engage Boston College. They are loaded with pre-war bowl stars and their record this year is good. We know we're in for one of the hardest games on the schedule, but as one of the boys said, "Don't worry! We've been in tough games before."

Rutgers kicked for cover, Dilworth, Rutgers' right end, downed the ball just inside of the ten and the ball was placed on the 20. Paruta passed the ball off to Scarzo who went for a first. Then came the decisive break, Sullivan recovered a Kitten fumble on the Villanova 26. From this point on the Rutgers eleven was continually deep in Villanova territory.

Shallcross took a lateral from Shreve and passed to Thayer on the 9. Once Rutgers got inside of the 10 the Kittens really tightened up. The clean tackling of Devine, Fitzmeyer and Roane was a big factor in the Kittens' three successful goal line stands.

Aerial Wins

Just when they seemed to be taking over the offensive play, Oddorisio's screen pass to Paruta was intercepted by Small on the Villanova 40. Then Shallcross faded back over the 50 and heaved a long pass to Walp on the 9 and Roane made a goal shaving tackle on the 7. After three successive running plays netted nothing, Shreve undaunted by Villanova's 4-3-2-2 defense, tossed a screen pass to Kein, who was tackled by Paruta, but fell over the double line. Perry kicked the point to make it Rutgers 7, Villanova 0 at 10:20 of the fourth period. The Kittens tried desperation plays but Rutgers was alerted.

Pavalko Named Best Guard in the Country

Olivar Compares George with Ed Michaels, Immortal Wildcat Lineman; Touted as All America Prospect

George Pavalko, Wildcat guard, was selected by the New York Times as the outstanding man at that position last week. The poll is a weekly, nation-wide coverage conducted by sports writers on the familiar point system (10 points for a 1st place, 9 for a second place, etc.). Pavalko held a comfortable lead on all guard nominations and is being touted as a possible all American.

Coach Jordan Olivar considers him the greatest guard since the days of Eddie Michaels, now starring for the Philadelphia Eagles in the National Professional League. The greatest feature of George's play is his ability to cover the ball carrier on kick offs.

First since Wysocki

This marks the first time that Villanova has gained individual nation-wide acclaim since Johnny Wysocki captured all America at end in 1936.

Pavalko was not a starter at the contest of the present campaign, and it was not until regular Tom Smith was sidelined in the Marquette game that George came into prominence. He captained the Wildcats in their upset victory over Holy Cross and it was his spectacular play in this game that drew the plaudits from the sports writers.

Georgetown was aware of Pavalko from the scouts who covered our Holy Cross game, but they were unable to stop him. He was the big factor in opening gaping holes in the Hoyas forward wall which sprung Rogers' and Capriotti an their long runs. On defense he smothered anything that came his way and was relentlessly rushing their passer. The eyes of the spectators followed his every move after his nomination to national honors, and he came through with all around brilliant playing.

George is only a freshman and should capture additional honors before his playing days as Villanova are over.

Touch Football To Launch Big Intramural Year

Swimming, Tennis Turnout to Determine Advisibility of Varsity Competition in These Sports

The Intramural Touch Football League will open next week. This activity has always been one of the most popular on the campus and every season has provided thrills and close races. The opening of the league has already been delayed two weeks and all enthusiasts are asked to act immediately in order that the season can get rolling by next Monday. Father Kemme, moderator of Intramurals, has announced that the league will consist of six teams. O'Dwyer, Delcurey and Simpson Halls will merge to form one team, as will Our Lady of Good Counsel and Mendel Halls. With these two teams, Austin, Fedigan, Alumni and the Day Hops round out the list of eligibles.

At this writing Father Kemme is considering running morning and afternoon games on Mendel Field. This will bring moans from many students who will be unable to make a game because of classes.

If you are interested in having your hall represented get together, elect a captain and try to organize two teams, one that can play morning games and the other afternoon games. A pool of the teams will have to be taken to assist the moderator in arranging a schedule. Leave a list of the times that your hall can play in the Villanovan office before Thursday at noon. The captain of each team will receive a schedule and one will be posted on the Bulletin Boards of every hall.

Villanova ran a varsity swimming team before the war and engaged local colleges in meets. This year the Intramural Swim Test will be the meter stick to measure the advisability of returning our school to outside competition. No definite guarantees can be given at this time as to when we will have a varsity, but if the turnout is good it will be in the very near future.

The tennis tournament last semester fizzled out in the finals when inclement weather prevented the winners from each hall from meeting. This year the Fred Koch trophy will again be on the block. Fr. Kemme promises the biggest year in Intramurals that Villanova has ever seen.

Barker's try for the point was wide.

Score: Villanova 12; Georgetown 0. Time: 10:28, first period.

The remainder of the first half was pretty much of a see-saw battle, with Villanova getting the upper hand, if there is any consolation in heading statistics.

The Wildcats had the ball in scoring territory following Joe Rogers' 35 yard dash, which set the ball on the Georgetown 16. However the attack died aborning here because of a fumble.

Kane Under Kicks

Frank Kane again stepped into the spotlight just before the Hoyas' opened up with their best offensive offering of the day. Kane, travelling downfield under Gordon's kick, rocked safetyman Lou Surman with a bone-crusher of a tackle, after having split Surman's two blockers.

Immediately following this tackle, Preston went on his 70 yard jaunt to set the ball on the Villanova eight. McTamney gave it to Preston for another yard on the first play from the eight. An incomplete McTamney - to - Preston pass ate up the down. A McTamney-to-Surman chuck was good for five, Capriotti driving Surman out on the two. On forth down, McTamney was stopped by Lilienthal, Rogers and Brown for no gain.

Brown Makes Circus Catch

Villanova set things going in the final period on the Blue and White 13. With David, Capriotti and Rogers doing a major part of the ball hauling, the Wildcats drove up field for 77 yards, gathering in five first downs in the drive, for their final counter of the game. Gordon's 10 yard pass to Dan Brown, who made an "impossible" catch, being covered by two men, also figured in the drive.

The pay-off play came, however, from the ten when Rogers taking due advantage of Brown's two man block, went over for the score. It was Rogers' second touchdown of the day.

Barker's point conversion was good.

Score: Villanova 19; Georgetown 0. Time: 5:52, forth quarter.

Folowing Bob David's kickoff, which he returned from the nine to the 40, Jack McTamney again went to work with his arm. The Hoya tailback completed five out of five passes down to the Wildcat 21 yard line. However, Bill Zehler stepped into the picture and grabbed off another McTamney aerial on the 11 to halt the drive there.

On the first play, Villanova fumbled and the ball rolled all the way out of the end zone for the lone Georgetown tally.

Score: Villanova 19; Georgetown 2. Time: 9:13 forth quarter.

As was to be expected, the Hoyas filled the air with passes in the waning moments of the game. Following David's interception of McTamney's pass, Georgetown held the Wildcats and took over on their own 28. McTamney attempted seven more, three of which he completed. His best effort went for nought when Louis Miler dropped one in the clear on the 20. "Doc" Doherty picked off the last aerial and went 20-some yards to the Villanova 40 on the last play of the ball game.

Final Score:, Villanova 19; Georgetown 2.

LOU FERRY

JOE ROGERS

Lou Ferry: Representing the first half of this week's double feature should need little introduction to ardent Villanova folowers. Lou, as a freshman, was a standout tackle on Ollie's 1945 eleven and he stands to merit the same appraisal at the end of the 1946 season.

Number 53, Ferry's identification on the gridiron for the past two years, has come up against the best in the business and still managed to walk off thefield "Maxima cum laude." Last year the Wildcats met Army, Navy, Holy Cross, and Tennessee, all of whom ranked in the first sixteen teams in the nation. In fact, the first two mentioned wound up one-two in the country.

It was probably in these games that Lou ployed his best ball. Army said that he was the best tackle they encountered all year with the exception of Pennsylvania's George Savitsky. The press also regarded him highly, placing him on the second team, All-State.

Lou has had his name prefixed with the title "Captain" twice in his two years at Villanova. Singularly, he was picked as Wilcat leader in both of the Army games.

Ferry is a product of St. James High in Chester, Pa. Before graduating from there in 1945, Lou was a stalwart tackle on the Bulldog eleven for two years and was voted an All-Catholic berth at that position in his senior year.

During those high school days, Lou's devotion was divided between the football field and the basketball court, He was a member of the St. James varsity basketball team for three years, jumping center for the Chester aggregation during that span. However, Lou is strictly a footballer now, and one look at this Wildcat giant should give ample explanation of the statement.

This year, "Mac-Mountain" Ferry is twenty pounds heavier, weighing in at 240. He isn't the heaviest man on the team but he's among the big boys. Ifhis weight addition represents any addition in ability, you can look for Lou's name on any of the "All" teams this winter.

Joe Rogers: Top ground gainer in eastern college football, Joe Rogers, Villanova's scintillating freshman halfback makes his formal debut in the archives of the Villanovan's Sportlight this week. It was little wonder that students wanted to know more about the possessor of such a rushing aggregate so here are a few of the highlights of his past career.

Joe laid the immediate foundation for his present work (both scholastic and athletic) while at Roman aCtholic High School in Philadelphia. There, as a member of the Cahillites football and basketball teams for two years he became known throughout the Catholic League for his ability and aggressive play.

It was in his senior year that Rogers really came into prominence. He was the sparkplug of a mediocre football team and in appreciation of this he was named to the All-Scholastic eleven of Philadelphia in 1942.

Shortly after this, Joe found himself in the starting lineup of a Roman basketball team that just couldn't seem to win a game. After they had dropped seven straight contests, Roman Catohlic authorities persuaded Jordan Olivar, present Wildcat coach, to take over the coaching reins. Then followed one of the most remarkable transformations ever witnessed in Catholic League annals.

In a finish rivaling that of the 1914 Boston Braves, the Cahillites sparked by the brilliant, all-around teamwork of Joe Rogers, swept through their next eighteen games undefeated. Needles to say, they won the league crown. They went on to the finals of the Eastern States Catholic tournament only to lose out in a hard fought game 29-28. Rogers was named to the All Tournament team for his sparkling play throughout the tourney.

Then entering the State Catholic tournament, Rogers and his mates lost in the finals of that, by the ironical score of 29-28. In this game, Roman led 20 to 6 at halftime with 10 of their points going to Rogers. However, Joe left the game at the outset of the second half and his absence was sorely missed.

Two weeks after graduating from high school Joe enlisted in the Coast Guard and two months after being discharged from the same service, he entered Villanova (March 1, 1946). Ever since his first public appearance in Wildcat livery he has been a fixture in the Villanova backfield both in the eyes of his coaches and fans.

At this writing he is fourth in the country in rushing offense and his 322 yards gained in 49 tries is only ten yards less than the total of Auburn's Travis Tidwell who leads the nation.

Archbishop of Boston Visits College Campus

Received by Provincial Rev. M. A. Sullivan, OSA, and College Authorities

Two prominent Catholic clergymen, the Most Rev. Richard T. Cushing, Archbishop of Boston, and the Very Rev. Msgr. John T. Wright, D.D., visited the campus on Wednesday October 15, 1946. They were received by the Provincial of the Augustianian Order, Rev. Mortimer A. Sullivan, D.D., O.S.A., who welcomed them to the college grounds.

Though their visit was of short duration the Bishop and the Monsignor visited St. Mary's Hall and several of the college buildings.

Also in the welcoming committee were Rev. Joseph M. Dougherty, O.S.A., Prior, and Rev. Francis X. McGuire, President of the College.

This visit by the Archbishop of Boston followed closely the visit by Thomas Cardinal Tien, Aspotolic Prefect of the newly erected Yanghu Prefecture, in China.

Following their whirlwind visit of the campus the Archbishop and the Monsignor motored to Southeast Airport to catch a plane for their return to the Boston Archdiocese.

Parking Regulations

Attention car owners: The present congestion on the campus because of parked automobiles must end. The authorities have been reluctant to issue and enforce fines, but the current situation created by indiscriminate parkers seems to necessitate compulsion.

We are all aware of the fact that the available parking space on the campus is far from adequate. The students also know that this space has been allotted to the faculty members. There is ample room opposite the field house and in the P & W lot for everyone to park an automobile or another conveyance. Use it. It is hoped that better and more convenient facilities will be afforded students in the future, but until that time the campus cannot and will not be a parking lot.

Materials and foodstuffs must be delivered to the buildings and when drivers are forced to turn back, unable to complete their deliveries, it is time to clear the way.

Beginning Monday, October 21, 1946, there will be an officer or possibly two, on duty throughout the campus. Only holders of signed cards, which will be issued by the Dean of men in the near future, will be permitted to park on the campus. Violators expose themselves to the consequences. Remember, cooperation makes possible coordination.

JUNIOR CLASS MEET

There will be a meeting of the members of the Juniors tonight at 7:00 o'clock (after chapel) in Room 215 Mendel. Plans for Junior Week will be discussed. All Sophomore II, Junior I and Junior II students are to be in attendance.

Villanova Staff Large and Able

From various cities and towns come the seed for the new post-war Villanovan. Names, heretofore unknown to Villanova, will assume new meanings in the years to come and we predict their ascent to the head of our College paper. With this issue the "Welcome" mat goes out to:

William B. Stonelake, 22, of Ardmore, Pa., West Catholic '41, in Accounting, Class of '49. Bill is a veteran of the Marine Corps, having served 3 years in the Pacific as a Pfc., and now writes in our Sport Department. Richard J. Hudak, 22, Phila., from South Phila. High School for Boys '41, now in Commerce and Finance, class of '49. He served in the Navy for 2 years as a SM 3/C. His interest is cartooning, and his talent can be ovserevd in our Sports cartoons.

Francis X. Splane, called "Pat," 17, of Philadelphia, from Malvern Prep School '46, a Biology Major, Class of '50, a member of the Sports Staff, with mysteries, novels and radio as his hobbies, and plenty of energy. Joseph J. Miller, 28, Philadelphia, from Central H. S. '38, in Mech. Engineering, Class of '50, former Staff Sergeant in Army Air Forces, served in the Southwest Pacific for 3 years, and belongs to the News Staff. George R. Szymanski, 23, Jersey City, N. J., Ferris H. S. '40, fresh out of Merchant Marine as a 1/Bsccsb.ovbgkqJETA Marine as Radio Officer, and Lt. (jg) in U. S. Maritime Service, in Biology, Clas of '50, also on News Staff. George hopes to set up an Amatuer Radio Station in spare time.

William R. Chauvenet, 17, Charlottesville, Va., Lane High '46, Pre-Law, Class of '50, comes to us from the South, bringing along his interests in newspaper work, football, and band. Bill is active member of the News Staff. Joseph V. D'Ambrisi, 18, St. Thomas More '45, majoring in Chemical Engineering, Class of '49, comes to the News Dept. with a background of literary experience.

Robert H. Graf, 18, Lynnbrook, N. Y., Chaminade H. S., '46, Mineola, N. Y., in Electrical Engineering, Class of '50, joins the Photography Dept., having gained some experience by employment at Willoughby's Camera Stores, N. Y. C. George F. Winters, 21, Tulsa, Oklahoma, Cascia Hall '42, an Augustinian school, enrolled in the School of Accounting, Class of '50. George served in the Army, with the 1st Armored Division in Italy for 3 years, being discharged as a corporal. He enjoys woodworking and photography, and was assigned to the latter on the Villanovan. Joseph L. D'Auria, 19, Philadelphia, Augustinian Academy '4, Staten Island, N. Y., is taking Chemical Eng4ineering, and is President of his Sophomore Class. He is on the Business Staff.

William J. Cummiskey, 25, Philadelphia, Northeast H. S. '38, in Accounting, Clas of '49, is a veteran of 3 yrs. service in the Army Signal Corps in the Asiatic-Pacific theatre as a Staff Sergeant. He reports his sidelights as "married life." Michael J. Santacroce, 21, Philadelphia, Overbrook '43, studying Pre-Law, Marketing, Class of '49. Served as a corporal in Air Corps for 27 months in European Theatre. His specialty is Sports.

John L. Kucha Jr., 27, Reading, Pa., of Bound Brook H. S. '36, a pre-Law major, Class of '50, served as a corporal in U. S. Army.

al group will meet four times a year. It is proposed not only to study work of Catholic poets but to encourage members to write their own poems. The Immaculata girls already have a medium of publication for their poetry, the Magnificat, a magazine of verse.

Rev. John J. McShea, O.S.A., Assistant Professor of English led the Villanova group, together with Rev. William J. Krupa, O.S.A. The students present at the meeting were Edward Fanelli, Ray Cummings, James McWilliams, and Thomas Daley. Father McShea hopes that other students will take an interest in the work of the society.

GLEE CLUB

The Glee Club will hold its first meeting on Wednesday, October 23, in room 215, Mendel Hall.

The meeting will be held at 12:30.

Villanova Club Of Philadelphia To Have Dinner

Club Plays Host to Football Team on Dec. 3rd; Guest Speakers To Be Selected for Banquet

On Thursday evening last, at eight o'clock, the Villanova Club of Philadelphia held their second meeting of the year at the Philopatrian Club at 1923 Walnut Street. This has been designated as the regular meeting place for the year.

Meeting will be held on the third Thursday of every month. At this meeting the attendance was very good. The main subject of the meeting business was the Football Dinner to be held on December 3 for the members of the football and the coaching staff.

This dinner will be held at the Warwick Hotel at 7:00 o'clock in the evening. It is being given, by way of showing the club's and the school's appreciation for the fine work the varsity has done this year. The dinner will be open to the public, but it will be strictly a stag affair.

Bill Sears Speaks

Among other happenings at this meeting was the showing of the movies of the Villanova games against Army and Navy to the members. Bill Sears, WPEN sportcaster, was on hand as guest of the evening. Bill, who has done a swell job in bringing the Villanova games to the ears of the radio audience, gave a short commentary on his life and activities as a sports announcer and his job on Villanova game coverage.

Father Falvey also addressed the members of the club. Father urged that the members make returns as soon as possible on their books for the Friends of the Library Drive. He also urged that the Club get behind a final boost in the sale of these books.

ATTENTION

There will be a meeting of the Villanovan staff on Tuesday October 22 in the Villanovan office Mendel Hall at 12:30. All members must be present.

Augustinian Order to Open New College

Archbishop Cushing Announces Massachusetts School Plans

New England Institution To Be Opened Near Lawrence; Second Augustinian College in United States

The Augustinian Fathers will open a new college at Lawrence, Mass., it was announced last week by Very Rev. Mortimer A. Sullivan, O.S.A., Prior Provincial of the Province of St. Thomas of Villanova.

Most Rev. T. Cushing, Archbishop of Boston, who visited Villanova's campus two weeks ago, made public announcement of the new college on Sunday, October 20. The announcement was made while the Archbishop was giving the sermon on the occasion of the one hundredth anniversary of the founding of Immaculate Conception parish in Lawrence, Massachusetts. This is one of the parishes held by the Augustinian Fathers. In the course of his talk Archbishop Cushing paid glowing tribute to the work of the Augustinian Fathers in his diocese and gave that work as the reason for inviting them to open the new college.

Site Not Yet Selected

While the vicinity the Lawrence was mentioned as the place of the new college, the exact site has not yet been chosen. However, the same Province of St. Thomas of Villanova has also opened a new college in Cuba this year. No administrative officers or faculty members have been appointed for the new college in Massachusetts as yet, but it seems probable that several priests from the Villanova faculty will be among those selected. Fr. Sullivan did not say when the college would open for classes but he was eager to get the project under way as soon as arrangements could be made.

Talking Band Business

Father Ralph Handran and Jim Rodgers, director and manager respectively of the Villanova Symphonic Band are here pictured talking over plans for the forthcoming concert. Plans are now in the process of completion.

Villanova Symphonic Band Plans Season of Activity

Musical Rehearsals Held Weekly in Anticipation of Concert To Be Presented in Late November

The College Symphonic Band is now well on its way towards a full, planned season of musical activity, after having had its second successful rehearsal. All musician members share the optimism of Rev. Ralph Handran, O.S.A., moderator-conductor of the group, and Jim Rodgers, band manager, in assaying the band material available. Many operatic, standard, and popular selections have been added to the band's musical library providing a well-rounded repertoire.

However, a few scarce musicians are needed in order that the band may strike a good balance in tone and harmony. These are: a flutist, an alto horn player and a piccolo player. A glance at the foregoing list illustrates the difficulty at hand. Should anyone be familiar with the ast playing in the above-mentioned positions or should anyone know of someone who could sucessfully undertake to play these parts, he is requested to inform Father Handran, or Jim Rodgers.

The last rehearsal was held on Monday evening, October 21, in the Field House at which time plans were discussed for a concert to be played on or about November 25 at a site yet to be determined. Rehearsals are held each Monday evening beginning at 7:30 P. M. in the Field House.

Nominations for PKP To Be Held

Engineers to Accept New Members at Tuesday Meeting

Nominations to fill the vacant positions of Secretary, Sergeant-at-Arms, and Student Council Representative of the Phi Kappa Pi, the engineering fraternity of the campus, will be held at a meeting this evening, Tuesday, October 29, at 8 P. M. in Room 215 Mendel Hall. This action has been made necessary because of the withdrawal of the men who were elected last spring.

Also on the agenda for discussion at this meeting will be plans for the informal dance to be sponsored by the frat, the arrangements to be made for the Phi Kap Dinner Dance at which senior members will be presented with their keys, and the plans for the initiations to be held in the latter part of November.

Since all this business must be taken care of as soon as possible it is urged that all members and all engineering students wishing to join be present at this meeting. The gathering will be held at the hour mentioned because of the conflicting schedules of the members and because of the desire of the officers to have a representative section of the membership present.

Yearbook Picture Schedule Released

During this week and next, pictures for the 1946-47 edition of the Belle Air will be taken on the campus, Sam Canning, picture editor announced today. Canning states that it is imperative that all men make sure they are on time for their appointments and to make sure they know when to go.

All Seniors who have not as yet made their appointments are urged to do so at the earliest possible time. If cooperation is received, the proofs will be ready just before the Thanksgiving holiday. When they are returned, the final photos will be in before the Christmas vacation.

Cash on Line

Payment for the pictures is to be made at the time of appointment for photographing. This sum is one dollar. Those who are not sure as to their standing in the Senior year are requested to have a picture taken regardless so they will not be left with no picture for the book. Furthermore, men who had their photos in the 1943 edition are also urged to have new pictures taken for this edition.

The first pictures were taken yesterday. During this week the various organizations will have their pictures taken. From the following list, make sure of your appointment time and be there.

Times for appointment are as follows:

Eighteen New Men Added to College Faculty

New Professors Include Five Priests and Thirteen Laymen; Most Newcomers in Engineering

By CHARLES P. LAFERTY

The beginning of the 1946 Fall semester finds eighteen men added to the Villanova College faculty.

The additions listed carry even higher the scholastice prestige of the college. In the group five are priests of the Augustinian Order and thirteen are laymen. All are men of letters, possessing outstanding qualifications in their particular field.

Five Priests Added

The following are the priests who have taken up instruction on the campus this term: Revs. John Daley, O.S.A., Edward May, O.S.A., John McDonnell, O.S.A., and Henry Weeks, O.S.A.

Doctor Daniel C. Frost has been appointed Associate Professor of Civil Engineering. A graduate of Northeastern University, Dr. Frost subsequently pursued post-graduate studies at Dartmouth University, Rutgers University, University of Iowa and received the degree of Doctor of Education from Webster University.

Dr. Ernest Taught Abroad

As Associate Professor of Physics, Dr. Paul J. Ernst, comes to Villanova with extensive experience in the instruction field. He received a doctorate degree in Mathematics and Physics from the University of Vienna. Further work in the fields of Mechanical and Electrical Engineering followed at the Technical University of Vienna. Dr. Ernst received a Ph.D. in Physics from the University of Glasgow. At the Scotland institute he lectured in Electronics and Radio Communications.

Three of the incoming staff take up duties in the Chemistry Department. All received the degree of B. Ch.E. from Villanova, Peter Mento and Phillip Wendel in 1944 and George Scanlon in 1945.

George Hoberg, B.E.E., has become an instructor in the Mechanical Engineering Drawing Department. Mr. Hoberg, a graduate of the Class of 1945, is a former editor-in-chief of the Villanovan, and was active in numerous other activities during his undergraduate stay at the college.

Two other of the new faculty members are former Villanova men, Mr. Gill, A.B. and Mr. Weis, B.S., C.E. Mr. Gill, who graduated in 1932, took additional studies at the University of Pennsylvania and received his M.A. from that school in 1940. Mr. Weis, a mathematics instructor, graduated in 1932 also. He was connected with many planning projects with the Pennsylvania State Highway Commission.

Jose De Pedroso enters the Villanova faculty as Instructor in Spanish. He received the degree of Bachelor of Law from the University of Madrid and took further studies at the Harrow School in England.

No Paper Next Week

Rev. John A. Klekotka, OSA, Moderator of the Villanovan, announced at a staff meeting today "due to the holiday, there will be no issue of the Villanovan next week."

The next issue of the Villanovan will be on Tuesday, Nov. 12.

During this brief holiday the staff of the paper will undergo a few changes in order to improve the quality and the efficiency of the newspaper.

Seventeen Students Nominated for Honor

By DICK SHINNERS

Rev. Joseph J. Boyle, O.S.A., Registrar of Villanova College, announced this week that seventeen Villanova students may receive mention in the 1946-47 edition of Who's Who Among Students In American Universities And Colleges.

The honored students include James M. Bonner, William F. Boyle, Joseph Brogan, Cyril J. Burke, Alfred A. Capuzzi, Francis J. O'Neill, and Paul Wiedenhaefer, Engineering School; Jasper G. Chen See and Raymond Liguori, School of Science; Harry J. Binder, Vincent Bradley, Theodore R. Gaylish, Thomas L. Gowen, and Manus J. O'Donnell, School of Commerce and Finance; David T. Blake and Carl G. Ungaro, Education School. This is the first year that the College has nominated so large a student group.

The number of students the College nominates is regulated by its enrollment and prestige. The final selection of students will be made by H. Pettus Randall, editor of Who's Who.

Students Win Acclaim

Who's Who is a reference volume of authoritative information on the great body of America's leading college students. The publication has a free service which supplies business firms with information regarding prospective employes. It is frequently consulted by personnel managers of leading firms throughout the United States and Canada. The men and women listed in the publication receive nationwide acclaim for their outstanding service to the school and for their scholarship.

The honor of being listed in the Who's Who serves as an incentive to urge students in obtaining the most from their college education.

Raffle Returns

O'Dwyer Hall is leading in the Library raffle returns at the present date. This is by percentage of returns and the number sold. Alumni Hall is following up with less than half of the percentage of O'Dwyer.

Father Falvey states that the date for the drawing is growing very close and the returns to date are far below what was expected. Father urges that all returns be made as soon as possible. The Director of the Library also asks that all the Students make a concentrated effort to put the program over the top with a closing boost. Do your part for the new Villanova Library!

The standings of the respective halls are as follows:

O'Dwyer Hall	45%
Alumni Hall	20%
Austin Hall	19%
Fedigan Hall	11%
Delury Hall	9%
Simpson Hall	7%
Good Counsel Hall	6%
Mendel Hall	5%
Gym Dormitory	1%

Spanish Club Opens Season

Plans for Poetry Contest, Play and Study Aids Broached Club

On last Wednesday night, the Spanish Club of Villanova held its first meeting of the school year. President Ernesto Smith directed activities. Plans for the coming year of activity were discussed at the meeting.

After an introduction of the officers of the club to the new members, Smith outlined the purpose and activities of the club. Smith went on to say that the Club is officially affiliated with the "Instituto de Las Espanas" 'at Columbia University in New York City. Every year the society receives a diploma and a medal signifying its membership in this circle.

Later in the year the club will enter members in a contest in which the contestants will write Spanish poetry and a composition on the great Spanish writer, Cervantes. This affair is held in April.

Treasurer Gives Report

Following Mr. Smith's delineation, the club treasurer gave a report on the standing of the club's funds. He also outlined the routine on paying of dues and handling of tickets and social affairs.

Rev. Lorenzo Lozano, O.S.A., moderator of the club, then spoke on the benefits of the club and the plans for the near future. He announced that during the summer the library here had acquired sixty volumes of Encyclopedia Espasa directly from Spain. He said that this would help the students of the language in their ensuing studies.

Among the other forthcoming events is a Spanish play to be given by the club in conjunction with the Spanish Club of Rosemont College. The girls from that college

Peace Through Learning . . .

The fundamental problem of the peace is the adoption by all peoples of a set of guiding principles simple enough to provide understanding and inspiration to all and complex enough in its applications to integrate the extremes which human life on earth encompasses.

The United States declared itself a nation in 1776. It has subsequently weathered, successfully, two attempts to resubject its peoples to Britist authority, the division of the union in civil strife, and two great world wars against the imposition of an alien ideology upon the land.

It is today the greatest nation on earth. It is a land which has aptly integrated a gift of abundant resources and the industrial giant which is an outgrowth of these; a people of diverse ancestry and inheritance and the common mode of living our varied groups undergo; a tradition-fostered nationalism and the role of the world provider. The greatness of our country is one which must be kept in constant repair and the price of its maintainence is vigilance, both in our associations with the world and the state of our union. The prime failing of the constitution is an inherent one—that of liberty of action, speech and thought, even though these impair the functioning or endanger the safety of the government.

Most important for us is that though beginning our history with marked disunity of political conviction we survive today because our intense nationalistic patriotism can in a very short period convert the United States from the liberal, economic provider to a stern, effective defender of its inherited freedom.

We have succeeded in instilling in successive generations of our citizens this resolute fervor towards our way of life by their education, not in the perfection and indisputability of our government, but rather in the practical advantages of our constitution in securing those factors which lead to a life of security, occupation and social harmony.

The solution to the fundamental problem of the peace then is clearly indicated from the above. I do not imply that the United States should wait while the rest of the world "catch up," if you will.

We too must take upon ourselves the education of our youth to bequeath to them a firm belief in the practical advantages of world unity for human happiness.

Let us utilize our national strength in a fitting manner. When a nation is looked up to, then is the time for that nation to set high and noble example. The world is in the best position for the obtaining of a lasting peace, we must lead the way with learning.

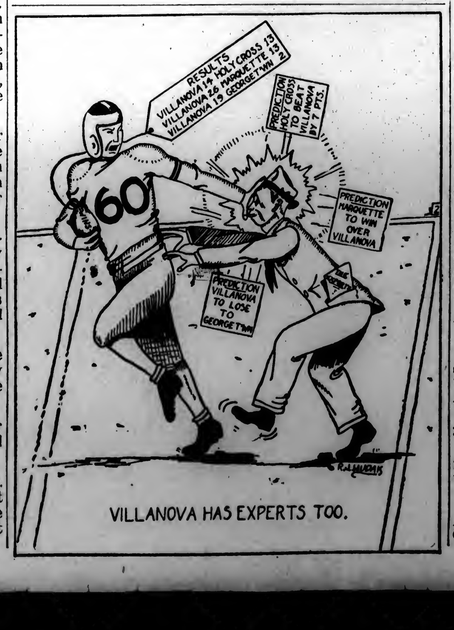
This Thing Morale . . .

COVERING a sports angle on a news page, much less an editorial page, would be considered in many circles as an unforgiveable blunder, but we are of the conviction that our football team is such an integral part of our school that it rate high priorities in any section of our publication. This is not a wishy-washy apology for what might be regarded poor journalism, but a solid recognition of an organization which has put Villanova in a prominent position among the colleges of the country.

Following the squeaky defeat by Navy, our fighting outfit made proverbial fools of the experts, for in the next three games Villanova went into the contest as an underdog and came out from each game with a brilliant victory. Until the Georgetown game, the gang had received little or no vocal backing.

One reason was obviously the late return of the student body to the campus. Secondly, the large number of new men in school combined with the staggered schedule of hours made the group learning of cheers practically impossible.

Our first rally in over five years was something to be proud of. Sure, it could have been better, but after a lapse of so long a time, we can't possibly expect something of this nature to make a reappearance in perfect and complete form. It will take time, but from all indications it won't be long until the desired spirit will be in the hearts of all the students here. Credit where credit is due, gang, and you really did a good job last Sunday. We could all see what effect it had on the team. They gave their all and won by a convincing margin.



Too many people underestimate our Wildcat aggregation. Away from home with practically no cheering behind them, the eleven took the send-off we gave them and returned what might turn out to be their best performance of the year.

Then again, when the breaks are tough and things go wrong, the team needs the most backing that we have in our power to give them. When the varsity takes one on the chin they are not necessarily "bums" who "blew" the game. There are teams better than ours. It is inspiring enough to see our team go out on the field as the underdog and hold their own in a ball game. It is gratifying to see the tea mlose, in respect to good sportsmanship, as well as they win. Don't forget that our eleven are doing their best and that's good enough for us.

Last week they outplayed Georgetown by far after that victory. The team likes to know that we are there to being picked to lose. Your cheering played a major role in back them up and will be with them-win, lose or draw. They like to know, too, that when we send them off at the station, that we'll be following them in some way. They like to know that we have their interest at heart and that they are not just out there playing for a thankless cause. Obviously then, you, the student body, play an important part in the way our season turns out. The team plays for your greater glory, so why not pull for them. That's the way the system has worked for the last three weeks. Let's keep it working that way.

Yes, team, we are solidly behind you, regardless of the game results. We know you won't let us down. We're proud of your fine record to date. We know we we'll be more proud when the last game's finished. Let us echo the words of all your classmates when we shout a hearty: "Nice going, gang!"

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:
To the Faculty:
To the Student Body:

Recently some of us took our first and, perhaps, most important test of the new semester.

The cheating and cribbing of a few individuals were not merely noticeable, but absolutely brazen.

The proctor was trusting rather than negligent. And, it was painfully apparent that some men had yet to acheive the maturity and the sincerity accorded to them.

It is unnecessary to point out that strict honesty is needed in our examinations to provide a maximum of fairness and of justice to us who have matured through the war so that we may have a full measure of opportunities, so that we may realize the goals for which we sacrificed so much.

Where we ourselves cannot control all the conditions during an examination, we should have faculty help.

The few who cannot be trusted ought to be prevented from illegal practices. This, then, means much more rigid surveillance on the part of the faculty during quizzes, etc.

More tests, and mid-semester examinations, are in the future.

Neither cheating nor cribbing in any way, shape, or form is justified.

Now is the time for more adequate precautions to be taken.

Please, let us have a concerted effort to make unfair means of gaining high grades impossible at Villanova.

Disappointed Veteran.

A class in American History was discussing the New Deal reforms the other day, the prof. talked about Roosevelt and the CCC, Roosevelt and the WPA, and Roosevelt and AAA. Suddenly the talk shifted to the Public Works, and one of the students remarked about the measures taken to correct the annual Missouri flood and other acts of Mother Nature. From the back of the room came a disgusted voice, "Don't tell me she's a Democrat, too?"

Music Never Changes

By ANTHONY HOMANN Jr. '50

In its many years of performance, Sigmund Romberg's operetta "Blossom Time" has probably set many box-office and production precedents. But perhaps the most interesting one that this hardy perennial now playing at the Locust Theatre has set is that of utilizing a composer's music for a plot which is based upon his life-story. This setup is now in vogue in the American musical-comedy field. And while "Blossom Time" was produced for the first time some twenty five years ago, nevertheless it was the foreunner of such Broadway smashes as "Song of Norway," Edward Grieg's story accompanied by his music, "Polonaise," boasting Chopin's biography and music, and "Mr. Strauss Goes to Boston," utilizing the life and music of the colorful waltz king, Johann Strauss.

Sigmund Romberg set te pattern for later improvisers and adapters when he wove the fascinating Schubert melodies into a musical comedy which is today considered standard fare for every repertory and summer theatre group in the United States. Under Romberg's masterful pen, Schubert was brought out of Carnegie Hall, and exhibited in Tin Pan Alley. Indeed Broadway in 1921 swayed to Romberg's adaptation of Schubert's "Unfinished Symphony" under the title of the popular "Song of Love." A perfect comparison to this can be drawn to Broadway of last season when "Till the End of Time" and "Strange Music," were leading hits on the juke boxes and night club floors from one end of the Great White Way to the other. Chopin and Grieg, like Schubert, were no longer strangers to the general American public.

The recent upsurge in the musical biography can in some way be explained by the success of the Hollywood production of "A Song To Remember." The phenominal success of the Chopin preludes, nocturnes, and polonaises under popular titles and arrangements on the Hit Parade gave indication of the money to be coined by tapping the royalty-free effort of other earlier composers. Indeed as one reviewer put it: "Chopin has replaced Tchaikowsky on the Hit Parade as the present day song writer's inspiration."

However, despite the willingness to cash in on the immortal composers, certain good results have been brought about. One can hardly critize the productions of such operettas as "Song of Norway" or "Polonaise." Both of these shows have integrated skillful arrangements of the classics with workman like plots. Especially with experienced casts and directors, these shows have provided the contemporary theatregoer with musical comedies equal to those written by men of Victor Herbert's Jerome Kern's era.

It may be interesting to note that several of the more prominent Broadway producers have promised to follow the parade by staging more shows based on the life and music of various other composers.

It is to be regretted, however, that there are certain conditions on Broadway today which are stifling the future of the American musical. One of these is the above mentioned tendency to adapt symphonic music for a show, rather than to write a new music. Certainly this tends to destroy originality on the stage, and retard the road for younger composers. Certainly it is advantageous to make the public familiar with the masters, but should this be done at the price of destroying the hopes and opportunities for future composers? To be sure, older men are turning out original scores, but the unfortunate part in this case is that their shows have glutted the theatre. Productions like "Oklahoma!" and "Annie, Get Your Gun" move in on a theatre and give no sign of moving out. The accent placed on "adaptations" and "name shows" has made composing for the theatre a very unprofitable business for a man trying to sell his own works.

To add to all this, another shortcoming is evident. It is what may be called ab ad case of "hit fever." That is to say, a production has to start a box office rush soon after the first few days, or else the producer gloomily starts to close down, and continue his search for a play which will make him a mint the first year or two of its stay on Broadway. You wait months for tickets to his "hit" and then years waiting for the offering to change.

Such then are some of the ailments afflicting Broadway. Correction of these would be a signal service to the great number of theatre-lovers as well as to Broadway itself.

What's Doing In Town!

By FRANK DITURI

Many of the students from out of town are faced with the problem of what to do on the weekends they spend in Philadelphia. In an attempt to answer their questions with a few leads each week, the Villanovan will run this column with suggestions of good shows, concerts, movies, and dances.

The ICECAPADES will have its last showing Thursday night, Oct. 31, at the Arena, 45th and Market Sts. Tickets from $1.30 to $3.90 at the Arena and at Gimbel's, 9th and Market.

The winter concerts of the Philadelphia Orchestra, Eugene Ormandy conducting, take place at the Academy of Music, Broad and Locust. Tickets from $1.20 up at Haly's, 1505 Walnut St.; but not at the Academy itself.

Franz Schubert's immortal "Blossom Time" moves to the Locust Theater, 15th and Locust, for one week beginning Oct. 28, Matinee, Saturday at 2:30. Tickets from $1.30.

"Song of Norway" based on the life of Edvard Grieg opens at the Forrest, 11th and Walnut, on Tuesday, October 29. Tickets from $1.30.

Alumnus to Wed In College Chapel

Joseph McCabe, BS in Eco., '42, will be married on Saturday, October 26, in the Villanova College Chapel.

McCabe, who comes from Jamaica, New York, and his wife to be, Victoria Scarselletti of Philadelphia, met on Christmas Eve of 1945 in Korea while serving as an Army captain and she an Army nurse.e

Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., will perform the ceremony which will be held at 10:00 A. M. in the College Chapel. The reception will follow later at the Barclay Hotel in Philadelphia.

While attending Villanova College, McCabe participated in many activities. Some of his extra-curricular duties included: Chairman Sophomore Contilion Committee, Holy Name Society, Radio Club, and Chairman Mother's Day Club.

ASME Prepares For Active Year

Movies To Be Shown at Next Meeting

The Villanova branch of the ASME held its first meeting of the present semester on Friday Oct. 25. During the meeting the newly elected chairman, James Murphy, outlined plans for what seems to be a very active and profitable season. Frequent motion pictures on engineering and its associated fields will be shown at future meetings and several field trips to engineering plants are planned. Mr. Morehouse delivered a talk on which he pointed out the advantages of membership in the ASME and also gave some valuable suggestions as to how the ASME might become a valuable asset on the campus.

Invites All to Club

Dean Morehouse reminded all those present that an important advantage of membership in the organization is the developing of poise which is so vital to engineers in the field. He also pointd out to them that th eparent organization has a club in the central part of Philadelphia which is open to all members. This fact alone is of great importance to student engineers for in this way they are able to make friends with manufacturers and practicing engineers of all grades.

Another meeting will be held on Wednesday, Oct. 30 at 12:30 P. M. in Room 104 Mendel, at which time a film on steam power plants is anticipated. All mechanical engineering students are invited.

Mourn Death of Active Alumnus

Martin J. McLaughlin Succumbs After Brief Illness

By J. J. MILLER

Martin J. McLaughlin, 55, alumnus of Villanova College '14, died on October 20th, in St. Mary's Hospital, Phila., where he had been a patient for three days. His death ended a 22-year career of municipal service in Phila., his last office being that of Director of Public Works. He is survived by his wife; three sons, Martin J., Jr., a merchant marine captain; James J., former Marine Corps corporal and Joseph, a student; and three daughters, Mary Ann, Catherine and Ann.

Mr. McLaughlin was born in Philadelphia, attended Roman Catholic High School, and Villanova College. At both schools he starred in and graduated from Villanova with football, baseball and basketball, a degree of Bachelor of Science in Engineering and went to work in the road construction industry. At this point his career was temporarily interrupted by World War I, during which time he served in the United States Marine Corps.

Served Philadelphia

After the war he went back to road construction, and in 1924 commenced his long tenure of service for the city of Philadelphia as superintendent of the city asphalt plant and asphalt maintenance. In 1928, his status with the city was changed to Deputy Chief Engineer of the Bureau of Highways. He held this position until 1936 at which time the Mayor appointed him Director of Public Works.

When his term in that office expired in 1940, Philadelphia was completing building an airport and placed Mr. McLaughlin in charge of operations in the capacity of Airport Engineer of Philadelphia. Concurrently, he was chief engineer of the Water Bureau. In building the airport, he demonstrated his brilliance as an engineer by overcoming many obstacles. Not the least of these was the site itself which was swampland. In 1945 he was appointed the second time Director of Public Works.

Mr. McLaughlin was always closely associated with Villanova's activities as well as those of the Alumni Association. He was a member of the advisory board of the college, serving as its president, and in 1941 was Chairman of the Centennial Fund. He served two terms as president of the Villanova College Alumni Association, and for many years was member of the board of directors.

He was usually toastmaster at the annual dinner given by the Villanova Club of Philadelphia, and was toastmaster the night he was honored with the Loyalty Award. This award is presented each year to the outstanding alumnus of that year.

Secured Army-Navy Game

As a city official Mr. McLaughlin was instrumental in bringing the Army-Navy games to Philadelphia. In 1938 a heavy snowfall threatened to isolate the Municipal Stadium from the masses who would come to see the game. Because of his efforts, however, the game was played as scheduled. He personally supervised the clearing of the snow from the stadium and its approaches.

During his last term as Director of Public Works, Mr. McLaughlin had active charge of several millions of dollars for city improvements among which were the Sewage Disposal Project, Highway and Bridge Construction and renovations at the Southwest Airport.

"Patriotism", relates Mr. Webster," is love of country; devotion to the welfare of one's country; the passion which inspires one to serve one's country." LOVE, DEVOTION, AND PASSION, then, seem to be the "key" words of our definition. They are the "big three" of patriotism, for a patriot must be a personification of passionate devotion for and love of country and those principles he claims as his own.

Villanova has had her share of patriots. Her men, the Villanovans of today and those of a not-too-distant yesterday, have gone forth into a brutal war and manifested those qualities that mark the true patriot. As is always the case, however, there have been those whose fiery devotion and zeal for a cause has brought their love to its highest and greatest manifestation, the sacrifice of one's own life. It is to these, the greatest of Villanova's patriots, that we turn our minds and hearts as Holy Souls Day, the day of their special remembrance and recognition draws high.

Now it is we, the living, who must put into operation, in a unique way, the "key" words of our definition. But our love, and devotion shall be directed into the channels of a "spiritual" patriotism or loyalty which shall manifest itself in the elements of remembrance and prayer.

This Saturday, November Second, the day of the Holy Souls, should be for us Villanovans the date of a mammoth "expedition of rescue." For on that day, we are told, Mary, the Mother of God, shall descend into the depths of Purgatory to deliver many of the poor souls from their sufferings. It will be the job of each and every one of us, the living, to make ourselves a part, a vital part, of this expedition. Why? Because we are going to make certain that on this day of rescue, some, if not all of those sixty-one Villanova patriots will attain the culmination of every soul's desire, the Beautific Vision. Our rosaries, our Masses, our Communions on this day shall be the pledge of "spiritual patriotism" on the part of us, the Church Militant, to those of the Church Suffering. For it is our "love" and our "devotion" that shall light their way into the realm of the Church Triumphant.

And we are confident that the sixty-one souls for whom we pray, will be abong those who will return "with Mary" into Paradise.

Sanctuary Society Reorganized

Fr. Grimes, Moderator, Plans Brief Instruction Period for Novices

Rev. Edwin T. Grimes, O.S.A., Chaplain of the College, has announced the plans for the reorganization of the oldest organization on the campus, The Sanctuary Society, of which he is a Moderator.

Duties of the members will consist of serving Mass, serving at Benediction and at all College religious services. Members also assist in setting up temporary confessionals, and aid the sacristan in prepartions for services. Three traits are required for members: personal neatness, dependability, and punctuality.

Those interested in joining the Sanctuary Society should contact Father Grimes in the Chaplain's Office, Room 121 Mendel. Notices will appear on the bulletin boards concerning the initial meeting of the organization. Even those who do not know the rudiments of-serving at the Altar are encouraged to join. Brief instruction periods will be held for these men. This short course will take little aggregate time and will span a period of one and a half months, at the conclusion of which time the novices should be able to perform their duties with perfection.

The Holy See, in 1937, granted to those who assist a priest at Mass an Indulgence of 3 years each time this is done.

Pamphlets Inspire Catholic Action

Section of Library To Be Devoted to Catholic Periodicals

This year pamphlets have been supplied which play a large part in promoting Catholic Action. Unfortunately, there is at present a rather acute shortage which makes it virtually impossible to obtain large numbers of these informative booklets. Two stands are in use now; one at the door of the Villanovan office, and one at the door of C.&F. hall. These stands are placed for the benefit of all students and all others concerned.

In the first general issue, the pamphlets disappeared rapidly, and, as a result, over one hundred dollars was taken in to be allotted for more of same, when available. Father Hannon has said that a supply of these booklets has been ordered, and that they will become available as soon after they arrive as possible. Father Hannon also remarked that he is pleased with the interest shown among the student body, and that he hopes they will continue to back this campaign.

In the near future there will be a section in the library segregated for a Catholic book and magazine rack. Such a section would contain magazines such as the Catholic Digest, and other periodicals in the Catholic field.

Peace Through Learning . . .

The fundamental problem of the peace is the adoption by all peoples of a set of guiding principles simple enough to provide understanding and inspiration to all and complex enough in its applications to integrate the extremes which human life on earth encompasses.

The United States declared itself a nation in 1776. It has subsequently weathered, successfully, two attempts to resubject its peoples to British authority, the division of the union in civil strife, and two great world wars against the imposition of an alien ideology upon the land.

It is today the greatest nation on earth. It is a land which has aptly integrated a gift of abundant resources and the industrial giant which is an outgrowth of these; a people of diverse ancestry and inheritance and the common mode of living our varied groups undergo; a tradition-fostered nationalism and the role of the world provider. The greatness of our country is one which must be kept in constant repair and the price of its maintainence is vigilance, both in our associations with the world and the state of our union. The prime failing of the constitution is an inherent one—that of liberty of action, speech and thought, even though these impair the functioning or endanger the safety of the government.

Most important for us is that though beginning our history with marked disunity of political conviction we survive today because our intense nationalistic patriotism can in a very short period convert the United States from the liberal, economic provider to a stern, effective defender of its inherited freedom.

We have succeeded in instilling in successive generations of our citizens this resolute fervor towards our way of life by their education, not in the perfection and indisputability of our government, but rather in the practical advantages of our constitution in securing those factors which lead to a life of security, occupation and social harmony.

The solution to the fundamental problem of the peace then is clearly indicated from the above. I do not imply that the United States should wait while the rest of the world "catch up," if you will.

We too must take upon ourselves the education of our youth to bequeath to them a firm belief in the practical advantages of world unity for human happiness.

Let us utilize our national strength in a fitting manner. When a nation is looked up to, then is the time for that nation to set high and noble example. The world is in the best position for the obtaining of a lasting peace, we must lead the way with learning.

This Thing Morale . . .

COVERING a sports angle on a news page, much less an editorial page, would be considered in many circles as an unforgiveable blunder, but we are of the conviction that our football team is such an integral part of our school that it rate high priorities in any section of our publication. This is not a wishy-washy apology for what might be regarded poor journalism, but a solid recognition of an organization which has put Villanova in a prominent position among the colleges of the country.

Following the squeaky defeat by Navy, our fighting outfit made proverbial fools of the experts, for in the next three games Villanova went into the contest as an underdog and came out from each game with a brilliant victory. Until the Georgetown game, the gang had received little or no vocal backing.

One reason was obviously the late return of the student body to the campus. Secondly, the large number of new men in school combined with the staggered schedule of hours made the group learning of cheers practically impossible.

Our first rally in over five years was something to be proud of. Sure, it could have been better, but after a lapse of so long a time, we can't possibly expect something of this nature to make a reappearance in perfect and complete form. It will take time, but from all indications it won't be long until the desired spirit will be in the hearts of all the students here. Credit where credit is due, gang, and you really did a good job last Sunday. We could all see what effect it had on the team. They gave their all and won by a convincing margin.

Too many people underestimate our Wildcat aggregation. Away from home with practically no cheering behind them, the eleven took the send-off we gave them and returned what might turn out to be their best performance of the year.

Then again, when the breaks are tough and things go wrong, the team needs the most backing that we have in our power to give them. When the varsity takes one on the chin they are not necessarily "hums" who "blew" the game. There are teams better than ours. It is inspiring enough to see our team go out on the field as the underdog and hold their own in a ball game. It is gratifying to see the tea mlose, in respect to good sportsmanship, as well as they win. Don't forget that our eleven are doing their best and that's good enough for us.

Last week they outplayed Georgetown by far after that victory. The team likes to know that we are there to being picked to lose. Your cheering played a major role in back them up and will be with them-win, lose or draw. They like to know, too, that when we send them off at the station, that we'll be following them in some way. They like to know that we have their interest at heart and that they are not just out there playing for a thankless cause. Obviously then, you, the student body, play an important part in the way our season turns out. The team plays for your greater glory, so why not pull for them. That's the way the system has worked for the last three weeks. Let's keep it working that way.

Yes, team, we are solidly behind you, regardless of the game results. We know you won't let us down. We're proud of your fine record to date. We know we we'll be more proud when the last game's finished. Let us echo the words of all your classmates when we shout a hearty: "Nice going, gang!"

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:
To the Faculty:
To the Student Body:

Recently some of us took our first and, perhaps, most important test of the new semester.

The cheating and cribbing of a few individuals were not merely noticeable, but absolutely brazen.

The proctor was trusting rather than negligent. And, it was painfully apparent that some men had yet to acheive the maturity and the sincerity accorded to them.

It is unnecessary to point out that strict honesty is needed in our examinations to provide a maximum of fairness and of justice to us who have matured through the war so that we may have a full measure of opportunities, so that we may realize the goals for which we sacrificed so much.

Where we ourselves cannot control all the conditions during an examination, we should have faculty help.

The few who cannot be trusted ought to be prevented from illegal practices. This, then, means much more rigid surveillance on the part of the faculty during quizzes, etc.

More tests and mid-semester examinations are in the future.

Neither cheating nor cribbing in any way, shape, or form is justified.

Now is the time for more adequate precautions to be taken.

Please, let us have a concerted effort to make unfair means of gaining high grades impossible at Villanova.

Disappointed Veteran.

Music Never Changes

By ANTHONY HOMANN Jr. '50

In its many years of performance, Sigmund Romberg's operetta "Blossom Time" has probably set many box-office and production precedents. But perhaps the most interesting one that this hardy perennial now playing at the Locust Theatre has set is that of utilizing a composer's music for a plot which is based upon his life-story. This setup is now in vogue in the American musical-comedy field. And while "Blossom Time" was produced for the first time some twenty five years ago, nevertheless it was the foreunner of such Broadway smashes as "Song of Norway," Edward Grieg's story accompanied by his music, "Polonaise," boasting Chopin's biography and music, and "Mr. Strauss Goes to Boston," utilizing the life and music of the colorful waltz king, Johann Strauss.

Sigmund Romberg set te pattern for later improvisers and adapters when he wove the fascinating Schubert melodies into a musical comedy which is today considered standard fare for every repertory and summer theatre group in the United States. Under Romberg's masterful pen, Schubert was brought out of Carnegie Hall, and exhibited in Tin Pan Alley. Indeed Broadway in 1921 swayed to Romberg's adaptation of Schubert's "Unfinished Symphony" under the title of the popular "Song of Love." A perfect comparison to this can be drawn to Broadway of last season when "Till the End of Time" and "Strange Music," were leading hits on the juke boxes and night club floors from one end of the Great White Way to the other. Chopin and Grieg, like Schubert, were no longer strangers to the general American public.

The recent upsurge in the musical biography can in some way be explained by the success of the Hollywood production of "A Song To Remember." The phenominal success of the Chopin preludes, nocturnes, and polonaises under popular titles and arrangements on the Hit Parade gave indication of the money to be coined by tapping the royalty-free effort of other earlier composers. Indeed as one reviewer put it: "Chopin has replaced Tchaikowsky on the Hit Parade as the present day song writer's inspiration."

However, despite the willingness to cash in on the immortal composers, certain good results have been brought about. One can hardly critize the productions of such operettas as "Song of Norway" or "Polonaise." Both of these shows have integrated skillful arrangements of the classics with workman like plots. Especially with experienced casts and directors, these shows have provided the contemporary theatregoer with musical comedies equal to those written by men of Victor Herbert's Jerome Kern's era.

It may be interesting to note that several of the more prominent Broadway producers have promised to follow the parade by staging more shows based on the life and music of various other composers.

It is to be regretted, however, that there are certain conditions on Broadway today which are stifling the future of the American musical. One of these is the above mentioned tendency to adapt symphonic music for a show, rather than to write new music. Certainly this tends to destroy originality on the stage, and retard the rond for younger composers. Certainly it is advantageous to make the public familiar with the masters, but should this be done at the price of destroying the hopes and opportunities for future composers? To be sure, older men are turning out original scores, but the unfortunate part in this case is that their shows have glutted the theatre. Productions like "Oklahoma!" and "Annie, Get Your Gun" move in on a theatre and give no sign of moving out. The accent placed on "adaptations" and "name shows" has made composing for the theatre a very unprofitable business for a man trying to sell his own works.

To add to all this, another shortcoming is evident. It is what may be called ab ad case of "hit fever." That is to say, a production has to start a box office rush soon after the first few days, or else the producer gloomily starts to close down, and continue his search for a play which will make him a mint the first year or two of its stay on Broadway. You wait months for tickets to his "hit" and then years waiting for the offering to change.

Such then are some of the ailments afflicting Broadway. Correction of these would be a signal service to the great number of theatre-lovers as well as to Broadway itself.

What's Doing In Town!

Many of the students from out of town are faced with the problem of what to do on the weekends they spend in Philadelphia. In an attempt to answer their questions with a few leads each week, the Villanovan will run this column with suggestions of good shows, concerts, movies, and dances.

The ICECAPADES will have its last showing Thursday night, Oct. 31, at the Arena, 45th and Market Sts. Tickets from $1.30 to $3.90 at the Arena and at Gimbel's, 9th and Market.

The winter concerts of the Philadelphia Orchestra, Eugene Ormandy conducting, take place at the Academy of Music, Broad and Locust. Tickets from $1.20 up at Haly's, 1505 Walnut St.; but not at the Academy itself.

Franz Schubert's immortal "Blossom Time" moves to the Locust Theater, 15th and Locust, for one week beginning Oct. 28. Matinee, Saturday at 2:30. Tickets from $1.30.

"Song of Norway" based on the life of Edvard Grieg opens at the Forrest, 11th and Walnut, on Tuesday, October 29. Tickets from $1.30.

Villanova has had her share of patriots. Her men, the Villanovans of today and those of a not-too-distant yesterday, have gone forth into a brutal war and manifested those qualities that mark the true patriot. As is always the case, however, there have been those whose fiery devotion and zeal for a cause has brought their love to its highest and greatest manifestation, the sacrifice of one's own life. It is to these, the greatest of Villanova's patriots, that we turn our minds and hearts as Holy Souls Day, the day of their special remembrance and recognition draws high.

Now it is we, the living, who must put into operation, in a unique way, the "key" words of our definition. But our love, and devotion shall be directed into the channels of a "spiritual" patriotism or loyalty which shall manifest itself in the elements of remembrance and prayer.

This Saturday, November Second, the day of the Holy Souls, should be for us Villanovans the date of a mammoth "expedition of rescue." For on that day, we are told, Mary, the Mother of God, shall descend into the depths of Purgatory to deliver many of the poor souls from their sufferings. It will be the job of each and every one of us, the living, to make ourselves a part, a vital part, of this expedition. Why? Because we are going to make certain that on this day of rescue, some, if not all of those sixty-one Villanova patriots will attain the culmination of every soul's desire, the Beautific Vision. Our rosaries, our Masses, our Communions on this day shall be the pledge of "spiritual patriotism" on the part of us, the Church Militant, to those of the Church Suffering. For it is our "love" and our "devotion" that shall light their way into the realm of the Church Triumphant.

And we are confident that the sixty-one souls for whom we pray, will be abong those who will return "with Mary" into Paradise.

Chaplain's News

Sanctuary Society Reorganized

Fr. Grimes, Moderator, Plans Brief Instruction Period for Novices

Rev. Edwin T. Grimes, O.S.A., Chaplain of the College, has announced the plans for the reorganization of the oldest organization on the campus, The Sanctuary Society, of which he is a Moderator.

Duties of the members will consist of serving Mass, serving at Benediction and at all College religious services. Members also assist in setting up temporary confessionals, and aid the sacristan in prepartions for services. Three traits are required for members: personal neatness, dependability, and punctuality.

Those interested in joining the Sanctuary Society should contact Father Grimes in the Chaplain's Office, Room 121 Mendel. Notices will appear on the bulletin boards concerning the initial meeting of the organization. Even those who do not know the rudiments of serving at the Altar are encouraged to join. Brief instruction periods will be held for these men. This short course will take little aggregate time and will span a period of one and a half months, at the conclusion of which time the novices should be able to perform their duties with perfection.

The Holy See, in 1937, granted to those who assist a priest at Mass an Indulgence of 3 years each time this is done.

Pamphlets Inspire Catholic Action

This year pamphlets have been supplied which play a large part in promoting Catholic Action. Unfortunately, there is at present a rather acute shortage which makes it virtually impossible to obtain large numbers of these informative booklets. Two stands are in use now; one at the door of the Villanovan office, and one at the door of C.&F. hall. These stands are placed for the benefit of all students and all others concerned.

In the first general issue, the pamphlets disappeared rapidly, and, as a result, over one hundred dollars was taken in to be allotted for more of same, when available. Father Hannon has said that a supply of these booklets has been ordered, and that they will become available as soon after they arrive as possible. Father Hannon also remarked that he is pleased with the interest shown among the student body, and that he hopes they will continue to back this campaign.

In the near future there will be a section in the library segregated for a Catholic book and magazine rack. Such a section would contain magazines such as the Catholic Digest, and other periodicals in the Catholic field.

Physics Conference Attended by Driscoll

"Ultrasonic Insects," "Blast Effects at Hiroshima" Among Subjects Discussed at Meeting

A joint meeting of the Pennsylvania Conference of College Physics Teachers and the Physics Club of Philadelphia convened last week on the campus of Ursinus College, Collegeville, Pennsylvania.

Mr. William G. Driscoll, Assistant Professor of Physics, represented Villanova College.

The first session of the program was allotted to the papers submitted by the instructors and professors of the various colleges and universities. Examples of the materials contained in these papers were: "Pressure Has No Direction," "Ultrasonic Insects," "Some Blast Effects at Hiroshima," 'and "Cultural By-products of the Laboratory." Other topics were also discussed.

At the conclusion of this session, dinner was served at the Spring Mountain House, and a talk on "New Aspects of the Problem of Scientific Control" was delivered by Dr. M. H. Trytten, of the National Research Council, Office of Scientific Personnel.

The Saturday morning session, in which Mr. Driscoll attended, was a symposium on "The Training of Physicists in a War-Conditioned Culture." Most of the discussion concerned the co-operation of scientists, particularly physicists, with the armed forces during the war.

Collegiate Chess League Seeks Competition

Philadelphia's Intercollegiate Chess League has extended an invitation to all interested students, at Villanova to participate in its coming chese tourneys. Competition is on a major scale with other local universities and colprizes are offered. Among these is the Bulletin Chess Cup which is emblematic of the city chess championship.

Villanova does not have an organized chess club at the present time but students who wish to form such a group are asked to leave their names at the VILLANOVAN, Room 19, Mendel Hall. At some future date a member of the League will call to explain the functions of the association.

A large new dark room was presented by the college to the Villanovan last week. The new dark room will be located on the second floor of the newly completed Good Counsel Hall.

With this new dark room the picture staff will be better equipped to turn out pictures. During the past few semesters the picture department of the newspaper has been using the facilities of the Physics Dept.

Pictures for the Villanovan will be taken in this room in the future instead of the Villanovan Office.

Sophomore Dance Planned; Committee Asks for Aid

The committee chairmen of the Sophomore Dance held a meeting on Wednesday, October 23, to discuss plans for the coming dance originally scheduled for October 18 but which was posponed until some later date in December due to the unavailability of the field house.

All Frosh II or Soph I desiring to serve on committees are asked to give ther names to one of the following men: Dan Ryan, John Gorman, Gunter Kaiser, Richard Hudak, Mitchell Budziłowicz, John Silverio, Joseph D'Auria, Frank Christianson, Gerald Connors, Bob Suarez, Dick Strathmeyer.

Volunteers are asked to state their preferred committees and any special talents they might have in the line of decoration, publicity, or any complementary field.

The Sophomore class will hold another meeting in the very near future in order to complete plans for this dance, Class secretary Anthony Cocco announced this week. All members are asked to be in attendance if at all possible. At this time another report on the financial standing of the class will be made.

"Junior Week" Plans Under Way

Revival Comes After Interval Caused by War

This college year will see "Junior Week" which will run from May 5 to May 10, enacted for the first time since the outbreak of the war. If all goes well, it promises to be a very successful series of events. It will include three dances. The first, the Blazer Ball, an informal affair which will be restricted to members of the Junior Class and their dates, will be held on Wednesday, May 7, of the Week.

Friday of that week will see the gala formal, Junior Prom, open to all. Discussions are now in progress for the selection of a suitable orchestra to fit the affair.

On Saturday, May 10, a formal dinner-dance the only affair to be held off the campus will take place in one of the leading hotels in Philadelphia.

Monday of that week, the mothers of the Juniors will be honored, the day beginning with Mass in the Chapel, followed by a tea with the faculty. Tuesday and Thursday are still open days on the schedule, but plans will be announced soon.

All Sophomores II, and Juniors I, and II are eligible to participate in the festive activities of the week.

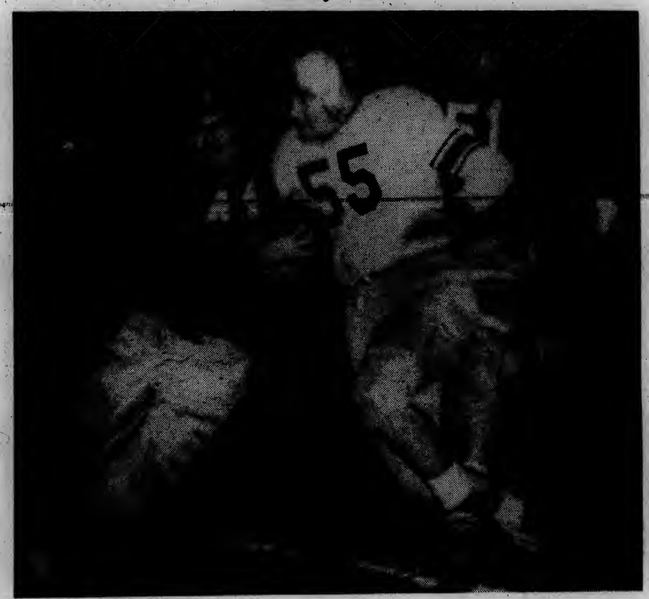
An important meeting of the Junior Class will be held Tuesday, October 29, at 6:45 P. M., after Chapel, and all members are urged to attend.

Seniors to Hold Smoker in Gym

Plans to Include Football Pictures of Late Games

At 12:30 P. M., Thursday October 24, a meeting of the Senior class was called in room 305 Mendal. Daniel L. Redmond, the class president, presided over the meeting and announced that a smoker will be held at 9:30 P. M., Wednesday, October 30 in the C and F Auditorium.

There will be refreshments and entertainment. A movie of the Holy Cross-Villanova game is being planned together with a showing of the Boston College - Villanovae game pictures, if the films are finished in time.



Jordan Olivar will be one of the guests of the evening and will explain the pictures during their showing. Business to be taken up at the meeting will be plans for the forthcoming Senior Ball and the class finances as they stand now.

Eagles Squeeze Out 14-12 Win Over Wildcats

Journey's End

Al Barker, Wildcat guard, hauls down Brennan after a 14 yard advance in the fourth period of last Friday night's game. Ed Berrang moves in to put the final touches on B. C. ball carrying express. The Eagles won, 14-12, to avenge a 41-0 pasting administered by the 'Cats last year.

Blocked Kick, Lost Ball Set Up Both B. C. Scores

'Cats Score from 50 Yards Out on Pass, Gordon to Polidor; Zehler Goes 38 for Second Tally

By DAVID I. RYAN

Just as Navy had done one month previously, so did Boston College add insult to injury when it scored a 14-12 victory over the Wildcats before 30,800 spectators last Friday night at Braves Field, in the Hub city. For among the leading Boston players was Johnny Killelea who played football under Jordan Olivar in 1943 as a naval trainee student at Villanova. Jack Welsh, who quarterbacked Navy to its lone and winning tally in the early season contest with the Main Liners is a former Blue and White gridster, being a teammate of Killelea on that same 1943 eleven.

Statistics bare the fact that the game, in all of its major aspects, with the exception of the passing department, was a well-deserved win for Boston College. The Eagles rang up 16 first downs to the Wildcat's 7, and the former picked up a net of 250 yards by rushing to the latter's 34, Villanova completed 10 out of 23 passes for 151 yards, while B. C. connected with six out of 13 for 66 yards. The New Englanders, however, intercepted six aerials while the Main Liners could pick off only two.

Extra Points Decide

In seeking its fourth straight victory of the season, Villanova yielded to Boston College because of its inability to collect the points after touchdown. Both Barker and Capriotti failed in their attempted conversions. Left-footed Al Barker had come through twice two weeks previously to provide the one point margin of victory in the Villanova win over Holy Cross, 14-13.

The Eagles with two touchdowns in the first quarter, followed each time by the all-importance conversions, and were never headed despite the efforts of the Villanovans, who were outweighed 17 pounds per man average.

Tuck Twomey, Boston center, blocked Andy Gordon's punt and John Furey, right tackle recovered it on the 'Cats 38 to set off the march for the first score. Panciera, who kicked both extra points, drove to the 24. DeFosa hit tackle for a first down and Panciera chucked to Nicketakis, right end, who was downed on the 14. DeRosa hit the line, gaining only a yard in two tries. Panciera hit Nicketakis with another aerial good for six points.

Panciera's conversion attempt was good.

Score: Boston College 7; Villanova 0. Time: 7:00, first period.

Former Wildcat Scores

Late in the initial period, Boston College staged an explosive drive that went for 50 yards and the second touchdown. Panciera set up the situation for Johnny Killelea on the 34, from where the former Wildcat took a Panciera toss and went to the 16. Killelea then galloped wide around end and went to the two. He cracked off tackle for the score.

For the second time, Panciera

Hurricanes Point For Friday's Game

Orange Bowl Champs Need Win to Get Bid for Classic; Harry Ghaul Leads Nation's Kickers

By JIM LYONS

A southern storm that is gathering force, is headed right for Villanova. For the University of Miami Hurricanes intend to sweep the Wildcats before them when they clash at Shibe Park next Friday at 8:30 P. M.

The Miami club, last year's Orange Bowl winner, must win all their remaining games to remain in the running for the New Year's Day classic. Hurricane fans believe that the Orange Bowl should become a University of Miami tradition and this year they view the outcome of the Villanova game as the deciding factor.

After an opening win over William and Mary, the Miami eleven bowed to North Carolina and the great Charley Justice. Then the Hurricanes returned to their winning ways by defeating Texas Christian University and the University of Florida, a future Wildcat opponent.

A former Pittsburgh great, Jack Harding, who learned his football from the highly regarded Jock Sutherland again coaches the Miami aggregation. Coach Harding, who uses his own "L" system for greater deception and a wider variety of attack lost only two of his 1945 regulars. Bill Lewitt, center, and Red Cameron, guard, are the absentees from the team which defeated Holy Cross 13-6 in last year's Orange Bowl, when Al Hudson intercepted a last period Crusader aerial and raced 89 yards for the clincher. However, this year's team is probably stronger at center and guard. Bill Klein, a pre-war Miami star and second team All-American guard while playing for Great Lakes in 1944, has returned with Harvey Jones, a pre-war regular center.

Other reasons for optimism among the Floridans are the performances of Davey Elderidge and Harry Ghaul. Elderidge is a home town boy, who has matriculated at his local university, after winning two letters while playing halfback at Georgia Tech. Ghaul is attempting to better his 1945 record of best kicker in the nation, with an average of over 40 yards per. Simultaneously, he broke the Miami University scoring mark, when he scored 100 points as a freshman.

Coach Harding has compiled an enviable record at Miami. In the last three years his teams have won 24 and lost 5, and this year's combination is bigger and more experienced than its predecessors.

Barring injuries, the Hurricanes, because of their greater experience, will be the pre-game favorites. But as the underdog in the Holy Cross game, the Cats turned in their best performance to date. So there is every indication that this game will be a thrilling and hard fought contest.

Ollie's Comments

We went to Boston in full anticipation of encountering a tough opponent and we weren't disappointed. Boston College proved to be big and experienced with good depth in all positions. They reminded us of the old Chicago Bears and played the same type of football, keeping us on the defensive throughout most of the game.

The turning point of the contest came early in the first quarter when Twomey, the B. C. center, came ripping through our line to block Andy Gordon's kick. It was all they needed to spark them to brilliancy as in the next 10 minutes they appeared to be an unstoppable juggernaut that was really going to crush us. Panciera was deadly with his passes and Johnny Killelea did some fine running. Cannava also put on a fancy running exhibition when he returned Gordon's long pass to our one yard line. Fortunately for us an offside penalty and a B. C. fumble stopped that threat.

Once the first quarter was over Vilplanova settled down to playing football with Bob Polidor and Dan Brown constant threats on the receiving ends of passes. Bob, who replaced Cap Capriotti early in the game, did an excellent job,

Kittens Down Penn 6-0; Glaser Scores

O'Dorizio's Passing and Goal Line Stand Feature Hard Fought Game; Fitzmeyer Brilliant on Defense

By DAN REDMOND

Bouncing back from last week's loss to Rutgers, Villanova's Kittens evened up their league record with a 6-0 victory over Penn last Friday afternoon on River Field.

After outplaying the "Quakerettes" for three and a half quarters without showing same on the scoreboard, the Wildcat cubs clicked on a 28-yard pass play to score five minutes before the final whistle. "Gabby" O'Dorizio set up the score with an interception of Bob Leslie's pass on the Penn 35. He ran it back seven yards to the Penn 28.

After a line play nette dnothing, O'Dorizio faded and hit Walt (Guns) Glaser with a pass on the ten. The Kitten end took it in stride and outran one defender to paydirt. Tackle Ned Hoffner's conversion attempt was wide but as things turned out, that mattered little.

Kick Blocked

Coach John Siano's line, anchored by Capt. Bob Fitzmeyer, rose to defensive heights shortly after the beginning of the second half. After taking Villanova's kick-off on its own 33, Penn lost 22 yards in two plays and was forced to kick. The Kittens likewise were unable to move and when Bill Leighton attempted to get off a kick, it was blocked by Penn's linebacker upper Paul Long.

Taking over on the Main Liner's 20 the Penns shot George Opel, a second string varsity performer last year, off tackle to the two. Twice they sent this same man into the Villanova forward wall but each time Bob Fitzmeyer was there to stop him. On the third down Long tested the Kittens' line and found the indefatigable Fitzmeyer in his way also. With last down staring them in the face and the ball 2 yards from the double stripe, the Red and Blue called on Opel once more, but Bob Suarez broke through to nail him for a two yard loss. That was Penn's only real threat. Their best offensive weapon was a pass, Bob Leslie to Charlie Brown which worked spasmodically and a fake kick with Opel doing the running. Outside of these flashes of effectiveness the Ivy Leaguers showed nothing.

Kittens Miss Chance

Villanova came close to scoring on two occasions outside of the one on which they cashed in. The first chance was obliterated by a penalty while the second was stopped by a combination of Penn and the clock.

After about two minutes of playing time had elapsed, Bill Stonelake intercepted a Penn pass on the Villanova 21. O'Dorizio picked up 25 yards on two plays to put the ball on the Villanova 46.

Kittens Down Penn 6-0; Glaser Scores

O'Dorizio's Passing and Goal Line Stand Feature Hard Fought Game; Fitzmeyer Brilliant on Defense

By DAN REDMOND

Bouncing back from last week's loss to Rutgers, Villanova's Kittens evened up their league record with a 6-0 victory over Penn last Friday afternoon on River Field.

After outplaying the "Quakerettes" for three and a half quarters without showing same on the scoreboard, the Wildcat cubs clicked on a 28-yard pass play to score five minutes before the final whistle. "Gabby" O'Dorizio set up the score with an interception of Bob Leslie's pass on the Penn 35. He ran it back seven yards to the Penn 28.

After a line play nette dnothing, O'Dorizio faded and hit Walt (Guns) Glaser with a pass on the ten. The Kitten end took it in stride and outran one defender to paydirt. Tackle Ned Hoffner's conversion attempt was wide but as things turned out, that mattered little.

Kick Blocked

Coach John Siano's line, anchored by Capt. Bob Fitzmeyer, rose to defensive heights shortly after the beginning of the second half. After taking Villanova's kick-off on its own 33, Penn lost 22 yards in two plays and was forced to kick. The Kittens likewise were unable to move and when Bill Leighton attempted to get off a kick, it was blocked by Penn's linebacker upper Paul Long.

Taking over on the Main Liner's 20 the Penns shot George Opel, a second string varsity performer, last year, off tackle to the two. Twice they sent this same man into the Villanova forward wall but each time Bob Fitzmeyer was there to stop him. On the third down Long tested the Kittens' line and found the indefatigable Fitzmeyer in his way also. With last down staring them in the face and the ball 2 yards from the double stripe, the Red and Blue called on Opel once more, but Bob Suarez broke through to nail him for a two yard loss. That was Penn's only real threat. Their best offensive weapon was a pass, Bob Leslie to Charlie Brown which worked spasmodically and a fake kick with Opel doing the running. Outside of these flashes of effectiveness the Ivy Leaguers showed nothing.

Kittens Miss Chance

Villanova came close to scoring on two occasions outside of the one on which they cashed in. The first chance was obliterated by a penalty while the second was stopped by a combination of Penn and the clock.

After about two minutes of playing time had elapsed, Bill Stonelake intercepted a Penn pass on the Villanova 21. O'Dorizio picked up 25 yards on two plays to put the ball on the Villanova 46.

Rogers Leads Nation In Ball Carrying Race

Joe's 169 Yards Against Georgetown Moved Him Into the Van; Averages 8 Yards Per Try

According to information released last week by the National Intercollegiate Athletic Bureau, Joe Rogers is now the number one ground gainer in the country. In rolling up 491 yards in 61 tries, he has averaged better than eight yards per try. He leads Roberts of Chatanooga by 43 yards.

Behind Roberts comes Mobley of Hardin Simmons with 415 yards, and Davis of Army with 398. Joe's average gain per try is better than his three runners-up. In the Kings Point, Marquette, and Georgetown games alone, Joe has gained better than 370, enough to install him in seventh place.

Rogers moved from fourth place into undisputed leadership with 169 yards in 12 tries against Georgetown. His average of fourteen yards per try in this game also led the nation last week for a single game average.

Capriotti 18th

Villanova is the only team in the country that can boast of two men in the nation's twenty highest ground gainers. Romeo Capriotti is installed in eighteenth place with a net total of 299 yards in 50 tries. Capriotti would be seventh in the country if two long runs totaling 91 yards had not been nullified by penalties in the Hoya game.

Rogers has accounted for 15 yards through the air to give him a net total offense of 506 yards. This record is good enough to merit a tie for eighth place in this department with Korczowski of William and Mary.

The Eagles of Boston College were laying for Rogers and against this strategy the Wildcat offense turned to Zehler and Polidor. As a result, Joe's average suffered slightly, but he should still be within the first ten when the figures are released later this week.

O'Dorizio was good for 2 yards and another first down on the Penn 43. A pass, O'Dorizio to "Ace" Reagan gave the Kitten another first on the 30. Then O'Dorizio connected with McCaughan on the Penn 5, but the play was nullified and Villanova penalized 15 yards for holding. The march ended here.

Late in the first half the Villanovans powered their way to the Penn 5 only to lose the ball on downs as the half ended. The biggest yard gaining play in this drive was a pass covering 23 yards from O'Dorizio to Dick Muldoon.

Leighton Boots 65 Yards

Outstanding performances were turned in by Bob Fitzmeyer, "Gabby" O'Dorizio and Bill Leighton. "Fitz" made at least half of the Villanova tackles and should be a cinch for All League selection.

O'Dorizio was the offensive star of the game. His passing and running kept the Kittens continually on the march. Leighton got off some beautiful kicks, one of which travelled 65 yards from scrimmage. His interception of a Penn aerial on his own twenty and subsequent runback to the opponents forty-six was a great help to the Blue and White.

Next on the Villanova 150 schedule is the Tiger Cub aggregation of Princeton. John Siano's team meets the Tigers away next Saturday.

both defensively and offensively. He scored our first touchdown on a pass which he caught at top speed and easily outdistanced the B. C. secondary.

Our second touchdown was made by "Zip" Zehler on a lateral from Andy Gordon around end. Zip picked up three blockers as he headed up field and with fine running skill set-up the B. C. defensemen so that they were easily taken out of the play and no one touched Zehler as he sped for the marker.

The hardest pill to swallow was the doube offside that nullified Ralph Pasquariello's sixty - four yard jaunt to the one yard line. We were definitely off-side on the play so can only blame ourselves. Ralph was another player who turned in a good all-around job and showed his home towners he still has it.

We had numerous injuries and I'm wondering if we're going to last until we get to Florida. "Cap" went out early in the first half with a bad shoulder; Andy Gordon received a shoulder injury; Pavalko may have broken ribs; Lou Ferry got it in the leg again plus an injury to his hand; Syl Yanelli got kicked in the back and several others came trobbling out of the game in bad shape.

Friday's opponent, Miami of Florida, comes to town with an excellent high scoring record, having lost only one game. That was to North Carolina and Charlie Justice, the ex-Bainbridge sensation. That means another slam-bang affair all the way. Oh well, nobody likes breathers anyway!

Score: Boston College 14; Villanova 0. Time 12:00, first period.

Boston College almost chalked up another six-pointer in the same period, Tony Cannava, picked off a stray Villanova pass immediately following the kickoff, and returned it 68 yards from his own 30. From the two he plunged into the end zone, but the play was recalled, the Eagles being offsides. On the following play, Romeo Capriotti snuffed the drive when he recovered Cannava's fumble on the two.

Gordon To Polidor, TD

Villanova got into the fight late in the second quarter, eating up 75 yards in a drive highlighted by the Blue and White passing attack. Joe Rogers threw a bulls-eye heave to Andy Gordon, which enabled the Wildcats to penetrate Boston territory for the first time. Gordon got on the tossing end on the next pass and let one go to Bob Polidor, who, outracing the B.C. defenders, caught it on the 20 and sped for the score.

Barker was hurried when he tried the placement and his conversion attempt was no good.

Score: Boston College 14; Villanova 6. Time: 12:10 second period.

Slightly past the midway mark of the final quarter, the Wildcats went 59 yards in four plays for their final touchdown. Steve Romanik shot a pass to Bob Polidor, good for a 23 yard advance, setting the ball on the Boston College 36. Two incomplete passes down the middle pulled in the B.C. defenders. Andy Gordon then shovel passed to Bill Zehler who went wide around end, side - stepped and weaved his way along the sidelines and crossed over for the score.

Capriotti attempting the conversion this time was rushed and the placement went wide.

Score: Boston College 14; Villanova 12 .Time 9:30, fourth quarter.

A very obvious offsides infraction cost the Wildcats a probable score in the third period when Ralph Pasqueriello blasted his way for 64 yards, carring all the way to the two yard line. Pasquariello's run was the longest of the ball game.

In The Sportlight

By BOB McNAMARA

This week the Sportlight focuses on Andy Gordon, the precision man in Villanova's smoothly operating T-formation and Frank "Bud" Kane, great blocker and all around end.

Andy Gordon: Andy's first touch of football fame came at St. Joseph's Prep in Philadelphia where he left an enviable record. In his senior year, Andy turned in six good performances from his end post, but when the Prep's offense slowed, Andy was put into the backfield where he distinguished himself as one of the best passers to be developed in the Catholic circuit. It was this year that the name "Gordon" went down in scholastic football annals as the first man to be mentioned on an All-Catholic squad at two positions in the same year.

Andy entered Penn in the Fall of '44 and immediately captured the tailback spot in the starting Quaker backfield. Seven completions out of eight passes against Michigan highlighted a brilliant freshman year.

Villanova accepted Andy last March and despite the fact that he had never played in the T before, he was soon handling the ball off like a veteran. On numerous occasions his magical ball handling has feathered the way for the other fleet backs. One play in particular stands out. In the Georgetown game as the Hoyas and spectators alike followed Bob David to the right after a fake shovel from Andy, Gordon back handed the ball to Capriotti, who went unmolested to pay dirt.

Another big feature in his game is his passing ability. To date he has completed five pay-off aerials. Two of these came in the Holy Cross game and enabled the 'Cats to bring home their first Crusader win.

When a cross-country punt is needed it is the familiar number 32 that takes the pass from center. In the Marquette game, Andy put one out on the Hilltoppers 40 from deep in his own end zone.

Deceptive ball handler, accurate passer, and distance kicker—that describes Andy Gordon.

Bud Kane: The name of Frank (Bud) Kane will linger with the Army's Arnold Tucker and Georgetown's Lou Surman for a long time. Both of these safeties acquired a deep respect for Bud's downfield play. Those two men are among the victims of Bud's dead run tackling. The salient features of Bud's game are his hard tackling and good downfield blocking.

Frank started his gridiron conquests at West Catholic High School where in 1941 he was a unanimous choice for an All-Catholic berth. This year the Burrs battled West Phila. to a 0-0 standstill in the city championship, helped greatly by Bud's three man block that prevented a sure-fire safety. Bud was instrumental in leading his team to the State Catholic title.

Upon graduation, Bud joined the Navy V-5 program and continued his education at Temple University, where he started at the right flank for the Cherry and White in 1942. The fall of '43 found Bud representing the University of Pennsylvania. His play that year was good enough to bring him honorable mention on the All-State eleven.

In 1944 Bud's naval activities prevented his appearance on the gridiron. However, the following season, after earning his commission, Bud returned to the scene of his first love to help bring a high national rating to the Jacksonville N.A.T.S.

When Ollie's charges reported for spring drills, Bud was on hand to make a bid for his usual flank. Despite the wealth of material on hand for the end post, Bud's experience and hard play was rewarded with a starting assignment. From the season's opener, Frank's blocking has been a highlight of each game. Although Bud specializes in clearing the way to touchdown land, he has also contributed to the scoring column by snaring a Capriotti aerial for a score in the Marquette tussle.

Perhaps the best of the many fine performances credited to Bud came with our Holy Cross victory. When it became evident that two points might be the margin of victory, Bud crashed through and hit Sullivan on the one-foot-line for an eight yards loss. Minutes later, Frank narrowly missed a complete block of a Crusader kick, although he did deflect the ball. Another factor that greatly contributed to our Worcester win was Holy Cross' necessity of running their plays on the inside after finding Bud's end impassable.

In the Georgetown contest, Bud again showed up to good advantage by making the final "must" block which enabled Joe Rogers to go all the way.

It is his all-out effort that has brought the plaudits of Villanova's followers.

Practice Starts

Basketball and track got off to a good start last week. The gym has been cleared and Coach "Al" Severance was able to bring his basketeers inside for their first down to earth practice. Previously they had been drilling on the outdoor courts behind the Field House.

Coach "Jumbo" Elliot is looking for more track aspirants to augment his already loaded 65-man turnout. "Jumbo" held a cross-country test last Saturday to prime his charges for the coming indoor season at the Garden.

The schedule runs without a breather every week through the winter months.

Two Historical Pieces Given Villanova Library

Chair of Gregor Mendel and Bust of Christ Presented to College Bookhouse

Villanova's College's library was the recipient this week of two rare gifts. The chair of Gregor Mendel was brought here from Czechoslavakia and a marble bust of the Christus was presented to Rev. Daniel P. Falvey, O.S.A. by Miss Anna Denniston.

Gregor Mendel, Augustinian botanist and discoverer of the laws of heredity which bear his name, was abbot of the monastery at Brun, Chechoslovakia, the Prior of which donated this historical relic to Villanova. The Very Rev. Joseph Hickey, Assistant General of the Order, O.S.A. was instrumental in bringing the chair to this country.

Since there is no available space in the library, Mendel's chair will not be on exhibition; however, it is intended that the antique will occupy a prominent place in the new library building when it is erected.

The bust of Christ which Miss Denniston gave to the library is the work of a Philadelphia sculptor of the last century. Doctor Albert Schmolle, of Philadelphia, commissioned the work and gave it to his grandson, Doctor Albert Jordan. Miss Denniston received it from Doctor Jordan and decided to give it t ouur library as part of its new accoutrements.

Until the new library is erected the bust will rest in the office of Father Falvey, moderator of the library.

Delta Pi Epsilon Plans Meeting

All Former Members Urged to Register With Club Officers

Beginning this afternoon there will be a four-day registration of all members of the DPE Fraternity. All former members are requested to leave their names and a schedule of their free time with President Edward D. Keller, room 337 Good Counsel Hall, or Secretary Robert Manske, room 221 Alumni Hall.

Both officers will be available for this purpose from 2:30 P. M., Tuesday, October 29 through Friday, November 2.

This registration is necessary so that a suitable time may be appointed for a meeting which will accommodate most of the members. Notice of the meeting time will be posted on all bulletin boards as soon as it is arranged.

President Keller has several important plans to discuss with the members of the revived group at their first meeting. Foremost on the agenda will be the adoption of a new set of colors and a seal for the fraternity. These are required under the new constitution adopted last semester.

Also under consideration will be plans for the annual fraternity smoker, which is tentatively scheduled for sometime in December. All plans will be dependent upon the availability of the "Blue Room" in the Field House. However, the preliminary work and arrangements will be discussed at the meeting.

Father McGuire Is Honor Guest

Dinner Given by Trenton Villanova Club

Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., will be guest of honor at the annual President's Dinner given by the Villanova Club of Trenton on November 6, 1946 in the Hotel Stacey-Trent in Trenton, N. J. All Villanova Alumni living in the Trenton area will be in attendance as well as parents of students from Trenton now at Villanova.

In addition to Father McGuire, as the principal speaker of the evening, there will be in attendance P. F. Banmiller, president of the Villanova Alumni Association, and Joseph E. Feehan '38, president of the Trenton Club. William Friel 3d, Villanova Alumni Representative at the college, will be present at this meeting.

This annual affair has been instituted to create and stimulate the interest of the parents and alumni in this Alumni Association so that it may be perpetuated for future graduates.

Barrett Speaks To Spanish Club

Philip Barrett, Sophomore business student, gave a talk on the activities of the Spanish missionaries in settling early Western America during the recent meeting of the Spanish Club of Villanova.

Barrett, who is only in his second semester of the Spanish language, volunteered for the speech. His talk was very well done and was enjoyed by a large turnout of members of the club.

During his talk, Barrett told of the many missionaries from Spain who helped in settling our western territory and of their numerous and exciting adventures in the early days. He also told of the Churches and Missions still standing at this present date in their territory.

Greater Boston Club Salutes Team at Dinner

Myers, Boston Coach, and Jordan Olivar Speak at Pre-Game Rally Dinner

A pre-game dinner and rally was held last Thursday night in the Dome Room of the Hotel Lenox in downtown Boston. The rally was sponsored by the Villanova Club of Greater Boston, and was attended by a large group of alumni from the New England area. Mr. Joseph Tamasello, of the Villanova Club of Boston, president over the affair as toastmaster.

After a few words on the death of Martin McLaughlin, who had been so very active in alumni affairs, Mr. Tamasello introduced the speakers of the evening. The first of these was Rev. Edward B. McKee, O.S.A., Vice-President and Athletic Director of Villanova College. Father McKee thanked the alumni for their support of the team and promised that the New England area would see more of the Villanova teams in the future. Mr. John Curley, graduate manager of athletics of Boston College, was the next to be called, and he commended Villanova on the caliber of men the college was able to put out on the field.

Boston College Coach Introduced

Denny Myers, coach of the Boston College football team, congratulated Jordan Olivar for his work with the Villanova teams. Olivar in his turn went over for the alumni the individual merits of the team members.

Father McGuire Principal Speaker

Mr. Tamasello introduced Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A, President of Villanova College, as the main speaker of the rally. Father McGuire spoke on the problems of education in this country at the present time and described to the alumni how these problems were being met at the college. He petitioned the alumni to help the school and the authorities during the emergency.

The alumni committee which arranged the rally consisted of James Hartnett, Fred Donavan, Charles Callahan, Henry Brooks, Joseph Hoffman, Frank Ronan and Joseph Tamasello.

Barry's Radio Play "Holiday" Given At Immaculata

Villanovans and Immaculata's Dramatic Club Collaborate in Presenting Barry's Radio Play

The Dramatic Clinic of Immaculata College presented on Saturday, November 9, as part of their program, Phillip Barry's radio play ney, and Phil Barrett represented Villanova in taking the male parts in the play.

The announcer for this program, and also taking the part of Nick Potter in the play, was Matt Kearney. Don Collins, who had the male lead in the show as the lover, played the part of Johnny Case. Johnny's fiance, Julia Seton, was portrayed by Margaret Portner, who shared the female lead honors with Theresa McCoog, as Linda Seton, Julia's sister and the third member of the love triangle in Phillip Barry's creation. Phillip Barret had the job of portraying Mr. Seton, who was the father of two-thirds of this very interesting triangle. Ann Redgate acted the part of Nick's sister, Susan Poter.

The Dramatic Clinic opened at 10:30 A.M. on Saturday morning with the presentation of "Holiday." The play was given from the studio and broadcasted over the auditorium loudspeakers to the audience, who sat in semi-darkness throughout the performance.

The program was under the direction of Rev. Francis X. Walsh.

World Congress Of Women Meets

Villanova Men Welcome Delegates to Phila. Convention

On the weekend of October 26, the City of Philadelphia played host to the representatives of foreign nations, who took part in the International Women's Congress which met in New York the previous week. This international spirit that brings together women of different races, color, and creed is symbolic of the time. For the world is mindful of the old maxim that said: "The hand that rocks the cradle rules the world."

Foremost among the organizations that were instrumental in bringing to Philadelphia these foreign delegates were the United Nations Council of that city. From the body of the UNC, a student organization was formed and called the United Nations Student Council. Fully aware of the importance that education will play in the future, Villanova, as a member of the United Nations Student Council, took part together with the other institutional institutions in welcoming these distinguished visitors to the City of Brotherly Love.

Franklin Institute Conference

Villanova was represented by Raymond Cummings, Carl Yeager, Herman Diesel, and Jasper Chenfee at the reception and informal dinner-conference at the Franklin Institute on Saturday, October 26. On the following day, Sunday, the notables went to Christ Church, the University Museum, and Bryn Mawr College; and on Monday they were officially received and welcomed by the city officials at City Hall. This was followed by a luncheon at the Bellevue-Stratford. Don Collins represented Villanova at this function.

Among the visitors were wartime leaders of the underground activities in their native countries, social and political leaders, educators, authors, lawyers, journalists, and women's clubs' executives.

Marine and Naval Officers Added To NROTC Faculty

Seasoned Naval and Marine Officers to Instruct NROTC Students

Five Navy and Marine Corps officers recently joined the Villanova faculty and will instruct the students enrolled in the Naval Reserve Officer Training Corps. They are all seasoned and experienced naval men whose abundant store of knowledge will greatly benefit the Navy's future officers.

Lieut. Col. Albert J. Roose, USMC, served the 5th Marine Division and on the staff of the Fleet Marine. He received his B.S. degree from The Citadel in 1938. His duties will be those of Executive Officer of the Villanova unit.

Lieut. Comdr. Edwin M. Koos, USN, served aboard flattops in the Atlantic, and took part in anti-blockade running and submarine hunting operations as well as in the North African campaign. A graduate of California State Teachers' College, he will instruct in Naval Engineering.

Lieut. Comdr. Ashley J. Little, USN, saw action aboard the USS Iowa before being transferred to the heavy cruiser, Fall River. He took part in Operation Crossroads. Comdr. Little, a graduate of the Naval Academy, will teach Ordnance, Fire Control and Navigation.

Lieut. Floyd E. Smith, USN, was Commanding Officer of the USS SC1045 and served a lengthy overseas tour of duty. Upon his return

PART TIME EMPLOYMENT

Did you know there was a part time employment service at Villanova College for all those students desiring part time work?

William F. Friel 3d, '43, Alumni Secretary, wishes to express the advantages of this part time placement service for the students and the benefits derived from it. Mr. Friel had planned talks for all the classes earlier in the year but due to the vast number of students matriculating at the college and their conflicting schedules it was impossible.

Applications will be available at the Placement office, Room 221 Mendel, commencing tomorrow, Wednesday, November 13th and may be obtained at the student's convenience. It is requested that these forms be filled out and returned to Mr. Friel as soon as possible so that there will be no delay in processing and classifying them.

It will be a general policy of the organization to try to place the students in part time jobs in coherence with their courses at the college.

Vacancies will be filled only by the students filling out these applications.

Seniors Discuss Plans at Smoker

Movies of Holy Cross-Villanova Contest Shown at Meeting

On Wednesday evening, October 30th, the Senior Class held a smoker in the Commerce and Finance Auditorium. Combining business with pleasure the Seniors discussed the coming events of the class and viewed the movies of the Holy Cross-Villanova football game. Coach Jordan Olivar gave a description of the play as it transpired on the screen.

President Dan Redmond welcomed all new members of the class and explained that the theme of the meeting was the revival of spirit and co-operation for all coming events. Rev. John Touhy, O.S.A., the class moderator, spoke briefly, telling the gathering what he expected of the class.

The Senior Class agreed by a unanimous vote to sponsor the dance to be held November 27th, in the Field House. At this dance the Library Raffle will be held. The price of tickets for the affair has not yet been set, but will be decided shortly at another meeting.

After a short intermission for refreshments, the plans for the Belle Air Ball were discussed. This affair will be held January 17th in the Field House and tentative arrangements call for a Senior Dinner Dance the following night. The site for the dinner dance has not yet been decided upon. Joe Brogan and Jim Bonner are compiling a list of orchestras which will be in the area at the time of the dance. From this list the class will pick several bands and arrangements will be completed with the one best suited for the affair. The price of tickets is yet to be decided, but it depends on the orchestra engaged.

In order to have working capital for the negotiations with the orchestra agency it was decided by vote to access each member of the class $5.00. In return each member paying the assessment will have $5.00 paid toward his dance ticket. It is hoped that all Seniors will co-operate in this drive and help restore the dance to its former position as one of the leading events of the social year.

Rev. F. X. McGuire Outlines Problems Facing Colleges

College President Speaks Before Large Attendance at First President's Dinner Since 1941; Banmiller Gives Alumni Report

Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., President of Villanova College, outlined briefly current problems facing American educators to the members of the Trenton Club of Villanova at the President's Dinner given in the Terrace Room of the Hotel Stacy-Trent in Trenton last Wednesday evening.

Father McGuire stressed the fact that universal education is part of the solution to the problems in the world today and that it is the responsibility of college alumni associations to give their full support to the activities and programs inaugurated by the colleges to further educational interests. Father explained that Villanova will need this support in the near future for the college's expansion program in coping with increased enrollment.

In demonstrating his point, Father McGuire told of Villanova's roblems and how the college is trying to solve them. The College President also gave a report on the accomplishments that have been made to date in the building and housing on campus.

Banmiller Speaks

Prior to Fr. McGuire's talk, Paetrus Banmiller, president of the Alumni Association of Villanova, spoke on the plans and progress of moving the Alumni organization back into strong and active standing. Mr. Banmiller stated the gratitude of the Alumni Association to the Augustinian Fathers for filling the Alumni executive posts vacated during the war, and commended them on their inspiring job.

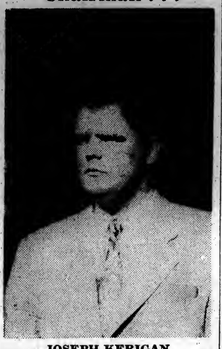
Mr. Banmiller added that for the first time in the history of the organization, two members had been appointed to the Athletic Board of Control.

Feehan Presides

Joseph Feehan, president of the Trenton Club, presided over the dinner. Mr. Feehan opened the meeting with a short address welcoming the guests and fathers of the Students now at Villanova as well as the Alumni. He expressed his pleasure at the holding of the first President's Dinner Meeting since 1941. He revealed plans which are now under way for a Father-Son Banquet to be held next Spring for the students and fathers of the Trenton area.

In addition to Fr. McGuire and Mr. Banmiller, William Friel, 3d, and John Keffer were guests of the club at this meeting. Mr. Keffer is one of the members appointed to the Athletic Control Board. The dinner closed with Fr. McGuire's benediction.

Thanksgiving Eve Dance Sponsored By Senior Class



$10,500 To Be Awarded at Raffle; Villanovans to Serenade

The first campus dance will be held on Wednesday, November 27, 1946. This Thanksgiving Eve affair will be sponsored by the Senior class, the chairman of the dance committee, Joseph Kerigan, has announced.

The Field House, gaily decorated by the Seniors under the supervision of Jim Conaty and Dick Eldam, will reverberate with melodic strains supplied by the reorganized Villanovans from 8:30 P. M. to 12 P. M.

This will be the first college event at which the Villanovans, under the direction of Paul Hathaway, will play, disclosed Bill Schurr, who is handling the publicity for the dance.

Chairman . . .

JOSEPH KERIGAN

Merle Call is in charge of ticket sales and the price for an evening's entertainment is $2.00 plus tax. Refreshments will be served.

During the intermissions the drawings for the awards made by the Friends of Villanova Library will be held. The total of $10,500 is divided into the following prizes—first prize $5,000; four awards of $1,000 each and ten of $100. The person selling the winning ticket will receive 5 percent of the amount of the prize.

The student who has sold the most tickets by November 25th, the deadline for returns, will receive two tickets to the Army-Navy game and $100 for expenses.

Second prize for ticket sales will be two ticket to thesArmy-Navy game and $50 for expenses.

The tickets to the game and the money will be awarded to the winning students on Wednesday the 27th before Thanksgiving holidays commence.

Returns on ticket sales must be in Monday, November 25, 1946.

Father Falvey expresses the desire that returns be made as soon as possible as the date for the drawing approaches. Additional books may be obtained in his office. No returns will be accepted on the night of the drawing and dance.

O'Dwyer Still Leads

Reports released Sunday by Father Falvey, Library Moderator, show that the students from O'Dwyer Hall have increased their lead to 56% in the returns of books for the Library Raffle. The Delurey Hall men, as well as those from Good Counsel have really gone to town with many returns and subsequently much higher percentages. Austin and Alumni Hall students have also made great progress during the past two weeks.

Father Falvey expressed pleasure on seeing the increase of all dormitory returns, but stresses that the returns are still far from what is expected by the time of drawing, November 27. At this time, the Senior Class will sponsor a dance in conjunction with the drawing to add to the evening's festivities.

The Standings

O'Dwyer Hall	56%
Delurey Hall	45%
Good Counsel Hall	41.7%
Austin Hall	37.7%
Alumni Hall	29%
Fedigan Hall	23%
Simpson Hall	20.5%
Mendel Hall	19%
Gymn Students	9.8%

Flying Takes Hold . . .

Like a swarm of hungry locusts covering the entire country side, the popularity of aviation has come upon this land of ours and today ranks as one of the largest hobbies in America. Flying clubs and aeronautical organizations of all types have been springing up throughout the country for years. However, with the impetus added by the vast development that war made in aviation, there is hardly a town or village that does not have some kind of an air-minded group. So, as in the case of towns, colleges too have taken up aeronautical interests. Day after day some new flying club is organized for the benefit of the students on the campus of some one of Americas' many educational institutions. These organizations provide the opportunity for interested students to learn any one or all of the various phases of flying.

As in the case of other colleges, Villanova now finds the aviation interest upon the campus so dominant that action now must take place. Staffed by experienced Army, Navy and Marine pilots and embodying many other Vets as well as civilian students, an organization has been formed with the purpose of advancing the individuals, groups and schools aeronautical knowledge.

Many students have expressed intense interest in a venture such as a Villanova Flying Club. This is attributed to the facts, first, that many of the enrollment here have done flying work in the service and desire to keep up do date on their flying hours and, secondly, many students are desirous of learning how to fly on the time allotted them through the GI Bill of Rights.

As in any such endeavor, complete cooperation and actual making and doing on the part of the members. Great progress waas made last year. More is expected this year. Wonderful opportunities have been offorded the club as a whole by various private airports in the near vicinity. Furthermore, wonderful opportunities are afforded the members of such an organization. Information is available at our office.

This organization will have one and only one purpose — that of making all possible aeronautical information and training available to any member of the student body who wishes to become a member of the group. All members will share the cost involved and the benefits derived. It is the newest of the Wildcat organizations and undoubtedly the most modern, progressive campus club. If you are interested in any one of the many aspects of the science of the skies this is your outfit — join up!

Peace Can Live, If . . .

Recently, in a public place there was displayed a painting. On it was depicted a tombstone on which was written the epitaph, "Peace Died When Man Began to Think." What gross misunderstanding these words betray. Peace is not dead. It is dormant and this is attributed to the fact that man has not yet learned how to think.

Can one call the selfish, egotistical way the world leaders carry on their business the exercise of solid, logical thinking? The world leaders don't want to think. They are afraid that such a drastic step might put the finger of disapproval on their warped and twisted mass psychology.

How did these men reach their present positions without rational use of their minds? Let's not hide it, the citizens of the countries just didn't care! Yes, they want peace, they want happiness, but they outwardly neglect to do anything about it! Citizenss and leaders alike make the governing of a country a political game in which there is little or no consideration for their own good.

Bold and brazen refusal to obey the great commandment of God, "Thou Shalt Love Thy Neighbor As Thyself," is the key to world disorder. Proudly hailing its broadmindedness and modern education humanity can reason no further than its own selfish wants. It is too "educated" to see the basis of a solution to all troubles lies in a return to God.

By use of reason alone, one can see that obedience and servitude to the Lord and Creator of all mankind is the essential and the only road to any lasting world peace. Yet in many cases today, man is literally crying out, "I refuse to serve, I refuse to believe!"

Sodom and Gomorah, Ninive and Tyre, are example enough of the utter destruction wrought on Godless communities. Such destruction could happen even more quickly and more easily in this "modern" world of "advanced" reasoning.

Peersecution of minority groups, refusal of international cooperation and compromise, attacks on and imprisonment of God's annointed, and selfish, domineering international moves are hardly paving the way to a permanent world peace.

Face the facts! There is no way to peace without God. We cannot hope to achieve any semblance of world security until the peoples of the world on bended knee, beg God's forgiveness for their errors and humbly implore His Almighty help and guidance in their endeavors to formulate a lasting peace. We must follow His plans. If the world powers forget their Maker, we are lost.

But we cannot put the finger of blame solely on the leaders. Actually the people share more of the blame for existing conditions. It is up to us, individually to forward the return to God. God's help is always present. It is ours for the asking. There is no better way to serve Him than to do His Will. By practice of mutual Christian charity, we are not only doing God's Will, but we are furthering our security and happiness here on earth.

There it is. Man's free will puts the decision strictly up to himself. We can follow the Way of God to HAPPINESS and SECURITY; the other path leads inevitably to the fate of DESTRUCTION and DOOM!

It's The Student Council's Job . . .

For the past two weeks, we have been constantly contacted by our fellow students about bringing complaints which can be easily corrected to the attention of the proper authorities. Most students feel that this is our responsibility and we appreciate their interest.

As Father McGuire explained early in the semester, any things which the students feel should be brought to the attention of these authorities should be brought through the Student Council. They were elected by you as your personal representatives to the administration.

If, however, you should fail to receive the proper attention from the Student Council, then your newspaper comes into play. We have done and will continue doing our job bringing these to the attention of the proper authorities.

Two letters were brought to us last week, which we could not publish, but the letters are now in the hands of the powers that be and we have their word that action will be taken.

How about it, Student Council? To date we are doing the job originally intended for you. We don't mind, but the students feel that they are being let down by you. Make yourselves known!

We have our hands full trying to put out this weekly without doing someone else's job as well. The blame which is put on us for not publicizing matters which need attention doesn't rightly belong on our shoulders. Nevertheless, we are still working in the interest of both student body and the college.

As we made known at the beginning of the year, we do not intend to run a periodical against the policies of the college. But we welcome with open arms legitimate complaints which the Student Council does not give satisfactory attention to.

From this day on, we will refer all complaints to you. If you fail in your job, then will we step in and do what we possibly can. The faculty and the administration are all too glad to correct unpleasant circumstances if humanly possible under the increased enrollment and you are the medium through which they make their complaints known. Don't let your fellow students down in the position with which they entrusted you. We'll do our part, we know you will do yours!

THE BULL PEN

JOHN KUCHA

This column has nothing to do with sports. It's just as the title implies, bull, and comes to you from our padded cell in the basement of Mendel Hall. We will give advice to the lovelorn, take out your date when you can't make it, and conduct private investigations of men and women (mostly women). ("Also, to make good in life"), instructions given to Freshmen complete with a cake of Lifebuoy. So if you have any pressing problem (vests, 50c extra) drop them in the Villanovan wastebasket and we're sure to find them, for that's where we rummage for our cigarette butts a week before the "Eagle coughs."

We understand Truman is worrying about inflation so you 65'rs on the campus had better be careful about that two bucks left over at the end of the month. Wouldn't want the country to hit the rocks, would you?

Now that Lena the Hyena has hit the press, Villanova students have never been so aroused since Dick Tracy shot the Mole. We understand Coach Ollvar is more than a little interested. Can you imagine a character like that running the ball. Why the opposition would melt away! We recently made a trip to Lower Slobbovia (that's due south of Bryn Mawr) for a personal interview with Lena, the deah thing. She was having a nuclear fission facial done at the time so we didn't get a look at the beautiful kisser. But the Lower Slobbovian proletarist informed us that she has plenty on the ball but she fumbled it. Arrid sent six chemists along to investigate but they resigned to find an easier job with the Manhattan Project.

We spoke to Lena's personal physician, a hearty vetenarian, who secretly told us that Lena was suffering a slight case of Spondolysis Rhizomelica complicated by Hematoma Auriss, that he had prescribed Rotsac-Lio (spell it backwards) for her and that he thought everything would come out all

About The Campus

CONNUBIAL HANDICAP: And I do mean a handicap because almost all fellows need a head start, which doesn't do them any good because they get caught any way.

Congrats to Robert Polldor on the birth of his second child which was a healthy girl. This incident which happened Monday before the Miami game may have been the reason for such a brilliant run in that game. This gives our speedboy one of each, a boy, 2 years old and now a girl.

Joe Donavan claims he has found that spot "Somewhere in the West" (west of Villanova that is) in a "Bungalow built for two" back on one of the neighboring estates. Good Luck, Joe.

The song title, "Rumors are Flying" is very appropriate for James Yates and his nurse in Norristown.

ABOUT THE TOWN: This columnist enjoyed the formal party given at the Merion Tribute House by Misses Rosemary and Frances McCarron on Saturday, Nov. 9. Rosemary is the she-reporter who is seen at all the basketball games played at the Field House, writing for the Philadelphia Inquirer.

Ed Walsh, John Cadden, Bill Ohrlein, Ed Kellar and Tony Caruso, seen at the Adelphia Hotel trying to crash the Miami Alumni Dance which was held there following the game.

Petunias to Chestnut Hill College For Girls upon their Tea Dance which went over so big. The decision of the fellows was that it was one of the best affairs they ever attended.

NEAR AND FAR: There are too many fellows to mention but the afternoon trips to Roseland are becoming quite frequent. We will watch and see just how stout these lads are when the snow falls and puts its white mantel on the ground.

Bill Koerner and his one and only Rosie seen at the football game with their heads together more times than the teams out on the field.

Al O'Brien of Delurey Hall has broken a precedent by admitting that he had a date this past weekend. He escorted a neighboring damsel to a show.

The Top Hatter

"Song Of Norway"

By ANTHONY HOMANN Jr. '50

Rickard Nordraak —Robert Shafer
Nina Hangerup —Kirsten Kenyon
Edvard Grieg —Laurence Brooks
Father Grieg —Walter Kingsford
Mother Grieg —Ivy Scott
Count Le Loup —Sig Arno
Louisa Giovanni —Irra Petina

An operetta in two acts and seven scenes, adapted from the music of Edvard Grieg by Robert Wright and George Forrest. Book by Milton Lazarus. Produced and directed by Edwin Lester. At the Forrest.

Two years on Broadway have not in the least affected Edwin Lester's sparkling production of "Song of Norway." In contrast to many theatre-offerings which come to Philadelphia bearing the marks of a gruelling struggle against Gothamite audiences, this operetta seems to be as spontaneous as though it were in its first week on Broadway.

The cast, headed by Irra Petina, Laurence Brooks, and Kirsten Kenyon, does a commendable job with a script obviously intended to string together the many musical sequences. Leading the group of supporting players, Sig Arno and Walter Kingsford put variety into the production with their many well placed puns. Ivy Scott as Mother Grieg is excellent, and Robert Shafer gives a polished performance as Rikard Nordraak. Members of the Ballet Russe supplement the regular cast in many sequences, and highlight the choreography.

Naturally, the center of any such play is the music. Here Robert Wright and George Forrest have done a professional job of adapting the wistful melodies of Grieg for the theatre. However, in many instances the words for the songs seemed to be rather forced, as in the "Prelude and Legend," adapted from the Grieg "Piano Concerto in A minor." The three Grieg compositions which lent themselves best to the adaptation were "Wedding in Troldhaugen" for "Strange Music," "The Last Spring" for "Nordraak's Farewell," and "I Love You" for the song of the same name. Other appealing songs are "Midsummer's Eve" from "Twas a Lovely Eve in June,' 'and "Hymn of Betrothal" from "To Spring." Arthur Kay has provided a substantial orchestration, and David Mordecai conducts.

The plot itself is rather simple. For the most part it is based on the life of Grieg. The first act is in Norway, and as the curtain rises, we see Rikard Nordraak seated by a cave just outside of Bergen. After some of the supporting cast appear, Rikard sings his stirring poem "Legend of Norway." He then explains to Nina, Grieg's fiancee, his plan to make Norway recognized in the world of art through the genius of Edvard Grieg. This is the basis for the operetta, and the remaining scenes show his eventual success. While Grieg at this time laughs at the idea of putting Rikard's poem to music, he nevertheless promises to do it someday. In the second scene, complications in the form of Louisa Giovanni, appear. This flirtatious prima donna quickly snatches Grieg for a tour of Europe as her piano accompanist. The remainder of the play depicts the influence of Grieg on the outside world as represented by Louisa, against the determination of Nina that Grieg shall remain true to his early pledge to Rikard. The story ends as Grieg, now married to Nina, puts Rikard's poem to music—the A minor Piano Concerto. The Concerto is played in the final scene by Edmund Horn, while Alexandra Denisova dances on the stage as "Maiden Norway" of Rikard's poem.

"Song of Norway" is definitely top flight. To be sure, the book itself is not very plausible, and certain discrepancies are showing up throughout the scenes. But the melodious score more than evens up these shortcomings. Anyone who appreciates a fine musicale will be all too glad to overlook them for the heart-warming melodies "Song of Norway" provides for the listener. It is a musical comedy to rank with the finest.

NROTC Notes

Thomas to Visit Local Schools

Commandant to Acquaint Local Students With NROTC

Captain Thomas, Professor of Naval Science, announced last week that he was starting a tour of high schools and preparatory schools in this vicinity to acquaint the students with the new peacetime NROTC Program and also the new Naval Aviation College Program. Some of the many schools on his schedule are, Malvern Preparatory School, St. Joseph's College High School, Radnor Senior High School and Lower Merion Senior High School.

Along with his discussion of the two programs, a Navy film, "Sea Power in the Pacific," is being shown to the students. This film is one of the newer Navy films and is made chiefly of action shots in the various Pacific campaigns, starting with the Pearl Harbor attack and ending with the atom bombing of Nagaski.

Details of procurement for the NROTC and the NACP Programs have just been released by the Navy Department. Candidates for the NROTC Program will come primarily from the young men graduating from high schools and preparatory schools next June. Students now in Villanova College will not be able to enter this program next fall unless they expect to remain in Villanova for four additional years.

It has been pointed out, however, that some of the present Villanova freshmen I and freshmen II students may be interested in the Naval Aviation College Program as the benefit from this program amounts to a scholarship of about $1000 a year. Captain Thomas outlined the NACP as follows:

After two years of normal college work the student spends two years in aviation training as a midshipman followed by one year at sea as an officer. He then returns to college to finish his last two years of college work. If he returns as a reserve officer, the government will pay for his tuition, books, fees and give him $100 per month. If he is in the regular Navy he will receive full pay and allowances in lieu of this $100 retainer pay.

Candidates for both programs will be selected on a basis of a nation-wide competitive examination which takes place January 18th. This competition will be followed by interviews and a final selection by a State Selection Committee. Villanova freshmen who are interested in this program might obtain further information at the Navy Office in Mendel Hall. Applications to take the January examination must be submitted by December 17th, 1946.

Students Voice Views on WCAU

Two interesting programs, "The C.B.S. School of the Air" and "Opinion Please' 'which Station WCAU airs Monday through Friday at 5:00 P.M. consist of a half hour discussion during which two prominent news analysts give their views on a topic of current interest followed by college students who voice their own opinions on the same subjects as well as criticise those of the commentators.

On November 1, Eric Severeid and Winston Burdett spoke on the increased lack of issues in the coming elections, and tendered the belief that this fact was causing much confusion among the voters.

In the collegiate cross examination which followed, Donald Collins represented Villanova. Rosemont, Saint Joseph's, Swarthmore, were also represented by students selected by the Student Council of Philadelphia in which all these colleges hold membership.

Doing's In Town

ASME Meets

Power Plant Equipment Movie Is Main Attraction

By ED. CONNOLLY

The second session of the Villanova branch of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers took place last Tuesday, November 5.

James J. Murphy, Chairman, opened and piloted the meeting with the aid of James Bonner, Vice holds the dual position of Secretary-Chairman, and Anthony Coppa who tarry-Treasurer.

Important assemblies were called to the attention of the slide-rule experts as it was announced that a gathering is to be held at the Philadelphia Engineers Club on November 13 for all seniors and juniors interested in "hobnobbing" with the masters and executives of their field. A national convention of the A.S.M.E. to be held in New York City in December was also mentioned, with December 4, as the day set aside especially for students, their ideas and their questions.

Motion Picture Shown

Following the recitation of the officers, the house lights were snuffed, the shades were drawn and the mechanical engineers settled down for an absorbing movie on power plant equipment. Projected on the screen was a labyrinth of artificial monsters which arrested the attention of the assembled members. At the conclusion of the picture the second meeting of the A.S.M.E. adjourned.

On Friday, Nov. 8, the Villanova College student chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers held their initial meeting of the '46 term under their new moderator, Prof. John Gallen. An increased enrollment in Civil Engineering students at the college showed signs of a larger chapter than has been in operation for the past few years.

Discussed at the meeting were plans for the drafting of a constitution and plans for some of the social functions the chapter expects to run.

All Civil Engineering students wishing to join, may do so at the next meeting, which will be announced on the bulletin boards.

The Kappa Gamma Sigma Fraternity will hold its first meeting in several years Thursday, November 14 for the purpose of reorganizing and soliciting new members. Started in 1939 for those interested in Physics and dropped during the war because of the induction of its members into the armed forces, this organization is contemplating a very active coming year. The meeting will be held in the Physics Laboratory on the 4th floor of Mendel Hall at 11:50 under the direction of Father Crawford the moderator. All those interested in Physics, either for a pastime of an avocation are invited to attend.

Even though that now ancient "crack" about Heaven and Hell has at last reached the Villanova campus, where we all are inclined to believe in its validity: namely, that all of us fortunates here at Villanova today will go directly to Heaven at death, seeing as how we will have been through four years of Hell, (forgive us, publicity committee), yet we can never really put too much stock in those cute little sayings.

After all, it takes a little more than just the good fortune of going to Villanova to gain Heaven. In fact, it takes a whole lot. It takes the knack of knowing how to "play square" with God, and the added "guts" to fix things up when we realize we haven't been on the up and up. In other words, it takes a lot of doing to be ready when God comes calling for that soul He "rented" to us for this our journey through life.

In the light of these facts, in the knowledge of the preparations that must be made for our salvation, the thought probably occurs to us that we ought to get started now; and get started quickly.

Still, to most of us, the thought of death seems awfully remote, and consequently hard to get even the least bit concerned about. After all, we're young college students in the initial stages of our manhood. We recognize death, of course, but only as a very dim reflection of it, for it is obscured by the clouds of years yet to be lived. The only trouble with this conception is that it isn't always true. That once dim reflection oftentimes manifests its sad light and we find ourselves face to face with our Creator.

And, like every good soldier, we ought to want to be ready for the unexpected. That readiness necessitates a frequent reception of the sacraments, necessitates earnest prayer, good confessions (and frequent ones), plus a true, sincere effort to do God's bidding. Armed with these weapons, we would not flinch at the glare, but in fact would be ready and willing to go to a peace, a peace not of ages, eras, or centuries, but a peace that shall embrace us for all eternity.

Villanovan Prays

I ask of Thee
This, every day,
That from all evil
I might turn away;
That I might turn my other cheek
And be strong,
Though seeming weak;
That I can stand with Thee
Against all others,
And love my fellows
As my brothers.
Then this, and every day
I shall be Thine image,
In some small way.

Freshman Rubin Speaks Before ABC Convention

A scholarship student, Emanuel Rubin, 17, Biology Major, Class of '50, of Atlantic City, N. J., was a guest of honor at a banquet terminating the annual convention of the New Jersey Licensed Beverage Association, the body which awarded him the scholarship, at the Chelsea Hotel in Atlantic City, on the evening of October 31st.

The banquet was attended by more than 1,000 members and their friends. Among those present were former Congressman Elmer Wene, of New Jersey, Treasury Department officials and New Jersey ABC executives.

During the program Mr. Neil Delghan, toastmaster, introduced Rubin who spoke on "Education in the Atomic Age," for which he was vigorously applauded and acclaimed.

The association annually conducts a competitive examination in New Jersey high schools, and to the winner it presents a full scholarship. Rubin was the recipient of the first scholarship awarded by the association under this plan.

Schubert Appoints Editorial Staff

Climati, McWilliams, Walsh, Keehn and Canning to Head Departments

Last week Tom Schubert, editor-in-chief of the Belle Air yearbook, announced the editorial staff of the 1946-47 publication. All the newly appointed editors of the staff have previously been associated with the annual publication.

Milt Climati, a junior C&F student, will continue as sports editor having held that position last year. A graduate of Trenton Catholic, Milt was a staff member of his high school yearbook. While holding down his position with the Belle Air, Climati also finds time to write for the Villanovan.

Jim McWilliams Copy Editor

The duties of the copy editor have been placed in the hands of Jim McWilliams, a junior arts student. Jim, a product of West Catholic '41 was College Editor of the Villanovan and a Belle Air staff member before he entered the Army in 1943. After serving two years with the Intelligence Corps, McWilliams returned to the campus last spring to fill the position of Copy Editor.

Eamon Walsh, Sophomore arts student, retains his position as Art Editor. The drawings in the 1945 yearbook, which drew favorable comments from many sources, were mostly the work of Walsh. A graduate of Trenton Catholic, Walsh also attended Pratt Institute in New York where he cultivated his artistic talents. Last summer he spent most of his time working on the theme of the yearbook.

The position of College Editor is held by Arnold Keehn, a junior C & F student. Keehn is familiar with his duties, having served on the yearbook in the same capacity last year.

Sam Canning, previously announced as photography editor, was commended by Tom Schubert for his efforts in supervising the photography work on the campus last week.

The Business and Circulation Managers have not been appointed as yet.

Phi Kappa Pi to Hold Elections

Largest Group of Applicants To Be Initiated in Vigorous Exercises During Early December

On Tuesday evening, October 29, Phi Kappa Pi, the engineering fraternity of the College, held a meeting at which elections and plans for the good of the fraternity for the coming year were discussed.

Three offices were left vacant due to the resignation of the men who were elected last spring. These will be filled at elections to be held on Thursday of this week.

The candidates for respective office are: for Secretary, L. Fallon, R. Higgs, W. Boyle; for Representative to Student Council, T. Scanlon, R. Kasper, W. Collins; for Sergeant-at-Arms, T. Hanratty, N. McGee, T. Boyle.

Voting will take place between the hours of 12 noon and 2 P. M. in front of the Information Booth in Mendel Hall. All active members are urged to vote at this time.

Plans are in the formative stage for initiating a group of over one hundred and five prospective members. It is believed that this is the largest group ever to seek admittance to the fraternity. Initiations will probably occur in the first week of December with all the fire, brimstone and other tortures that have characterized the initiations of the fraternity since its inception. Applicants may obtain the forms in the Villanovan office or from any officer of the fraternity during the coming week.

The order for Senior keys has been placed, therefore each Senior member is requested to settle his account with the Treasurer, Jim Feeney, in order to assure delivery of the coveted key.

Harris Appointed Training Officer

Harris, Ex-GI, Explains Veterans Insurance Policy Benefits

Mr. George A. Harris, a Villanova graduate, has succeeded Mr. Cahill as Training Officer of the Veterans' Administration for Villanova College. A veteran himself, a Lieutenant, and a Bombardier in the 8th Air Force, he served in Europe and was discharged in October, 1945.

The Training Officer is in attendance at Villanova College on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays from 9 o'clock in the morning to 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

Of special significance to veterans is the continuation of their Service life insurance policies. Mr. Harris stresses the importance of the clause which allows veterans to convert their present policies into 20-payment life, 30-payment life, or regular life at any time during 8 years after the date of issue. The original Service policy is continued for 8 years, and those veterans who are still covered under this policy should examine their present policies so that they are not caught off guard when the date of maturity of the certificates elapses.

Veterans can obtain further detailed information on insurance of this type directly from the Insurance Department, Veterans' Administration, 17 Brief St., Upper Darby, Pa., near the 69th St. Terminal.

Further information concerning veterans will be published in this paper as soon as it is received.

'Cats Favored In Final Clash With Florida

Florida End Leads Nation in Pass Receiving; Wildcats Never Lost to Gators

The much traveled Wildcat eleven will take its longest journey of the season, when it invades the stronghold of the Florida Alligators this Saturday. The clash will commence under the acrs of Florida Field, Gainesville at 8:30 P. M.

Villanova should be at least a two touchdown favorite because the Florida University club has failed to win in five starts this season. But Gator coach Ray (Bear) Wolf views this a psychological advantage and when he couples this with the fact that his boys are due for a good day, he predicits a Gator triumph.

Nation's Top Pass Receiver

Perhaps one of the reasons for Coach Wolf's optimistic views is great success of Florida's aerial game. Broughton (Brute) Williams, Gator regular right end, is No. 1 pass receiver in the country with 23 receptions good for 433 yards. The team average of 151 yards gained by passing per game makes them the third best natnorally in aerial offense. It remains to be seen whether or not the 'Cats can cope with the Florida passing game as successfully as they dealt with the "pass happy" Marquette club.

Although the Gators bowed to Mississippi, Tulane, Vanderbilt on successive weekends, they did force the University of Miami to the limit in a game comparable to the Villanova-Miami contest. The Hurricanes were forced to come from behind in the last period to win 20-3. The next week the Gators went under again, this time to North Carolina and the tune of 20-0.

Run From Double Wing

Coach Wolf is a newcomer at Florida U. and he has replaced the Notre Dame system with the double wing. The only double wing club that the 'Cats have faced is Georgetown, whose running game was crushed by the Villanova line. However, the cats won't have a monopoly on crushing line play. "Brute" Williams is as ferocious as his nickname would lead you to believe, and Charlie Fields, a sophomore left guard is the standout on his side of the line.

Although the Gators operate mostly from the double wing they occasionallly switch to the single wing. Their backfield is a combination of the big, plowing linebusters (their average weight is better than 190) and the fast breakaway wingbacks. One of these scatbacks is 17 year old Bobby Griffin, a senational high school star from Tampa, who returned a Miami punt for 69 yards and a score. Floridan partisans are anxious to compare Griffin to the Cats' fleet-footed Bob Polidor.

'Cats Lead Series

This is the fourth renewal of a series that began in 1940 and was curtailed by war-time travel restriction. Florida is still seeking its first triumph for Villanova won by a 28-0 count in 1940, by a 6-0 margin in '41 and 13-3 was the '42 final.

Pasquariello Scores Twice As 'Cats Check Running Attack

Titans, Third in Nation in Offense, Outrushed by Inspired Wildcat Eleven; "Big Ralph" Races 69 Yards on Opening Play; Best Game of Season Says Coach

Villanova and Detroit put on one of their traditionally bitter battles last Friday night before 19,000 spectators in the Motor City. The Wildcats emerged victorious by the unexpected score of 23-6.

Even the score doesn't tell the true story about the Titan lacing. Two decisions by the referee cost the Main Liners one touchdown and possibly a second.

Detroit entered the game as the nation's third leading team in rushing offense, and for the first time this season came out of a game trailing the opposition in this department. Villanova amassed 231 yards on the ground to 201 for Detroit.

Cap Mixes Play

The opening play from scrimmage found Ralph Pasquariello going through a gaping hole between his own left guard and center. He travelled 69 yards before being caught from behind on the 20. This play was not an accident by design or execution. Romeo Capriotti, directing the team knew Detroit was expecting either Rogers or himself to carry on the first play because Villanova has used this strategy in every preceding game. While the Titan defense drifted to the outside, Cap sent "Big Ralph" down the middle.

When Villanova shifted from "T" into a box with Rogers taking a direct pass from center, Detroit rushed into a seven man line and Joe heaved a pass to Capriotti on the 8. Two plays later "Big Ralph" bucked over for the score. Siano added the extra point and Villanova led 7-0 at 2:10 of the first period.

Detroit came charging up-field following the ensuing kick-off and after eight plays scored on a 20-yard sprint by Len Ritoff. The attempted conversion was no good, Villanova 7, Detroit 6.

Score Didn't Count

In the second period the Wildcats were deep in Titan territory, but the referee took a personal hand in stopping the drive. Spectators thought Ralph Pasquariello drove over from the three, but he was hurled back and the referee put the ball on the 6-inch line.

An enraged Wildcat line crashed in on Schmidt trying to run from

Ollie's Comments

For the third successive week we ran into a heavy opponent with the Detroit Titans outweighing us twenty pounds per man on the line. However, the pay-off did not come on avoirdupois but on spirit as our team put on a fine display, probably its best so far this season.

The tackling, which was so poor in the Miami game, was wracking to the Titans with Milt Komarnicki, John Sheehan, Bob David, George Pavalko and others using their shoulder pads to good effect. Little Billy Doherty was another standout on defense, intercepting a pass and making many fine tackles. One of his accomplishments was overtaking Wright, the fleet Detroit halfback, in the open field, thereby averting a score for them.

We had a great start in this game as Ralph Pasquariello came through the line on the first play for about sixty-five yards setting up our first touchdown. Key blocks by Ed Lanigan and Al Zimbo were very important on the play. Ralph scored

Roane Scores Only Villanova Touchdown; Navy Cinches League Crown After Hard Battle

By VINCE O'DONNELL

The Villanova Kittens lost their second game of the season to Navy last Saturday at the Main Line Stadium by the score of 20-6. By winning, Navy clinched the League crown and will receive the Smalley trophy.

Villanova gained some distinction in the loss because they were the first team to score against the Middies in four games this season.

Navy won the toss and elected to kick. Nealon kicked to the 16-yard line and Bogdanski returned it to the 33. Roane lost four, and a bad pass from center lost 10 back to the 19. Clanel's attepted kick was blocked and recovered by Navy on the 8-yard line. Nealon, the Middie captain, lugged the ball to the three from where halfback Armstrong burst through his own left tackle into pay dirt. Nealon's try for the extra point was good and Navy led 7-0 at 2:43 in the first period.

Pass Up Break

The Middies threatened again in the opening period. When Villanova punted to the visitors 39, the ball was touched by the safety man Nealon, and rolled away. Fast charging Kitten wingmen lost no time in pouncing on it. The break soon backfired, because on the first play a bad pass from center rolled back to Villanova's 38, where it was recovered by Navy. A backfield-in-motion penalty pushed the prospective admirals back to the 43. On the next play Armstrong struck off the right side of his line and with the aid of deadly downfield blocking scampered 38 yards to the 5. Bob Vance plunged to the 1-foot line. Another backfield-in-motion penalty prevented a score and from the 6-yard line the Villanova forward wall put up their copyrighted goal line stand and threw back successive line thrusts.

Roane's Quick Kick Saves

From a single wing formation, Dave Roane's 67-yard quick kick put Navy on their own 26. Navy then put together 5 first downs but this attempt to score was thwarted when Nealon's pass to Armstrong put the ball on the 24 within inches of a first down. Le Doux intercepted "Gabby" O'Dorisio's pass. Le Doux then went for nine yards around left end and a quarterback sneak ate up twelve more yards to the 28. Ed Barondes went off right guard for 6 as the half ended.

The second half opened with Navy kicking-off and was returned by O'Dorisio 13 yards to the 34. "Gabby" then passed to Cianci for 9 and Roane picked up three yards for Villanova's initial first down.

O'Dorisio, Villanova's best bet for All-League backfield honors, started to his right, cut back through a gaping hole over tackle and raced 34 yards down the left sidelines. He was caught on Navy's 20 after a nifty bit of broken field running. A pass, O'Dorisio to Muldoon, was good for 5 and "Gabby" then pnuched out a first down on the nine. Roane lugged it to the two and on the fourth down crashed over for the Kittens only score. The placement for point after touchdown never came off when the pass from center was fumbled. Navy, 7, Villanova 6.

The visitors bounced back and scored a few minutes later on a 47-yard drive, highlighted by the running of Dick Tobin. Captain Nealon covered the last nine yards on a wide end sweep. Attempted conversion was low. Navy 13, Villanova 6.

In the final period, the Middies ran over a tired Kitten eleven and Fast charging Kitten wingmen lost no time in pouncing on it. The break soon backfired, because on the first play a bad pass from center rolled back to Villanova's 38, where it was recovered by Navy. A backfield-in-motion penalty pushed the prospective admirals back to the 43. On the next play Armstrong struck off the right side of his line and with the aid of deadly downfield blocking, scampered 38 yards to the 5. Bob Vance plunged to the 1-foot line. Another backfield-in-motion penalty prevented a score and from the 6-yard line the Villanova forward wall put up their copyrighted goal line stand and threw back successive line thrusts.

Roane's Quick Kick Saves

From a single wing formation, Dave Roane's 67-yard quick kick put Navy on their own 26. Navy then put together 5 first downs but this attempt to score was thwarted when Nealon's pass to Armstrong put the ball on the 24 within inches of a first down. Le Doux intercepted "Gabby" O'Dorisio's pass. Le Doux then went for nine yards around left end and a quarterback sneak ate up twelve more yards to the 28. Ed Barondes went off right guard for 6 as the half ended.

The second half opened with Navy kicking-off and was returned by O'Dorisio 13 yards to the 34. "Gabby" then passed to Cianci for 9 and Roane picked up three yards for Villanova's initial first down.

O'Dorisio, Villanova's best bet for All-League backfield honors, started to his right, cut back through a gaping hole over tackle and raced 34 yards down the left sideline. He was caught on Navy's 20 after a nifty bit of broken field running. A pass, O'Dorisio to Muldoon, was good for 5 and "Gabby" then pinched out a first down on the nine. Roane lugged it to the two and on the fourth down crashed over for the Kittens only score. The placement for point after touchdown never came off when the pass from center was fumbled. Navy, 7, Villanova 6.

The visitors bounced back and scored a few minutes later on a 17-yard drive, highlighted by the running of Buck Tobin. Captain Nealon covered the last nine yards on a wide end sweep. Attempted conversion was low. Navy 13, Villanova 6.

Pasquariello Scores Twice As 'Cats Check Running Attack

Titans, Third in Nation in Offense, Outrushed by Inspired Wildcat Eleven; "Big Ralph" Races 69 Yards on Opening Play; Best Game of Season Says Coach

Villanova and Detroit put on one of their traditionally bitter battles last Friday night before 19,000 spectators in the Motor City. The Wildcats emerged victorious by the unexpected score of 23-6.

Even the score doesn't tell the true story about the Titan lacing. Two decisions by the referee cost the Main Liners one touchdown and possibly a second.

Detroit entered the game as the nation's third leading team in rushing offense, and for the first time this season came out of a game trailing the opposition in this department. Villanova amassed 231 yards on the ground to 201 for Detroit.

Cap Mixes Play

The opening play from scrimmage found Ralph Pasquariello going through a gaping hole between his own left guard and center. He travelled 69 yards before being caught from behind on the 20. This play was not an accident by design or execution. Romeo Capriotti, directing the team knew Detroit was expecting either Rogers or himself to carry on the first play because Villanova has used this strategy in every preceding game. While the Titan defense drifted to the outside, Cap sent "Big Ralph" down the middle.

When Villanova shifted from "T" into a box with Rogers taking a direct pass from center, Detroit rushed into a seven man line and Joe heaved a pass to Capriotti on the 8. Two plays later "Big Ralph" bucked over for the score. Siano added the extra point and Villanova led 7-0 at 2:10 of the first period.

Detroit came charging up-field following the ensuing kick-off and after eight plays scored on a 20-yard sprint by Len Ritoff. The attempted conversion was no good, Villanova 7, Detroit 6.

Score Didn't Count

In the second period the Wildcats were deep in Titan territory, but the referee took a personal hand in stopping the drive. Spectators thought Ralph Pasquariello drove over from the three, but he was hurled back and the referee put the ball on the 6-inch line.

Ollie's Comments

For the third successive week we ran into a heavy opponent with the Detroit Titans outweighing us twenty pounds per man on the line. However, the pay-off did not come on avoirdupois but on spirit as our team put on a fine display, probably its best so far this season.

The tackling, which was so poor in the Miami game, was wrecking to the Titans with Milt Komarnicki, John Sheehan, Bob David, George Pavalko and others using their shoulder pads to good effect. Little Billy Doherty was another standout on defense, intercepting a pass and making many fine tackles. One of his accomplishments was overtaking Wright, the fleet Detroit halfback, in the open field, thereby averting a score for them.

We had a great start in this game as Ralph Pasquariello came through the line on the first play for about sixty-five yards setting up our first touchdown. Key blocks by Ed Langan and Al Zimba were very important on the play. Ralph scored

Polidor Runs 109 Yards Miami Shades 'Cats 26-21

Run by Polidor Ties 15 Year Old Record; Passing of Romanik to Brown Highlights

By DAVID MARANO

Before 26,000 yelling spectators, the Villanova Wildcats and Miami Hurricanes hooked up in what turned out to be one of the most exciting games seen in this area. After two and one-half hours of thrill after thrill, the final score showed the 'Cats had been outscored 26-21. In going down to defeat the Main Liners paradoxically reached new heights.

The climax of the evening was reached when Bob Polidor, the scat back who has beeen plugging all year, finally got his break and galloped 109 yards for a score. Trailing 19-7 witht just one minute befor half time, Polidor gathere in Ghaul's after touchdown kickoff deep in his own endzone, and started straight up the field. Although the official statistics say Bob caught the ball 1 yard inside the end zone, many of the spectators, and other witnessses who were much closer, say it was nearer to the 6 inch mark.

Fake Clears Path

After gathering in the pigskin, Bob raced straight down the middle to about 20, cut to his right and was never headed the rest on the way down. On about the 40 it seemed as though Bob would be forced out of bounds, but by using a deceptive fake and change of pace, he managed to get by the last defender with a sudden burst of speed.

The night didn't turn out strictly Polidor night. The game Dan Brown played at end won't be forgotten for a long time. Certainly, Dan's sticky fingers held everything thrown his way. Defensively he was always there cutting two, and sometimes three interferers out of that murderous end sweep Miami used.

The rugged line cracking of Ralph Pasquariello, the great defensive battle Milt Komarnicki put up, and the speed with which George Guida outraced all defenders while racing downfield trying to get hold of a Romanik pass all added to the nights excitement.

Try as hard as they may, it still wound up just too much Ghaul, (no pun intended) and Miami power.

Behind the Scene With the Football Team

We feel badly for the people who stayed away from the Miami game and missed that spectacle of a lifetime, Polidor's 109 yard touchdown jaunt. But think of a poor fellow who was at the game and saw everything but that one play! A certain lovely young miss who is employed on thisa campus was sitting placidly with coat in lap bemoaning Miami's third touchdown. As Buzz Bomb Bob started his hike she jumped up in excitement and her coat fell down over the face of the man in front of her. Anxious not to miss a thing, that gentleman tugged and yanked at the coat to pull it away from his face. But you know how it is . . he only managed to get himself more and more tied up in sleeves and lining and he could only hear the pandemonium all around him. When he did get clear, Bob Polidor was already walking off the field, happy teammates patting him on the back. With less than gentlemanly language this man took the coat and thrust it back at our charming rooter, and sat muttering through the rest of the game. But then, how would you feel?

traveled 65 yards straight up the field, sparked by Vance who gained 11, 23, and 16 yards in the drive. A nine yard scamper was nullified, and a 15-yard penalty was slapped on Navy for clipping. Undaunted they drove on for a score with Vance going over. Nealson's conversion was good and Navy led, 20-6.

Villanova took to the air in their bid for a final tally, but 2 interceptions threw the damper on the effort. The game ended with the ball in Navy's possession on their own 44-yard line.

Villanova Takes X-Country Test

Browning Ross Leads Way in Downing Fort Dix 18-40; IC4A Meet Next Saturday

Friday, November 8, Villanova's cross country team was put to its first test of the season and came out the victor against a mighty Fort Dix team, 18-40. Browning Ross, Jim Kennedy and Charlie McKee, all of Villanova, were the first three men to cross the finish line, Ross' time for the three-and-one, half mile course was 16:59.9.

The Fort Dix team, heralded as one of the best cross country outfits around this section of the country, faired not to well on Villanova's course. Charlie McQueen and Jack St. Clair were the first two to cross the finish line for the visitors. They placed fourth and sixth respectively.

Starting out in a group, Ross quickly and easily took the lead and remained the pace setter for the entire race. The former Woodbury track star really showed his heels to the entire field and finished way out in front. Following him all the way, in second place, was the former West Catholic speed boy, Jim Kennedy. His time for the the meet was 17:21 .

A good distance behind Kennedy, Charlie McKee of Villanova, Charlie McQueen of Fort Dix, and Roy Cameron of Villanova, came most of the way as a group. At the finish, they crossed in that order to place third, fourth and fifth respectively.

Jim McGehrin, in seventh place, was the fifth Villanovan across the line, and the last scorer. These men gave the home team a total of eighteen points. McQueen 4th and St. Clair 6th scored for Fort Dix. Tom Hasari 9th, Earl Roe 11th and Bill Simpson 13th also tallied for the soldiers. Their total was forty points, making the final score 18-40 for Villanova.

Bill Simpson, the fifth Fort Dix scorer is the head coach of the Fort Dix distance men. Dutch McCarthy and Bob Sullivan were the acting coaches for the afternoon in the absence of Jumbo Elliot, the regular coach, who was sick in bed.

This meeting with Fort Dix was the first of the season. It afforded a chance to work against competitors before the ICAAAA meet next aSturday, November 16. Jumbo Elliott said that the runners in that meet will probably be composed of Dutch McCarty, Bob O'Sullivan, Ed Fitzgerald, Frank Hinnenkamp and Bob "Ace" Reagen. These men were on the track team in '42 before they joinedw armed services. Now back at Villanova, they will be on hand at the ICAAAA meet next Saturday to represent Villanova. Along with them will be such new men as Browning Ross, Tom Conboy, Jim McGehrin, Roy Cameron, Jim Kennedy and Charley McKee, all of whom participated against Ft. Dix.

Training for the indoor season will begin in December, and the big event on the schedule is the Inquirer meet to be held in Philadelphia. Browning Ross will also represent Villanova in the Sugar Bowl. This former miler received an invitation to run in the steeplechase event in that New Year's day classic.

Everything considered, Jumbo Elliot is looking forward to a fine season, and he has a lot of good material with which to shape it.

Doms Take Lead In Intramurals

The Intramural League completed the first week of the season, which opened on Monday, Nov. 4, with the Doms leading the field. In five games, the Doms have won five times. Mendel is in second place with four wins and one loss.

Unscored upon before their game with Alumni, the Doms have been setting the pace. On Friday, Alumni shook the Doms but failed to knock them out of first place. Trailing by a 12-8 score, a completed pass and a run for a total of 70 yards, in the latter part of the game, and a blocked kick both resulted in scores to give the Doms the game 20-12. Harry Knecht, the captain of the Doms, and the man who threw the touchdown pass has consistently been the sparkplug of his team. He has completed to date five touchdown passes and scored once himself. His 60-yard run back of a punt in the earlier stages of the Alumni game was responsible for the first Doms score.

Griffin Travels 60

With two losses, one tie and two wins to their credit, Alumni is, so far, deserving of the reputation of playing the most exciting games. On Monday, trailing by a 6-0 score against Austin, Don Griffin of Alumni went 60 yards around end to score in the last three minutes of the game. Wednesdays' game saw a similar performance when Pugliese caught a T.D. pass in the last three minutes to tie up that game. Alumni had been trailing the Gym all the way, thanks to Trayer's 40-yard T.D. pass to Beh.

Austin's losses to Fedigan, 8-0, and to the Doms, 6-0, were close hard-fought contests in direct contrast to their wide open game against the Gym. In that game Creelan scored three times, Broas, the captain, and Law scored twice each, and Selinger scored once to give them a 48-6 win over their opponents. Stevens scored for the Gym on a pass. This was the highest scoring game of the season, and the most number of points run up by any team. Austin's second win was over the Day Students by forfeit. That is the only forfeit of the season.

The goal for which every hall is fighting, and which will make it very hard to predict any winner yet is the plaque which the winning team is to receive. This plaque which is being offered for the first time, is to have the winning team's name engraved on it, and it will remain in the possession of that hall until it is won in future years by another team.

Detroit Game

his own end zone. Tom McCarthy and George Pavalko got at him first and Villanova gained two points on the safety. After this Detroit didn't have a chance.

Gordon's punting and the end play of Dan Brown, Bill Sullivan, and Bud Kane featured a scoreless third period. Wright and Haley tore off sizable gains for the hometowners, but they never got close enough to threaten.

Polidor Crosses

In the fourth period, Bob Polidor intercepted a pass and raced 28 yards for a tally. Joe Rogers was waiting to intercept when Fib came charging past him and grabbed it from almost out of his arms. It was a smart move by Polidor because Rogers was camped flat-footed under it, while he was on the move. Siano again made good the extra point, Villanova 16, Detroit 6.

On the next kick-off, Bob David's kick bounced along the sidelines down around the 10-yard line. While the Titan backs were choosing out to see who should pick it up, Bud Kane dove for it and knocked it out of bounds. Since Kane was the last man to touch the ball, it should have gone over to Villanova on the 6, but the referee gave the ball to the Titans. (Detroit fans can feel well remunerated for the clipping penalty that was called against them in the Marquette game last week. A 70-yard touchdown run that would have meant victory was called back, but the movies of the play showed a clean block.)

Zehler Sets Up Final

Later in the same period, Bill Haley, in punt formation, was trapped on his own 17 on fourth down. Bill Zehler swept 16 yards to the one on a criss cross with the fullback churning up the middle. Again Capriotti had crossed up the Titan defense. Pasquariello went over for the final score. Automatically, John Siano again split the uprights, Villanova 23, Detroit 6.

The amazing defensive feature of the Wildcats plays was the airtight pass defense. Employing a 5-4-2 defense, with the double safety deep to stop the Titans vaunted ground attack, the aerial defense should have been weakened. But instead, Detroit was unable to complete any of the eight passes it threw. Four were intercepted.

It was a well deserved win for Villanova and every player drew commendable praise from coach Jordan Olivar. "Another team victory," said the coach.

In The Sportlight

By T. N. WARD

The sportlight this week falls upon the runner and his blocker. These roles are filled by Romeo Capriotti and William Lilienthal. These two fellows have been playing outstanding football every minute that they have been on the field.

William Lilienthal: This name, or "Big Bill" as he is known around the campus, will arise anytime the Marquette game is even thought of.

Bill started playing sports while he was going to a Ridgefield, New Jersey Grammar School, and he never stopped. As soon as he entered Dwight Morrow High School the athletic field called him. Big Bill went out for track and became an outstanding field event man. His work with the shot put and discus gained for him statewide recognition and also the state title which he held since 1941. Big Bill acquired three varsity letters in football. He played on first team in his sophomore. These three years of playing brought him to the attention of Coach "Clipper" Smith here at school and Bill entered Villanova on an athletic scholarship.

Bill started at Villanova in the fall of 41. In his first year he played ed freshman football. The following year found Bill on the varsity holding up the left side of the line. The game that he remembers of that year was the Temple win, when Villanova with Al Postur pushed Temple all over the lot. The final score of this game was 20 to 0.

In June of '43 he entered the army where he served as a Staff Sergeant overseas in the 83d Infantry Division. During his time overseas he won 5 battle stars and a Bronze star. Bill acquired enough points to be discharged in December of '45.

The following march Big Bill returned to the campus to resume his studies and his football career. Since his return to the gridiron he has shown that he is even better than he was before. For his work this year the team elected him captain for the Boston College game. Big Bill went to work in this game and he will long be remembered at Braves Field. His brutal tackles and savage blocking brought many words of praise in the press box. It is this type of play which has brought him the praise of his teammates and the stnudent body.

Bill is studying education at C. & F. and hopes to teach physical education or to become a coach.

Romeo Capriotti: During discussion of football games, the name of "Cap" always brings a word of praise and a recollection of plays which had us on our feet.

"Cap" as he is known to his friends, was born in Pittsburgh but moved to the City of Brotherly Love.

Romeo started at Frankford High School in the fall of 1939. As most as soon as he started practice "Cap" made himself noticeable to the coach. He made the varsity in his sophomore year and was never pushed off. His position on this team was quarterback and it was in this spot that he made All-Public and All-Scholastic for three years straight. In 1940 Cap made the All-State team, because of his brilliant work in helping his team win the city championship that year.

After leaving Frankford he entered West Chester State Teachers. In his first year at this school he made the college All-State team. At the end of this season he was drafted into the army. "Cap" received his basic training at Camp Wheeler, Georgia. After this he was sent to the European Theater of Operations where he took part in the Sicilian invasions. Following this "Cap" went with the Fifth Army deep into Italy. During this period he was awarded the Silver Star for capturing a German machine gun nest single handed. This incident took place immediately after his escape from a German prison camp. Romeo also has the Purple Heart with two stars, denoting two other wounds. "Cap" served overseas for eighteen months before being sent home. He was given his honorable discharge in November of 1944.

"Cap" entered Villanova in the summer semester of 1945. Immediately after his arrival he went out for football and proved that for all his experiences in the army his football savvy had not been dampened. His position was shifted from quarterback to halfback after his first few days of practice. Cap has held this position now for two years because of his kicking, running and defensive play.

In his spare time Cap has played some topnotch baseball for the 'Cats. When things get dull he will pick up a pair of boxing gloves and try and find an opponent but it seems that too many fellows have seen Cap in action.

After graduation Cap hopes to become a football coach and he has been preparing himself for this by taking education.

Joe Rogers was stymied for the third week as Detroit men really ganged him when he carried the ball. However, Capriotti outsmarted the Detroit defenses when he called on Joe twice for running passes. Joe made a fine fake and completed his pass each time, once to Dan Brown and once to "Cap." Speaking of Dan Brown, our captain played a fine brand of ball. As usual, he was blocking, tackling, receiving and acting as a true leader. Our other ends were also outstanding and there was little to choose between Bill Sullivan and Frank Kane.

After Detroit's first touchdown march our line settled down to some sound ground work and stopped the highly touted Detroit running attack. Before playing us Detroit ranked third in the nation in rushing, averaging 300 yards per game. We planned our defense to stop this and the boys did a grand job.

Two of the finest jobs were turned in by substitutes George Orsini and Joe Scarcelli. Along with them Lou Ferry, Big Bill Lilienthal, Al Zimba and Johnny Sandusky lent good aid with Tom McCarthy backing up the line sparkling fashion.

Offensively, our sparkplug was "Cap" Capriotti. He did an excellent job of outmaneuvering Detroit. Once he had four men chasing him while Zip Zehler was running in the opposite direction with the ball. Cap's signal calling was a fine piece of generalship. Our other right halfback had a fair evening — two interceptions, one touchdown, plus a scare for Detroit every time they thught he was carrying the ball. Of course, I mean Bob Polidor, a real fire ball.

On the Detroit bulletin board were posted write-ups of our Army, Georgetown and Miami games with the injuries of our opponents emphasized. After the game, Bob Ivory, Detroit's outstanding guard, came up to Art Raimo and said, "Coach, we were wrong about your team. They're not dirty—they just hit hard!"

Along with them will be such new men as Browning Ross, Tom Conboy, Jim McGehrin, Roy Cameron, Jim Kennedy and Charley McKee, all of whom participated against Ft. Dix.

Training for the indoor season will begin in December, and the big event on the schedule is the Inquirer meet to be held in Philadelphia. Browning Ross will also represent Villanova in the Sugar Bowl. This former miler received an invitation to run in the steeplechase event in that New Year's day classic.

Everything considered, Jumbo Elliot is looking forward to a fine season, and he has a lot of good material with which to shape it.

Behind the Scene With the Football Team

We feel badly for [illegible] stayed away from the Miami game and missed that spec[illegible] time, Polidor's 109 yard touchdown jaunt. But think of a poor fellow who was at the game and saw everything but that one play! A certain lovely young miss who is employed on this campus was sitting placidly with her in lap belonging Miami's third touchdown. As Buzz Bomb Bob started his hike she jumped up in excitement and her coif fell down over the face of the man in front of her. Anxious not to miss a thing, that gentleman tugged and yanked at the coif to pull it away from his face. But you know how it is ... he only managed to get himself more and more tied up in shoves and hung and he could only hear the pandemonium all around him. When he did get clear Bob Polidor was already walking off the field, happy teammates patting him on the back. With less than gentlemanly language the man took the coat and thrust it back at our charming rooter, and sat muttering through the rest of the game. But then, how would you feel?

traveled 65 yards straight up the field, sparked by Vance who gained 11, 23, and 16 yards in the drive. A nine yard scamper was nullified, and a 15-yard penalty was slapped on Navy for clipping. Undaunted they drove on for a score with Vance going over. Heaton's conversion was good and Navy led, 7-6.

Villanova took to the air in their bid for a victory, but 2 intercepted aerials threw the Wildcats on the defense. The game ended with the ball in Navy's possession on their own 44-yard line.

Doms Take Lead In Intramurals

The Intramural League completed the first week of the season, which opened on Monday, Nov. 4, with the Doms leading the field. In five games, the Doms have won five times. Mendel is in second place with four wins and one loss.

Unscored upon before their game with Alumni, the Doms have been setting the pace. On Friday, Alumni shook the Doms but failed to knock them out of first place. Trailing by a 12-8 score, a completed pass and a run for a total of 70 yards, in the latter part of the game, and a blocked kick both resulted in scores to give the Doms the game 20-12. Harry Knecht, the captain of the Doms, and the man who threw the touchdown pass has consistently been the sparkplug of his team. He has completed to date five touchdown passes and scored once himself. His 60-yard run back of a punt in the earlier stages of the Alumni game was responsible for the first Doms score.

Griffin Travels 60

With two losses, one tie and two wins to their credit, Alumni is, so far, deserving of the reputation of playing the most exiciting games. On Monday, trailing by a 6-0 score against Austin, Don Griffin of Alumni went 60 yards around end to score in the last three minutes of the game. Wednesdays' game saw a similar performance when Pugliese caught a T.D. pass in the last three minutes to tie up that game. Alumni had been trailing the Gym all the way, thanks to Trayer's 40-yard T.D. pass to Beh.

Austin's losses to Pedigan, 8-0, and to the Doms, 6-0, were close hard-fought contests in direct contrast to their wide open game against the Gym. In that game Creelan scored three times, Broas, the captain, and Law scored twice each, and Selinger scored once to give them a 48-6 win over their opponents. Stevens scored for the Gym on a pass. This was the highest scoring game of the season, and the most number of points run up by any team. Austin's second win was over the Day Students by forfeit. That is the only forfeit of the season.

The goal for which every ball is fighting, and which will make it very hard to predict any winner yet is the plaque which the winning team is to receive. This plaque which is being offered for the first time, is to have the winning team's name engraved on it, and it will remain in the possession of that ball until it is won in future years by another team.

Detroit Game

his own end zone. Tom McCarthy and George Pavalko got at him first and Villanova gained two points on the safety. After this Detroit didn't have a chance.

Gordon's punting and the end play of Dan Brown, Bill Sullivan, and Bud Kane featured a scoreless third period. Wright and Haley tore off sizable gains for the hometowners, but they never got close enough to threaten.

Polidor Crosses

In the fourth period, Bob Polidor intercepted a pass and raced 28 yards for a tally. Joe Rogers was waiting to intercept when Hib came charging past him and grabbed it from almost out of his arms. It was a smart move by Polidor because Rogers was camped flat-footed under it, while he was on the move. Siano again made good the extra point, Villanova 16, Detroit 6.

On the next kick-off, Bob David's kick bounced along the sidelines down around the 10-yard line. While the Titan backs were choosing out to see who should pick it up, Bud Kane dove for it and knocked it out of bounds. Since Kane was the last man to touch the ball, it should have gone over to Villanova on the 6, but the referee gave the ball to the Titans. Detroit fans can feel well remunerated for the clipping penalty that was called against them in the Marquette game last week. A 70-yard touchdown run that would have meant victory was called back, but the movies of the play showed a clean block.

Zehler Sets Up Final

Later in the same period, Bill Haley, in punt formation, was trapped on his own 17 on fourth down. Bud Zehler swept 15 yards to the one on a criss cross with the fullback churning up the middle. Again Capriotti had crossed up the Titan defense, Pasquariello went over for the final score. Afterwards, John Siano again added the optional, Villanova 23, Detroit 6.

The amazing defensive feature of the Wildcats plays was the airtight pass defense. Employing a 5-4-2 defense, with the double safety deep to stop the Titans vaunted ground attack, the aerial defense should have been weakened. But instead, Detroit was unable to complete any of the eight passes it threw. Four were intercepted.

It was as well deserved win for Villanova and every player drew commendable praise from coach Jordan Olivar. "Another team victory," said the coach.

BILL LILIENTHAL

In The Sportlight

By T. N. WARD

The sportlight this week falls upon the runner and his blocker. These roles are filled by Romeo Capriotti and William Lillenthal. These two fellows have been playing outstanding football every minute that they have been on the field.

William Lilienthal: This name, or "Big Bill" as he is known around the campus, will arise anytime the Marquette game is even thought of.

Bill started playing sports while he was going to a Ridgefield, New Jersey Grammar School, and he never stopped. As soon as he entered Dwight Morrow High School the athletic field called him. Big Bill went out for track and became an outstanding field event man. His work with the shot put and discus gained for him statewide recognition and also the state title which he held since 1941. Big Bill acquired three varsity letters in football. He played on first team in his sophomore. These three years of playing brought him to the attention of Coach "Clipper" Smith here at school and Bill entered Villanova on an athletic scholarship.

Bill started at Villanova in the fall of 41. In his first year he played freshman football. The following year found Bill on the varsity holding up the left side of the line. The game that he remembers of that year was the Temple win, when Villanova with Al Postus pushed Temple all over the lot. The final score of this game was 20 to 0.

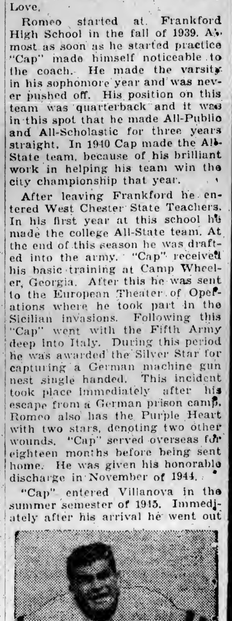
In June of '43 he entered the army where he served as a Staff Sergeant overseas in the 83d Infantry Division. During his time overseas he won 5 battle stars and a Bronze star. Bill acquired enough points to be discharged in December of '45.

The following march Big Bill returned to the campus to resume his studies and his football career. Since his return to the gridiron he has shown that he is even better than he was before. For his work this year the team elected him captain for the Boston College game. Big Bill went to work in this game and he will long be remembered at Braves Field. His brutal tackles and savage blocking brought many words of praise in the press box. It is this type of play which has brought him the praise of his teammates and the student body.

Bill is studying education at C. & F. and hopes to teach physical education or to become a coach.

Romeo Capriotti: During discussion of football games, the name of "Cap" always brings a word of praise and a recollection of plays which had us on our feet.

"Cap" as he is known to his friends, was born in Pittsburgh but moved to the City of Brotherly Love.



Romeo started at Frankford High School in the fall of 1939. As most as soon as he started practice "Cap" made himself noticeable to the coach. He made the varsity in his sophomore year and was never pushed off. His position on this team was quarterback and it was in this spot that he made All-Public and All-Scholastic for three years straight. In 1940 Cap made the All-State team, because of his brilliant work in helping his team win the city championship that year.

After leaving Frankford he entered West Chester State Teachers. In his first year at this school he made the college All-State team. At the end of this season he was drafted into the army. "Cap" received his basic training at Camp Wheeler, Georgia. After this he was sent to the European Theater of Operations where he took part in the Sicilian invasions. Following this "Cap" went with the Fifth Army deep into Italy. During this period he was awarded the Silver Star for capturing a German machine gun nest single handed. This incident took place immediately after his escape from a German prison camp. Romeo also has the Purple Heart with two stars, denoting two other wounds. "Cap" served overseas for eighteen months before being sent home. He was given his honorable discharge in November of 1944.

"Cap" entered Villanova in the summer semester of 1945. Immediately after his arrival he went out for football and proved that for all his experiences in the army his football savvy had not been dampened. His position was shifted from quarterback to halfback after his first few days of practice. Cap has held this position now for two years because of his kicking, running and defensive play.

In his spare time Cap has played some topnotch baseball for the 'Cats. When things get dull he will pick up a pair of boxing gloves and try and find an opponent but it seems that too many fellows have seen Cap in action.

After graduation Cap hopes to become a football coach and he has been preparing himself for this by taking education.

Joe Rogers was stymied for the third week as Detroit men really ganged him when he carried the ball. However, Capriotti outsmarted the Detroit defenses when he called on Joe twice for running passes. Joe made a fine fake and completed his pass each time, once to Dan Brown and once to "Cap." Speaking of Dan Brown, our captain played a fine brand of ball. As usual, he was blocking, tackling, receiving and acting as a true leader. Our other ends were also outstanding and there was little to choose between Bill Sullivan and Frank Kane.

After Detroit's first touchdown march our line settled down to some sound ground work and stopped the highly touted Detroit running attack. Before playing us Detroit ranked third in the nation in rushing, averaging 300 yards per game. We planned our defense to stop this and the boys did a grand job.

Two of the finest jobs were turned in by substitutes George Orsini and Joe Scarcelli. Along with them Lou Ferry, Big Bill Lilienthal, Al Zimba and Johnny Sandusky lent good aid with Tom McCarthy backing up the line sparkling fashion.

Offensively, our sparkplug was "Cap" Capriotti. He did an excellent job of outmaneuvering Detroit. Once he had four men chasing him while Zip Zehler was running in the opposite direction with the ball. Cap's signal calling was a fine piece of generalship. Our other right halfback had a fair evening — two interceptions, one touchdown, plus a scare for Detroit every time they thught he was carrying the ball. Of course, I mean Bob Polidor, a real fire ball.

On the Detroit bulletin board were posted write-ups of our Army, Georgetown and Miami games with the injuries of our opponents emphasized. After the game, Bob Ivory, Detroit's outstanding guard, came up to Art Raimo and said, "Coach, we were wrong about your team. They're not dirty—they just hit hard!"

Stuhldreher Helps Pick All Americans

Players who make the 1946 All-American team to be selected by the American Football Coaches Association will have the stamp of approval of former All-Americans.

For upwards of a tenth of the 475 coaches in the association figured in the mythical national selections themselves at one time or another. Among them are 11 head coaches and an estimated 35 or more assistant coaches.

As players, these coaches gained national recognition for their brilliant gridiron achievements over a period of nearly 50 years. Now they train their own candidates for football's hall of fame.

Dean of the coaches, of course, is Alonzo Stagg of the College of the Pacific. He was named to the first All-American team ever chosen, in 1889, because of his great play at Yale.

Villanova Host to Penn In Labor Problem Debate

Don Collins, Tony Homann Take Affirmative for Blue and White; Messrs. Shenker, Shuman Argue for Penn

On Thursday evening, November 14, Villanova College encountered the University of Pennsylvania in a palaver at the auditorium of the Commerce and Finance building last Thursday night.

"Resolved: That Labor Should Have Direct Share in Management was the intellectual football of the evening with Villanova on the side of the affirmative.

John Elinsky, chairman of the debate, led off to the controversy with his introduction of the first speaker for Villanova, Don Collins.

Collins Shows Evils

In his opening discourse Mr. Collins propounded the evils arising from the present Labor-Management relations. He cited particularly strikes, unions and union politics, and gave the General Motors "walkout as an example of these wretched truths. He suggested for an improvement of these affiliations a plan to be presented by his colleague Anthony Homhan.

The ensuing dissertation by Mr. Shenker of Pennsylvania was an interesting refutation of all that had been said by Collins excluding the General Motors strike.

Upon conclusion of Penn's first speaker, Mr. Homann presented the four point plan as afore mentioned.

Next, to the rostrum came Mr. Shuman, the other half of the University team. As he paced back and forth on the platform he called for a ramification of the present policy rather than a new one.

The succeeding ten minute recess unearthed many buried cigarettes and suppressed opinions among the audience.

The rebuttals were short and usual. The rest of the evening was given to the questions of the auditors and was highlighted, perhaps, by the discovery that the only three honest men in the world are parents of Mr. Shuman, Maurice Crane, a questioner and a young lady guest.

Over the Top!

This is the last full week before the drawing for the prizes of the Friends of the Villanova Library. As far as the returns have come in, all indications are in the direction of a let-down after earlier high expectations.

This is it! Villanova has to go over the top in funds for the new library. Latest returns show added effort in the late stages of the drive, but they are not yet strong enough to reach the expectations of the committee by the time of the drawing.

A week is not much time, but there is enough room for a concentrated drive to put us "over the top." Leave us all get down to work during this last week and make the Library Drive a success. Leave us do our part in completing the funds for the new Villanova Library!

Symphonic Band To Open Season At Rosemont

Next Tuesday Night Program Will Contain Works by Wagner; Grieg and Gounod

The Villanova college band, rolling into high gear after its war-time intermission, steps back into itts peacetime role of playing a large part in the extra-curricular activities of the college. Its opening concert will be given at Rosemont College, Tuesday, Nov. 26 in their gymnasium.

The band, running up against such obstacles as shortage of music and equipment is back on its feet but still has major problems of reconvesion to be faced in the future. The number of band members now stands about 43, and practice is held weekly. Any interested in joining this organization are more than welcome. Several concerts have been arranged, and although a program is not available yet, one concert a month has been decided on.

Rounded Program

The initial concert at Rosemont will include the following numbers: The National Emblem March, Anitra's Dance, a Bassology, Body and Soul, Wanting You, A Selection of Irish Melodies, Ave Maria, The Thunderer March, A Wagner number, Three Trombonists, Gay Nineties, a Service number dedicated to the Armed Froces, Our Director March, and the Rosemont Alma Mater. Some selections include solos, namely, Dave English playing Ave Maria; James Duffey, Bill Chauvennt and George Beltzer as the Three Trombonists.

Attendance at rehearsals has been fairly consistent, and the organization is begining to function as a unit. A program of future concerts will be forthcoming and more information about these events will be printed from time to time.

Loyalty Award To Be Presented Matthew Lynch

Alumnus Fifteenth Recipient of Honor; Associated with Veterans Administration

Matthew Lynch, a graduate of the Arts class of 1923, will be the recipient of the Loyalty Award presented by the Villanova Club of Philadelphia at the annual football dinner to be held at the Warwick Hotel on December 3.

This honor is given each year to an alumnus, selected by members of a committee composed of all the past recipients of the award, for "zeal for Alma Mater," outstanding loyalty to the Alumni Association and unselfish service in behalf of all things Villanovan."

Active as Student

While attending Villanova, Mr. Lynch was prominent in both social and athletic events. He was president of his class during his four years at college and also pitched for the varsity baseball team for two years. Since graduation he has been closely connected with the Villanova Alumni Association, having served as a member of the Board of Governors for many years and also in the capacity of vice-president. Mr. Lynch is also an active member of the Knights of Columbus, having held the offices of Grand Knight of the Villanova Council and West Philadelphia Council No. 344.

Associated with VA

At present Mr. Lynch is employed as a field examiner for the Veterans Administration in the Wilkes-Barre regional area. This position has taken him from Philadelphia to his hometown, Carbondale, Pa.

This year marks the 15th presentation of the Loyalty Award which had its inception in 1932. The past recipients of the award have been: 1932, Charles A. McGeehan, '12; 1933, J. Stanley Smith, '93; 1934, Martin J. McLaughlin, '14; 1935, Thomas M. Dalton, '12; 1936, James P. Leaming, '10; 1937, F. Leo Lynch, '16; 1938, M. Eugene Eichmann, '14; 1939, Cyril J. Burke, '17; 1940, John P. Keffer, '25; 1941, John J. Dougherty, '18; 1942, Dr. Edward J. Burke, '23; 1943, Dr. Michael P. Fogarty, '21; 1944, Francis X. Robinson, '21; 1945, Charles H. McGuckin, '18.

Swiss Nite Held

German Club Holds Elections; Swiss Movies Shown in Evening Sccial

The German club held a meeting at eight P. M. last Friday evening November 15. At this time there was an election of officers. This monthly meeting of the club was followed by a Swiss evening during which life and culture were discussed and Swiss music was supplied by the members of the club. Pictures obtained through the courtesy of the Swiss Consulate were shown. It is planned to have a general meeting every month following which an entertainment or social will be held.

The primary purpose of the "Neustaedter Kreis" or "Villanova Circle" is a desire to supplement a reading knowledge of German with the ability to speak the language. The attendance at meetings is optional.

Although the meeting of the club was a social succes it is hoped that more students participate in the club's activities during the semester, as many social functions have been planned.

The Faculty and Student body of Villanova College extend their sympathy to Rev. John J. Coffey, O.S.A., whose father died last week.

Senior Ball To Be Held Jan. 17th in Field House

"Band To Be Announced Next Week," President Redmond Reports; Attendance Limitation Unavoidable

That Villanova's Senior Class Ball will be held in the Field House on the evening of January 17th, 1946, was the main point decided at a recent meeting of the Senior Class.

Plans and arrangements for the orchestra which is to play that evening were discussed and furthered at the meeting under the direction of class president Dan Redmond.

Next week the orchestra shall have been signed and the name available for release in the next issue of the Villanovan.

A slight controversary has made the naming of the Chairman of the Dance impossible at this time. This information will also be released next week. The financial arrangement has thus far proven satisfactory.

Assessment Plan

Each senior is to pay five dollars toward his ticket to the affair. The funds raised by this program are to be used as a cash reserve for unforeseen circumstances which might arise during the planning. To date, the system has worked well, although some students have not as yet paid.

It was also announced at this meeting that the Senior Dinner Dance will be held the following day. Plans for this affair are now in the process of completion.

Limited Attendance

Due to the capacity of the Field House, a restricted attendance must be held in force. Although it will be cleared of the resident students by the time of the dance, a top ceiling of 600 has been put on. Seniors will receive first chance at buying tickets. Remaining tickets will be put on sale to the undergraduates and the alumni desiring to attend.

During the past two weeks, the band committee has been making contacts with the various orchestra agencies in an effort to obtain a suitable band for the affair with regard for the financial success of the dance. The field of selection has been limited to three fine orchestras and a class vote during the next week will decide which organization will get the nod for the January social.

Chairman To Be Named

Also at this next meeting, the chairman for the dance will be named. Dan Redmond reported that early figures show the ticket sale will be one of the greatest in recent years, and promise is shown for a good time for all those who are fortunate enough to get one of those rare 600 tickets.

The next meeting of the class will be held on Wednesday night in the auditorium, 215 Mendel Hall at 7:30 P. M. The unfinished business on the Dance plans will be taken up at that time.

Aviation Group Lists Activities

Library, Seminars Planned; Membership Open

Aeronautically minded Villanova students will hold two meetings of the Villanova Aeronautics Club this week in room 215 Mendel Hall with the purpose of forming committees and setting up the structure of the recently reactivated organization.

The first of these two meetings will take place on Wednesday at noon and the second will be held at 8:15 Thursday night. The reason for the two meetings is the inability of many students to make one or the other meeting because of scheduled classes.

Work Planned by Club

There is much work planned by the club for the next few weeks according to the members. This week's meetings will have organization as the object which will make possible quick action on the pertinant problems facing the club.

Several committees will be selected at the meetings and they will immediately start work investigating the airports of the locality, and other organizations and agencies that may be of help to the Aeronautics Clubs cause.

This organization has as its primary objective the obtaining of flying time for the members at the most economical rates possible. Besides this the club plans to set up a library of Aeronautical books, hold classes in subjects which will be of aid to the members, and to obtain prominent speakers from the field of aviation for the club's meetings. It is also hoped that motion pictures of an instructional nature may be obtained to aid the club members in their quest for air knowledge.

Membership in the Aeronautics Club is open to any Villanova student who is interested in Aeronautics. There are no restriction on membership other than a genuine interest in aviation. At the present time there are no arrangements for flying; but when such arrangements are made the club members will share the cost and benefits provided by the club proportionately. The club extends an invitation to all interested to attend one of the two meetings this week. If anyone who is interested finds that

For upwards of a tenth of the 475 coaches in the association figured in the mythical national selections themselves at one time or another. Among them are 41 head coaches and an estimated 35 or more assistant coaches.

As players, these coaches gained national recognition for their brilliant gridiron achievements over a period of nearly 50 years. Now they train their own candidates for football's hall of fame.

Dean of the coaches, of course, is Alonzo Stagg of the College of the Pacific. He was named to the first All-American team ever chosen, in 1889, because of his great play at Yale.

Villanova Host to Penn In Labor Problem Debate

Don Collins, Tony Homann Take Affirmative for Blue and White; Messrs. Shenker, Shuman Argue for Penn

On Thursday evening, November 14, Villanova College encountered the University of Pennsylvania in a palaver at the auditorium of the Commerce and Finance building last Thursday night.

"Resolved: That Labor Should Have Direct Share in Management was the intellectual football of the evening with Villanova on the side of the affirmative.

John Elinsky, chairman of the debate, led off to the controversy with his introduction of the first speaker for Villanova, Don Collins.

Collins Shows Evils

In his opening discourse Mr. Collins propounded the evils arising from the present Labor-Management relations. He cited particularly strikes, unions and union politics, and gave the General Motors "walkout as an example of these wretched truths. He suggested for an improvement of these affiliations a plan to be presented by his colleague Anthony Homman.

The ensuing dissertation by Mr. Shenker of Pennsylvania was an interesting refutation of all that had been said by Colins excluding the General Motors strike.

Upon conclusion of Penn's first speaker, Mr. Homann presented the four point plan as afore mentioned.

Next, to the rostrum came Mr. Shuman, the other half of the University team. As he paced back and forth on the platform he called for a ramification of the present policy rather than a new one.

The succeeding ten minute recess unearthed many buried cigarettes and suppressed opinions among the audience.

The rebuttals were short and usual. The rest of the evening was given to the questions of the auditors and was highlighted, perhaps, by the discovery that the only three honest men in the world are parents of Mr. Shuman, Maurice Crane, a questioner and a young lady guest.

Over the Top!

This is the last full week before the drawing for the prizes of the Friends of the Villanova Library. As far as the returns have come in, all indications are in the direction of a let-down after earlier high expectations.

This is it! Villanova has to go over the top in funds for the new library. Latest returns show added effort in the late stages of the drive, but they are not yet strong enough to reach the expectations of the committee by the time of the drawing.

A week is not much time, but there is enough room for a concentrated drive to put us "over the top." Leave us all get down to work during this last week and make the Library Drive a success. Leave us do our part in completing the funds for the new Villanova Library.

Symphonic Band To Open Season At Rosemont

Next Tuesday Night Program Will Contain Works by Wagner; Grieg and Gounod

The Villanova college band, rolling into high gear after its war-time intermission, steps back into itts peacetime role of playing a large part in the extra-curricular activities of the college. Its opening concert will be given at Rosemont College, Tuesday, Nov. 26 in their gymnasium.

The band, running up against such obstacles as shortage of music and equipment is back on its feet but still has major problems of reconvesion to be faced in the future. The number of band members now stands about 45, and practice is held weekly. Any interested in joining this organization are more than welcome. Several concerts have been arranged, and although a program is not available yet, one concert a month has been decided on.

Rounded Program

The initial concert at Rosemont will include the following numbers: The National Emblem March, Anitra's Dance, a Bassology, Body and Soul, Wanting You, A Selection of Irish Melodies, Ave Maria, The Thunderer March, A Wagner number, Three Trombonists, Gay Nineties, a Service number dedicated to the Armed Proces, Our Director March, and the Rosemont Alma Mater. Some selections include solos, namely, Dave English playing Ave Maria; James Duffey, Bill Chauvennt and George Beitzer as the Three Trombonists.

Attendance at rehearsals has been fairly consistent, and the organization is begining to function as a unit. A program of future concerts will be forthcoming and more information about these events will be printed from time to time.

Looking for Loopholes . . .

Tony Homann and Don Collins, who represented Villanova with the affirmative in the debate with Penn last Thursday night, listen to the first negative given by Mr.Schenk of Penn.

Loyalty Award To Be Presented Matthew Lynch

Alumnus Fifteenth Recipient of Honor; Associated with Veterans Administration

Matthew Lynch, a graduate of the Arts class of 1923, will be the recipient of the Loyalty Award presented by the Villanova Club of Philadelphia at the annual football dinner to be held at the Warwick Hotel on December 3.

This honor is given each year to an alumnus, selected by members of a committee composed of all the past recipients of the award, for "zeal for Alma Mater," outstanding loyalty to the Alumni Association and unselfish service in behalf of all things Villanovan."

Active as Student

While attending Villanova, Mr. Lynch was prominent in both social and athletic events. He was president of his class during his four years at college and also pitched for the varsity baseball team for two years. Since graduation he has been closely connected with the Villanova Alumni Association, having served as a member of the Board of Governors for many years and also in the capacity of vice-president. Mr. Lynch is also an active member of the Knights of Columbus, having held the offices of Grand Knight of the Villanova Council and West Philadelphia Council No. 344.

Associated with VA

At present Mr. Lynch is employed as a field examiner for the Veterans Administration in the Wilkes-Barre regional area. This position has taken him from Philadelphia to his hometown, Carbondale, Pa.

This year marks the 15th presentation of the Loyalty Award which had its inception in 1932. The past recipients of the award have been: 1932, Charles A. McGeehan, '12; 1933, J. Stanley Smith, '93; 1934, Martin J. McLaughlin, '14; 1935, Thomas M. Dalton, '12; 1936, James P. Leaming, '10; 1937, F. Leo Lynch, '16; 1938, M. Eugene Bichmann, '14; 1939, Cyril J. Burke, '17; 1940, John P. Keffer, '25; 1941, John J. Dougherty, '18; 1942, Dr. Edward J. Burke, '23; 1943, Dr. Michael P. Fogarty, '21; 1944, Francis X. Robinson, '21; 1945, Charles H. McGuckin, '18.

Swiss Nite Held

German Club Holds Elections; Swiss Movies Shown in Evening Social

The German club held a meeting at eight P. M. last Friday evening November 15. At this time there was an election of officers. This monthly meeting of the club was followed by a Swiss evening during which life and culture were discussed and Swiss music was supplied by the members of the club. Pictures obtained through the courtesy of the Swiss Consulate were shown. It is planned to have a general meeting every month following which an entertainment or social will be held.

The primary purpose of the "Neustaedter Kreis" or "Villanova Circle" is a desire to supplement a reading knowledge of German with the ability to speak the language. The attendance at meetings is optional.

Although the meeting of the club was a social succes it is hoped that more students participate in the club's activities during the semester, as many social functions have been planned.

The Faculty and Student body of Villanova College extend their sympathy to Rev. John J. Coffey, O.S.A., whose father died last week.

Senior Ball To Be Held Jan. 17th in Field House

"Band To Be Announced Next Week," President Redmond Reports; Attendance Limitation Unavoidable

That Villanova's Senior Class Ball will be held in the Field House on the evening of January 17th, 1946, was the main point decided at a recent meeting of the Senior Class.

Plans and arrangements for the orchestra which is to play that evening were discussed and furthered at the meeting under the direction of class president Dan Redmond.

Next week the orchestra shall have been signed and the name available for release in the next issue of the Villanovan.

A slight controversary has made the naming of the Chairman of the Dance impossible at this time. This information will also be released next week. The financial arrangement has thus far proven satisfactory.

Assessment Plan

Each senior is to pay five dollars toward his ticket to the affair. The funds raised by this program are to be used as a cash reserve for unforeseen circumstances which might arise during the planning. To date, the system has worked well, although some students have not as yet paid.

It was also announced at this meeting that the Senior Dinner Dance will be held the following day. Plans for this affair are now in the process of completion.

Limited Attendance

Due to the capacity of the Field House, a restricted attendance must be held in force. Although it will be cleared of the resident students by the time of the dance, a top ceiling of 600 has been put on. Seniors will receive first chance at buying tickets. Remaining tickets will be put on sale to the undergraduates and the alumni desiring to attend.

During the past two weeks, the band committee has been making contacts with the various orchestra agencies in an effort to obtain a suitable band for the affair with regard for the financial success of the dance. The field of selection has been limited to three fine orchestras and a class vote during the next week will decide which organization will get the nod for the January social.

Chairman To Be Named

Also at this next meeting, the chairman for the dance will be named. Dan Redmond reported that early figures show the ticket sale will be one of the greatest in recent years, and promise is shown for a good time for all those who are fortunate enough to get one of those rare 600 tickets.

The next meeting of the class will be held on Wednesday night in the auditorium, 215 Mendel Hall at 7:30 P. M. The unfinished business on the Dance plans will be taken up at that time.

Aviation Group Lists Activities

Library, Seminars Planned; Membership Open

Aeronautically minded Villanova students will hold two meetings of the Villanova Aeronautics Club this week in room 215 Mendel Hall with the purpose of forming committees and setting up the structure of the recently reactivated organization.

The first of these two meetings will take place on Wednesday at noon and the second will be held at 8:15 Thursday night. The reason for the two meetings is the inability of many students to make one or the other meeting because of scheduled classes.

Work Planned by Club

There is much work planned by the club for the next few weeks according to the members. This week's meetings will have organization as the object which will make possible quick action on the pertinant problems facing the club.

Several committees will be selected at the meetings and they will immediately start work investigating the airports of the locality, and other organizations and agencies that may be of help to the Aeronautics Clubs cause.

This organization has as its primary objective the obtaining of flying time for the members at the most economical rates possible. Besides this the club plans to set up a library of Aeronautical books, hold classes in subjects which will be of aid to the members, and to obtain prominent speakers from the field of aviation for the club's meetings. It is also hoped that motion pictures of an instructional nature may be obtained to aid the club members in their quest for air knowledge.

Membership in the Aeronautics Club is open to any Villanova student who is interested in Aeronautics. There are no restriction on membership other than a genuine interest in aviation. At the present time there are no arrangements for flying; but when such arrangements are made the club members will share the cost and benefits provided by the club proportionately. The club extends an invitation to all interested to attend one of the two meetings this week. If anyone who is interested finds that

Delurey Takes Drive Lead

During the past week increased returns from the students of Delury Hall have put those students in the lead on returns. O'Dwyer Hall dropped from first to fourth in the standings.

Good Counsel and Austin Hall have moved up into second and third places respectively. All dorms have moved up in the percentage since last week.

In holding the lead, Delurey has the highest percentage since the opening of the drive. The Day Hops are in sixth place since their addition to the race.

The Standings

Delurey	78%
Good Counsel	73.1%
Austin	63.8%
O'Dwyer	63.3%
Alumni	40.5%
Day Hops	38.9%
Fedigan	31.7%

International Relations . . .

The problems of international organizations confront the peoples of the world with great impetus and exigency. They must not be left to the other man to unravel. With great care, they must be studied, unfolded, and applied in their proper order by those who have the necessary tools at their disposal.

We as college students are ideally suited to undertake the job. In fact, it is our duty. Our great institution is here to afford us the opportunity to investigate, compile, and utilize the facts in any field they demand. We are looked upon by our respective countries as the most likely men to lead the future political, social, and economical life of the people. Must we fail in this our duty? Can man be true to himself if he neglects to use fully his intellect?

We have observed that students are interested in great problems, not so much for universal principles as for their own personal relationships to them. They endeavor to amass a wealth of knowledge from a specific course in so far as it has reference to themselves. The crux of the whole problem is—just how important are these technological courses to the individual? Just what does the individual student consider a well rounded education? Is it just A's in all classroom courses?

Sciences have taken a great leap ahead of liberal arts, and today our colleges and universities are overwhelmingly enrolled with physical science majors. We must bridge the ever increasing gap between the physical and spiritual world if we want to live harmoniously in society, for history has just repeated what can and will again happen if man loses his spiritual grasp of himself.

But with transportation knitting the world into a spider's web, something more must be added. Peoples of different nations must get together to know each other. Their problems must be studied by one and all, for isolationism is no more. Perhaps a country might want to be let alone, but the others will not permit it to live thus. The problems of one country have become that of another, and understanding has become a denominator in international problem of cooperation.

So important is the true knowledge and understanding between nations, that international societies on and off the campuses have been set up in most countries to study the difficulties of international relationships, and to facilitate inter-cultural meetings. There is the "One World" at Temple University; the United Nations Council at Pennsylvania University, and the International Relation Clubs of Rosemont College and Villanova College—just to mention a few on some of the neighboring campuses.

As was to be expected, the International Relations Club and the Inter-racial Club had practically been forced to suspend all activities during the war years. With the end of the war, the mind is now free to turn to the other problems that beset man and his future.

We find a post-war world in a dilemma over political, social, and economical issues, demanding accurate knowledge and sound methods of investigation and reflection in order to bring constructive order out of this doubt and confusion.

The International Relations Club is your organization. It offers you a means of expressing your views on important matters, and learning about students across the seas. It gives you the opportunitiy to meet and understand the foreign students in the United States, and it gives them the opportunity to really know the American people.

Plans are being drawn up to recognize and revitalize the Club in face of its great need and importance. Are you interested in the knowledge, understanding, and inter-cultural meetings of all nations? Do you believe in the great good that this can do? If so, lend a hand and do not forget that interest is attention grown up; belief is interest made decisive; resolution in belief is ACTION!

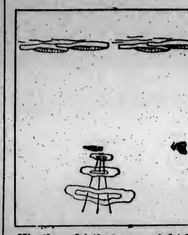
Strike Well My Friend . . .



In some eyes this will not be a very important editorial. It poses no solution to Anglo-Russian relations, or does it offer a plan of escape frm high prices and scarcity is relatively insignificant. That subject is you. In this world of goods. It will be called unimportant because its subject of giant forces, you are indeed a small pea in the pod, one struggling student in this mad, whirling world. If you don't admit this you are either too ignorant, or too proud.

What an unbelievable paradox then, that you, small and insignificant as you are, should possess the powers that you do. No mute, cold star can feel the warmth of emotion. No mighty ocean can be uplifted by the graceful tenderness of a spring morn. Yes, its true, all this marvelous, mighty, mystic universe, far from being your master, is your servant. Seize then your opportunity! Unlatch your bounty storehouse and utilize every last little talent! Your goal—the full flame of a rich, Christian life; your tinder—your God-given intellect; your spark—this schooling here. Strike well my friend, strike well!

THE BULL PEN

JOHN KUCHA

Since our last pretentious column hit the campus to brighten the life of passing janitors, who found things picking up; we have received a flattering offer to appear personally before the Neuro-psychiatry department at Johns Hopkins. We also received an interesting letter from the Mutual Rendering Company of Philadelphia. It seems that a fatty brain is much in demand these days.

We thought that you might be interested in the above photo of Dan Casey and Sam Canning, dressed in white suits, taken in an Arctic snowstorm. If you will study the picture closely, you will notice Sam's Dr. Algase dentistry clacking away (as usual) at a merry pace. That Corona Corona (or is it an El Ropo) belongs to Dan Casey.

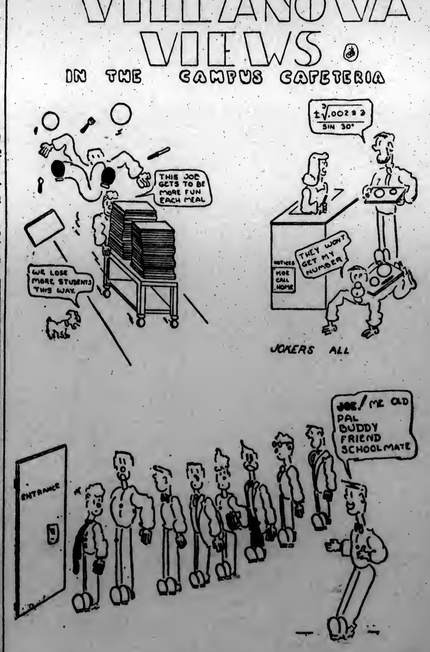
The nice part of dashing off a batty column such as this, is that we can write of anything under the sun and no one pays any attention. In fact no one reads it. And to prove our point, last week we pridefully approached an unsuspecting C & F student to ask him what he thought of the Bull Pen and its little bon mots. He tendered a few remarks to the effect that the present cattle prices in Chicago were a bit bullish and absently strode off, humming the nonce, the latest Dow-Jones ditty, "Stone Cold Dead In the Market."

Musical Notes

Undaunted, we hied to the Band rehearsal and asked the contra-fagoto player what he thought of the column. He referred us to the fellow who was at the glockenspiel. And this chap in turn referred us to a chap who was doing a masterful job of the fugue, "Cement Mixer, Put-ti Put-ti" on his ophicleide. Not wishing to interrupt this lovely pastorale we left in a somewhat depressed state after doing a few lively mazurkas.

But enough of this chit chat. Now to the news. As everyone knows, the Republicans won in a landside. We (Harvey, the Rabbit, and I) voted the straight Antiprohibitionist ticket. Being old sailors and having pushed many a schooner 'cross the bar, we couldn't resist that slogan, "Don't offend, Use Sen Sen." (Sen is repeated due to his cups.)

Our dentist is a Villanova grad and an ardent Wildcat rooter. We having nothing personal against the lad but when he had finished describing Polidor's 1902 yard run, our lonely bicuspid, trailed by two Democratic incisors, was dangling from the chandelier. Now we ask, how can we masticate a souffle of humming bird tongue stuffed with watermelons and topped with roast dietitian?



We wish those two eager beavers in 310, Fedigan, would let us know how they made out with that advertisement, "Two Villanova students desire part time work as baby sitters," which appeared in the Main Line Times a while ago. May we caution you that baby sitting is not a parttime profession and that no one should attempt it without our book, "Baby Sitting" in ten easy lesson, or five hard ones. And might we suggest, in passing, that you might adopt as your theme song, "There'll Be Some Changes Made."

We like that fiendish smile that Chic Young puts on Dagwood's face to indicate happy anticipation of revenge. Reminds us of that Prof whose face lights up the piece of paper, Gentlemen, we're same way when he says, "Get out a piece of paper, Gentlemen, we're going to have a little surprise quiz on the theory of the electrolytic disassociation of molecular particles. Heh, her, heh."

Headlines: "Indians Are Revolting." Well, personally, we think they're pretty nice guys. . . . And speaking of headlines, we clipped the following from an Asheville, N. C. paper. "Control Board Announces New Amendments in Liquor laws; henceforth customers will be restricted to one bottle a week." Well, we think that's enough fighting for anybody.

We came to college to get an ed-

The Top Hatter

Philadelphia's Music

By ANTHONY HOMANN Jr. '50

Regrettable as it may seem, it has been the tendency of many Philadelphians to overlook completely the outstanding events in music taking place in their town. These events are as much Philadelphia's heritage as the Liberty Bell. For the many resident students of Villanova, or for those who have previously overlooked such affairs, let us now examine a part of Philadelphia's musical heritage.

Looming foremost of the scene is, quite naturally, the Philadelphia Orchestra. This internationally renowned group has a history as brilliant and interesting as any of the concerts it regularly gives in the time - mellowed Academy of Music.

The first concert was held by the Orchestra on November 16, 1900, when Fritz Scheil started a tradition which has lasted for forty-six years. Friend of Tchaikowsky and Rubenstein, the young German carefully laid the foundation stones for today's Orchestra. On these stones, Scheel's successors built with unswerving initiative and foresight. Since Scheel, the Orchestra has been under the baton of only three other permanent conductors. These are Carl Pohling, Leopold Stokowski, and the present day Eugene Ormandy.

Relations With Stokowski

Especially fascinating are the years under the colorful Leopold Stokowski. These stretched from 1912 to 1936. During this time the eccentric Stokowski raised the Orchestra to world prominence while using it as a testing ground for his intriguing experiments into tonal color and balance.

Many of the recordings done under his direction have been acclaimed the finest ever made, and are still treasured today in musical circles. The stories of his doings with the Orchestra are legion. Often told is how he once placed the members behind a curtain, while he directed with his hands featured in triple beams of rose-light. Indeed, he has been called the "enchantress" of the musical world. His graceful hands and blond wavy hair were objects of awe to many regular patrons. It was Stokowski who engineered the famous trade in 1929, when he went for two weeks to the New York Philharmonic Symphony Society, and Arturo Toscanini came to Philadelphia.

Stokowski saw to it that virtually every prominent soloist of the time appeared with the Orchestra. Likewise it was he who brought such notable guest conducfors as Sir Thomas Beecham, Richard Strauss, Arturo Toscanini, and Igor Stravinsky. His orchestral transcriptions of the many haunting Bach organ pieces played by the Orchestra under his direction have been unequaled by any other Orchestra in the world.

Featured In "Fantasia"

Under the temperemental Dr. Stokowski, the Philadelphia Orchestra waas featured in the motion picture "Fantasia." As many will recall, this movie dealt with the mental images a typical concert-goer might form while listening to various offerings.

However, after the epochal career of twenty-four years with the Orchestra, Stokowski resigned in 1936, and Eugene Ormandy, then conductor of the Minneapolis Symphony, was appointed permanent musical director.

Ormandy, if he does not possess the daring musicianship of Stokowski, nevertheless has done wonders for the Orchestra. He is widely recognized for the catholicity of his program. His philosophy might be summed up in his own words: "A program must be proportionally built, and always with an eye to the next generation." He has lent the prestige of the Orchestra to help modern music, and often he premieres new works such as "St. Francis of Assisi," of "Ode to the End of the War." Mr. Ormandy has always believed in giving audiences the best of current musical fare. He has kept up the tradition of brilliant soloists and guest conductors.

Youth Concert Popular

Ormandy instituted children's programs for the Orchestra. At scheduled intervals, on Saturday mornings, special concerts are held for people under twenty-one. The program contains such appealing numbers as "Peter and the Wolf," Haydn's "Toy Symphony," etc. In this way, he creates an appreciation for music in the younger generation.

Presenting :-

The Villanovans

Wednesday night, November 27, at the Memorial Library Dance sponsored by the Senior Class, the reorganized Villanovans will play for the firset campus dance of the semester.

The Villanovans are all veterans and many of them played in service bands. While in the service Joe Appleby, who plays first trombone, was tutored by Lou McGarill, who is known for his fine slip horn work with Benny Goodman.

Hathaway Conducts

Paul Hathaway, leader of the Villanovans, has been playing in orchestras since his high school days. He was a member of the Falconians, the Northeast Catholic High band, for four years and was leader of the dance band during his V-12 days at Villanova.

The boys have their own arrangement of Debussey's "Clare de Lune" as a theme song.

The band comprises fourteen pieces with a hot brass section plus a smooth rhythm group. The Villanovans have had experience in various orchestras and have several good soloists within their number.

Vocals will be handled by Bob Cuskey, who did similar work with the Franklin and Marshall College Orchestra. The manager of the Villanovans, Joe Besanto, stated that they may have a female vocalist with them on the 27, as several are now being auditioned.

NROTC Notes

Trainee Officers To Be Selected

Seniors to Receive Company Posts in Villanova

The NROTC offifice has announced that appointments this week will be made of student officers from the midshipmen ranks.

Selected will be a company commander with the rank of NROTC lieutenant, three platoon commanders, one a NROTC lieutenant (jg), the remaining two NROTC ensign, and various NROTC chief petty officers and NROTC petty officers. The assignees to the various positions will retain them until next semester.

Captain Thomas USN, Commanding Officer of the Naval Unit at Villanova has returned to the campus after an absence of a week. The captain was on an inspection tour of nearby colleges which have an aviation reserve officer unit. From the tour the commanding officerwi ll record observations applicable when such a unit is introduced at Villanova.

The enrolled naval personnel have recently completed examinations pertinent to their assigned class work. The tests were one group of three to be presented during the current semester to develop a reference file of the scholastic record of the midshipmen.

The Navy office has announced that recent contention over possession of the field adjacent to the rear of Mendel Hall will end soon. Many times drills of the trainees and intramural football contests were scheduled there simultaneously. This week, however, will see the termination of drills for the semester.

P.K.P. Meets

Fraternity Still Open to Underclass Engineering Students

By LOUIS BERRETA

Phi Kappa Phi, the Engineering society of Villanova, opened this years' activities with an inaugural meeting held in 215 Mendel Hall on Tuesday evening, October 29, 1946 at 8 o'clock. The gathering gave members and aspirants an opportunity to freely discuss plans for the coming college year. Rules of the society were explained to the newcoming candidates, as well as the announcements for socials and the approximate date of initiations which are expected to be held during the first week of December.

Phi Kappa Phi, the only Villanova fraternity open to underclass engineering students, can still accomodate any students who would like to enroll but who have missed the oportunity. Those interested should contact Joe Brogan at the Villanovan office.

The below mentioned men have been nominated to offices in the Phi Kappa Phi Fraternity. Their names are herewith presented, in form, subject to approval:

Secretary—R. Higgs.
Student Council—R. Kasper.
Sgt. at Arms—N. McGee.

Mask and Wig Show

Tickets are now on sale for the U. of Penn's annual Mask and Wig Club show. For those who may not know, this dramatic fraternity has for the past fifty years put on a musical comedy with an all male cast. Quite a Philly tradition and always well worth seeing. The title of the show (which really never matters) is "Chris Crosses," and the plot (which doesn't matter either) is reported to concern Christopher Columbus and his romantic tribulations with an Indian version of Lena the Hyena. All that serves a vehicle for good songs and good comedy. It starts Friday, Nov. 22, and will run for eight days at the Erlanger Theatre, 21st and Market Sts.

Soloist with Orchestra

At the Academy of Music there is the PhiladelhiaOrchestra on Friday and Saturday, and the Metropolitan Opera Company on Tuesday. The Orchestra's program will feature Miss Ellabelle Davis, young soprano discovered by Eugene Ormandy while he was on tour in South America; and Zoltan Kodaly, Hungarian composer, who will conduct his own composition.

Mendelssohn—Symphony No. 4 in A major (Italian symphony), Eugene Ormandy conducting Arias by Miss Davis.

Mozart—"Ah lo sol") from The Magic Flute.

Massenet — "Il est doux, Il est bon" from Herodiade.

Verdi—"Ritorno al Vincitor" from Aida.

Aida, Ormandy conducting.

Kodaly — Peacock variations (based on Hungarian folk-song), Zoltan Kodaly conducting.

Ibert — Escales, Ormandy conducting.

The opera for Tuesday next will be Wagner's "Siegfried." Tickets are hard to get, so you had better try now for this one and all future presentations during the season. Tickets for all Academy performances can be obtained from Haly's, 1505 Walnut St., starting at $1.30.

Grieg Made Popular

For those who like their classical music in a light vein there is "Song of Norway," a musical based on the life of Edvard Grieg, which features his compositions and is playing now at the Forrest Theatre, 11th and Walnut Sts. A matinee performance is scheduled for Thanksgiving. Tickets are from $1.30 up.

The Buck Ridge Ski Club will hold its regular monthly meeting on Thursday, November 21st, at 8:15 P. M. at the Optimist Club, 7027 Garrett Rd., Upper Darby. An all-Swiss movie program is scheduled with refreshments served after a short business meeting. Guests are welcome any time.

Ice hockey has started at the Arena, 4530 Market St. There will be a game this Saturday night. Tickets start at $1.30.

We end our column this week with an appeal to the student body to pass on to us any information that might be of general interest in the theatrical and entertainment world. We will endeavor to print any such information if it falls in this category of general interest.

Sometimes a fellow gets to wondering just how his country, the United States, with its highly touted freedom of opportunity and its equality, can nurture within its borders those elements which contribute to the following headline: ".....University warns .....State College against the use of two negro players in their forthcoming game."

That these sentiments strongly persist in that particular section of the country we are not surprised but the part that hurts is that we find similar opinions so prevalent among our everyday friends and even our fellow students.

At the mere hint of a discussion of the "Negro question" probably many readers instinctively, and with a vengeance, may switch their attention to some other portion of the paper. But our motive in writing of this particular subject is not that of a pious scolding, accompanied by a prayer for a "return tto the paths of righteousness;" on the contrary, our desire is that you, the reader, consider with us, for a moment, the supposed objections posed by those who would strip the Negro of all semblance of equality of opportunity.

Witness the folowing expression of opinion concerning the Negro's status: "It would mean national suicide to give any sort of equality of opportunity to the Negro. As a race they are emotionally unstable. Just look at the frenzied pitch of excitement which they attain at those "Amen, Hallelujah" meetings of theirs."

That these "put one hand on the radio and the other hand on your misery" prayer meetings are held and broadcast for all to hear we cannot deny; but can we, from these singular instances, form such

Student Council Meets; Reports to Student Body

"Action Being Taken" by Authorities on Recent Problems

Student Council members, at the regular monthly meeting last Tuesday, took under advisement problems that students and organizations had presented to their representatives.

The primary question brought up by several representatives was the food. Officers of the council, after hearing several complaints, took the problem to the authorities, and it is being investigated at the present time.

The question of the Sophomore Cotillion was proposed,and a tentative date assigned pending the completion of the temporary housing units, and approval by the Dean of Men.

Direct Action

It was suggested and approved that henceforth many problems will be taken directly to the Chairman of the Council instead of waiting for a formal meeting for their presentation. Due to the heavy class schedules being handled by the members of the Council, it is difficult at times to get the complete group together. In the future, any problems that the officers feel can be handled by them, without a formal meeting, will be so handled.

Drawing-Dance Is First Social

$10,500 in Prizes To Be Given Away at Library Affair

Villanova's first dance of the school year will be held on Thanksgiving Eve, November 27, in the Field House. Music will be supplied by the Villanovans from 8:00 P. M. to 12 midnight.

During the two intermissions, drawings will be made for the $10,500 in prizes. The $100 prizes will be drawn during the first intermission, and the tickets will be retained for the drawings of the $1000 and $5000 prizes which will take place during the second intermission.

The names of the winners, together with the names of the sellers of the winning tickets, will be posted on large cards displayed at the dance.

Pictures Displayed

On the stage of the field house two large pictures of Villanova will be displayed. One of Villanova in 1843 and the other of Villanova in 1943; commemorating the progress and the development of Villanova through the century.

The dance in informal and tickets may be purchased from any member of the committee or at the door for $2.00 plus tax. All the proceeds will go to the fund for the building of the new Library. The Villanovans, Senior class and publicity, have donated their time to make the dance a success.

Fr. Daniel Falvey, O.S.A., expressed the hope that the freshman will support this drive as much as the Alumni. The prizes and expenses have been met and a profit of $5000 has been estimated.

Deadline Nears

Although the returns have been poor, they are expected to gain momentum as the deadline approaches. Fr. Falvey has reiterated that this Library will be most beneficial to the Freshman because it will be built before they graduate.

Returns may be made to any priest or to the Library at any time and extra books can also be obtained at the same place.

Down Gators, 27-20 for Sixth Victory of Season

Rogers Scores Twice in Gaining 91 Yards; Olivar Keeps Ahead in Win Column; Seniors Standouts in Final Bid

Last Saturday night the Villanova Wildcats closed the door on their 1946 football campaign with a 27-20 victory over the Florida Alligators. The balance sheet shows a favorable six victories against four setbacks for the season's effort. It marks the fourth straight year that Olivar-coached teams have come out on top against a schedule of top flight opponents.

Bob David kicked off for the Cats and Zimba, streaking down the field, met the ball carrier to whom he hit him with a driving tackle. Zimba recovered on the 'Gator 2. A Rogers to Capriotti pass was good for a first down on the 14. On the next play Joe Rogers tore off his own right tackle and went the 14 yards to paydirt, but the play was nullified for holding. Pushed back to the 29 by the penalty Andy Gordon was smothered by the 'Gator line when he faded to pass.

'Gators March 60 Yards

Capriotti angled a boot out of bounds on the 18. When Gilmartin's third down kick was dropped by "Cap," "Brute" Williams, 'Gator end, pounced on the ball on the Florida 40. Taking advantage of the break, the Florida team drove 60 yards to score in 11 plays. Vaccaro traveled the last three and tallied at 9:05 of the first period. Sutherland's try for the extra point was wide and the 'Gators led 6-0.

Later in the first period Florida was penalized back to their own two yard line for unnecessary roughness and Villanova was threatening when Martin's short kick went out on the 29. A fourht down pass, Gordon to Brown, was deflected out of Dan's hands in the end zone on a diving save by Forbes, 'Gator halfback.

Doherty Intercepts

Bill Doherty, who played a sensational defensive game all night, intercepted a Beldon's pass on Florida's 38. From there a determined Wildcat machine rolled on to score. Bud Kane threw a "must" block to spring Capriotti loose to the 20. Rogers and Pasquariello pounded to the 5, from where Rogers scored at 1:45 of the second period. Siano added the extra point. Villanova 7, Florida 6.

The Southerners, striving for their first win, marched upfield, following David's kickoff, from their 8 to midfield. "Big Bill" Lilienthal broke through at this point to dump Beldon for a ten yard loss and stymie the drive.

A partially blocked kick was taken by Bill Zehler on the 50 and another sustained drive negotiated the distance for the second Villanova tally. Tom McCarthy picked up 16 yards to the 34 and Bob Polidor swept end for 10 more. After one play netted a yard, Polidor slipped through tackle to the 15, Tom McCarthy was mauled as he was hit back on the 20 and another unnecessary roughness penalty carried the Cats to the 5. The 'Gator line held for two downs, but Ralph Pasquariello plunged for the final yard on third down to increase the visitor's margin. Siano again made good on his placement conversion.

Griffin Goes 87 Yards . . . .

Bob Griffin almost pulled a "Polidor Special" on the next kick-off. Joe Scarcelli was the last man who could possibly cut off the fleet footed Griffin, and he hauled him down on the 'Gator 45. Florida found itself on the Villanova 29 yard line following a Wilcat fumble a few minutes later. A Capriotti interception on the 5 and a runback to the 18, aided by an uplifting block by Bob David checked the threat. The half ended at this point.

In the third period Capriotti kicked from his own 40 to the Leighton Boots Extra Point . . .

Kittens Win 14-6 to Take Second Place

O'Dorisio Again Paces Lightweights in Win Over Cornell; Regan and Roane Score for Victors

By JIM PLUNKETT

The Villanova Kittens ended a successful football season by defeating Cornell by the score of 14-6 last Saturday at the Main Line stadium. This victory enabled the Kittens to gain a second place tie with Rutgers University in the Eastern Intercollegiate 150 lb. football league.

In the first period neither team could get started because of repeated fumbles. The only sustained drive of the period was a march by Cornell to the Villanova 25 yard line only to lose the ball on downs.

Regan Outraces Secondary

Action really commenced late in the first period when the Wildcat cubs, after receiving a punt on their own 40 reeled off two successive first downs to move the ball to the Cornell 34 yard line. After having two line plays stopped, Gabby O'Dorisio faded and flipped a long pass to Regan, who, outracing the safety man caught the ball on the 3 yard line. He stepped over the goal line for the first score of the game.

Knapp made good his conversion attempt.

Villanova 7, Cornell 0.

Cornell lost no time in getting back in the ball game when Corwith, whose running was spectacular all afternoon, returned Knapp's kickoff 18 yards to the 38. On the very next play Brown threw a short, hard pass into the Villanova secondary to Corwith who raced down the sidelines 55 yards for Cornell's only score.

Shawski's attempted conversion was low.

Villanova 7, Cornell 6.

Trying hard to score before the first half ended, the Kittens drove from their own 30 yard line to Cornell's 35 only to have a pass intercepted by Biggs. Coach Bob Cullen's charges then started a 55 yard march, featured by Corwith's (there's that man again) 37 yard run, only to have time run out on them with the ball resting on the 10 yard line.

Roane Goes 90 Yards

After an exchange of punts, Villanova started to roll again, sparked by the brilliant running of Roane. Roane bucked the center of the line for 3 to the 44 yard line. An offside penalty put the ball back on the 39. After O'Dorisio picked up 1 yard on an end around, Roane streaked off tackle for 30 yards to Cornell's 30. Using the same play, Roane broke through the line for 9 yards more. O'Dorisio plunged to the 19 yard line for a first down. The Cornell line tightened, forcing Villanova to take to the air. Shawski intercepted an attempted forward pass on his own 12 and returned it to the 28 yard line. A pass from Brown to Corwith was good for 12 yards but on the next play Weissenborn fumbled and the Kittens recovered.

Taking the ball four straight times, Roane blasted his way to a first down on the 31 yard line. There the Cornell defense tightened and four straight passes were knocked down, giving the ball to the "Little Red."

Farrell, on a fake reverse, cracked off tackle for 12 yards to the Cornell 43. On the next play he raced around end to the Villanova 10 yard line, only to have the play called back because of a clipping penalty. Still not dishcartened, Farrell streaked around end for 8 yards to the 50 yard line. The kittens' line tightened and Villanova took over on their own 41.

O'Dorisio Passes for Final

Roane made 12 yards on a line plunge. O'Dorisio moved the ball 5 yards to the Cornell 44. In two tries Roane made another first down moving the ball to the 33 yard line. The next play was a replica of the first scoring play

Basketball Team Getting in Shape

Coach Severance Aided by "Major" McDonnell; Joe Lord, High Scoring Record Holder to Captain Team

By DAN REDMOND

Faced with the task of starting right at the bottom again this year, Al Severance, Villanova basketball coach, expresses the usual pessimism of the members of his profession when asked about his prospects for the coming season.

With only three members of his 1945-46 first string aggregation on hand, the Judge from the upper Main Line must count heavily on the ability of his frosh to stack up against seasoned competition. Since the latter is about as unpredictable as the winning tote tickets for the daily double at the local racetrack, it seems that the greying court mentor is justified in maintaining a view that is anything but assured.

Lord To Captain Five

Returning for his last fling on the Villanova hardwood is Captain Joe Lord, one of the few tested and known quantities. Last year, in spite of a pair of bad feet which kept him out of a good portion of each game, Joe poured 303 points through the hoops to set the all-time Villanova scoring record for one season. This year, with his feet in good shape, Lord should be of even greater value to the Wildcats as a team player.

Joe Brehmer, whose late season spurt last year gave him the team's second highest scoring honors, is back but has not as yet reached the plane of play that typified his performances last February. Coach Severance hopes that the ex-marine from East St. Louis, Illinois will have closely approached his peak in time for the opener against Rider on Dec. 13.

Ollie's Comments

The Florida game furnished a pleasant closing touch to an interesting and thrilling season. The "Gators," despite the fact that they haven't won a game yet this year, had a good team and our boys had to play at very top form throughout.

Soon after the game started, Capriotti found we could run fairly easily against the Southerners and soon had Joe Rogers scoring. However, one of our over-enthusiastic linemen was detected "pushing" so the score did not count. We didn't get our hands on the ball again until after Florida scored but when we did Cap, Joe and Big Ralph drove in for one touchdown; then Bill Doherty conducted Bob Polidor, Tom McCarthy and Zip Zehler downfield to set up another. John Siano kicked successfully after each marker and the extra points were comforting each time the Floridans struck back.

John had nine consecutive conversions until his last shot was blocked.

The big thrill of the game was Griffin's runback of a punt for 87 yards. We knew their punt return stunt was on but we were unable to stop the nimble youngster as he put on a great broken field run dangerously close to the sideline.

The outstanding feature about our team in this game was it ability to score everytime that Florida threatened to catch us. The boys came back and put on another drive capped by Joe Roger's forty yard run. The final touchdown was made by Sam Costantino on a grand catch in the end zone on a buttonhook pass from Andy Gordon.

Roy Wolf, Florida coach, and the Southern sportswriters were highly impressed by Andy Gordon's ball handling in the "T" which made our ground attack the most deceptive they had seen this year. The Florida fans didn't seem to appreciate these efforts as their pet cry "Gator ball, 'Gator ball," pounded incessantly in our ears. The squad proved that it was Wildcat bait out there on the field.

As this column winds up the season I want to publicly pay tribute to the entire squad for its fine fighting spirit, whether ahead or behind. They played together with fine cooperation and any success we had this year was due in greater part to these two factors. I sincerely hope that several of the individual members are recognized publicly by sports writers because we have at least one end, one guard, and two backs who are as good as any we've seen this year.

Now if Army doesn't lose this year, next year we. . .

—Jordan Olivar.

'Gators' 13. Griffin hauled in the pigskin and after a thrilling, weaving run, faked and squirmed his way through the entire Villanova team to score after an 87 yard jaunt. Robinson threw a block for him on his own 30 and guard Rayborn cleared the last two men on a nice bit of downfield blocking. Placement was good.

Rogers Crosses for Third

Pasquariello took the kickoff on the 15 and returned it to the 28 and another march was started. After Capriotti gained 5 yards Rogers picked up 10 to the 43. Gordon's pass to Bud Kane was completed to the 'Gators' 45 for another first down. Two plays later Joe Rogers went outside tackle for 43 yards and the third Blue and White touchdown. Ciano again converted and Villanova led 21-13.

At the start of the final period Villanova drove 65 yards in ten plays for the clincher. Capriotti and Rogers alternated to move the ball from the Villanova 35 to the Florida 18. Capriotti was caught from behind by Parker as he tried to go all the way from the 40. Rogers made a first down on the 8 and then the Florida line braced. On the fourth down Andy Gordon rifled a pass between Parker and Griffin on the goal line and into the arms of Sam Constantino. Rayborn blocked Siano's try for extra point and John's streak was ended at 9 straight.

Brilliant Passing

In the final death - rattle drive Beidon, 'Gator quarterback, completed 12 out of 14 passes to cover 83 yards. The payoff heave was a five yard toss to Bill Huntsinger in the end zone. Sutherland split the uprights with 20 seconds remaining in the ball game.

Bill Sullivan, Vince McPeak, and Sig Gory all played their final game for the Blue and White and turned in fine performances.

inch Ed Reybitz, has been hampered in his conditioning by injuries, but when he is ready his height should aid immeasurably against taller opponents. Two subs from the '45-'46 squad, Dick Rice and Norm Kline are also available, but class conflicts have retarded their progress. It was Kline's last-minute field goal that won the final game (Albright) for the Villanovans last year.

Three of the present prospects have opposed Severance-coached teams in the past. Jimmy Bunn was at Albright in 1942 when he almost beat Villanova singlehandedly with a succession of field goals that belied the principle that you "can't make 'em all."

Former Foes Fill Roles

As recently as last year Brooks Ricca and Bob Schwille, both as members of service fives, visited Villanova. Schwille was the seventh man on the crack Valley Forge General Hospital quintet. Ricca jumped center for Bainbridge's Commodores and turned in an impressive showing in his team's victory over the Wildcats. He is a local boy, having attended Roman Catholic in Philadelphia.

Two newcomers who have shown enough to be rated contenders for first team berths are Leo Wolf, All-state forward from Trenton Catholic, and Dave Morrison of Union City, New Jersey. With the addition of a little experience to their abilities they should be able to take their places beside past Wildcat "greats" in the Villanova archives.

Raiken Holds Record

Besides the above-mentioned, three other Philadelphia boys dot the Main Liners' roster. John Blong from Yeadon, Tom Sabol, all-around athlete at Southern, and Shy Raiken, who set a Public League record in scoring 47 points in a single game last year, are all sure to see plenty of action during the coming campaign. Raiken was high scorer in a recent intra-squad scrimmage with 28 points.

Up-state Pennsylvania is represented by Jack Crossin, erstwhile Luzerne star, who is a younger brother of Francis "Chink" Crossin, standout scorer at Penn a few years ago. Jack's exploits outshone those of brother "Chink" in high school as evidenced by the fact that the former broke all of his brother's records at Luzerne.

Keen Williams, six-footer from Joe Brehmer's hometown (E. S. Louis), may take a while to catch on to the system but he is a comer. Substitutes Bradburne, Barry, Farley, Stupka, Suita, and Zizac hope to push some of their more heralded teammates for positions.

Bob "Major" McDonnell, the mighty mite of the wooden ways, has been helping Al Severance with the team. His enthusiasm, cooperation, and minute instructions on fundamentals have been of invaluable aid to Severance and the latter has been high in his commendation of the "Maj" as a source of pep and spirit to the team. "Major" has a fine working knowledge of the Villanova system of play and this was one of the main reasons he was able to overcome a height handicap to gain a varsity position on some of the fine Villanova teams of the past.

Doms Hold Lead Over Mendel in Intramurals.

Knecht and Scarnberg Pace League Leaders; Final Game of Season on Thursday

By PAT SPLANE

With the closing of the second wek of the Intramurals, The Doms are still leading the field, with Mendel in second place, fighting to overtake them. Scharnberg to Knecht is the deadly passing combination that worked quite often this week to add to the Doms total score. In losing to Good Counsel on Thursday, the Doms gave Mendel a chance to catch them, but in Friday's game that team failed to capitalize on their opportunity.

In the most crucial game of the season, the Doms beat Mendel in the closing minutes of the game on Friday to keep first place in the Intramural race. Trailing by a 6-0 score, which the league's second-place team earned early in the game, Scharnberg to Knecht clicked to tie up the game with less than 15 minutes to play. Ten minutes later the Doms again took the ball from Mendel and in three plays pushed to the opponents' 20-yard line. On the next play, Scharnberg to Knecht worked again, with Knecht in the end zone, to give the Doms the winning touchdown. The final score was: Doms 12, Mendel 6.

The Doms started this week the way they finished last week. An 18-2 win over the Gym, with Eliot scoring twice on Knecht's passes and O'Neil scoring on a pass from Scharnberg, showed the aerial strength the Doms held. The Gym's two points came when Scharnberg was caught in his own end zone trying to pass.

On Tuesday they beat Fedigan by the top-heavy score of 24-0. The game featured a 70-yard run by Kempf. The latter part of the game was highlighted by the passing of Scharnberg. Kempf and Eliot both scored on his passes.

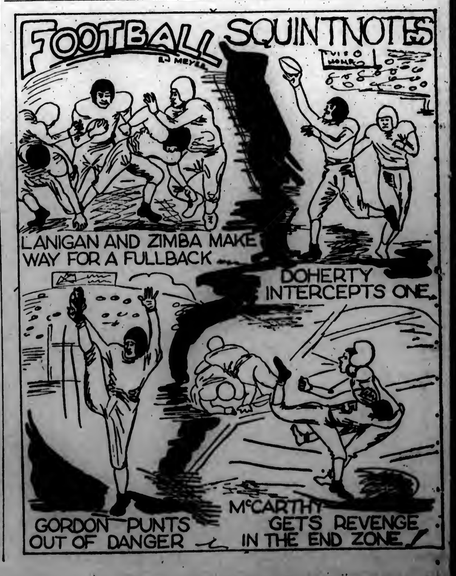
Good Counsel Downs Leaders

On Wednesday, the Doms took their game with the Day Students on a forfeit. On Thursday, they were toppled from the undefeated list by the low-standing Good Counsel. Mid-way through the see-sawing game, with neither team able to click, Dougherty of Good Counsel took a pass in the shadow of the Doms goal posts and crossed the double line with no one near him. The rest of the game saw a desperate Doms team trying to come from behind, but they failed to do so and the final score was: Good Counsel 6, Doms 0.

The traditional Mendel score of 12-6 was broken Tuesday by Austin. With the exception of one tie and their forfeit win over the Day Students, Mendel has won or lost every game by a 12-6 score, their two losses coming at the hands of the Doms.

One Tuesday, Mendel got their first score when Austin was caught in their own end zone on a bad pass from center. A little later they scored again when Altman intercepted a pass and raced to paydirt untouched. The score at half time was: Mendel 8, Austin 0. After the changing of goals the first half was played again. A bad pass from center gave two points to Austin, and, shortly afterwards, Law scored on a pass to tie the game. The final score was: Mendel 8, Austin 8. Thursday again saw the one other varaition from the usual Mendel score. Their game with the Day Students was won by a forfeit.

The highest scoring game this week came Wendesday when Fedigan ran hay-wire in their game with the Gym. McNulty to Lynch started things off early to give Fedigan the lead. A few minutes later Schaub scored for the Gym to tie things up. From then on it was a one-sided game with the Gym being outclassed right down to the final gun. Collinson blocked a kick and recovered it in the end zone to give Fedigan the lead, and then O'Brien scored twice in a row on McNulty's passes. Later Lynch took Knabb's aerial and reached the promised land for the fifth touchdown. Lynch ran over again in the closing minutes to make the final score: 36-6. Although the highest scoring game this week, it only ranked second for the season, as Austin's win over the Gym 48-6 last week was a higher score by two touchdowns.



With the Intramural race going into the last lap, the Doms look like they will surely be the plaque-winning team. Mendel is the only other team in the running, but they are in no position to help themselves by knocking off the Doms as those two teams do not meet again.

Attention Bowlers

An Intramural Bowling League will get under way next Tuesday November 26, at the Ardmore alleys. Arnold Keane, day-hop, is supervising the league and reports that all arrangements have been completed. This afternoon all those interested in bowling are requested to report to the Ardmore alleys where a handicap average will be determined from the results of three games.

Monetary prizes will be awarded at the end of the season. High scorer for a single game, high scorer for three game total, individual high season total, and high team average, will share in a breakdown of the prize money.

A faculty team is being formed and this promises to be a feature in the league. From all reports Mr. Dougherty, C and F is the man to watch (is he good or does he cheat???). It has been suggested by Keane that each hall and each fraternity should form a team to supplement the two day-hop teams already formed.

SEEN
From the Sidelines

ART SPECTOR, former Wildcat basketball star, is at present player-coach for the Celtics in the Basketball Association of America. He was high scorer in the first game this season.

DICK GRAY, Villanova basketball captain in '41-'42 and Bob Kelty, co-captain in '42-'43, are now playing for Newark in a semi-pro league.

ALEX BELL, teammate of Coach Jordan Olivar and Art Raimo on the 1937 Wildcat team, is now doing graduate work at U. of Southern California and coaching a high school team in Santa Monica.

Browning Ross to Run in Sugar Bowl

Browning Ross, Villanova freshman and track star from Woodbury, New Jersey, has received an invitation to run in the steeple chase event in the Sugar Bowl. He will be representing Villanova in that New Year's Day classic which is the big event of the year in the South. His high school record has been more than enough to merit him this invitation. His running for the Cats also shows that he is truly deserving of this honor.

His best recorded time in a meet for the mile was 4:23. Here at Villanova the only running he has done has been as the pace-setter for the Villanova distance men in the meet with Fort Dix, and in the I. C. 4A meet in New York Over a course of three-and-one-half miles, he led the field with a large margin, and finished in 16:59.9 when the Cats beat a more experienced Fort Dix team.

In the I.C.4A meet in Van Cortlandt Park, New York, he again led the Villanovans; and, although, not fairing too well in his first 5-mile race, the 19-year old Woodbury graduate showed great promise for the future.

In The Sportlight

By JIM LYONS

Once again the Sportlight introduces its readers to two of Villanova's sports celebrities. This week the hapless victims of the third degree are Dan Brown and Bob Polidor, end and halfback respectively, of this year's Wildcat eleven. The third degree it was, too. Some fellows just won't talk about their experiences.

Danny is a twenty-year old Philadelphian, who began his football career at West Catholic in the same city. While attending West Catholic, from 1940 to 1944, Danny compiled an enviable scholastic and athletic record. For two years Dan was All-Catholic and All-Scholastic end. In his senior year he captained the Burr eleven to ten consecutive victories and the Philadelphia City Title.

Thus far, Dan's football background has been emphasized because it is through football that Villanovans have met him. But Danny is a versatile athlete who is as much at home on a basketball court as he is on the gridiron. In his junior and senior year, Dan, who is 6'1", was the regular center for a good Burr quintet. Both years these teams finished first in regular season standings, but they lost out in the Shaughnessy Playoffs. Dan, although not a high scorer, is an aggressive basketball player, a good floorman, and a terrific man under the boards. Dan intends to try out for the Villanova club after football season.

Danny graduated from West in January, 1944, and on February 24, he began a 27 month tour of duty in the Army. His experiences carried him into action in France, Belgium and Germany. While in Belgium, Danny captained the battalion team of the 761st Field Artillery to eight wins and two losses. Dan's weight, while in the Army, reached a peak of 212 lbs., but Danny feels that his present weight of 185 lbs. is his best playing weight. Soon after his return to "the States" on May 22, 1946, Danny matriculated at Villanova in the Commerce and Finance school.

When football candidates were called, Danny made his bid for the left end spot, at which position he has started nearly every game this season. Although Danny is a ferocious tackler, and in general a good defensive end, it is his offensive end play that has caused several Philadelphia sports writers to refer to him as an "All-American aspirant". Danny has caught all 18 of the passes thrown near him this season, and his downfield blocking is sensational. Two of these completions were good for touchdowns against Kings Point and Holy Cross.

Dan Brown is a name that the football world is going to hear a great many times in the next few years.

When we entered room 101 Austin, otherwise known as "Al's Tonsoral Parlor", Bob Polidor, the fleetfooted halfback, was having his hair done by Alphonse Zimba, the noted hair stylists. We wanted to start the interview immediately, but Monsieur Zimba insists on complete quiet when he is working. After the operation, Bob was a little weak from the loss of blood, but he modestly answered all inquiries.

Bob began his football career while attending Ben Franklin High School in Philadelphia. He was tailback on the '39 and '40 Poor Richard eleven, although he weighed but 150 lbs. In addition to starring on the gridiron, the South Philadelphia boy played third base on the ball team, and sprinted and broad jumped on the track team. College football scouts passed up the 5'9", 150 lb. halfback, but Bob's baseball ability won him a scolarship to Temple University.

However, Bob's football aspirations were undaunted, and he crossed up the experts by winning a varsity spot on the Owl eleven the first year he was elegible.

In 1943, Polidor was sent to

BOB POLIDOR

Rochester University as a Marine V-12 Trainee. While there, he played varsity football and won the 175 lb. boxing championship. Then followed a year in the Pacific aboard the light cruiser Wilkes-Barre. Bob saw action in the Philippines, Iwo Jima and Okinawa. Bill Dost, Wildcat fullback, was a shipmate of Polidor's on the Wilkes-Barre. Bob concluded his three years in the service at the Dover Ammunition Depot where he played football under two Villanovans, Lt. John Dover and Capt. Andy Chisick, center of the '37 and '38 Wildcats. Happily for us, they talked Bob into entering Villanova last March.

Polidor has played great football this season and he is a great favorite with the fans. Bob scored gainst Marquette, Boston College, twice against Miami (one a never-to-be-forgotten, record breaking 109-yard kickoff return) and once against Detroit. On the defense he is a great pass defender and he often drags down runners from behind. After the football season, Bob intends to try out for the outfield on the Wildcat nine. Bob, who is 24 years old and Sophomore 11 in the Education School, is happily married, and the proud father of two children, Robert Jr., age 3, and Diana Lea, just two weeks old. His wife, Dorothy, is his favorite rooter.

Bob is a versatile athlete who is carefully qualifying himself for a coaching career. A great number of Villanovans will be pulling for you, Bob.

an all - encompassing prejudice against the Negro? To do so is comparable to a foreigner who, not familiar with the character of the people of the United States, writes the following review of American character and emotions: "The people of the United States are a group of wild-eyed, unstable, oft-bitten snake worshippers who bear no semblance to rational beings; and I am willing to vouch for that statement. After all, I've visited Kentucky and have seen it with my own eyes."

Is this "snake-worshipping" view of the American character valid; is it true? Certainly not; no more true than is the hasty generalization that Negros, by nature, are emotionally unstable.

As for the objections that the Negro habitually lives in squalor, that his sections are the "run-down" sections of the city, these objections are really nothing more than self accusations. You and I are objecting to conditions which, in very many instances, we ourselves have imposed upon the colored man by our reluctance to recognize even the smallest amount of equality for opportunity and initiative.

The Negro has proven that he can be a good citizen, that he can manifest the most noble and fine characteristics and abilities, if given half a chance. Such names as Carver, Anderson and Robeson bear this out. Think back on the colored boys you've known through school contacts. Have they flopped down on their knees and furiously waved their arms at the first Hallelujah? Certainly not. And those who do are those who have been deprived of any decent education; any fair chance to develop themselves, by people like you and me. Think it over!

Thanksgiving Eve Dance Opens Social Season

Symphonic Band To Give Concert This Evening

Rosemont College Scene of Initial Recital; Rev. Ralph Handran, O.S.A., Will Conduct

At 8 o'clock tonight the newly reorganized Villanova symphonic band will present its first post-war informal concert in the Rosemont College gymnasium.

A program of classical and standard music which will include the following pieces: The National Emblem March, a selection of Irish Tunes, Anitra's Dance, a Bassology, Body and Soul, Wanting You, Ave Maria, the Thunderer March, Three Trombonists, Belle of the Ball, a service number, Our Director March, and the Rosemont Alma Mater will be conducted by Rev. Ralph Handran, O.S.A.

This initial concert marks Fr. Handran's return as director of the symphonic band after three years of service in the Chaplain's Corps, USNR. During his eventful career in the Navy, Fr. Handran saw action aboard the aircraft carrier Cowpens, which was in the Pacific theater of operations up to the end of the war.

Highlighting the program will be Dave English playing "Ave Maria." James Duffy, Bill Chauvenet and George Beltzer will render the "Three Trombonists."

To add to the novelty of the service number, which is dedicated to the Armed Forces, the ex-GI members of the band will rise as their respective service themes are played.

A tentative schedule of concerts is being completed now. These presentations will be held at Immaculata College and Chestnut Hill College before the Christmas holidays.

Program Ready For Freshman Debating Group

Kucha and Schollmeyer Named Administrators of Group

Members of both the Varsity and Freshman debating teams held a joint meeting in the Commerce and Finance Building on Wednesday evening, November 20.

Rev. William J. Krupa, O.S.A., moderator, who guided the opening phases of the meeting, appointed Edward Schollmeyer Jr. and John Kucha as temporary administrators of the Freshman group. Permanent officers will be chosen at a later date.

Fr. Krupa stated that the Freshman debating team is a stepping stone to the Varsity team and added that the program for the former group is designed to reveal and develop the capabilities of the new students in the field of public speaking and debate.

After the organizational discussion Fr. Krupa gave many hints on successful debating. Sound logic, as a potent weapon for a good debator, was stressed as a prime factor.

With the announcement that debates against Ursinus and Princeton are scheduled for the month of December, the meeting was adjourned.

Good Counsel in Return Lead

With an amazing percentage of 126% Good Counsel Hall has moved into the lead in returns for the Library Fund Raffle with less than a week to go for the drawing.

Father Falvey is pleased with the late returns as all Halls have shown great increases over their last standings. This report is made as of Saturday, Nov. 23.

Delurey Hall, 110% and Austin Hall, 104.8% are the other two halls which have gone over their quota. O'Dwyer with 95.2% shows every indication of going above their quota.

The Standings

Good Counsel	126%
Delurey	110%
Austin	104.8%
O'Dwyer	95.2%
Alumni	57%
Mendel	63.4%

Alumni Schedule Dance on 6th Dec.

Frank Lenoir to Supply Music

The Villanova Alumni Club of Philadelphia will present an informal dance on Friday, December 6, at the Hi-Top Country Club in Drexel Hill with Frank Lenoir and his orchestra providing music for the occasion.

William A. Lamb, '45, and William E. Connor, '45, are co-chairmen of the dance. Through the efforts of these men, literature and tickets for the affair have been sent to all alumni residing in the Philadelphia and suburban area. Subscription price is three dollars.

The dance is presented as another opportunity for the alumni to revive or continue college friendships and to perpetuate college spirit.

Under the able leadership of Mr. William Friel, '43, the alumni association has greatly increased its activity in recent months. Dances and dinners have been held frequently and the association is growing very rapidly.

If previous showings are any yardstick, the coming dance will be well attended and well worth attending.

Sam Canning to Head Belle Air Ball Committee

Previous Experience Will Prove Valuable in Highlight of Senior Social Season

Sam Canning, senior in the School of Commerce and Finance, has been named chairman of the Belle Air Ball committee, according to an announcement released today by Daniel L. Redmond, president of the senior class.

Committees to be Named

Committee heads and members will be chosen this week, as will the chairman and committee of the Dinner Dance. Their names will be released as soon as the selection has been approved by the college authorities.

When announcing his decision, Redmond stated, "My choice is primarily founded on Sam's experience and proven ability. He has shown himself more than qualified to do a good job."

Canning, who has returned to the campus after serving as a captain in the Air Forces during the war, has taken an active part in all phases of campus activity. He has, only recently, been appointed photography editor of the senior year book.

Sam Canning's experience in arranging dances as a member of the Soph Cotillion and Junior Prom committees will undoubtedly prove to be of immeasurable value in this, his greatest undertaking.

Precedes Dinner Dance

Appointment of the dance head has been made early this year, in accordance with the usual custom, in order that the chairman and his committee may have ample time to make all arrangements. The Belle Air Ball, highlight of the senior social calendar, is scheduled this year for Friday evening, January 17th in the Field House. Held on the day preceding the senior Dinner-Dance, the Ball marks the beginning of the last social weekend sponsored by the senior class.

The newly appointed dance chairman and members of the dance committee will announce their band selection in the very near future it was announced today. Sam Canning also made it public that he and the committee will endeavor to sign a "name band." With the spirit and enthusiasm this group will strive to make it the best Belle-Air ball.

Canning, in a recent election, was voted into the position of Student Council representative which post was vacant this Fall. Canning announced yesterday that plans for the dance are already under way.

Library Fund Drawing To Be Held During Intermission

Field House Site of Dance; 'Villanovans' to Serenade; $10,500 in Cash and Other Prizes To Be Awarded

$10,500 in prizes will be awarded at Villanova's first dance of the 1946-47 social calender to be held in the Field House tomorrow evening, November 27, beginning at 8 P. M. Joseph Kerigan, Chairman of this hop, sponsored by the Senior Class, has announced that the "Villanovans" will provide the music.

The drawings will take place at 11 P. M. and the winners' names along with the sellers of the tickets, will be posted on the stage. Rev. Frances X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., President of Villanova College, and Mr. Gilligan, Chairman of the Friends of the Villanova College Library, will act as judges during the awards.

Movies of Villanova football games will be shown in an adjoining room for the benefit of those who wish to see them.

The dance is informal and tickets may be purchased from any member of the committee or at the door. The price of admission is $2 plus tax. The entire proceeds of the dance will go to the fund for the building of a new library.

Rev. Daniel Falvey, O.S.A., has announced that Major McDonald will act as Master of Ceremonies and that additional chances may be purchased or returns made until 10:45 P. M. of that night.

The two student prizes for selling the most tickets for the Library Fund, $100 and $50, plus two tickets to the Army-Navy game next week, will be announced at intermission time.

The Field House will be decorated by the Seniors under the di-

Air Group Seeks Flying Contacts

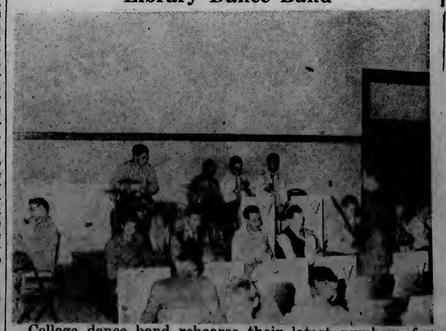
Investigating Committees Appointed; New Members Invited

Committees for the investigation of a local airport, federal agencies, and veterans agencies were formed this week during the organization process of the Villanova Aeronautics Club.

On Thursday night club members met in Mendel Hall and discussed the organization of the group and the prospects for active flying. The members then formed their committees and decided to investigate all the possible groups and agencies that might be of help in obtaining flying time for the club members at a price that would be within the reach of the average Villanova student.

It was decided that the club would contact Wings Field, Valley Forge Airport,, Patco Flying Field, the Main Line Airport, and a few of the other local airports to see what these fields had to offer. It was also decided that a group should investigate the possibility that aid could be obtained from the Veterans Administration.

Still another committee was formed with the purpose of formally organizing the Aeronautics Club which has been inactive since shortly before the war.



One of the first moves of this planning and organizing committee was the issuing of a blanket invitation to the student body to join the club. It was pointed out that official application blanks and questionnaires were now available for those interested in becoming members of the organization. These blanks can be obtained in the Villanovan office in Mendel Hall or from either Andy Mehen or Charles McCarthy.

As yet no further meetings have been scheduled. However, the club hopes that the committees will have some definite information to present to the club in a week or ten days, and at that time another meeting will be held. Prominent notices will be posted regarding this meeting.

Acting head of the group, Charles

Thanksgiving . . .

From year to year a newspaper will publish a stereotyped editorial on what we have to be thankful for. Such editorials grow more obnoxious as time goes on. They arrive at a point today where the reader knows just what is coming and cares not to read what the author has to say.

I don't think any man with a logical mind need be told what to be thankful for. One would be very out of the ordinary if he could not see what he has been given by God.

Consider the gift of existence. Existence in any form is far better than non-existence, and our existence is God-given, a priceless gift for which a rational being can not help being grateful.

In a recent editorial we expressed the opinion that the world seems to be forgetting God. We couldn't have been right. As was clearly explained to me after that editorial, the world has far more good in it than we imagine.

The reason we have the misconception of a "bad" world is attributed to the fact that the good done today never receives such publicity as does the wrong.

Our gift of conscience shows that we have a definite end to seek in eternal happiness. Most men manifest their seeking for this ideal in many ways.

What place have the above paragraphs in a Thanksgiving editorial? We are trying to show that men shouldn't have to be shown what and why in being thankful. Observation alone should be sufficient in coming to this conclusion.

A wonderful world order which is in our possession is another boundless gift to us. God's providence to man is another. Without the Almighty Giver of all things where would we be?

Let's resort to the time-worn veteran argument. Many students here today have come through the most terrible of all wars with their lives, if not without physical marks of battle. Once again the Gracious Hand of God has saved us from total destruction.

You all know the argument of country. America has always been spared from the horrible devastation of wars and has always enjoyed freedom from want.

We all have been given by God the opportunity of an education which the less fortunate people of the world are not receiving. We have been given by God this opportunity, when getting into a school is extremely hard.

We have the blessings of our family who are living and thriving by God' Hand in a land of security, opportunity, and peace.

Finally, we have our souls to direct as we choose. We need no prodding. God's Works and Gifts are hard to overlook. Realizing what we have to be thankful for, we can not help but kneel before the Throne of God, and humbly, gratefully say: "We Give Thee Thanks."

Chaplain's News

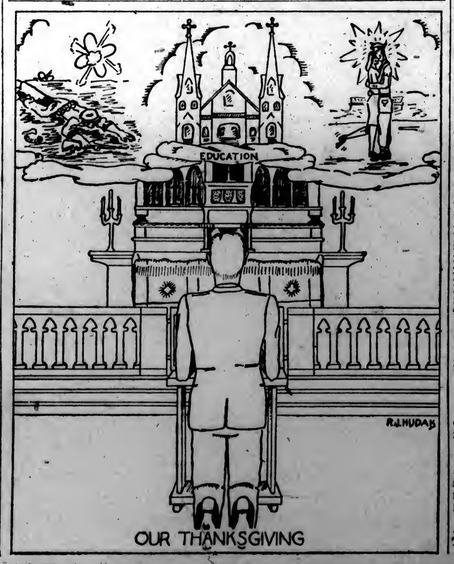
Fr. Crawford to Speak In Chapel This Week

"God is still ahead of the atom." Frequently from the sixteenth century down to the present time God and Religion have been called into question when some new scientific find has been made. First it was Galileo and astronomy, at another time it was geology and evolution, now it is physics and the atom. All these discoveries have had their reactions on man and his relationship with God. When it was proven that the sun and not the earth was the center of the universe the Bible was held in disrepute.

The development of the theories of evolution brought into question the fact of creation. And today in the minds of some the harnessing of atomic energy challenges the Omnipotence of God Himself. In time the astronomer and the evolutionist brought their newly discovered data of the world into harmony with what religion teaches us about God.

Relationship Prominent

Once again the relationship between God and His universe is called into question—this time by the atom. What is this relationship between God, the Creator; man the masterpiece of His creation; and the atom, one of the many gifts of God to man? On this very triangle Rev. John Crawford, O.S.A., head of the Department of Physics at Villanova will speak. Father's talk will take place during Evening Chapel next week.



Atomic power enters into the realm of theology. Man's conscience is affected by its use. The bombing of Hiroshima presents a moral question as to the use of this gift of God. As Catholic College students you will be expected to be able to answer the religious and moral issues of atomic energy. You have an obligation to know and to be in a position to explain clearly when occasion demands.

Book Recommended

For purposes of further study I recommend to you the brilliant analysis of Ronald Knox, "God and the Atom." When you read this work you will be more convinced that with the atom, God is more necessary than ever. Of this work the journalist George E. Sokolsky, writing in the New York Sun, says: "an extraordinarily important work. It would be wise for those who are sure that atomic fission has changed everything to read Father Knox's evidence that nothing unchangeable has been changed."

Fr. Crawford's sermon will be given at Evening Chapel on next Monday at 8:00 P. M. and Tuesday at 7:30 P. M.

"Jamais ne mettez de bananes dans la glaciere."

—Monsewer Donald Collins

South Pole, Nov. 26

Do you know that Ardmore has an undertaker named John J. Stretch Jr? All kidding aside, it really has. He lives right near St. Denis Church. And in front of his house, someone has put up a "one way" sign, pointing directly to the cemetery down the road. Ah, the futility of life! Speaking of signs, St. Mary's Hall has a "no outlet" sign posted on its side lawn.

Cool, Clear Water (?)

We are very happy to report that James Cletus Hesslin, the Bridgeport Brain Boy, has finally perfected dehyrated water. The Philadelphia City Council is after him to buy his formula; they figure almost any kind of water would be better than the stuff that drips out of Philly spigots. Hesslin has very appropriately named his new invention "Nuttin." Nuttin has a peculiar molecular structure which enables it to combine with "Everything." When Nuttin combines with Everyting, a material called "Stuff" is formed. You can well realize how great this discovery is when you think that life, as we know it today, can hardly get along without Stuff. And to get the Stuff without a ration book is almost impossible! So hats off to Hesslin! That Nuttin is really sumptin.

We asked Fr. O'Leary for a definition of shillelagh. He tells us it's a form of Irish Ovaltine.

A small group of Villanova students, including your columnist, recently visited the United Nations Assembly in session at Flushing Meadows, N. Y. Most news reports that you have read in other papers will merely give you the bare essentials of what goes on. However, we are not satisfied with just giving you the news that is fit to print, we shall tell you what really goes on behind the scenes. Does Molotov really wear red longies? Does Lie really come from south Norway? Does Austin come from Boston Does Joe Bolts love Susie Smuts? Does Duz do everything? These and other important questions will be answered in some later issue. We must first tell you about that crap game that was going on among the delegates in a back room.

Molotov to Vishinsky

The English delegate was trying to borrow a billion from the U. S. delegate. He wanted to get back in the game. As Vyacheslav Molotov picked up the dice, we overheard him say to Vishinsky, "Pozhalosta, Bratkn, nicogda nuzno polozit Atomice Bombue bo budimaye mayt Ochi Vhornia, Emayesh papiroska, buddy?"

Play And Platter

By ANTHONY HOMANN Jr. '50

On November 15, at 8:00 P. M., in the Rosemont Gymnasium, the Jest and Gesture Club of Rosemont College put on their production of Shakespeare's comedy, "Twelfth Night." The club's performance unquestionably marks them as one of the finer college dramatic societies in the Philadelphia area. Mature acting coupled with excellent stage props, was the keynote of the evening. The costuming in particular was brilliant. Many fine performances were turned in, and hence it would be both unfair and difficult to select any one person as the star. Margaret Jacobsen made a good Viola, and Anne Geoghegan was outstanding as Malvolio. The part of Feste the clown was well played by Loretta Moore. Other commendable performances were given by Margaret Cepon as the Duke, Jeanne Goode as Olivia, and Alycia Kelley as Sir Toby and Kathleen Anello as Sir Andrew. Rose Mary May was the narrator for the prologue and epilogue.

Possibly the only criticism that might be leveled was the fact that the dialogue was not clear at times. However, this failed to detract from an otherwise dramatic performance.

The story of the "Twelfth Night" concerns Viola's search for her twin brother, after their separation in a shipwreck. When she arrives in Illyria, she disguises herself as a pageboy in the court of the Duke. The unhappy duke sends Cesario, as she now calls herself, to intercede for him before Olivia, his lady friend. Olivia falls in love with the disguised Viola, who in turn is in love with the Duke. When Viola's brother, Sebastian, shows up after causing some confusion as to who is who, Olivia marries Sebastian, and Viola is free to marry the duke.

Rosemont is to be congratulated for a fine Shakespearean offering. We certainly hope that they will keep up the tradition in the future with more of the same.

Play Music Album

The music of many prominent Broadway shows of this season as well as past seasons can be obtained on records. Such hits as "Show Boat," The Red Mill," "Carousel," and "Call Me Mister" have been recorded recently. Often the original New York cast is featured, which is a decided asset to any musical comedy album.

"Show Boat" Tunes

Of these, the best one is Columbia's release of Jerome Kern's "Show Boat." The album is the latest recording and probably the best on the market of this American classic. The singers include Charles Fredericks as Ravenal, Jan Clayton as Magnolia, Carol Bruce as Julie, and Kenneth Spencer as Joe. Edwin McArthur and the "Show Boat" Orchestra and Chorus complement them. The best songs are Carol Bruce's poignant rendition of "Bill," and Spencer's spinetingling version of "Ol' Man River." Jan Clayton and Charles Fredericks blend their voices for a number of tunes, the best of which are "Make Believe" and "Why Do I Love You?" Unfortunately, some of the recordings are marred by surface noise. These are notably the Overture and "Cotton Blossom." Like "Show Boat" itself, the album is rather large, but for those who really enjoy such music, it is well worth the cost.

Those who collect show numbers of some years ago will welcome Columbia's albums of "Musical Comedy Favorites." These two albums are done by Andre Kostelanetz and the Orchestra in the distinctive Kostelanetz manner. Most of the music is nostalgic, well played, and easy to dance to. Such hits of yesterday as "Dancing in the Dark," "Easter Parade," and the like respond well to the sophisticated Kostelanetz style. The sets will be liked by everyone whom Kostelanetz holds in fascination.

Canning, Butler Elected in Poll To Council Posts

Meeting in Future to Plan Closer Coordination With Students

Last week voting took place to fill the two vacancies in the Student Council. Those positions of secretary and one Student Council representative were vacant.

William P. Butler was elected to the former post by a large majority. Sam Canning won the election for the representative position with comparative ease.

The Student Council plans to have a meeting in the near future to improve their position in Student-Faculty coordination.

In the near future the Villanovan will publish pictures and articles of introduction to the members. This has been suggested by the students in view of the fact that they have no contact with the members of the Council.

This series of articles will be published by way of making known the representatives to the Students and thus ease the passing of their problems to the Council.

Until this action is taken, the Villanovan will act as a medium for establishing contact with the Student Council. All suggestions and complaints may be left with a member of the paper staff in the office and they will be forwarded to the proper hands.

Doings In Town

By FRANK DITURI

The event of the coming week will take place at the Field House on Wednesday night. So don't miss the Library Fund Dance; where you can forget all those conditions you will get at midterm. See page one for the details.

Two ice hockey matches are scheduled at the Arena, 45th and Market Sts., this week. The Rockets play St. Louis Wednesday night and New Haven Saturday night. Game time is 8:30; prices are $1.30, $1.95 and $2.60.

At The Hedgerow

Hedgerow Theatre in Moylan present two by GBS and two by Chekov this week. Offered Wednesday night is "Androcles and the Lion," and on Thursday "The Devil's Disciple," both by Shaw. On Friday "The Sea Gull" and on Saturday "Uncle Vanya" (a recent addition to the repertory), both by Chekov. For reservations and information on how to get there phone Media 2482. Student tickets are 90 cents.

At the Academy of Music this week:

On Wednesday night, for the first time in six years, the Philadelphia Forum presents the Joos Ballet.

Faust on Thursday

On Thursday night, the La Scala Opera Company presents Gounod's "Faust."

On Friday, Duke Ellington and his band present some old favorites and selections from a new concert suite.

On Monday night, the Bach Festival Society will present the first of its four Great Masters Concerts of the season. James Allan Dash will conduct the Bach Festival Chorus and the B&O Glee Club in Brahm's "Requiem," "Alto Rhapsody" and "Academic Festival."

Tickets for all these performances range from $1.30 to $3.90, and can be obtained at Haly's, 1505 Walnut St.

"Charley's Aunt"

The Colonial Players will present the farce, "Charley's Aunt," at their Aidan Playhouse, Ridley and Magnolia Aves., on Nov. 28, 29, 30 and Dec. 1. Curtain time 8:30; tickets 90 cents. Take the Sharon Hill car from 69th St. to get there.

If you are not sure what to do with a Friday off (we're going to sleep all day), try spending the day between the Franklin Institute and the Philadelphia Art Museum. Take a No. 7 car from 23rd and Market to 20th and Parkway and you are right in front of the Institute. The Museum is just up the Parkway at 26th St.

The institute is worth a whole day or more in itself.

Once the air-minded get into the airplane exhibit of the Institute, they'll have a hard time getting out in time for their first class on Monday.

The high point of the Museum is

Authorizes Squadrons Air Force Association

Association for Vets Starts on Campuses Throughout Country

The Air Force Association, a new national organization for Army Air Force veterans and present members of the AAF headed by former Lt. General Jimmy H. Doolittle, has begun to authorize the formation of charter campus squadrons in colleges throughout the country, it was announced by Willis S. Fitch, executive director, from Washington, D. C. headquarters of the Association.

Already, nucleus groups of 20 or more AAF vets, are cropping up on campuses in various sections, Mr. Fitch said. The University of Kentucky, Columbia University in New York, the University of Texas, New York University, Northwestern University, Fordham, and the University of Chicago are some of the colleges with units already in action. These campus units are affiliated with state groups which are affiliated with national headquarters.

Some of the aims of the Air Force Association, which was formed in January, 1946, are: "To preserve and foster the spirit of fellowshi among former, present and future members of the United States Army Air Force; to promote an organization through which they may unite in the fraternal bonds of comradeship; to educate

Just about twenty-four hours hence most of us "degree happy" collegians will be packing up our old kit bags and heading home for the well known "Turkey Day" festival. If we can bear up under the extreme grief of four whole days away from the Alma Mater, we'll probably have a grand time rooting for the Ol' High School team, followed by an afternoon of struggling with some poor turkey's gam. As you probably know, a turkey's gam is hardly the proper subject for a "'Neath the Spires" column, so we'll have to divert our attention to a suggestion or two about filling in the time before the big game of Thanksgiving.

It seems kind of silly to be making all this fuss about Thanksgiving Day without any concrete ideas or even intentions toward making that day live up to its name. So with a view to making it a little more than just a wrestling match between a well-greased fowl and a well-oiled assailant, we offer the following plan:

Begin Well

Let us, the men of Villanova, begin our day of thanksgiving by making ourselves a witness to, and a participant in, the greatest act of "giving" known to mankind, the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass. As participants in this act of "giving," we shall offer ourselves, in union with the Divine Victim, to the Eternal Father. This will be our sign of gratitude, our sign of "thanks" on this day of thanksgiving.

But we'll go still a little bit further. We'll bring Christ into our very bodies in Holy Communion, and as we return from the communion rail, we shall lower our heads in heartfelt conversation with our Maker, saying:

Thank You, oh my God, for this peace, awaited so long and desired so much; a peace that finds me alive and well to enjoy its rich rewards of security and contentment; Thank You, too, for those friends, my classmates and buddies, who have helped lighten the task of facing life's frequent difficulties; Thank You for my parents, who first taught this eager heart of mine to know and love Thee and serve Thee throughout my life; and Thank You, oh my God, for life itself, for the thrill of just "being," wherein I become a creature formed to Thy image and likeness, enjoying Thy beautiful acts of creation and learning better and better how to love Thee more and more.

Hot Water!

They will shout the news from the mountains,
They will let it be known to all:
From faucets, from spigots, from fountains,
Hot water, in Alumni Hall!

In newspaper headlines they'll even Announce it with justly proud glow,
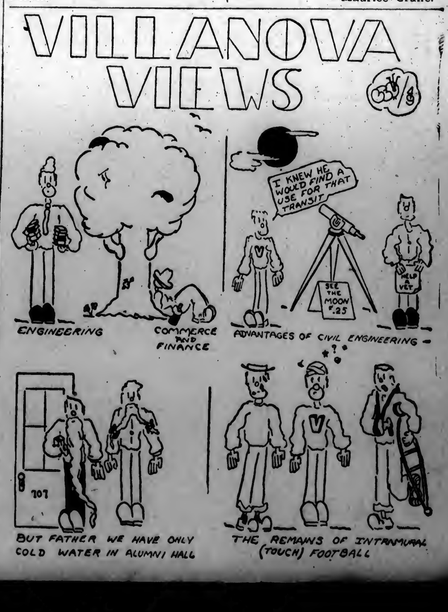
Pushing from page one Lewis and Bevin,
To cheer the hot H2O.

For it's steam, steam, steam,
You boilin', blisterin', blindin' hunka steam,
I've doggonned and dadgummed you
But, by the plumber brave who plumbed you,
You are better than an ice-bath, hunka steam.

Beneath the spraying shower-head
A guy named Smith, he stands,
No bath since school began he's had
The mighty black Smith's tanned.

And it's hot water, water, everywhere,
The very boards did shrink,
Hot water, water, everywhere,
Why, it's even in the sink.

Blessings on thee, little boiler.
If kings are royal, then you are royaler,
And I shall always be thy slaver,
Because of you I now can shave.



Bubble, bubble, toil and trouble,
Furnace burn and water bubble,
With you around, my looks are keener.
I'll use soap instead of a vacuum cleaner.

—Maurice Crane.

Behind the Eight Ball

By DICK RANDOLPH and LARRY LYONS

It is with trepidation that we take this column, for the last time we suck our fingers into the journalistic pie a minor "rowbottom" resulted. Girls from nearby schools staged mass demonstrations demanding that we be ejected bodily from school. Our friends began to shun us as if we had failed to read certain advertisements. Our names were not mentioned in polite society, in other words, we were social outcasts. Despite all this, we are rolling that old eight ball again for we feel that the boy's lives have been much too peaceful lately.

This should be the place that we introduce ourselves to our new readers (it sounds good anyway) but they will learn all too soon who we are and what we are. (?) So without further delay we will start that black spherical object with the big number eight on it moving and see in front of whom we can park it this week.

More Darn Petunias

Of all the lovers on the campus our basket of petunias this week goes to Dan Brown. Dan has been after the heart of a certain Flossie. It was no easy matter either for Joe Topper made up the third party of that infernal triangle. Dan, however, managed to get an invitation to Floss' prom which was last Saturday night. Need we say more?

Rosemont College was the scene of quite a bit of gaiety a few weekends ago. On Friday night, November 15, the female Thespians presented Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night," and on Sunday night they had another one of their famous tea dances.

The play presented fine acting and really wonderful costumes, so said Jim Bonner who was there alone impatiently waiting for the final curtain so that he could once more be with his Shirley.

To the Top Hatter

Anthony "Top Hatter" Homann was also there. A picture of contentment was he. Tony is always happy when he is surrounded by an atmosphere that is laden with culture. It looks as though he is after the title of Most Cultured which is now held by Don Collins.

We were a little disappointed because we did not receive "comps" to the play. The head of the publicity committee probably though that we we unacquainted with Shakespeare; if she reads this column, her thoughts will be confirmed.

Tea, Rosies

The Tea Dance Sunday night was another feather in the hats of the "Rosies" for it was a great success. Tony Cocco, Bob Manske, Joe Kerigan, Pete Pallitto and Fred Petralia were there gliding o'er the floor with the greatest of ease. These fellows spend so much time at our neighboring college that we suggest that they buy themselves a flivver.

Here's to Hathaway

The Villanovans under the leadership of Paul Hathway made their first post-war appearance a few nights ago in Bryn Mawr. Seen swaying to their solid music were Bud Altman, Hank Franzoni and Dom Longo. Conspicuous by his absence was Eugene "Shorty" Holman who was baby-sitting. How old was the baby, Shorty?

On the sixteenth of November the "Main Line" gophers migrated to the big city and a dance at the Hotel Philadelphian. Pat Splane, Mike Nolan and Pat Laferty were there whispering sweet nothings into the ears of their respective dates. We learned later that sweet nothing doings whispered right back.

The other day we heard that Rich Bonner, Al Syvertsen, Frank Dillon, Bob Keller and Tom McCullian were supposed to play basketball with the girls from Episcopal Hospital. This is one game we would like to see. The fellows will probably lose, but who wouldn't with all those distractions playing against you.

Hither and Yon

John Hickey and Harold McCatty are spending a lot of time with two nurses from Bryn Mawr. It must be the attraction of the uniform.

Joe Heck and Dan Murphy are in the habit of meeting a certain bundle of charm every Monday night at 69th St. and riding into town with her. She just loves Dan's black wavy hair.

They tell us that Dave Cushwa has shifted his field of operations from Rosemont to Chestnut Hill. Dave lives by the adage "Variety is the Spice of Life."

Joe Rogers, Frank Kane, Bob Merriweather and Bob Fury gave the girls a break last week by attending the weekly dance at St. Francis De Sales.

This is Hot!

Ralph Pasquariello burned his hands with the hot water in Alumni a few days ago. We still don't know whether he was unaccustomed to the hot water or new at the art of washing his hands.

If you are feeling low just drop into Alumni some night and see the wonderful floor show given by that terrific M. C. Tom Clavin. Next week Tom is substituting for Bob Hope.

We guess that it is about time that we play artist and draw this to a close. Now we are sure of it. Gags like that killed vaudeville; we would hate to see the same thing happen to us.

Discography:- A Popular Record Review

By VINCE O'DONNELL

HERE AND THERE—The Tommy Dorsey band is rumored to be on it's farewell tour. Rumors are flying that T. D. intends to break up his band so that he can confine his interests to the movies and the direction of his Casino Gardens ballroom. Could it be that Les Brown and Benny the Goodman are ditching their bands 'cuz of the financial situation?

There are only 16 bands and vocalists under the once mighty hand of R.C.A. Victor Co. against 36 names a few months ago. The company believes the fewer names means bigger names.

Marion Morgan, current Harry James vocalist, has signed a five year contract with The Horn. Frank Sinatra has recorded "The Brooklyn Bridge" (The one that Steve Brodie made famous) with Johnny Green conducting for "It Happened in Brooklyn," Frankie's latest picture.

Phil Harris Scoop

Phil Harris, the Lost Weekend of the band business, is being approached by R.C.A., pending the outcome of the A.R.A. bankruptcy proceedings. Betty Perry, former singer with the Russ Morgan crew, now chanting for Chaz Barnett. Mary Ann McCall, former warbler with Barnett, rejoined the Woody Herman band. Man, these young ladies get around, don't they.

HAVE YOU HEARD — Spike Jones' "other band" play "Lassus Trombone" backed by "Minka." Eddie Kusbyis featured on the first with solos that range from tail-gate to some of the smoothest tram work to be waxed in many a month. George Rock is featured on the disc, displaying his ability by playing in the styles of Elman, James, McCoy and Busse.

Get a load of "Jalousie" by Herbie Fields. A new band that swings out on a sensational semi-classic. Fields features himself on some brilliant clarinet work. His brass section backs him up on a pretty bit of section work. "There Is No Breeze" and "This Time" are two collectors items sung by the winner of the "Downbeat" pool, Stuart Foster.

Tommy Dorsey

As you can expect T. D. does his excellent job of slip horn work in the firsts choruses. That man MacIntyre has another hit on his hands with his "September Song." A beautiful number with sparkling alto from the bossman. Listen for Les Brown's "My Serenade." It's one of the better ballads of the day sung by Jack Heiskall. The kid has a deep voice with plenty of resonance that reminds one of the old Bob Eberly.

Care Asked!

Complaints have been received on the way the students receive the Villanovan at the table in front of the office each week.

The Collegiate Digest, which has been distributed as an added feature for your enjoyment and the weekly issue of this paper have been wastefully thrown about the halls and rooms.

In view of the present paper shortage, this waste should be eliminated. We ask your cooperation.

It is just as easy to take the copy you want and have care about whether the copy below it drops to the floor. If a copy should fall, please pick it up and put it back on the table.

Please help us keep the halls clean and help us in avoiding unnecessary waste of precious paper. Thank you.

Phi Kap Pi Fraternity Elects Officers

Brogan, Murphy, Feeney, Higgs, Kasper and Hanratty Named to Posts

An important meeting of the Phi Kap Pi Fraternity was held in Mendel Hall on October 29. Elections were held and the following men appointed as officers: Joseph Brogan, President; James Murphy, Vice-President; James Feeney, Treasurer; Roland Higgs, Secretary; Bob Kasper, Student Council; Tom Hanratty, Sergeant-of-Arms.

Beginning the first week of December, initiation of freshmen will be held. A prize will be given to the member concocting the best paddle for the initiations.

Applications are finally available for engineering students and may be obtained at the Villanovan office Tuesday at noon. A charge of one dollar for an initiation fee, plus an additional one dollar and a quarter for a year's membership is required. Completed applications may be returned to any of the Phi Kap officers.

Father O'Leary attended as Moderator.

Oh Daddy!

Old Mr. Stork recently played host to two proud Villanovans, William J. Cummiskey, '49, and Bob Polidor, '49.

With loud cries, 8¼ pound, blueeyed, red haired Barbara Ann Cummiskey made her presence known at 7:10 P. M., Tuesday, October 22, in Shamokin, Pennsylvania. Bill informs us that she hasn't stopped crying yet.

Mrs. Cummiskey, the proud mother, a graduate of St. Mary's Nursing School of Philadelphia and a veteran of the Navy Nurse Corps, is with her parents in Shamokin pending her recovery. The family will soon be reunited at their home in Philadelphia.

Our other happy event took place at 3:10 P. M., Monday, October 28, in Philadelphia, where a second child, also a girl, Donna Lee, was born to the Polidors. Graced with dark hair and eyes, Donna Lee tipped the scale at 6 pounds, 7 ounces. This will serve to explain Bob's inspired run against Miami.

Mrs. Polidor is kept very busy, for in addition to Donna Lee, Robert Jr., aged 3, already shows promise of inheriting his dad's pep and vigor.

Villanova extends hearty congratulations and best wishes to both happy families.

Completion of Dormitories During December Indicated

Speed and Efficiency Watchwords in Rise of New Structures

By MATT KEARNEY, JR.

Efficiency and speed seem to be the watchwords as the four ex-Army type barracks near completion on the Eastern end of the Villanova campus. A recent inspection showed that these buildings should be ready for occupation early in December.

One, at least, should be completed during the first two weeks of next month and and the others soon after. Students who are currently residing in the gym will be the first men transferred to the new buildings.

Each room is designed to hold two men. Showers and washrooms are located on each floor at the end of the structure. Walls have been finished in half of the rooms in the first building. Plumbers and masons are now progressing on the water piping and facilities in all buildings.

Modern Insulation

One unique feature being incorporated in these structures is the use of metal foil in sheets and rolls for insulation. A new trend in insulation, this discovery has been tested by contractors and proven quite adequate and dependable.

Less than six weeks have elapsed since the foundations were laid. Almost magically this section of the campus has been transferred from a rolling plot of green grass to a hub of activity. Growing by leaps and bounds, the edifices took shape in a proverbial "hurry."

During this week and last, installation of boilers and heating equipment has been taking place. Unless one saw it happen before their eyes, the rapidity of growth of these buildings would be considered impossible.

The rooms are finished in cream white wall board and to all appearances should be comfortable and warm during the winter months. Each room is also provided with closet space for both occupants.

Heating Drawback

Heating systems in the barracks pose as a cause for a possible delay in the completion of the buildings. Some difficulty has been met in installing provisions for adequate heat for the barracks. However, difficulties are being met and solved at the present time.

When the dorms are completed, a great deal of pressure will be taken off the other halls. At the present time, "doubling up" has filled the other halls to capacity. When the barracks are completed some of the students will be moved into them from the other halls to relieve this overcrowding.

The new Chem building and NROTC Armory may be started in the very near future. Preliminary business has been completed and construction is ready to be started. Further developments on these buildings will be relayed to you as soon as the news is available.

25 Game Schedule Faces Basketball Team

Open With Rider Dec. 13; Orange Bowl Game Added

By DAN REDMOND

A power-packed 25-game schedule that includes 13 home games for Villanova's basketeers was released by Rev. Edward B. McKee, O. S. A., moderator of athletics, last week.

Headlining the changes or additions to the schedule released at the beginning of the present term is a game with the University of Miami listed to be played in Miami, Fla., on February 12.

Travel to Florida

It will be played on an outdoor court in the Orange Bowl as part of a doubleheader bill. This will mark the Wildcats' first basketball venture into the Deep South.

Outside of Miami, six other teams who were missing from last year's schedule have been added. Seton Hall, Army, Rutgers, Catholic U, Quantico Marines and Fort Dix are the sextet. Of these, only Quantico is entirely new to Villanova schedules.

Home - and - home engagements have been made with Princeton, Manhattan, Georgetown and Kings Point. Similar arrangements were had last year with all of these save Georgetown.

Army Places Five On All Opponent Team

Barney Poole the Only Unanimous Choice; Navy Lands Two on First Team

By JIM LYONS

After ten consecutive grid battles, the Villanova Wildcats, who compiled an enviable .600 winning average, elected an All-Opponent team. This team is a star-studded aggregation, which would be expected since Villanova played the best in college football. It is not sufficient to say that the 'Cats played the best, for when they weren't victorious, they went down in hard fought contests by slight margins with the exception of the Army game.

The Army game was hard played too, as Mr. Blanchard would testify, but the 35 to 0 margin wasn't too slight. However, it was better than the experts expected, and better than many more highly publicized teams managed to do. So here is a team composed of some of the greatest players of the year and picked by the men who forced them to play their best.

Poole Unanimous Choice

Barney Poole, Army's towering end was the only unanimous selection. This is a great distinction for two reason. First, because it is hard for a lineman to impress every member of the opposition and secondly, because such greats as Messrs. Blanchard and Davis, his more talked of teammates, polled 16 and 30 votes respectively. One reason why everyone noted Barney's play was the way he caught one of Davis' passes and rolled right over a would be Wildcat tackler as he raced 20 yards for a score.

The "Black Knights" from up on the Hudson dominated the Cats' selections by placing five men; Poole, Foldberg, Tucker, Davis and Blanchard on the first team and three men; Steffy, Gerometta and Bryant on the second team. The selections of Blanchard and Davis were expected, however, "Doc" wasn't as popular a choice as was expected. Two possible reasons for his unimpressive 16 votes (unimpressive for him) are advanced. First he retired due to injuries after playing only one quarter, although he did score a T. D. and set up another against Villanova, and secondly the fact that Harry Ghaul of Miami played such bruising ball aginst the 'Cats. Little or no comment is necessary concerning the selection of Davis, Tucker and Foldberg. All these greats polled impressive numbers of votes as befits their All-American ratings.

Pick Ivory Over Steffy

On the other hand it is a great compliment to Detroit's Bob Ivory that the 'Cats chose him in favor of Army's Joe Steffy who was lineman of the week after the Army-Notre Dame game. Steffy seems destined for All-America honors.

Dick Scott and Newbold Smith, both of Navy, were rewarded for their great work in defending Navy's slim margin of victory.

Royten of Marquette, a great running passer who can heave them on the dead run to either side, won the closest race. He polled 12 votes, only one more than John Killelea of Boston College, to nail down right halfback. Killelea is an ex-Wildcat and played under Jordan Olivar in 1943.

Detroit Places Four

Detroit placed four men to run second to Army in team performance. Wright, the slim Titan halfback, impressed the Wildcats as the speediest back they opposed.

As a team this All Opponent aggregation averages 210 pounds on the line and 178 in the backfield. Boston College's Gianelli, a 6' 3", 240 pound guard and Marquette's Royten, a 6' 10", 155 pound halfback are the big and little of it. But big or little, all of these men are great football players.

Sullivan Named Season's Captain; Team To Be Honored at Banquet

Next Year's Schedule To Be Announced; Plaque and Awards To Be Presented to Outstanding Players

By PAT SPLANE

Wednesday evening, November 20, Bill Sullivan was elected captain of the 1946 football team at the last squad meeting for this season. This honor was given to him by his teammates for his brilliant playing on the field and his interest in the team while he was injured.

Bill has played on Villanova teams at the end spot in former years also. In 1941-42-43, he was a member of the Wildcat Varsity and he returned again this year in the same style. His leave of absence from the gridiron for three years can be accounted for by the Navy.

In this season, Bill started every game with the exception of the four games following the Navy game, when he was sidelined with an injury.

Led 'Cats to First Win

He captained the Wildcats in the season's opener with Kings Point, and led his team to a 40-6 homecoming victory.

Although his playing as an offensive end has been good, he will be remembered more for his defensive play. He is comparatively small as linemen go; but, nevertheless, he is a hard man to knock out of a play. His agility and shiftiness make him a hard man to block, while his ability to recover quickly made him an even harder man to keep down.

Bill won the captaincy election by an overwhelming majority, and Coach Jordan Olivar said afterwards, "I am very glad to see Billy elected, because I think he certainly deserved it."

The coach also added that next season he will employ the same system of electing game captains each week, and then a season captain at the termination of the football campaign.

The Villanova Club of Philadelphia will present its annual Football dinner at the Warwick Hotel in Philadelphia, on Tuesday, December 3, at 7:00 P. M. The purpose of the dinner will be to honor the football team. The presentation of three awards to members of the football team, the announcing of the lettermen, and the announcing of the 1947 football schedule will be the highlights of the dinner.

Plaque for Most Valuable

The Martin J. McLaughlin Memorial Award, a 21-jeweled Bulova watch, is to be presented for the first time. A Schaeffer pen and pencil set will be awarded to a member of the team chosen by his teammates. This award is to be given this year by an outstanding alumnus. The third award, also given this year for the first time, will be presented to the man chosen by his teammates as the most valuable player of the year. This award is a plaque which is presented by the Alumni.

Another award which is to be given Tuesday night is the Loyalty Cup which will be presented to Matthew J. Lynch for "zeal for Alma Mater, outstanding loyalty to the Alumni Association, and unselfish service in behalf of all things Villanovan." This cup, to be kept for the entire year, is presented to one member of the Alumni.

This will be the first time since pre-war days that the 67 members of the football squad, the three managers and four coaches will be at the banquet as guests. This year, however, the squad and coaches will not only be the guests, but will also be the feature of the evening. Coach Jordan Olivar is to be the main speaker. In his speech, he will discuss the highlights of the football season and introduce the members of the team to the gathering. The men who acted as game captains throughout the year, and Bill Sullivan, who has been chosen as the captain for the '46 season, will also be introduced.

Team Puts on Skit

Deviating from the usual banquet routine of one speech after another, the football squad will put on a humorous skit of songs and imitations that have been the means of livening up their many long trips. Imitations, songs and other humorous bits will be offered for the entertainment of the guests.

John P. Keffer, class of '25, is to be the toastmaster of the evening. Other notables who will be present are: Very Rev. Joseph A. Hickey, O.S.A., Assistant General of the Augustinian Order; Very Rev. Mortimer A. Sullivan, O.S.A., Provincial; Rev. Francis X. N. Maguire, O.S.A., President of Villanova College; Rev. Edward B. McKee, O.S.A., Vice-president and Athletic Director of Villanova; P. F. Banmiller, President of the National Alumni Association; H. Bruce Murray, President of Villanova Club of Phila., Joseph N. Bongiovanni Jr., Chairman of the Alumni club; Bill Sears, Sports commentator for WPEN; and members of the local press, United Press and Associated Press.

Open to All

All of the Alumni, and the friends of Villanova are cordially invited to attend this dinner. It is to be a stag affair, and promises to be a very memorable event. All those wishing to be present at this dinner, honoring the football team, can obtain tickets, which are $5 apiece, from the chairman of the Dinner Committe, or by writing to: William Feiel, Secretary of the Alumni, Villanova College.

The "Major" and the Captain . . .

Bob "Major" McDonnell, who is at present helping Coach Al Severance, gets together with Joe Lord, this season's captain, for their final fling for the Blue and White. The "Maj." sparked last year's team and Lord broke the all time Villanova scoring record.

Doms Clinch Intramural Title; Lose Only Twice

Final Week Features Forfeits; Knecht and Sharnberg Lead Champ to 13 Wins

By PAT SPLANE

Two wins by the league leading Doms over Alumni, 36-0, and the Gym, 18-0 clinched the Intramural plaque for that team. An anticlimatical loss to Fedigan, 18-6, gave them a total of eleven wins and two losses for the entire season. Their other defeat came at the hands of Good Counsel by a score of 6-0.

Knecht, the captain of the Domss, and Scharnberg paced the league as well as the Doms throughout the season. The deadly passing combination for Scharnberg to Knecht has broken up many tight ball games. Both good passers and runners, they kept the opposition guessing as to what would happen next. The running and pass catching of Eliot and Kempf of the Doms has also drawn many comments from the spectators.

Alumni Smothered

On Monday, the Doms clinched the Intramural title by knocking off Alumni, 36-0. In the opening minutes, Eliot threw a 30-yard pass to Knecht in the end zone for the first Doms score. A little later the Doms took the ball from Alumni on downs and scored in two plays. A long pass took them to the 30, and Harry Knecht, fading to pass and finding no receivers, ran the ball himself. He crossed the double line after a shifty run of thirty yards. During the rest of the game, Alumni offered very little resistance. The Doms scored next on Knecht's pass to Kempf, who also went the distance later on a pass from Scharnberg. Scharnberg crossed the double line himself after a ten-yard run, and then threw to Ward for the final tally. Result: Doms 36, Alumni 0.

On Wednesday, Scharnberg again threw three touchdown passes as the Doms rolled over the Gym 18-0, Kempf was on the receiving end of two of these aerials, and Borscke caught the other one.

On Thursday, the Doms scored first in their game with Fedigan as Eliot raced around end 20 yards for the first tally. From there on Fedigan proceeded to upset the favorites. They took the Doms kick-off and went straight to money-land in four plays to tie the score. The touchdown came on McNulty's pass to Stack. After the kick-off and the exchange of punts, Fedigan again reached the promised land. A 35-yard pass from McNulty to Stack in the end zone was the scoring play. Paul Schrativeiser intercepted a pass in the closing minutes and wove his way 50 yards for the final tally. Result: Fedigan 18, Doms 6.

These were the only games of the week as none of the other teams showed up. The rest of the games were forfeits. The plaque will be awarded to the Doms as the top team of the Intramural Football season. This will be kept by them for the year and will again be the impetus for next year's race.

Letters

Dear Jim,

In consideration of the fact that the 150 lb. team has turned in a season's record that is equal to that of the varsity, why do they go unnoticed? This year the 150's have turned in a record that is better than any turned in by any club since the inauguration of that sport at Villanova. In spite of this they are receiving no letters.

The varsity has been invited to a banquet which is being given by the Alumni in their honor. The members of that squad are also receiving letters. I do not mean to kncok the Varsity as I think they deserve all of this. However, didn't the Kittens have an equally tough, though shorter, schedule? Don't they deserve at leatt letters from the school, if not the banquet? I think they do.

Villanova Takes Part In Jack Dempsey Contest

By BOB McNAMARA

Villanova has been chosen as a participant in the "Jack Dempsey-Adam Hat Sports Welfare Trophy" contest.

This contest, which was inaugurated this year, is sponsored by the former heavyweight champion. It is designed to foster the embracing of democratic fundamentals in athletic programs. Each school participating will nominate their "Outstanding Athlete," who will be eligible for the trophy pictured above to be awarded in the spring. The primary qualifications in this competition are: enthusiasm, cooperation and sportsmanship. In all fairness to some of the smaller schools competing, team attainment will not be a factor in making the final selection.

A member of each of Villanova's four major teams; football, basketball, baseball, and track, will be selected by a system to be announced at a later date. From these four athletes, one shall be chosen as Villanova's representatives in the nationwide contest that includes such big name Universities as: Purdue, Duke, Louisiana State, and Oklahoma. To date 400 Universities and colleges have expressed their willingness to participate.

Although there will be only one recipient of the coveted grand award, each athlete who is picked as his school's most outstanding will receive a fine looking smaller trophy.

A more fitting sponsor than the great heavyweight champion could not have been chosen for this contest. He himself was always a good sportsman, and a great advocate of gentlemanly conduct on the field of sports.

In The Sportlight

By WILLIAM CHAUVENET

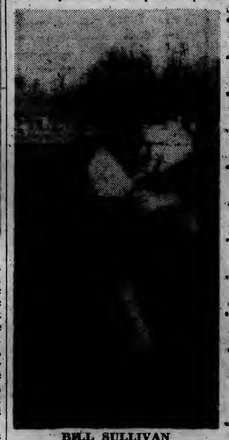
This week the Sportlight put two more Villanova razzle-dazzle artists on the spot with its series of personal shots about the campus. As this week rolls around the targets of the times are Ralph Pasquariello, 222 lb. Freshman fullback, and Bill Sullivan, stellar senior end, who graduates in February. Modesty forbids, and all that, but here goes anyhow.

Ralph is twenty, six feet one, and tells us he's a Yankee from way up in Everett, Mass. During the years

RALPH PASQUARIELLO

1940-1944 he went to Everett High in the same town. While in high school, Ralph was all-scholastic football in '43, and all-scholastic baseball in '44, which shows that versatility pays off after all. He was elected captain in football and track in '43 and '44, respectively, and also made passes with basketball. This spring Ralph will take on baseball, playing either first, outfield, or just throwing the ball around the park, meaning he'll climb the mound.

After graduating from high school, Ralph entered service in August, 1944, and became involved in boot training at Fort Blanding, Fla. They found Ralph so suited to military service that just seventeen weeks after he joined the armed service, he found himself headed overseas for the ETO. In the 44th Infantry of the 6th Division Ralph rolled through France, crossed the Rhine, and saw Central Europe, and in January 1946, he was discharged from the service, but not before he had made the all-conference team in Texas after playing with the 2d Division football club in that Lone Star state.



Ralph has for the most part been out with injuries this year, but Villanova football fans can count on him next year for plenty of action on the gridiron. In the last few games he was able to play in, several long runs and his cracking at the line proved that in his next year of football he'll do better.

Physical education is Ralph's aim at the present, although dark hints were tossed around that he somehow intends to go into "show business" with Tom Clavin and Sam Constantino. We don't know what show or whose business but it sounds like an act to us.

A name that should attract attention next year in the collegiate annals of football is that of Ralph Pasquariello. Good luck, Ralph.

And now we turn to another modest fella, so modest in fact, that we finally had to trap him in his bed, at his apartment in Fedigan Hall at the early hour of 10 A. M. Here is what we learned:

Bill is a C & F student majoring in accounting. In February Bill should graduate and we will be sorry to have him go. He entered Villanova in 1940, after going to Abington High in Abington, Pa. He also went to New York Military Academy and played football, basketball and baseball while at both of these schools. As a freshman Bill played freshman football and in 1941-42 he played on the varsity. In 1943, Bill joined the V-12 and again was on the varsity, later going to Northwestern Midshipman School in October of that same year. In March of the following year Bill was commissioned and was shipped off to the Pacific aboard an LCI where he went on a tour of the Pacific Ocean for about five months before returning to the States. Arriving back home Bill found himself stationed at Philadelphia as a surplus disposal officer. Bill was discharged on July 17, 1946, and thence made tracks for Villanova in October.

Bill plays an aggressive brand of ball and next year's squad will miss his pass catching and his standout play at end. This year Villanova had a great team and, although not more than three players are leaving in '47, their loss will be felt next year. Bill employs a change of pace in his athletics, and we feel that this same attribute will be reflected in his future as he leaves Villanova.

Bill is planning his education with great adroitness, and we feel that come February he'll put that education to good use. In putting the final wraps on under the wire, we'll wish Bill great success as a graduating senior with reminders that Villanova will always be behind him.

ers play four games before the Christmas holidays begin. In those four early games they will be forced to meet up with two, and possibly three very formidable foes. Princeton and Muhlenberg are always represented by top-flight aggregations, while Rider has been a tartar to the Wildcats on many occasions.

Real features of the card are meetings with Rhode Island State's firehouse team, Army and Navy's seldom beaten quintets, Yale's unstoppable Bulldogs, Muhlenberg's Middle Atlantic States champions, and Seton Hall's perennially powerladen five. All of the above aggregations except Army and Seton Hall topped Al Severance's charges last year. The cadets haven't been met since the 1943-44 season when they triumphed 34-22. Incidentally, that Army team boasted a season's record of 15 wins and one loss.

Seton Hall Jinx

Seton Hall is returning to the Sport this year after a short war-time lapse. If their teams of the past are any indication of the type of team they'll put on the floor this year, they should prove to be the toughest opponent of the Villanovans. They were one of the two teams able to beat Al Severance's crack outfit of the 1942-43 campaign.

Some familiar Villanova opponents to be faced this year are Bucknell, Muhlenberg, Manhattan, Scranton and Rider. The first two hold one-game edges on the Main Line school, while the last two are well behind in their respective all-time series. Manhattan has enjoyed a definite superiority over Villanova basketball teams and has a 7-1 record as evidence of it.

Other series are brief. Honors are even at one apiece with Georgetown, Fordham, Kings Point and Rhode Island State. Bainbridge and Yale hold single victories over the Cats in their one game "all-time" series, while Navy is credited with a 3-0 whitewash.

The opening game as originally scheduled was with St. Francis for December 2, but it was cancelled because of the Field House housing difficulties.

Neusdtedter Kreis Active on Campus

German Club Meets and Plans For Coming Semester

Under the direction of Rev. Father Lunney, the Neusdtedter Kreis, Villanova College's German Club, inactive during the war years, held its first meeting on Friday evening, November 15, with the purpose of reorganizing the society.

The election of officers and the formation of a policy designed to further the education of the German students were the primary considerations of the meeting. Immediately after the gathering, motion pictures of Swiss life were shown in connection with talks on the governmental and educational aects of Swiss national policy. In keeping with the atmosphere of the occasion, George Szymanski gave several piano renditions of Swiss tunes.

Swiss Life Discussed

By the show of hands method, the several officers were elected by their classmates and duly authorized by Father Lunney in their new positions. The three men elected were Gunter Kaiser, President; James Siciliano, Vice-President; and James Conaty, Secretary-Treasurer. Gunter Kaiser, the new President, then assumed direction of the meeting and introduced Father Lunney as the commentator to explain the Swiss pictures and also to give a brief sketch of Switzerland as a whole nation and as a political entity.

The films, graciously loaned by the Consulate of Switzerland, were shown. These dealt respectively with castles of Switzerland, the four languages or nationalities in the land, and the winter sports. Between each picture, Mr. Szymanski played a particular selection referring to the film to be shown. The first reel was of an historical nature indicating the use of Swiss national Constitutional life and politics from the eighth century through the development under the Hapsburgs down to modern times. The second followed the geographical locations of the four principal foreign speaking elements in Switzerland, namely, German, Italian, French and Romansche.

Officers Elected

President Kaiser gave talks on the origins, structure and organization of the Swiss Federal government, followed by a portrayal of the country's educational system with the emphasis on the higher schools, by Donald Wieand. These talks were presented in a skilled and interesting manner, designed to cover the more important aspects of Swiss life.

Discussion on the hours to be chosen for future meetings settled upon a bi-monthly basis beginning December 1st, each meeting to be posted in Villanovan office and on bulletin boards. Plans for the club's attendance at the Chestnut Hill-college Christmas Pageant will be formed and notice given to German Club members in the near future. It is specifically important that all those wishing to join the organization watch bulletin boards and school paper for all matters regarding the Neustaedter Kreis as the club can be successful only if it has the interest and cooperation of its members.

French delegate by showing him some American postcards. Over in another corner, a Serutan salesman was getting along swell with the Chinese Delegation. They were spelling everything backwards. Jasper Chen See introduced us to the Chinese Delegates: Messrs. One See, Two See, Three See, Four See. Whereupon in the interest of international harmony we all sang, "I love You-See," followed by that old favorite, "Yangtse Doodle."

Anthony Homann Jr., '50, had corralled an unsuspecting group of delegates and was expounding his views on "How to stop the International Dope Trade." Well, there's one boy who ought to know! The Greek delegates were busy talking about opening a restaurant, while Jan Smuts was protesting the bum steer Argentina had given him. The only bird who seemed to know what the whole international situation was about, was a small, bespectacled chap (wearing Rogers $8.75 Tru-Site Eyesight Trifocals) who was leaning against a pillar and smoking a corn cob pipe. He gave a wonderful explanation of the tense situation. We asked him what country he represented. "Heck," he said, "I'm the janitor for this building."

So for now until when, we bid you a happy Thanksgiving and render you this bit of advice passed on to us from ouh deah correspondent at Bryn Mawr, "If you expect to rate, don't expectorate.'

NROTC Notes

The Navy office has announced the appointments of various members of the senior class to act as student officers of the NROTC unit. Those selected were both Contract and Regular students chosen on the basis of leadership and scholastic ability.

Wineman Company Comd'r.

Gordon L. Wineman will occupy the Company Commander's post and will hold the rank of Lieutenant (NROTC). Chief Petty Officer Robert E. Bauer will assist Wineman in his duties while Ensigns John Connell, Dave English, and Harold McCauley will be leaders of the first, second and third platoons, respectively.

All of the above students were members of the former V-12 unit. Before coming to Villanova Wineman, Bauer and Connell attended Ursinus College, English matriculated at Muhlenburg and McCauley at Mount St. Mary's.

In addition to the three platoon leaders each platoon will consist of three Mustering Petty Officers and three Petty Officers to act as Guides. P. W. Adams, J. W. Baumgardner and C. D. Willet were chosen as the Mustering Petty Officers and A. J. Syvertsero, J. Beals and R. A. Hubbard as Guides.

Each platoon will be subdivided by three squads. The Squad Leaders of the first platoon are Gorman Buswell and O'Donnell Turney, Hanssens and Yates are Squad Leaders of the second platoon while the third platoon's Squad Leaders are Cooke, Space and Reichert.

Capt. Thomas Still On Tour

In the absence of Captain Thomas, Commanding Officer of the NROTC unit who is still on his inspection tour of other units, Lt. Colonel Roose, the Executive Officer, announced that all NROTC students, whether Contract or Regular, are now permitted, upon graduation, to serve on active duty as either Ensign, USN., or Second Lt., USMC. Formerly only Regular students were given this opportunity. Colonel Roose also said that in place of drills the Midshipmen will have laboratory work in communications, gunnery and navigation.

At a recent meeting of the NROTC Seniors and upperclassmen, Lt. Col. Albert J. Roose, USMC, outlined the possibility of changing to the regular Navy upon graduation of the student if desired. Mr. Roose emphasized the fact that men would have a better chance to be accepted if they made their intentions known at the present time.

Next week Mr. Roose will make available the information for transfer to the Marine Corps upon graduation of a trainee. He will also outline the benefits of such a move.

Local Colleges Join Scientific Discussion Groups

Villanova Joins Intercollegiate Council of Science to Promote Student Interest

Several colleges of the Philadelphia area are uniting in an Intercollegiate Council of Science and Society, whose purpose is to investigate recent scientific advances such as bacteriological warfare and atomic energy. The initial meeting of the group was held in Houston Hall at the University of Pennsylvania on Wednesday, November 20.

Present members of the group are Swarthmore, Bryn Mawr, Beaver and Villanova; while Haverford, Temple, Rosemont and the University of Pennsylvania are expected to join in the near future. It is hoped that membership will ultimately include all colleges and universities in the Philadelphia area.

William Clark of Swarthmore, Rosemary Gilmartin of Bryn Mawr, and James M. Bonner of Villanova hold the positions of chairman, secretary and publicity director respectively.

The group will sponsor forums and discussions on scientific progress and recent discoveries. Tentative plans consider two or three colleges meeting together at regular intervals. There is a possibility that a Rosemont-Villanova group will be formed.

The rapid and outstanding developments taking place in science and industry today make this society both timely and beneficial to the students who participate in its discussions. Its various activities should be extremely effective in promoting student interest in things scientific.

Plans have been proposed for the future discussion of Atomic Power by the members of the various colleges in the organization. This topic was among the subjects discussed at the last meeting. Results of forthcoming meetings will be released to the students when available.

Field House Scene of Traditional Affair; Orchestra Prominent in Philadelphia District

Villanovans will dance to the music of Bill Hammersley and his orchestra when the class of '49 presents the traditional Sophomore Cotillion in the Villanova Field House on Saturday, December 14.

The dance, originally scheduled for October, was delayed because of the fact that crowded condition at the college necessitated the use of the field house as a dormitory for resident students. These conditions have been sufficiently alleviated to permit the use of the gym for social activities.

Tickets Limited

The Cotillion will be an open, informal dance, but the number of tickets is limited. Phil Appleby has been appointed chairman of the ticket committee; several members of the Sophomore class will assist him in the sale and distribution of tickets. Appleby has announced that a list of agents will be placed on bulletin boards at strategic points throughout the campus. Students are requested to buy tickets in advance in order to avoid disappointment.

Bill Hammersley's aggregation, which will supply the music is well known in the Philadelphia area. They have played for Chestnut Hill, Pennsylvania, Princeton, Beaver, and many other colleges. This is, however, their first appearance at Villanova.

Decorations on Christmas Theme

The Yuletide spirit will pervade the field house for the occasion, with holly wreaths and Christmas trees in abundance. The decorations are being planned by Joe Gallagher, who hopes for a large turnout of Sophs on Saturday morning and afternoon in order to have the gym prepared for the evening's dancing.

The dance committee expects the affair to be very successful, since it is the first important social function of the year. Its proximity to the Christmas holidays lends it a festive air. In spite of the fact that the dance is being held on very short notice, enthusiasm is running high.

The rapid organization of the dance was possible because of weeks of preliminary planning on the part of the class officers and committeemen. The cooperation being given by the class in general, however, is the big factor that permits of such hasty but efficient preparation. Tickets for the dance are three dollars per couple.

The Villanovan, on behalf of the student body and faculty, extends sympathy to the Bongiovani family on the recent death of Mrs. Bongiovani. May she rest in peace.

Solemn Mass To Mark Anniversary Of Augustinians

United States Province Celebrates Sesqui-Centennial Tomorrow

The sesqui-centennial of the founding of the Augustinian Order in the United States will be celebrated tomorrow morning with a Solemn High Mass in the College Chapel. Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., President of the College, has declared a free day in honor of the occasion.

Province Founded 1796

The Province was officially established August 27, 1796 by the General Curia, in Rome. Rev. Thomas Matthew Carr, O.S.A., was named the first Provincial, the motherhouse of the newly established province being St. Augustine's in Philadelphia. Later when the Villanova Community was made the motherhouse, the province was placed under the patronage of St. Thomas of Villanova. In 1941 another Province, under the patronage of Our Mother of Good Counsel, was established in the midwestern part of the country.

Fr. M. Sullivan Celebrant

Very Rev Mortimer A. Sullivan, O.S.A., Prior Provincial, will be the celebrant at the Mass tomorrow. He will be assisted by Rev. John J. Barthouski, O.S.A., Pastor of St. Augustine's in Philadelphia, as Deacon, and by Rev. Thomas A. Kiley, O. S. A., Prior and Pastor of St. John's Parish in Schaghticoke, N. Y. as Sub-deacon. Rev. Joseph M. Dougherty, O.S.A., Prior of the Villanova Monastery will preach the sermon for the occasion. The music of the Mass will be sung by the choir of St. Mary's Hall.

Among those attending the Mass will be Augustinians from the various schools and parishes throughout the country. The Mass will be followed by a dinner in the Monastery dining room.

Due to the fact that members of the faculty will attend the Solemn High Mass in the chapel tomorrow, Father McGuire has declared it a free day. However classes will resume on Thursday at 8 A. M.

David Patsner Wins First Prize In Fund Drawing

Lesser Awards Made From Stage; Grid Contests Pictures Shown; Music Furnished by Villanovans

At 8 P. M. on November 27, the curtain was raised on Villanova's first social event of the current school year. The Thanksgiving Eve Dance, sponsored by the seniors, proved more than successful, as better than four hundred couples glided over the gymnasium floor to the melodious strains of the college band. Adding to the festivities were the drawings for the large cash prizes awarded to the luckier participants in the Library Drive.

During the first intermission the student winners were announced. Prizes of two ticket to the Army & Navy game and $100 went to John Bantivoglio and two tickets and $50 to Nicholas Cognetta. These awards were for the two students selling the most chances during the drive. Following this intermission the Villanovans continued to perform to the satisfaction of all. Another entertainment feature was the showing of pictures of the football games by Rev. J. Vrana, O.S.A., which were held in one of the adjoining rooms. The movies were well attended and thoroughly enjoyed by all.

Drawings Main Attraction

At eleven P. M. the stage became the decided center of attraction. At this time the drawings commenced for the grand prizes and on stage officiating were Rev. Fr. McGuire, O.S.A., and Mr. Gilligan, Chairman of the Drive. Also in the limelight was Mr. Matthew Kearney, able Master of Ceremonies for the evening. The tickets were drawn by Miss Gilligan, daughter of the Chairman, and the remainder of the evening was left for dancing and for the lucky winners to realize their good fortune.

The Friends of The Library extend their appreciation for the kindness and cooperation of the students in making the drive a financial success. From the social side, the Senior Class expresses its gratitude to the Dance Committee, the students, and all who made possible a wonderful evening.

NOTICE!

All applications for admission to the nationwide Competitive Examination of the NROTC must be on file by December 17, 1946. The address is Naval Examination Section, College Entrance Examination Board, P.O. Box 709, Princeton, New Jersey. The test will be held on January 18, 1947.

Tickets On Sale Today For First 1947 Dance

Canning and Redmond Sign McIntyre, the Band All America Loves

Hal McIntyre, and "The Band All America Loves," will provide the music for the Senior Ball to be held in the Field House on January 17, 1947, it was announced by Sam Canning, Chairman of the dance. A limited number of tickets will be on sale today at the information booth at $5.50.

One of the brightest stars on the musical horizon is Hal McIntyre, young saxophonist and bandleader. He is the only leader of major standing to have gone overseas for U.S.O.

to entertain the fighting GIs on the war fronts.

In 1936 Hal formed an eight piece band in Cromwell, Connecticut and in a short time had plenty of assignments, and a weekly half-hour program on a local radio station. His band had a reputation and Hal was known as an ace man, with the alto-sax and clarinet.

He received a call so sit in with Benny Goodman and played with him for ten straight days. Goodman told him he was wasting his talents in Cromwell and recommended Hal to a young fellow, Glenn Miller, who was forming a band in New York.

With Glenn Miller

Hal auditioned for Miller and was the first person hired. However, Miller wasn't ready. The band didn't click and was disbanded, so Hal returned to Cromwell. Finally in 1938 Miller called Hal to New

Seniors Given Positions on Prom Committee

Bill Monagle Expects Tickets to Go on Sale at Information Booth Today

Sam Canning, Chairman of the Senior Ball announced the formation of the committees for this affair.

Heading the ticket committee will be co-chairmen Kirk Holland and Bill Monagle. Holland came to Villanova in 1938 and has been active in former big proms. He is a commerce and Finance student and a member of the C & F Fraternity, the Glee Club and many other organizations. Kirk served on the Orientation Committee in his Sophomore year. He is a veteran and has just recently returned to finish his education.

Bill Monagle, the other ticket committee chairman, entered Villanova in 1943 and is studying Chemical Engineering. He is a member of the PKP Fraternity and has been on several dance committees. Bill has been on the photography staff of the Villanovan since entering college and served as Photography Editor for two years.

Ably assisting Holland and Monagle on the ticket committee will be Joe Dervin, Jim McNamara, Roland Higgs, John Dwyer, Walt Lyttle, Bill Butler, Pete Turney, Bill Ford, Bob O'Connor, Dave Marano, Joe Nunan, Harry Edwards and Tom Hanratty.

George Scharnberg is chairman of the program committee. George is an M.E. and served at Villanova in the V-12 program. He was made a second lieutenant in the Marine Corps Reserve upon leaving Villanova and served in the American Theater. George has taken an ac-

Not By Book Alone . . .

Two schools of thought always seem to exist on the question of extra-curricular activities in relation to schooling. One, unfortunately, is the biased opinion that a school should be nothing more than an objective proposition in which students are to get what they can out of books and then graduate to find their way in the world; a cut and dried proposition on a "cash and carry" basis.

If such were the case, yearbooks, proms and wonderful traditions would be no more than water over the dam — wasted effort — a lure for prospective students to attend. Villanova's proud hundred years of existence would mean nothing.

As abstract and ethereal as it may sound, the culture, finish, and lasting friendship which can be found in college is boundless in limits. Book knowledge, thank goodness, is only half of what a college education presents.

Too many educators today are trying to make men nothing more than machines, robbing them of the beauty which can be found in life. A college should offer more than that which can be calculated in cold, hard figures. A college should make available to its students the opportunity of meeting and mixing with each other, of working and cooperating on school projects, and of practising citizenship and good fellowship in the various extra-curricular endeavors.

The thrill of helping a team-mate make a touchdown, the excitement of putting a dance over through one's own plans and ideas, yes, even publishing a campus newspaper can impart more to a college student than the study of a hundred books. These things give something to the personal make-up of a fellow which books cannot impart. They add to the character of a man who must take his place in a world of turmoil.

The second idea of college inculcates these principles and rightly so. The advocates of this plan would have us become a man while becoming learned.

Primarily, a college is a place to gain knowledge from books, but college training shouldn't stop at this. The college owes it to a student to complete the job of training a man to meet the world.

We are not, by any means, trying to belittle the importance of study in college. No rational being would try to do that. We are trying to show that given an education along with the supplementary opportunity for extra-curricular activities, in other words, a "rounded" education, we possess a priceless treasure, the most valuable thing a school can give. We shall have the gift of balanced schooling and thus we can meet and cope adequately with problems facing us in the fields to which we will be scattered when we leave the shelter of Villanova.

By FRANCIS J. HANSSENS

It seems that one of the most effective keys to success in this little world of ours lies in a very simple, unadorned phrase, namely, "someone on the inside." If you ask the local "bookie" to what he attributes his great success, he invariably will answer that it is because he knew "someone on the inside." Chances are that the young fellows driving those beautiful '46 Buicks around the campus knew "someone on the inside" too. In fact, it seems to be a complete toss-up as to who is the most prominent man in the U.S. today, Kilroy or the "man on the inside."

Be that as it may, with a little thought on our part, we, as Catholics, will discover that ours is the good fortune of being able to assure ourselves of "someone on the inside" who will aid us in the attainment of the pinnacle of success; the saving of our immortal souls. The formula for getting these friends of ours on the "inside" is quite a simple one, and the beauty of the whole set-up is that once we get our friends situated, they're there for keeps. Sounds pretty good, doesn't it? And here's one proposition that's just as good as it sounds. The formula is the oft-proven one of prayer, and the "friends" who are going to be pulling for us are the Souls in Purgatory, that is to say, the souls who will have been in Purgatory before we got to work putting them on the "inside."

In the Souls in Purgatory, then, we have a group of potential "inside" men who are just waiting for the day when weo n earth will free them from their suffering, a freedom that will mean not only the gaining of the Beautific Vision for them, but also the advantage for us of having someone close to God who will not forget his debt to us in time of our temptation and trial, and who will help us to attain those graces we need for the leading of a good life. For, after all, can we not expect as much from the soul who found, in our prayers, the end to his suffering?

Thus it is that, through constant prayer for the Souls in Purgatory, we find ourselves soon blessed with countless allies in heaven through whose grateful intercession we can make our gaining of heaven an "inside job."

150 Years Well Done . . .

Throughout the history of mankind we have seen great men dedicating their lives to teaching and leading their fellowmen in the truths and in the paths of righteousness.

Foremost among them are the men of the Augustinian Order, who from the time of their founding in 388 A. D. at Tagaste, Africa, by St. Augustine of Hippo, have been relentless in their devotion and prayers, penance, teachings and charity.

On Wednesday, December 11, the Order will be celebrating its One Hundred and Fiftieth anniversary of its existence in these United States. For one hundred and fifty years the good Fathers of St. Augustine have been going about these same endeavors in this country. They have established a proud record.

On Wednesday, may we all remember in our prayers this noble Order which stands for so much. May we all pay lasting tribute to an Order of Great Men. May God bless them and reward them eternally for their good works.

Camels prefer Doctors two to one!

We were bending an elbow with a few plumbers at Ford's last night and one of them asked us, quote, "_____?" Unquote. Now we well realize that this is a very serious question and one which college students all over the country (and in the city, too) are arguing. Although we at Villanova might believe so, what about the students at Oshkosh? Or Slippery Rock? Or Harcum? Do they feel the same way? MEN! Don't waste your college life by not thinking about this problem. Remember, you are the men who will have to face this predicament in later years. So don't hesitate; tear off the top of your neighborhood grocer and send him in today!

NEWS FLASH! Homann and Collins will meet us in a debate entitled, "Resolved, that half the married persons in the United States are men!" This epic of verbose bombasticity will take place tonight in the Pie Lounge at the last table; the one where the flies are playing pinochle; not to be confused with the one where the flies are playing poker; or the one where the two butchers are playing for high steaks.

Well, now that they have split the atom, no one has been able to find out what to do with half an atom.

Being over 35, we get a tremendous kick out of spelling names backwards. For instance, Jan Canning would become Mas Grinnac; Jim Bonner would become Mij Rennob. Here are some others: Rodilop, Enak, Sniiloc, Yenraek, Brinjac. Can you picture a football game with these men playing?

"This is Bill Sterriforeandat speaking. Avonaliiv kicks off to Tniop S'Gnik. Enak receives the ball on the ytnewt yard line and goes out of bounds on the net. On the ssap from center, Rodilop hands the ball to Brinjac who, with a terrific burst of speed, circles his right end for a net yard loss. Let's listen to a Avonaliiv cheer! "Let's have a short locomotive!" "Reetles Omorb! Retxles Omorb! Retxles Omorb! Yea, maet, maet, maet!" Yorlik was here; alas poor Yorlik, I knew him well.

Did you know that Villanova now has a barber shop quartet? It's razor sharp! The sharpest outfit ever toned! Jim Savage is the leader and as far as we know he's the only bird who can sing a hemidemisemiquaver note without ruffling the proverbial gay nineties moustache.

Having very little sales resistance we're overly impressed by all advertising slogans. Riding the P&W (the poor man's Super-Chief) we were so constantly confronted with the ad "DO YOU NEED MONEY? Mr. Hunter wants to see you," that we decided we could use a bit of those green rasbuckniks. So we sprinted to the local finance office and arriving on the third floor, we knocked on the door. To the accompanying rattle of chains, the door opened and Mr. Hunter begged us in. As they were typing our blood (on a small portable typewriter) Mr. Dracula (Vice-Pres. in Charge of small loans) asked us a few questions about our life during the last 40 years. We then turned over two small undernourished Freshmen as hostages and got the loan. Honestly, it's so easy to get a loan. No co-signers—no relatives or friends bothered, and besides who wants to have two eyes anyway.

Talking about sales resistance, we noticed that a 104 year old man, in the Mid-West, just purchased a cemetery lot. How's that for being tough to sell.

Recommended reading for this month is Bennet Cerf's "Try and Stop Me." We especially like his conversation between two frogs wherein one frog says to the other one: "I can hardly speak. I have a man in my throat." or the conversation between two race horses where one says to the other: "My trainer offered me a bale of hay to throw this race and believe me, chum, that ain't money."

In 1596 was published this bit of advice by the local group of Alcoholics Anonymous, London Chapter, Local 46, of which Sir Reginald Archbald Octavius Kearney, great, great, great, great, great, great great grandfather of Matthew Kearney, was the President:

Some love to drinke new wine
not fully fin'd
But for your health we wish that
you drinke none,

Catholic Literature

By F. ANTHONY HOMANN JR.

What must be present in a book, a play, or a movie which will qualify it as Catholic literature? Surely this question has come into the minds of many of those who are in any way interested in Catholic letters. Let us consider some of the necessary requirements for such a work. Inasmuch as a full consideration of the principles used in evaluating any literary effort would unfortunately take more space than is here allotted, we shall treat only briefly on this subject.

Obviously the most important characteristic of a Catholic book or play is the Catholicity of its theme. This mark can be brought about in a variety of ways. The central thought may stress a moral truth, expressed either inthe form of a parable, or explicitly. A good example of the former method may be found in the recent best-seller "Brideshead Revisited" by Evelyn Waugh. The lesson of this story was God's never-ending search for the soul of man. Around this fundamental truth Mr. Waugh masterfully wove the story of the decay of the Marchmains, a noble, English Catholic, manor family, and the individual return of the members of the family to the faith of their forefathers. A hint for those who missed the thought behind this novel may be gained by turning to the title of Book II, and then turning to the bottom of page 220. Here we might add that, quite naturally, the literary stature of any book, Catholic or otherwise, depends a great deal upon the style of the author, his character portrayal, historical and doctrinal authenticity and so forth.

For an example of the explicit manner of teaching a moral truth, we may consider Francis Thompson's poetic masterpiece, "The Hound of Heaven." Here, Thompson's central thought is the same as Waugh's — namely God's never-ending pursuit for the salvation of mans' soul. However, Thompson presents this truth directly in his poem, not hidden under the frame of a story as it was in "Brideshead Revisited." Both works, if properly interpreted and appreciated, are equally forceful, and both are outstanding examples of Catholic literature.

A second method of achieving Catholicity of theme is the accurate and unbiased portrayal of Catholic life and principles. Splendid examples of this may be found in the recent movies "Going My Way" and the "Bells of St. Mary's." Likewise, the biographies of the saints, if narrated with justice and veracity, can achieve this purpose. Excellent models of this method can be found in our contemporary literature where such books as "The Song of Bernadette" by Franz Werfel and "Edmund Campion" by Evelyn Waugh, are a few of the many examples.

Finally, a Catholic book cannot be hypocritical — it cannot (like many of our present day movies and books do) follow the letter of the law, but not the law itself. That is to say, a book is not Catholic which paints sin temptingly for two hundred and ninety-nine pages, and on the three hundredth "out of principle" punishes the offenders. The general impression gained from the book is altered little by a punishment of the offenders at the end of the book.

Such then are the methods for attaining the general requirement of Catholicity of theme. Let us now turn our attention to the more difficult and more subtle task of determining just what would make any apecific passage objectionable, and what effect objectionable passages have on the whole book. To this task we may apply three general principles.

I—Parts which are objectionable do not necessarily condemn the whole.

II—Sin must be recognized as such.

III—There must be no tempting descriptions of sin.

These are the three most important rules to apply to any doubtful passage or book. In the next issue, we shall devote some time to a fuller discussion of these principles, certainly not as fully as they could be discussed, but enough to give the reader a fair idea of the principles of Catholic literature.

NROTC Notes

By JOE KENNEY

An important announcement by Captain Thomas disclosed that no more candidates for admission to the Naval Reserve Officers Training Corps will be accepted after December 7 of the current scholastic year. As the only exceptions, five students from the freshman class with previous experience as members of the NROTC or V-12 unit will be accepted as contract students next semester. The Commanding Officer expressed the desire that all students interested in the program act quickly in order to receive the opportunities of such training.

Eligible for Annapolis

A recent order from the Navy Department in Washington, D. C. stated that only Contract students are eligible to compete for appointments to the Naval Academy. However, Captain Thomas discourages the idea of present NROTC men going to the Naval Academy for the primary reason of lost time as the current training received by the students attending Villanova is closely related to the training received at Annapolis.

Secondly, he said that he believes the graduates of Villanova College and other Colleges of similar standing will be more than able to hold their own with the graduates of the Naval Academy.

Commandant to Visit

Vice Admiral Kauffman, Commandant of the Fourth Naval District, will visit the campus on December 17, for an inspection of the NROTC unit. It is also expected that he will deliver a talk to the Midshipmen at the Armory located in Alumni Hall.

Captain Thomas expects to undergo an eye operation in the near future depending upon the results of consultation with physicians. He has been operated on before for the same trouble and if another operation is necessary he will be hospitalized for a few weeks.

Rosemont Glee Club to Carol Here on Monday

Chapel to Be Scene of New Tradition; Father McGuire to Celebrate Benediction

For the past few years Villanova has invited the girls from Rosemont College to sing in the Chapel at Christmas time. This year, our Chaplain, Father Grimes announced that he has contacted Mother Basil, S.H.C.J., the Dean of Women at Rosemont and that arrangements have been made for them to participate in a Solemn Benediction on Monday, December 16th, at 7:00 P. M.

Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., will act as the celebrant. He will be assisted by Father Robert Sullvan, as deacon, and by Father Hannon as sub-deacon.

Dressed in caps and gowns the girls will proceed by candle light in the main aisle towards the choir loft. During the procession "The Three Kings" will be rendered in fitting tribute to the coming of the King of Kings.

Before the Benediction the carolers will give forth with "See Amid the Winter Snow" and "Low How a Rose e're Blooming." These wil be followed by the ever beautiful "Silent Night" and "Angels We Have Heard on High." After the Benediction the "Ave Maria" will conclude the service.

The students that will be here on Monday are from both the Glee Club and the Choir of Rosemont. There will be about fifty girls taking part in the Christmas caroling; the Villanovans who have had the pleasure of hearing them will vouch for their beauty and artistry.

One of the most significant features of Christmas time is the Christmas Carol when the spirit of the Christian man prevails and men lift up their voices in announcing the birth of One who came and saved the world.

Doings In Town

By FRANK DITURI

The English motion picture production "Henry V," produced and directed by, and starring Laurence Olivier, will open at the New Pix Theatre at 1330 Market St. on Tuesday, Dec. 17th. The picture has received rave reviews from everybody for its technical excellence, superb acting, and good interpretation of Shakespeare's original play. Personally we've never seen a movie to date that was worth two bucks a seat; but the impassioned acclaim of the critics (who got complimentary seats) has begun to shake our convictions. Maybe this is different. All seats are reserved; $1.95 for matinees and $2.60 for evening shows. An evening shows. An evening show is scheduled every evening at 8:30, and a matinee every afternoon at 2:30. On Saturdays, Sundays, and holidays there will be extra matinees at 5:30. Mail orders will be filled by the theatre if a stamped self-addressed envelope is included.

Choice Holiday Plays

"Bloomer Girl" with the original New Cast cast will open at the Forrest Theatre for a three week run beginning Monday, Dec. 16. Tickets start at $1.30.

At the Acadamy of Music this week:

On Thursday night, Dec. 12, the La Scala Opera Company will present "Aida." Antonio Gela, tenor, will make his American debut in this performance, in the role of Rhadames. The title role will be sung by Herva Nella, Italian dramatic soprano, making her Philadelphia debut.

Concerts Scheduled

On Friday afternoon, Dec. 13th at 2:30, and Saturday night, Dec. 14th, at 8:30, the Philadelphia Orchestra with Eugene Ormandy conducting will present two "Firsts." The 18th century composition, Symphony No. 3 by Carl Phillip Emanuel Bachfi will be presented for the first time by the Philadelphia Orchestra. For the first time anywhere, will be presented the "Three Cyprus Serenades" by Anis Fuleihan based on Mediterranean folk songs. Rudolf Firkusny, Czech pianist, will play Brahm's First Concerto.

Tickets can be obtained from Haly's, 1505 Walnut St., for all performances; prices start at $1.30.

Little Theatre Presentations

The Hedgerow Theatre in Moylan announces a Christmas Festival which includes three performances of "Twelfth Night," and one each of Shaw's "The Devil's Disciple," Chekov's "Uncle Vanya,' and O'Neill's "Emperor Jones." "Twelfth Night" will be given Wednesday and Thursday, Dec. 25th and 26th, and Wednesday, Jan. 1st. "Devil's Disciple" will be given Friday, Dec. 27th; "Uncle Vanya" on Saturday, Dec. 28th, and "Emperor Jones" on Tuesday, Dec. 31st. There will probably be sell-out houses for all performances, so start now to make your reservations. Tickets are .90 (student rate), $1.20, $1.80 and $2.40. Phone Media 2482 for reservations and information.

Hockey at the Arena this week: The Rockets will play Hershey on Wednesday night, Dec. 11th and New Haven on Saturday, Dec. 14th. There will be one basketball game on Thursday, Dec. 12th, with the Warriors playing Washington. Tickets run from $1.30 to $2.60, and can be obtained at the boxoffice, 45th and Market Sts. Starting time for all games is 8:30.

Last but not least of events around the city is the opening of the college basketball season on the Main Line when our own Villanova plays Rider University at the Main Line Field House. Students will be admitted with the presentation of their matriculation cards; other tickets will be on sale at the door.

SENIOR MEETING

Tonight, the Senior class will hold a smoker in the C&F Auditorium. There will be a short meeting which will start at 7 P. M. The discussion will center about the dinner dance to be held on Jan. 18, 1947. The members of the class will be given an opportunity to meet the chairman and voice their opinions on the price, reservations, time, etc. Following the meeting refreshments will be served.

Behind the Eight Ball

By DICK RANDOLPH and LARRY LYONS

As the twilight shadows gather
Out upon the campus green
The "cats" observe this column
And let out a mighty scream.

In the last issue our motto should have been "How dry I am," for the printer really spared the ink on Ye Old Eight Balle . . . Perhaps that's what we get for being on page nine of an eight page issue.

That edition was the same one that was turned to and fro by everyone so that they could read the French, Latin and English witticisms of John Kucha. Several people have approached us and asked us for some information about "the Mad Columnist." We have nothing to say on the subject except that said character is so confident that he does crossword puzzles with a fountain pen, and that he is so crooked he can sleep comfortably on a corkscrew . . . Well, they say it takes all kinds to make up the world . . .

Korny Kearney

The Library Fund Dance on November 17th was really a swell affair, despite the fact that the music was punctuated occassionally by the snore of some slumbering frosh. This was perhaps the first time that those fellows were lulled to sleep by a band playing beneath their balcony. Never let it be said that Villanova doesn't treat its freshmen good.

Matt Kearney tried, and we might add succeeded, to snow those present with corn. In other words he was the witty M. C. for the evening. More successful than his jokes was his ability to give away thousands of dollars. Harry Edwards we're told (by Harry) would be satisfied if he could get the money back he paid for tickets . . . Bill Altenpohl was wearing a big smile for he sold a ticket that was good for one hundred frogskins.

Seniors Turn Out

The Seniors were well represented that night right from president Dan "it was my turn with Sue" Redmond down to Newt Ward who was picking up spending money by collecting at the door.

Joe Brogan gave us a big "Hi Ya." We only had to chase him for five minutes. These seniors get more sociable every day . . . Larry Fallon had a cute bundle of charm with him for a change so he made sure that we spotted him . . . And after the dance we saw Tob Hanratty wandering all over the place looking for his date. We don't blame the poor girl for walking home . . .

Other Classes Represented

Bill Ambrogi was there putting on a dance exhibition for some of the squares . . . Several others that we spied were Neil McGee, Bill Rooney, Jack Hellman, Syl Yarnelli, Jim O'Brien, Jack Applegate and Joe Roberts. Incidentally Joe's car looked like a fugitive from a funeral procession. It was the biggest thing that we saw all night, excluding our dates. . . .

Thru the Mill

The Mill seemed to be the popular place after the dance, and there were two parties down there that were really having a good time. One of these parties consisted of Dick Livingston, Jim McNamara, Jim Lyons and Ed Fitzgerald. The other party was made up of Jim "the crowd" Mullen (his blonde hair a mass of waves), Bob Manifold and Frank McBride. Jim must have been really on that night for when he introduced us to his date he had to shake her awake. . . .

Future Orange Blossoms

Bernard Reilly has taken the first step toward becoming an old married man, well married anyway. Last week Bernie mustered up his courage and slipped a ring on the third finger left of his O.A.O. Bernie plans to be married as soon as he hits the daily double at Tropical.

Campus Cutie

Several weeks ago at a dance given by Immaculata we spied Jerry Powell wearing a beautiful corsage, which consisted of carrots, radishes and several other vegetables. His date, Dotty, the maker of this devine creation, was beaming all night long at her "wittie" Bugs Bunny.

Joke of the Week

The other day in Religion class Jim Cahill was asked what vows were taken by a couple about to be married. Jim promptly answered, "the vow of poverty." This was promptly confirmed by the married men of the class.

Mail Scarce

Don Leyman received a letter several days ago and upon opening it he found that it was a letter that he had written to his mother the day before and which he had addressed to himself. What some fellows won't do to get mail.

Before we go this week we would like to leave a bit of homespun logic with our loyal readers . . . Remember that some grow under responsibility . . . Others merely swell! (Wheels, please take note.).

Symphonic Band Concert Held

Rev. Ralph Handran, O.S.A., conducted the Villanova College Symphonic Band through its second post-war nformal concert before an appreciative audience at Immaculata College last night, December 9.

Selections performed included: National Emblem March, Irish Medley, Bassology, Body and Soul, Wanting You, The Thunderer March, Belle of the Ball, Our Director March, and Immaculata Alma Mater.

A trumpet solo, Gounod's Ave Maria, was played by Dave English with band accompaniment. James Duffy, Bill Chauvenet and George Beltzer were the trio of trombonists who rendered expertly Three Trombonists, a study in close harmony.

Ex-Servicemen Take Bow

Adding to the novelty of the Service number, which was dedicated to the Armed Forces, the ex-GI members of the band rose, ploying, as their band struck their respective service themes. Applause from the audience greeted each group.

The climax of the evening was reached when, ushering in the spirit of the Christmas season, the band played several favorite Christmas Carols, Little Town of Bethlehem, The First Noel, and Silent Night.

Jim Rodgers, band manager, was in charge of arrangements for the concert.

Not By Book Alone . . .

Two schools of thought always seem to exist on the question of extra-curricular activities in relation to schooling. One, unfortunately, is the biased opinion that a school should be nothing more than an objective proposition in which students are to get what they can out of books and then graduate to find their way in the world; a cut and dried proposition on a "cash and carry" basis.

If such were the case, yearbooks, proms and wonderful traditions would be no more than water over the dam — wasted effort — a lure for prospective students to attend. Villanova's proud hundred years of existence would mean nothing.

As abstract and ethereal as it may sound, the culture, finish, and lasting friendship which can be found in college is boundless in limits. Book knowledge, thank goodness, is only half of what a college education presents.

Too many educators today are trying to make men nothing more than machines, robbing them of the beauty which can be found in life. A college should offer more than that which can be calculated in cold, hard figures. A college should make available to its students the opportunity of meeting and mixing with each other, of working and cooperating on school projects, and of practising citizenship and good fellowship in the various extra-curricular endeavors.

The thrill of helping a team-mate make a touchdown, the excitement of putting a dance over through one's own plans and ideas, yes, even publishing a campus newspaper can impart more to a college student than the study of a hundred books. These things give something to the personal make-up of a fellow which books cannot impart. They add to the character of a man who must take his place in a world of turmoil.

The second idea of college inculcates these principles and rightly so. The advocates of this plan would have us become a man while becoming learned.

Primarily, a college is a place to gain knowledge from books, but college training shouldn't stop at this. The college owes it to a student to complete the job of training a man to meet the world.

We are not, by any means, trying to belittle the importance of study in college. No rational being would try to do that. We are trying to show that given an education along with the supplementary opportunity for extra-curricular activities, in other words, a "rounded" education, we possess a priceless treasure, the most valuable thing a school can give. We shall have the gift of balanced schooling and thus we can meet and cope adequately with problems facing us in the fields to which we will be scattered when we leave the shelter of Villanova.

By FRANCIS J. HANSSENS

It seems that one of the most effective keys to success in this little world of ours lies in a very simple, unadorned phrase, namely, "someone on the inside." If you ask the local "bookie" to what he attributes his great success, he invariably will answer that it is because he knew "someone on the inside." Chances are that the young fellows driving those beautiful '46 Buicks around the campus knew "someone on the inside" too. In fact, it seems to be a complete toss-up as to who is the most prominent man in the U.S. today, Kilroy or the "man on the inside."

Be that as it may, with a little thought on our part, we, as Catholics, will discover that ours is the good fortune of being able to assure ourselves of "someone on the inside" who will aid us in the attainment of the pinnacle of success; the saving of our immoital souls. The formula for getting these friends of ours on the "inside" is quite a simple one, and the beauty of the whole set-up is that once we get our friends situated, they're there for keeps. Sounds pretty good, doesn't it? And here's one proposition that's just as good as it sounds. The formula is the oft-proven one of prayer, and the "friends" who are going to be pulling for us are the Souls in Purgatory, that is to say, the souls who will have been in Purgatory before we got to work putting them on the "inside."

In the Souls in Purgatory, then, we have a group of potential "inside" men who are just waiting for the day when we on earth will free them from their suffering, a freedom that will mean not only the gaining of the Beautific Vision for them, but also the advantage for us of having someone close to God who will not forget his debt to us in time of our temptation and trial, and who will help us to attain those graces we need for the leading of a good life. For, after all, can we not expect as much from the soul who found, in our prayers, the end to his suffering?

Thus it is that, through constant prayer for the Souls in Purgatory, we find ourselves soon blessed with countless allies in heaven through whose grateful intercession we can make our gaining of heaven an "inside job."

150 Years Well Done . . .

Throughout the history of mankind we have seen great men dedicating their lives to teaching and leading their fellowmen in the truths and in the paths of righteousness.

Foremost among them are the men of the Augustinian Order, who from the time of their founding in 388 A. D. at Tagaste, Africa, by St. Augustine of Hippo, have been relentless in their devotion and prayers, penance, teachings and charity.

On Wednesday, December 11, the Order will be celebrating its One Hundred and Fiftieth anniversary of its existence in these United States. For one hundred and fifty years the good Fathers of St. Augustine have been going about these same endeavors in this country. They have established a proud record.

On Wednesday, may we all remember in our prayers this noble Order which stands for so much. May we all pay lasting tribute to an Order of Great Men. May God bless them and reward them eternally for their good works.

Camels prefer Doctors two to one!

We were bending an elbow with a few plumbers at Ford's last night and one of them asked us, quote, "_____?" Unquote. Now we well realize that this is a very serious question and one which college students all over the country (and in the city, too) are arguing. Although we at Villanova might believe so, what about the students at Oshkosh? Or Slippery Rock? Or Harcum? Do they feel the same way? MEN! Don't waste your college life by not thinking about this problem. Remember, you are the men who will have to face this predicament in later years. So don't hesitate; tear off the top of your neighborhood grocer and send him in today!

NEWS FLASH! Homann and Collins will meet us in a debate entitled, "Resolved, that half the married persons in the United States are men!" This epic of verbose bombasticity will take place tonight in the Pie Lounge at the last table; the one where the flies are playing pinochle; not to be confused with the one where the flies are playing poker; or the one where the two butchers are playing for high steaks.

Well, now that they have split the atom, no one has been able to find out what to do with half an atom.

Being over 35, we get a tremendous kick out of spelling names backwards. For instance, Sam Canning would become Mas Grinnac; Jim Bonner would become Mij Rennob. Here are some others: Rodiep, Enak, Sniiloc, Yenraeb, Brinjac. Can you picture a football game with these men playing?

"This is Bill Sternforeandaft speaking. Avonalliv kicks off to Tniop S'Gnik. Enak receives the ball on the ytnewt yard line and goes out of bounds on the net. On the snap from center, Rodiep hands the ball to Brinjac who, with a terrific burst of speed, circles his right end for a net yard loss. Let's listen to a Avonalliv cheer! "Let's have a short locomotive!" "Reztles Omorb! Retzles Omorb! Retzles Omorb! Yea, maet, maet, maet!" Yorlik was here; alas poor Yorlik, I knew him well.

Did you know that Villanova now has a barber shop quartet? It's razor sharp! The sharpest outfit ever toned! Jim Savage is the leader and as far as we know he's the only bird who can sing a hemidemisemiquaver note without ruffling the proverbial gay nineties moustache.

NOTICE

—Paul X. Kelly

Having very little sales resistance we're overly impressed by all advertising slogans. Riding the P&W (the poor man's Super-Chief) we were so constantly confronted with the ad "DO YOU NEED MONEY? Mr. Hunter wants to see you," that we decided we could use a bit of those green rasbucknicks. So we sprinted to the local finance office and arriving on the third floor, we knocked on the door. To the accompanying rattle of chains, the door opened and Mr. Hunter begged us in. As they were typing our blood (on a small portable typewriter) Mr. Hunter (in charge of small loans) asked us a few questions about our life during the last 40 years. We then turned over two small undernourished Freshmen as hostages and got the loan. Honestly, it's so easy to get a loan. No co-signers — no relatives or friends bothered, and besides who wants to have two eyes anyway.

Talking about sales resistance, we noticed that a 104 year old man, in the Mid-West, just purchased a cemetery lot. How's that for being tough to sell.

Recommended reading for this month is Bennet Cerf's "Try and Stop Me." We especially like his conversation between two frogs wherein one frog says to the other one: "I can hardly speak. I have a man in my throat," or the conversation between two race horses where one says to the other: "My trainer offered me a bale of hay to throw this race and believe me, chum, that ain't money."

In 1596 was published this bit of advice by the local group of Alcoholics Anonymous, London Chapter, Local 46, of which Sir Reginald Archibald Octavius Kearney, great, great, great, great, great, great great grandfather of Matthew Kearney, was the President:

Some love to drinke new wine
not fully fin'd
But for your health we wish that
you drinke none,

Catholic Literature

By F. ANTHONY HOMANN JR.

What must be present in a book, a play, or a movie which will qualify it as Catholic literature? Surely this question has come into the minds of many of those who are in any way interested in Catholic letters. Let us consider some of the necessary requirements for such a work. Inasmuch as a full consideration of the principles used in evaluating any literary effort would unfortunately take more space than is here allotted, we shall treat only briefly on this subject.

Obviously the most important characteristic of a Catholic book or play is the Catholicity of its theme. This mark can be brought about in a variety of ways. The central thought may stress a moral truth, expressed either in the form of a parable, or explicitly. A good example of the former method may be found in the recent best-seller "Brideshead Revisited" by Evelyn Waugh. The lesson of this story was God's never-ending search for the soul of man. Around this fundamental truth Mr. Waugh masterfully wove the story of the decay of the Marchmains, a noble, English Catholic, manor family, and the individual return of the members of the family to the faith of their forefathers. A hint for those who missed the thought behind this novel may be gained by turning to the title of Book II, and then turning to the bottom of page 220. Here we might add that, quite naturally, the literary stature of any book, Catholic or otherwise, depends a great deal upon the style of the author, his character portrayal, historical and doctrinal authenticity and so forth.

For an example of the explicit manner of teaching a moral truth, we may consider Francis Thompson's poetic masterpiece, "The Hound of Heaven." Here, Thompson's central thought is the same as Waugh's — namely God's never-ending pursuit for the salvation of mans' soul. However, Thompson presents this truth directly in his poem, not hidden under the frame of a story as it was in "Brideshead Revisited." Both works, if properly interpreted and appreciated, are equally forceful, and both are outstanding examples of Catholic literature.

A second method of achieving Catholicity of theme is the accurate and unbiased portrayal of Catholic life and principles. Splendid examples of this may be found in the recent movies "Going My Way" and the "Bells of St. Mary's." Likewise, the biographies of the saints, if narrated with justice and veracity, can achieve this purpose. Excellent models of this method can be found in our contemporary literature where such books as "The Song of Bernadette" by Franz Werfel and "Edmund Campion" by Evelyn Waugh, are a few of the many examples.

Finally, a Catholic book cannot be hypocritical — it cannot (like many of our present day movies and books do) follow the letter of the law, but not the law itself. That is to say, a book is not Catholic which paints sin temptingly for two hundred and ninety-nine pages, and on the three hundredth "out of principle" punishes the offenders. The general impression gained from the book is altered little by a punishment of the offenders at the end of the book.

Such then are the methods for attaining the general requirement of Catholicity of theme. Let us now turn our attention to the more difficult and more subtle task of determining just what would make any specific passage objectionable, and what effect objectionable passages have on the whole book. To this task we may apply three general principles.

I—Parts which are objectionable do not necessarily condemn the whole.

II—Sin must be recognized as such.

III—There must be no tempting descriptions of sin.

These are the three most important rules to apply to any doubtful passage or book. In the next issue, we shall devote some time to a fuller discussion of these principles, certainly not as fully as they could be discussed, but enough to give the reader a fair idea of the principles of Catholic literature.

NROTC Notes

By JOE KENNEY

An important announcement by Captain Thomas disclosed that no more candidates for admission to the Naval Reserve Officers Training Corps will be accepted after December 7 of the current scholastic year. As the only exceptions, five students from the freshman class with previous experience as members of the NROTC or V-12 unit will be accepted as contract students next semester. The Commanding Officer expressed the desire that all students interested in the program act quickly in order to receive the opportunities of such training.

Eligible for Annapolis

A recent order from the Navy Department in Washington, D. C. stated that only Contract students are eligible to compete for appointments to the Naval Academy. However, Captain Thomas discourages the idea of present NROTC men going to the Naval Academy for the primary reason of lost time as the current training received by the students attending Villanova is closely related to the training received at Annapolis.

Secondly, he said that he believes the graduates of Villanova College and other Colleges of similar standing will be more than able to hold their own with the graduates of the Naval Academy.

Commandant to Visit

Vice Admiral Kauffman, Commandant of the Fourth Naval District, will visit the campus on December 17, for an inspection of the NROTC unit. It is also expected that he will deliver a talk to the Midshipmen at the Armory located in Alumni Hall.

Captain Thomas expects to undergo an eye operation in the near future depending upon the results of consultation with physicians. He has been operated on before for the same trouble and if another operation is necessary he will be hospitalized for a few weeks.

Rosemont Glee Club to Carol Here on Monday

Chapel to Be Scene of New Tradition; Father McGuire to Celebrate Benediction

For the past few years Villanova has invited the girls from Rosemont College to sing in the Chapel at Christmas time. This year, our Chaplain, Father Grimes announced that he has contacted Mother Basil, S.H.C.J., the Dean of Women at Rosemont, and that arrangements have been made for them to participate in a Solemn Benediction on Monday, December 16th, at 7:00 P. M.

Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., will act as the celebrant. He will be assisted by Father Robert Sullivan, as deacon, and by Father Hannon as sub-deacon.

Dressed in caps and gowns the girls will proceed by candle light in the main aisle towards the choir loft. During the procession "The Three Kings" will be rendered in fitting tribute to the coming of the King of Kings.

Before the Benediction the carolers will give forth with "See Amid the Winter Snow" and "Low How a Rose e're Blooming." These will be followed by the ever beautiful "Silent Night" and "Angels We Have Heard on High." After the Benediction the "Ave Maria" will conclude the service.

The students that will be here on Monday are from both the Glee Club and the Choir of Rosemont. There will be about fifty girls taking part in the Christmas caroling; the Villanovans who have had the pleasure of hearing them will vouch for their beauty and artistry.

One of the most significant features of Christmas time is the Christmas Carol when the spirit of the Christian man prevails and men lift up their voices in announcing the birth of One who came and saved the world.

Doings In Town

By FRANK DITURI

The English motion picture production "Henry V," produced and directed by, and starring Laurence Olivier, will open at the New Pix Theatre at 1830 Market St. on Tuesday, Dec. 17th. The picture has received rave reviews from everybody for its technical excellence, superb acting, and good interpretation of Shakespeare's original play. Personally we've never seen a movie to date that was worth two bucks a seat; but the impassioned acclaim of the critics (who got complimentary seats) has begun to shake our convictions. Maybe this is different. All seats are reserved; $1.95 for matinees and $2.60 for evening shows. An evening shows. An evening show is scheduled every evening at 8:30, and a matinee every afternoon at 2:30. On Saturdays, Sundays, and holidays there will be extra matinees at 5:30. Mail orders will be filled by the theatre if a stamped self-addressed envelope is included.

Choice Holiday Plays

"Bloomer Girl" with the original New Cast cast will open at the Forrest Theatre for a three week run beginning Monday, Dec. 16. Tickets start at $1.30.

At the Acadamy of Music this week:

On Thursday night, Dec. 12, the La Scala Opera Company will present "Aida." Antonio Gela, tenor, will make his American debut in this performance, in the role of Rhadames. The title role will be sung by Herva Nella, Italian dramatic soprano, making her Philadelphia debut.

Concerts Scheduled

On Friday afternoon, Dec. 13th at 2:30, and Saturday night Dec. 14th, at 8:30, the Philadelphia Orchestra with Eugene Ormandy conducting will present two "Firsts." The 18th century composition, Symphony No. 3 by Carl Phillip Emanuel Bachh will be presented for the first time by the Philadelphia Orchestra. For the first time anywhere, will be presented the "Three Cyprus Serenades" by Anis Fuleihaht based on Mediterranean folk songs. Rudolf Firkusny, Czech pianist, will play Brahm's First Concerto.

Tickets can be obtained from Haly's, 1505 Walnut St., for all performances; prices start at $1.30.

Little Theatre Presentations

The Hedgerow Theatre in Moylan announces a Christmas Festival which includes three performances of "Twelfth Night," and one each of Shaw's "The Devil's Disciple," Chekov's "Uncle Vanya," and O'Neill's "Emperor Jones." "Twelfth Night" will be given Wednesday and Thursday, Dec. 25th and 26th, and Wednesday, Jan. 1st. "Devil's Disciple" will be given Friday, Dec. 27th; "Uncle Vanya" on Saturday, Dec. 28th, and "Emperor Jones" on Tuesday, Dec. 31st. There will probably be sell-out houses for all performances, so start now to make your reservations. Tickets are .90 (student rate), $1.20, $1.80 and $2.40. Phone Media 2482 for reservations and information.

Hockey at the Arena this week: The Rockets will play Hershey on Wednesday night, Dec. 11th and New Haven on Saturday, Dec. 14th. There will be one basketball game on Thursday, Dec. 12th, with the Warriors playing Washington. Tickets run from $1.30 to $2.60, and can be obtained at the boxoffice, 45th and Market Sts. Starting time for all games is 8:30.

Last but not least of events around the city is the opening of the college basketball season on the Main Line when our own Villanova plays Rider University at the Main Line Field House. Students will be admitted with the presentation of their matriculation cards; other tickets will be on sale at the door.

SENIOR MEETING

Tonight, the Senior class will hold a smoker in the C&F Auditorium. There will be a short meeting which will start at 7 P. M.. The discussion will center about the dinner dance to be held on Jan. 18, 1947. The members of the class will be given an opportunity to meet the chairman and voice their opinions on the price, reservations, time, etc. Following the meeting refreshments will be served.

Behind the Eight Ball

By DICK RANDOLPH and LARRY LYONS

As the twilight shadows gather
Out upon the campus green
The "eats" observe this column
And let out a mighty scream.

In the last issue our motto should have been "How dry I am," for the printer really spared the ink on Ye Old Eight Balle . . . Perhaps that's what we get for being on page nine of an eight page issue.

That edition was the same one that was turned to and fro by everyone so that they could read the French, Latin and English witticisms of John Kucha. Several people have approached us and asked us for some information about "the Mad Columnist." We have nothing to say on the subject except that said character is so confident that he does crossword puzzles with a fountain pen, and that he is so crooked he can sleep comfortably on a corkscrew . . . Well, they say it takes all kinds to make up the world . . .

Korny Kearney

The Library Fund Dance on November 17th was really a swell affair, despite the fact that the music was punctuated occassionally by the snore of some slumbering frosh. This was perhaps the first time that those fellows were lulled to sleep by a band playing beneath their balcony. Never let it be said that Villanova doesn't treat its freshmen good.

Matt Kearney tried, and we might add succeeded, to woo those present with corn. In other words he was the witty M. C. for the evening. More successful than his jokes was his ability to give away thousands of dollars. Harry Edwards we're told (by Harry) would be sad indeed if he could get the money back he paid for tickets . .

Bill Altenpohl was wearing a big smile for he sold a ticket that was good for one hundred frogskins.

Seniors Turn Out

The Seniors were well represented that night right from president Dan "it was my turn with Sue" Redmond down to Newt Ward who was picking up spending money by collecting at the door.

Joe Brogan gave us a big "Hi Ya." We only had to chase him for five minutes. These seniors get more sociable every day . . . Larry Fallon had a cute bundle of charm with him for a change so he made sure that we spotted him . . . And after the dance we saw Tob Hanratty wandering all over the place looking for his date. We don't blame the poor girl for walking home . . .

Other Classes Represented

Bill Ambrogi was there putting on a dance exhibition for some of the squares . . . Several others that we spied were Neil McGee, Bill Rooney, Jack Heilman, Syl Yarnelli, Jim O'Brien, Jack Applegate and Joe Roberts. Incidentally Joe's car looked like a fugitive from a funeral procession. It was the biggest thing that we saw all night, excluding our dates . . . .

Thru the Mill

The Mill seemed to be the popular place after the dance, and there were two parties down there that were really having a good time. One of these parties consisted of Dick Livingston, Jim McNamara, Jim Lyons and Ed Fitzgerald. The other party was made up of Jim "the crowd" Mullen (his blonde hair a mass of waves), Bob Manifold and Frank McBride. Jim must have been really on that night for when he introduced us to his date he had to shake her awake. . . .

Future Orange Blossoms

Bernard Reilly has taken the first step toward becoming an old married man, well married anyway. Last week Bernie mustered up his courage and slipped a ring on the third finger left of his O.A.O. Bernie plans to be married as soon as he hits the daily double at Tropical.

Campus Cutie

Several weeks ago at a dance given by Immaculata we spied Jerry Powell wearing a beautiful corsage, which consisted of carrots, radishes and several other vegetables. His date, Dotty, the maker of this devine creation, was beaming all night long at her "wittle" Bugs Bunny.

Joke of the Week

The other day in Religion class Jim Cahill was asked what vows were taken by a couple about to be married. Jim promptly answered, "The vow of poverty." This was promptly confirmed by the married men of the class.

Mail Scarce

Don Leyman received a letter several days ago and upon opening it he found that it was a letter that he had written to his mother the day before and which he had addressed to himself. What some fellows won't do to get mail.

Before we go this week we would like to leave a bit of homespun logic with our loyal readers . . . Remember that some grow under responsibility . . . Others merely swell! (Wheels, please take note.)

Symphonic Band Concert Held

Rev. Ralph Handran, O.S.A., conducted the Villanova College Symphonic Band through its second post-war nformal concert before an appreciative audience at Immaculata College last night, December 9.

Selections performed included: National Emblem March, Irish Medley, Bassology, Body and Soul, Wanting You, The Thunderer March, Belle of the Ball, Our Director March, and Immaculata Alma Mater.

A trumpet solo, Gounod's Ave Maria, was played by Dave English with band accompaniment. James Duffy, Bill Chauvenet and George Beltzer were the trio of trombonists who rendered expertly Three Trombonists, a study in close harmony.

Ex-Servicemen Take Bow

Adding to the novelty of the Service number, which was dedicated to the Armed Forces, the ex-GI members of the band rose, playing, as their band struck their respective service themes. Applause from the audience greeted each group.

The climax of the evening was reached when, ushering in the spirit of the Christmas season, the band played several favorite Christmas Carols, Little Town of Bethlehem, The First Noel, and Silent Night.

Jim Rodgers, band manager, was in charge of arrangements for the have been really on that night for concert.

Here and there: Vaughn Monroe is adding strings as one more step towards a Horace Heidt type show band. Lynn Stevens, former Georgie Auld and Woody Herman canary, is singing with Vido Musso now. King Cole's agency is making script revisions so his Wild Root radio program will not show signs of rumored censoring to prevent the King from talking with the guest soloists.

Betty Hutton goes back to the Capitol label at the expiration of her contract with Victor come this Jan. 1st. Interesting to note the "wild women of the movies" hasn't hung up a hit since leaving the Capitol fold.

Blonde, lovely, and 19 years of age Dorothy Collins is now chirping for Raymont Scott. Ray will be remembered as the creator of "Huckleberry Duck," "Twentieth Century Drawing Room," and a host of others. My, oh, my, ten years ago this month bands like Fred Waring, Guy Lombardo, and Glen Gray were the toast of Manhattan. It's just like the new Studebaker, times have changed.

Art Lund's contract has another year to run with Mr. Clarinet. Reported that Hal MacIntyre and Tony Pastor are drawing down 52 grand a year for their labors with the Cosmo outfit. Be careful boys, that's a lot of income tax.

Poll Closing

The Downbeat poll will be drawing to a close on the 10th of this month. The boys have been counting ballots until they have "blues in the night." At the present time the standings look something like this: On the swing band side of the ledged it is plenty close with Stan Kenton having a slight edge on Duke Ellington. Woody Herman is pacing the boys at the third position. For the sweet title it's the Duke again with god old T.D. close on his heels, Les ("Sentimental Journey") Brown runs show. King Cole is leading by a wide margin in the small combo race while Frankie is winning hands down for the male vocalist crown. The King of Corn as you expected is headed by Spike Jones. The band vocalists lead is held down by Stuart Foster with T.D. and Joan Christy, currently sparking the Stan Kenton outfit.

Didn't hear any discs this week worth writing about, so I won't.

This being the first appearance of this department in the Villanovan, it might be proper to introduce George A. Harris, Veterans Administration Training Officer. Mr. Harris, formerly bombardier with the Eighth Al Force, and veteran of thirty missions, is not only the training officer at Villanova College, but also at Haverford College and seven airports where veterans courses are being pursued. On Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays, Mr. Harris may be contacted in Room 111, Mendel Hall. He urges veteran students to stop in and discuss their problems.

From time to time Mr. Harris will reach the students through this column, but it is suggested that they also make frequent references to the bulletin boards located in Mendel Hall, the Pie Shop, and in the Commerce and Finance building.

With the Christmas Holiday Season approaching, veteran students are reminded to file a report on their earnings during that season. The Veterans Administration requires that earning reports be submitted each month. Students who do not work need not file a report since the form they signed on registration day is sufficient. However, if a form is enclosed with the subsistance check, it should be filled out and submitted to Mr. Harris' office.

The Army Finance Office of Philadelphia announced recently that bonds and checks have been made out for the payment of most of the claims for unused leave pay. The checks and bonds had not been sent out because of a shortage of envelopes, but now with this difficulty removed, they should be in the mail before Christmas.

Initiations into the Phi Kappa Pi Fraternity, originally scheduled for tomorrow, December 11 have been postponed it has been announced by Joseph Brogan, president of the organization. The event has now been slated for January 8, 1947, just after the return from the Christmas holidays.

Beta Gamma to Debate Women

Beta Gamma, Villanova's senior debating society, ends its pre-Christmas program with a brace of debates against women's colleges in the district. Bryn Mawr College will face Beta Gamma at Villanova on December 11, at 8:00 P. M. in the Commerce and Finance auditorium. The following Monday, December 16, Rosemont College will be here to debate on the question of Socialized Medicine.

Audience Contact Encouraged

Departing from Benjamin Franklin Debating league policy, the schools have agreed to have the debates judged. Audience participation will be encouraged at both contests and it is possible that the ability of the contestants to answer our questions will influence the outcome.

At the Rosemont debate a large representation from the girl's school is expected to be present, according to Rev. William Krupa, O.S.A., moderator of Beta Gamma. Ed Sullivan, secretary of the organization, and Don Collins will argue for Villanova on the socialized medicine topic, a new one this year for Beta Gamma.

Sullivan, Capriotti and Pavalko Receive Awards: Capriotti Makes 1st Team All Catholic-All America

By BOB McNAMARA

With the close of another football campaign the gigantic task of selecting all star aggregations is under way.

Despite the fact that practically all Villanova's representatives turned in stellar performances throughout the season, they had to content themselves with the cub's share of recognition.

Pavalko Receives Most Honors

George Pavalko was leading honor the man on this year's team. He received honorable mention on the All Eastern squad and in doing so received more votes than Joe Steffy, Army's brilliant guard. For the superb job that George turned in against Marquette University he was voted the only unanimous choice on the Hilltopper's All Opponent team. Pavalko's aggressive play received its greatest recognition when he received honorable mention on the recently published Associated Press All American team. This was in great part due to the outstanding performance that Pavalko turned in against Holy Cross, that brought him acclaim as the nation's outstanding guard that week.

Three Backs Named

Romeo Capriotti, Joe Rogers and Bob Poldor also received honorable mention on the AP's All American.

When the annual North-South clash takes place in Dixieland the 28th of this month, Villanova's captain, Bill Sullivan, may be on hand to help the North's cause. Bill has not as yet announced his acceptance or rejection of this invitation.

"Cap" Picked by Detroit Coach

Charles Baer, coach of Detroit University's fine football team, has nominated Capriotti for the All Catholic All-American team. Although the final selections have not been published, everything points in Cap's favor for obtaining one of the coveted berths on this star studded squad.

At this writing these are all the published individual honors. However, Marquette is the only school on our recently concluded schedule that has announced its all opponent team, so when our other opponents make public the best they've faced, there is every reason to believe that Villanova's gridmen will be accorded the recognition they've truly earned.

Villanova's best showing came last Friday when Associated Press released its All-Pennsylvania team. There was a wildcat nominated for every position except tackle. Again Pavalko showed the way holding down a first team berth. Capriotti was voted the number 5 back being shaded in the voting by Jack Crider of Muhlenberg. The members of Villanova's team included in the Honorable Mention list were: Bill Sullivan at end Milt Komarnicki center and Joe Rogers back.

Romeo Capriotti was given the additional honor of being selected to the first team All Catholic All-American. The other three backs were Johnny Lujak, Notre Dame; Herman Wedemeyer, St. Mary's; and Bob Hall, San Francisco. Villanova was fourth in the nation's Catholic schools, following Notre Dame, Boston College and St. Mary's.

Tuesday evening, December 3, at the annual football dinner, George Pavalko and Romeo Capriotti were each recipients of awards, while Bill Sullivan received two much deserved honors.

Bill Sullivan, senior in the Commerce and Finance School here at Villanova and hard charging Wildcat end, was elected by his teammates as their captain for the 1946 football season. In addition to this he also received the Alumni award for the senior who has done the most for the football team this year, both on and off the field. It was also announced last week that Bill has been picked as the first string right end on the North team. If he is able to accept this honor, he will play in the North-South game on New Year's Day.

A Schaffer pen and pencil set was the award received by George Pavalko. Pavalko, who was chosen by his teammates for this honorarium, also received four other distinctions last week. He was the only unanimous choice on the Marquette all-opponent team. This team was picked by the players

Ross Beats Kelley Foderick to Break Nine Mile Record

By PAT SPLANE

At 2:00 P. M., Thursday, Nov. 28, a group of this hemisphere's greatest distance runners started the Berwick marathon. Browning Ross, Villanova's freshman track star, led the field right from the start and finished well out in front to take the first prize, which was a $200 diamond ring set in a 14 k. gold band.

On that day when most of the nations sport fans were listening to or watching their favorite Thanksgiving Day football game, "Brownie" was setting a new record for the nine-and-one-third mile marathan in Berwick, Pennsylvania. His time for this annual cross-country meet was 48:35.

Outlasts Former Winners

Running second to Ross was the Canadian, Foderick, who had won this particular race for the last three years in succession. Foderick, who runs for the Gualt Athletic Club of Canada, is the Canadian National Cross-Country Champion. Another Canadian, who also runs for the Gualt A. C., Scotty Rankin, placed fourth. Scotty is the man who holds the record for winning the Berwick marathon the most number of times! He has the enviable record of leading the field across the finish line five consecutive times.

Third place went to the milkman from Boston, John Kelley. He has taken many a marathon up New England way and has quite a name for himself as a distance runner. John St. Clair, of Fort Dix, N. J., placed eighth in the race and had the distinction of being the first Pennsylvania man to finish the race. Consequently, he won the state prize which is the same as the second, third, and fourth place prizes, a $100 diamond ring set in a 14 k. gold band.

Crosses 150 Yards in Lead

The long-winded competitors started off in a group and stayed bunched-up pretty well for the first quarter of a mile. Browny and Foderick took the lead and remained together for most of the race. Shortly behind them, a small group, among them Kelley and Rankin, dogged the leaders; and then came St. Clair. The rest of the field was stretched out with none of the runners once challenging the pace-setters. Ross managed to pull away from the Canadian champ going into the last mile, and finished a good 150 yards ahead of him.

Wildcats Hope to Extend Victories Over Rivals

Team Looks Good in Scrimmage; Roughriders Coached by Tom Leydon, All-America Guard

By DAVID MARANO

With the aid of Rider College of Trenton, N. J., the Villanova Wildcats will open their '46-'47 season at the field house on Friday, Dec. 13. Past statistics indicate a good night for the home team in that Rider has only been able to cop one of the nine previous games. Last year the 'Cats took their measure by a 53-47 count.

This year might find a different finish. Coach Tom Leyden will come to the campus with a young, green, but inspired team. Of the starting five announced by Coach Leyden, there is just one who wore the Purple and Gold last season, and he holds the distinction of being one of the smallest men in intercollegiate basketball, towering 5' 1" above the floorboards. Chuck Pallai makes up for his deficiecy in height by bombing the cords from the outside with his deadly set shots. The remainder of the team is comprised of four returning veteran freshmen.

Coach Was All American

Coach Leyden, who incidentally, was chosen the best guard in the country in 1936 while playing with the University of Mississippi, also has his share of razzle dazzle on hand in Tom Black, his starting guard. Black is considered by his coach as the best ball handler on the team. His running mate at guard will be 6' 2" George Hamer. Rounding out the quintet is Boyd at center, and Bob Roedel at the other forward spot. The Rider reserves, although lacking in experience are loaded with Talent. Among the more talented is Johnny Cotrell, a 6' 4" freshman who has shown promise, and Roger Pack from Thomas Jefferson High School in Newark, N. J., where he was named all state in 1943.

Lauds Villanova's Wolf

Larry Smith, Art Piffath and Joe Goeke, all of whom were teammates of our Leo Wolf at Trenton Catholic, are also representing Rider. Mr. Leyden was very emphatic in his praise for Wolf who he considers a fine all around ball player. Much of the Rider talent was developed by a Villanova alumnus, Dick Gray, who played here on the whirlwind teams of '41 and '42.

Probable starting lineups are:

Rider		Villanova
Pallai	F	Lord
Roebel	F	Wolf
Boyd	C	Ricca
Black	G	Raiken
Hamer	G	Brehmer

Team Looks Good In Latest Drills; Ready for Rider

By JIM LYONS

A week before their clash with the Rider College quintet next Friday night at the Field House, the Cats are nearing peak condition.

Coach Al Severance's candidates have become accustomed to each other's style of play and they are fast adopting themselves to the screen system used by the mentor.

This system stresses the ability of a five to hit from the outside. The set-shot accuracy of John Blong, Joe Lord, Shy Raiken, Brooks Ricca, Jim Bunn, Leo Wolf, Tom Sabol and Joe Behmer makes them excellent material for this type of play, and probable starters. All of the afore named can be expected to maintain better than a .333 average from "far out." All of these players stand six foot or above and are excellent in recovering the ball from the boards. The recovery and pivot work of Brooks Ricca deserves special comment.

Lord Ready

Captain Joe Lord appears to be ready for another great year. He has the old "know how" and many of the younger players are developing this poise under his team leadership. The team is definitely a team; and, when their play temporarily becomes ragged, they call time out to reorganize.

Leo Wolf is a scrappy player who frequently steals the ball from opposing players. His play will make him a great favorite with the fans.

It would be unfair to mention scrappy players and overlook Schwille, Crossin and Del Purgatorio. These smaller men are very fast and clever and give the team good reserve strength. They will continually push any starter for his berth. They are also the three players most easily distinguished. Echwille plays, and plays hard, while wearing glasses. Crossin is distinguished by his one-handed stab, and Del Purgatorio by his black "burr" haircut.

This team has the height, class and fight; all that is required for a winner. There is every indication that Villanova is about to return to prominence in basketball.

SEEN

From the Sidelines

Dave De Fillipo, former Villanova gridder, is now coaching Haverford A. C. of the Tri-State Football Conference. His team is in the playoffs to decide the championship of the League.

Bob Williams, shortstop on the 1945 Wildcat nine, made All-China fullback while performing with a Marine outfit this season in that country.

Bureau of Missing Persons

Transradio Press Service sent us a release last week that Art Alois, Villanova, was given honorable mention on their All-American team. Maybe the jokers should be informed that Alois didn't even report for the team this year. This is another case of the experts (???) picking their All-teams from Street and Smith's football magazine in August. Ug Fuson, Army back, who hasn't played center since last season, nudged Alois out for second team honors in that position.

Who is Kilroy Abrams, the Villanova tackle who also made honorable mention All-American?

Foderick, who runs for the Gualt Athletic Club of Canada, is the Canadian National Cross-Country Champion. Another Canadian, who also runs for the Gualt A. C., Scotty Rankin, placed fourth. Scotty is the man who holds the record for winning thet Berwick marathon the most number of times. He has the enviable record of leading the field across the finish line five consecutive times.

Third place went to the milkman from Boston, John Kelley. He has taken many a marathon up New England way and has quite a name for himself as a distance runner. John St. Clair, of Fort Dix, N. J., placed eighth in the race and had the distinction of being the first Pennsylvania man to finish the race. Consequently, he won the state prize which is the same as the second, third, and fourth place prizes, a $100 diamond ring set in a 14 k. gold band.

Crosses 150 Yards in Lead

The long-winded competitors started off in a group and stayed bunched-up pretty well for the first quarter of a mile. Browny and Foderick took the lead and remained together for most of the race. Shortly behind them, a small group, among them Kelley and Rankin, dogged the leaders; and then came St. Clair. The rest of the field was stretched out with none of the runners once challenging the pace-setters. Ross managed to pull away from the Canadian champ going into the last mile, and finished a good 150 yards ahead of him.

Wildcats Hope to Extend Victories Over Rivals

Team Looks Good in Scrimmage: Roughriders Coached by Tom Leydon, All-America Guard

By DAVID MARANO

With the aid of Rider College of Trenton, N. J., the Villanova Wildcats will open their '46-'47 season at the field house on Friday, Dec. 13. Past statistics indicate a good night for the home team in that Rider has only been able to cop one of the nine previous games. Last year the 'Cats took their measure by a 53-47 count.

This year might find a different finish. Coach Tom Leyden will come to the campus with a young, green, but inspired team. Of the starting five announced by Coach Leyden, there is just one who wore the Purple and Gold last season, and he holds the distinction of being one of the smallest men in intercollegiate basketball, towering 5' 1" above the floorboards. Chuck Pallai makes up for his deficiency in height by bombing the cords from the outside with his deadly set shots. The remainder of the team is comprised of four returning veteran freshmen.

Coach Was All American

Coach Leyden, who incidentally, was chosen the best guard in the country in 1936 while playing with the University of Mississippi, also has his share of razzle dazzle on hand in Tom Black, his starting guard. Black is considered by his coach as the best ball handler on the team. His running mate at guard will be 6' 2" George Hamer. Rounding out the quintet is Boyd at center, and Bob Roedel at the other forward spot. The Rider reserves, although lacking in experience are loaded with talent. Among the more talented is Johnny Cortrell, a 6' 4" freshman who has shown promise, and Roger Pack from Thomas Jefferson High School in Newark, N. J., where he was named all state in 1943.

Lauds Villanova's Wolf

Larry Smith, Art Piffath and Joe Grocke, all of whom were teammates of our Leo Wolf at Trenton Catholic, are also representing Rider. Mr. Leyden was very emphatic in his praise for Wolf who he considers a fine all around ball player. Most of the Rider talent was developed by a Villanova alumnus, Dick Gray, who played here on the Whirlwind teams of '41 and '42.

Probable starting lineups are:

Rider		Villanova
Pallai	F	Lord
Raebel	F	Wolf
Boyd	C	Ricca
Black	G	Raiken
Hamer	G	Brehmer

Team Looks Good In Latest Drills; Ready for Rider

By JIM LYONS

A week before their clash with the Rider College quintet next Friday night at the Field House, the Cats are nearing peak condition.

Coach Al Severance's candidates have become accustomed to each other's style of play and they are fast adopting themselves to the screen system used by the mentor.

This system stresses the ability of a five to hit from the outside. The set-shot accuracy of John Blong, Joe Lord, Shy Raiken, Brooks Ricca, Jim Bunn, Leo Wolf, Tom Subol and Joe Behmer makes them excellent material for this type of play, and probable starters. All of the afore named can be expected to maintain better than a .333 average from "far out." All of these players stand six foot or above and are excellent in recovering the ball from the boards. The recovery and pivot work of Brooks Ricca deserves special comment.

Lord Ready

Captain Joe Lord appears to be ready for another great year. He has the old "know how" and many of the younger players are developing this poise under his team leadership. The team is definitely a team; and, when their play temporarily becomes ragged, they call time out to reorganize.

Leo Wolf is a scrappy player who frequently steals the ball from opposing players. His play will make him a great favorite with the fans.

It would be unfair to mention scrappy players and overlook Schwille, Crossin and Del Purgatorio. These smaller men are very fast and clever and give the team good reserve strength. They will continually push any starter for his berth. They are also the three players most easily distinguished. Schwille plays, and plays hard, while wearing glasses. Crossin is distinguished by his one-handed stab, and Del Purgatorio by his black "burr" haircut.

This team has the height, class and fight; all that is required for a winner. There is every indication that Villanova is about to return to prominence in basketball.

SEEN

From the Sidelines

Dave De Filippo, former Villanova gridder, is now coaching Haverford A. C. of the Tri-State Football Conference. His team is in the playoffs to decide the championship of the League.

Bob Williams, shortstop on the 1915 Wildcat nine, made All-China fullback while performing with a Marine outfit this season in that country.

Bureau of Missing Persons

Transradio Press Service sent us a release last week that Art Alois, Villanova, was given honorable mention on their All-American team. Maybe the jokers should be informed that Alois didn't even report for the team this year. This is another case of the experts (???) picking their All-teams from Street and Smith's football magazine in August. Up Fuson, Army back, who hasn't played center since last season, nudged Alois out for second team honors in that position.

Who is Kilroy Abrams, the Villanova tackle who also made honorable mention All-American?

Coaches Corner

The Record of Al Severance in Ten Years at Villanova

By DAN REDMOND

With the basketball opener just around the corner it would seem appropriate to introduce to the newcomers at Villanova, Al Severance, coach of the Wildcat Basketeers.

Al is starting his eleventh season as varsity court mentor and probably the most spectacular way of introducing him would be to present the record of his Villanova teams. From the time of his appointment in 1936 until the conclusion of the 1942-43 season (his last all-civilian squad) his teams won 122 games and lost only 32 for a percentage of .792.

Lost Six in Eight Years

His freshmen teams over an eight-year period won over 100 games while dropping only six—truly an amazing record. It was on the strength of his success with the yearlings that he was appointed varsity coach in 1936.

Severance's best season as far as percentage is concerned was 1942-43 when co-captains Billy Woods and Bob Kelty paced the Wildcats to 19 wins out of 21 engagements. Incidentally, Joe Lord and "Major" McDonnell of this year's team were members of that high-flying aggregation.

Team Reaches NCAA Finals

However, when asked which of his teams he considered the best, the vociferous coach blandly replied, "My 1938-39 club." That team, captained by the lengthy Jim Montgomery, knocked out 19 opponents and lost to four, and as a result were invited to participate in the NCAA tournament. They advanced to the finals of the Eastern section only to lose to Ohio State.

The Buckeyes were one of the four mid-western teams to top Villanova over the entire season; the others being De Paul, Illinois and Loyola of Chicago. St. John's of Brooklyn was the only eastern five able to do the trick.

Lord on "All Team"

Some of the outstanding players to perform under Coach Severance at the Main Line School include: Duke Duzminski, Johnny Krutulis, and Montgomery from the '38-'39 team; Kelty and Woods from the '42-'43 outfit; Art Spector and Ted Repella who played in 1940-41; Harry McNally of Severance's first team and, of course, Joe Lord. Herman "Chuck" Drizen, a victim of a Jap shell on Iwo Jima, within a week after his decoration, comes in for praise in the coach's book as one of the best team players to perform here in the last decade.

At present, in addition to his duties as basketball coach, Al Severance holds office as Justice of the Peace in around the Berwyn section of Chester County. "The Judge" will hold forth in that capacity for five more years, his six-year commission not expiring until 1952.

The Judge Never Left

Al, as an undergraduate at Villanova, performed on the varsity basketball, boxing and track teams. He was an Arts student and valedictorian of the class of 1929. Upon graduation he was appointed Assistant Graduate Manager of Athletics, a position which he held until 1932.

In 1932, he was appointed Graduate Manager of Athletics, a job which he withdrew from upon his appointment as varsity basketball coach in 1936. From 1930 until the abandonment of Frosh basketball, he served as Freshman basketball coach.

Although he has no hopes of emulating the records of some of his pre-war teams, the gray-thatched mentor does expect to surpass the standards of his teams of the past three years.

Then within the next three years, he expects to have the Wildcats right back where they were in the ante-bellum days.

The 1946 Football Team: Record and Highlights

A Review of a Season's Effort That Brought Three Bowl Bids

By DAVE RYAN

When Ralph Pasquariello, Villanova's hard driving fullback, kicked off to Kings Point Merchant Marine Academy in mid-September, he started more than just a ball game. He marked at the same time the beginning of one of the zaniest, most hectic and confusing seasons the sport has known. Punctuated by record breaking of all sorts, upsets, dark horse success and a surge of the small colleges to the headlines, the season fulfilled practically of the experts' phophesies.

What was the singularly outstanding feature of the season is a matter of conjecture. It remains for the Coal Stove League and the Banquet Circuit to argue upon the national standing of Notre Dame and Army. The problem of the No. 1 upset of the season, will have to be thrashed out along with the question of just who decided to turn the "all" selections into a joke or else to use them as a vent for their prejudices.

In all, then, the season gave to the spectators and fans the country over more than they would dared ask for. In a word—it was terrific.

While it did not set the sports world on fire with an outstanding record—six wins, four losses—Villanova, in jumping far and above its pre-war football normalcy, did make the roar of the Wildcat heard from Boston to Miami. From its opening game, which inaugurated the country's collegiate season, Villanova gave some brilliant performances. This, in view of the fact that the Wildcats took on one of the most daring schedules in collegiate competition, is indeed a tribute to some of the players individually and to the team collectively. That they came close to victory in three of their four defeats — seven points being the widest margin in these three games—is proof enough that the Wildcats were never outclassed, except by Army, in this harum-scarum season.

Players Consistently Good

A herculean task, indeed, it would be to record more than sketchily the accomplishments of the team throughout the autumn and to give each individual his due. In view of the fact, however, that some of the so-called football experts seem to have forgotten that Villanova fielded a team this year and that Dan Brown, Frank Kane, Bill Lilienthal, Joe Rogers, Romeo Capriotti, Andy Gordon and others consistently played good ball we feel that it will not be amiss to mention some of the facts for the benefit of all concerned.

No alibis have been offered, nor will be he, we feel, for the four defeats. The fact that injuries hampered Lou Ferry, George Guida Ralph Pasquariello, Mel Downey, John Sandusky, and sidelined Billy Sullivan, and Tom Smith, among others, for a part of the campaign is offset by the fact that Wildcat opponents suffered injuries too. That Villanova would have written a better record if it had been at full serength throughout the year is hardly doubted. Injuries through the course of a season are almose as much a part of the game as are missed blocks and assignments—and we have yet to see the perfect team in action.

Polidor Runs 109 Yds.

In big, bold print the name of Villanova, in the person of Bob Polidor, will have to be logged in the season's record book. For the singularly outstanding and thrilling effort of not only Vilanova's but the entire country's football season was Polidor's 109 yard return of Miami's Harry Ghauls kickoff. Taking the ball so deep in the end zone that is foot was nearly over the line, Polidor, with a supersonic burst of speed and aided by good blocking, shot up the middle to the 20, then veered to his right for the sidelines and was off for aerials from Tucker and Davis, scored this year.

It was the first time in fifteen years that such yardage had been recorded for one run. In scampering the entire length of the field plus, Polidor duplicated the feat performed by Edmund Jack Burke of Mississippi in 1931.

Feature Service Teams

The Main Liners opened their 53rd intercollegiate football season by engaging three service academies on successive weekends. Tearing through an inferior Merchant Marine team, which had a season's record of seven defeats and four wins, the Wildcats racked up a 40-6 victory in their first outing. Defeats at the hands of Army—35-0—and Navy—7-0 followed in that order on the following two Saturdays.

Coach Jordan Olivar turned his charges loose upon the Mariners before a Homecoming Day crowd of 12,000 and the result was, indeed, favorable to the Alumni present. Ollie used more than three teams against the invaders and scored in every period.

Six touchdowns were produced by the Wildcats, Joe Rogers tallied twice and Ralph Pasquariello, Romeo Capriotti, Dan Brown and Bill Zehler notched one apiece. Barker successfully converted four times.

Then came the Black Knights of the Hudson!

'Cats Outplay Army Second Team

The fact that Michie Stadium probably hadn't seen so much rain since Noah was hunting for Mount Ararat added considerably to the woes of the Wildcats, for there is good reason to believe that dry weather would have worked more to Villanova's advantage than to Army's. The Cadets, one of the few teams in the country capable of living up to pre-game publicity notices, just had "it" from start to finish, with barely a weakness showing in any position, and came through as was expected.

Barney Poole scored twice on aerials from Tucker and Daviss, and Fuson hit the line for six points. Blanchard and Davis got one each. Blanchard divided the point-after duties with Mackmull for a perfect day at the crosshair.

Villanova's deepest penetrations were to the Cadet 27 and 29 yard lines. Capriotti and Pasquariello were fairly well bottled up. Several short but hard runs by Rogers and Schrieber and a twenty yard gallop by Dost were the best Wildcat offensive offerings of the day.

Frank Kane, playing his usual rock'em-sock'em brand of ball, blasted Arnold Tucker with a savage tackel after the former had caught one of Capriotti's punts in the third period to give Villanova rooters one of their few joyful moments of the afternoon.

Main Liners Lose On Fumble

From the Hudson, the Wildcats traveled to the Severn to meet the third of the service academies, Navy. As far as most Villanovans were concerned, this was the defeat that rankled most because: 1) they felt that the Wildcats should have won by one, perhaps two, touchdowns; 2) it loomed larger with each successive Navy defeat and reached its peak in the pre-Army-Navy game publicity.

Wildcat misplays enabled the Middies to ring up their one and only victory of the season. Out of a total of six Villanova fumbles, four were recovered by Navy. One set up the first Middie touchdown and the others put the skids under Blue and White offensive thrusts.

Roy Russell, sub Navy end, grabbed a Villanovo bobble on the Wildcat 13 yard line. Jack Welsh, Villanova fullback in 1943, working from the T, quarterbacked his team across to paydirt within five plays. Welsh himself took the ball to the 18. From there he heaved a later as to Al McCully, who runded end to the five.

Williams Scores

Pistol Pete Williams drove from there to the one foot line. Hawkins slammed over for the six pointer. E. Newbold Smith converted for the point-after. That was all the scoring for the day.

Constantly threatening, the Wildcats had all the air of being able to explode with a scoring play at any time. The nearest to reality this came, however, was in the middle of the third period when Romeo Capriotti, on his first play of the ball game, burst off tackle for 34 yards on a brilliant run to carry to the Middies' 20 yard line. The attack stalled there.

When the Middies and the Wildcats put on their Alphonse-Gaston act in the early stages of the game, the latter did manage to gain temporary possession of the ball on the Navy 21. On the first play following Mel Downey's recovery of William's bobble, the Wildcats fumbled and Navy recovered to put an abortive end to Villanova tochdown chances from that point.

'Cats Hit Stride

Having had their fill of the service academies, Villanova took on four Jesuit colleges in succession—Marquette, Holy Cross, Georgetown and Boston College—and themselves — the ones who really knew what he was doing to their team. George has also been chosen as the first string right guard on the All-State team. Some sport scribes have compared this Wildcat freshman to Villanova's immortal Eddie Michaels. The two other honors that he was voted into by the master-minds of football are: honorable mention on the All-East team, and honorable mention for the A.P. All-American right guard position. Both of these selections were richly deserved.

In a meeting shortly before the banquet, the football team by means of a secret ballot, chose the man they considered as the most valuable player of the year. The results of this vote remained a secret until the night of the banquet. There it was announced that the most valuable player of the year, in his teammates opinion, was none other than the man who had been the brains of the team, and had caused many a crowd to come to their feet by his spectacular runs, Romeo Capriotti. In addition to this Capriotti also received the distinction of landing the second string right halfback position on the All-State team.

Although Bill Sullivan will leave Villanovas' campus at the culmination of his studies this semester, both George Pavalko, who joined the team this year, and "Cap" Capriotti, who quarterbacked last year's team from the right halfback post, will say "here" when next year's football roll is called.

The other members of the team also did their part in grabbing some of the spotlight as the feature of the evening at the banquet on Tuesday evening. Tom Clavin led his teammates in the singing of a few songs, and then played the part of "the subsitute" in a little skit. As a "benchwarmer" who wore himself out warming up at the coach's orders and then finally collapsed from over-exhaustion when finally told to "get in there and fight." He made quite a hit.

The Head Coach, Jordan Olivar, was the number one speaker of the evening. After introducing each of the Wildcats to the guests present, and handing out a few well deserved flowers, he bestowed his praise on the team as a team, for their teamwork.

In The Sportlight

By JIM PLUNKETT

Before the sportlight shifts to spot our basketball luminaries, we'll let it focus on a man who played inspired ball this year, his last at Villanova.

Zig Gory—a New Englander who hails from Whitinville, Mass. — started his football career at Northbridge High School where he starred at center for three years. Because of his superlative brand of play and his team spirit, he was elected captain in his senior year and led his team to an undefeated season.

In September 1941, he matriculated at the Villanova Commerce and Finance School. When candidates for the Freshman football team were called, Zig was among the first to answer. In pre-season scrimmages the fierce offensive and defensive power he displayed won for him a starting berth on the freshman eleven.

The following year he played under Clipper Smith and despite the fact that Zig understudied Art Alois, he saw a lot of action. In 1943, when Jordan Olivar took over the coaching reins, Zig was the bright spot in a rather dismal campaign. On more than one occasion his sterling line play won the praises of his opponents.

In late December of 1943 Zig entered the Navy and after a short period of preliminary training at Asbury Park, he was sent to Midshipman's school at Columbia University. Soon after the initial football call, Zig assured himself of a berth in the Lions' starting lineup. After making a very good showing in the first four games, injuries kept him idle the remainder of the year.

Gory was commissioned in February of 1945, and extensive Atlantic duty on an LST followed before he received his discharge in the spring of 1946.

He reentered Villanova in October 1946 and immediately set out to regain his familiar pivot post. His long absence had its effects on Zig's grid game and he was not used as extensively in the early games as his pre-war skill would have warranted. However Zig went on undaunted, and his untiring efforts paid dividends when towards the seasons' end, Zig began to show the football savvy that marks him as a consistently good performer. In the Florida game he shook the last of the war-inflicted kinks out of his game and proved that he is really a tough man backing up the line.

ASCE Plans Smoker For December 12

The student chapter of the ASCE here at Villanova will hold its first smoker of the current term at 7:30 Thursday, December 12 in the C and F auditorium.

An entertainment committee announced by President Dan Redmond consisting of Dan Fisher, Dave Cushwa, and Vince Maloney has promised an evening full of entertainment into which the routine business will be integrated. All Civil Engineering students are advised to attend. A recent notice from the New York office notified all student chapters of the tightening of regulations concerning admittance to the society.

At a meeting held Friday, Dec. 6, plans for the smoker were completed, and dues was collected. All members who have not paid their dues are requested to do so Tues., between 12 and 2 in the Villanovan office.

Refreshments will be handled by John Brennan, John Scanlon, and Joe Devereaux.

faced much better. They took the measure of all except Boston College and in so doing put together a string of three consecutive victories which was their season's best.

Marquette came to Philadelphia with a highly regarded passing attack which it unsuccessfully hurled at Villanova. The Hilltoppers threw a total of 39 aerials during the evening but could not score until the waning moments of the ball game when victory was beyond their grasp.

Like lightning, Villanova struck for two scores in the opening minutes of the game. On the fifth play after Frank Kane returned the kickoff to the Blue and White 28 Tom McCarthy swept around end from the seven for a touchdown. Rogers' 47 yard run featured this drive.

Marquette fubled the following kickoff and John Sandusky recovered for Villanova, on the visitors' 23. Capriotti's touchdown pass to Kane and Barker's extra point gave the Wildcats a 13-0 lead. Seven ti5 of the first period the issue was never in serious doubt.

The Blue and White tallied in both periods of the second half. First Anddy Gordon shot a flat pass to Bob Polidor, who went 21 yards for a score and finally Bob Wolfe laterated to Chick Welde, who went the same distance to paydirt.

Barker's Conversions Help

Al Barker's conversions were the deciding pointts in Villanova's first victory over Holy Cross. The final score, 14-13, tells the story of a hard fought and evenly contested game.

The Crusaders scored first then the Wildcats evened things up early in the second period. Late in that same period the Crusaders roared back for another touchdown, but failed to make the extra point, the ball hitting the crossbar and bounding back on to the field.

In the third period Andy Gordon heaved a very wet ball to Dan Brown, who gathered it in on the ten and fought his way for the score.

For their play at Worcester, the Wildcats were highly commended by many sports writers. George Pavalko was especially recognized, being selected as the outstanding guard in the country the week following the Holy Cross game.

Rogers Scores Two

Although not facing the fierce and rugged competition of the previous week, Villanova's 19-2 victory over Georgetown's Hoyas was, nonetheless, well deserved because injuries either hampered or sidelined many of the Wildcats.

Blocking and tackling were at their best and Brown and Kane deserve special commendation for the blocks they threw in the open to clear the way for Joe Rogers on his touchdown jaunts.

Rogers and Capriotti chalked up one each in the first period and Rogers came back for another in the final quarter.

Lilienthal was nothing short of terrific at tackle all afternoon. And Frank Kane threw another of his spectacular bone-crushing tackles when he rocked Lou Surman as that safetyman was catching Gordon's punt.

Immediately after thiss, though, Georgetown ripped off the longest run of the day. John Tenney handed off to Preston from the T and the latter shot off tackle and scampered downfield for 70 yards, finally being hauled down from behind by Bob Polidor on the eight.

The Hoyas' only points came as a result of a Villanova fumble which dribbed out of the endzone late in the final quarter.

B. C. Loaded

Success in the point-after department gave Villanova the edge over Holy Cross and failure in that same department cost the Wildcats a tie with Boston College. But actually the differences was far wider than the two points—14-12—would indicate.

The Eagles were loaded for bowl when the Wildcats met them and for about ten terrible minutes in the first period they showed themselves capable. Villanova staged a good uphill fight and their two tallies show that they were never out of the ball game.

Behind a heavy line, B.C's hard hitting and speedy backs racked up a touchdown just five plays after Tuck Twomey blocked Andy Gordon's punt early in the first quarter. Johnny Killelea, who played for Villanova in 1943, scored the second six-pointer having figured prominently in a fifty yard drive late in the same period.

A Gordon to Polidor pass scored for Villanova in the third period, and late in the final stanza, Andy lateraled to Bill Zehler, who weaved his way down the sidelines for six points. Barker, attempting the first extra point, and Capriotti, the second, were rushed in their attempts to even up the game.

In their last appearance at Shibe Park for the season, the Wildcats lost one of the best games seen in Philadelphia all year. Miami took back a 26-21 victory.

Ghaul Scores

Harry Ghaul scored 14 points for the Hurricanes and sparked the attack of the invaders throughout the contest, Billed as one of the country's outstanding punters, Ghaul proved himself, at least against Villanova, to be even more of a leading light among ball carriers.

Second only in importance to Polidor's runbeck of Ghaul's kickoff for 109 yards and a tochdown is the fact that three six-pointers were made with two minutes of playing time, late in the second quarter.

Vilanova went into a short lived lead late in the opening period, following Rogers' plunge and Slanq's conversion. At this point the Wildcats held a one point, 7-6, margin.

Then acme scores aplenty. McDougal plunged and Ghaul placekicked to send Miami ahead, 13-7. Settembre intercepted Wolfe's pass, folowing the kickoff, and rambled for a t. d. To keep the spirits of all enlivened, Polidor then made his famous run. Siano converted. In all, 20 points were registered on the scoreboard within one minute, twenty-four seconds of playing time.

Ghaul plunged and placekicked in the third period to Cap Miami's scoring for the night. But the total of 26 points was enough.

Polidor found himself all alone in the secondary when Joe Rogers fired a pass to him late in the game. Taking the ball on the ten he rambled over for a score without a defender within 15 yards of him.

A final Wildcat thrust was hurled back by Miami following the final tally of the ball game.

Billy Sullivan and Bill Lilienthal, along with Dan Brown and Polidor were particularly outstanding for the Wildcats.

Win Last Two

For the final two games of the season Villanova took to the road. And apparently the travel in late season did nothing to harm the good play of the Main Liners. They overran Detroit, 23-6, and outscored Florida, 27-20.

Detroit entered the game as the nation's third leading team in rushing offense, and for the first time this season came out of the game trailing the opposition in this department.

From al reports, the Wildcats had to contend with the officials as well as the Titans. In the final analysiss, though,h that made little difference. In every phase of the game hte Blue and White took the lead.

Pasquariello Scores

On the first play of the ball game, Ralph Pasquariello, drove downfield for 69 yards. This seemed to have set the Titans reeling. At 2:10 of the opening period Villanova had a 7-0 lead, Ralph having slammed over.

Eight plays after the kickoff, Detroit retaliated with a tochdown, but failed at the conversion.

Pavalko and McCarthy teamed up on Schmidt to dump him in the endzone for a safety in the second period.

Polidor intercepted a pass and raced 28 yards for a score and Pasquariello slammed over from the one, following Zehler's 16 yard run, in the final quarter.

'Cats Win Closer

Villanova closed out its regular schedule with a victory over Florida to make its season record read: six wins, four defeats.

In gaining 91 yards, Joe Rogers scored twice, but the thrill of the evening belonged to the 'Gators. Bob Grmfin gathered in a Capriotti punt and, with excellent blocking, travelled 67 yards for a t. d.

As regards toe total points scored in a Villanova game during the year, this was the equal of the Miami affair. In both contests 47 points were chalked up, to top all the other contests.

Florida got the lead first, but missed the extra point. Early in the second period Villanova came back, in the person of Joe Rogers, to even things up. Siano's conversion was good and set Villanova ahead. The Wildcats never relinquished the lead.

Spanish Group To Hold Social Entertainment

Invitations for Affair Issued to Neighboring Colleges

At a meeting in the C&F auditorium on Tuesday, Nov. 26, the Spanish Club formulated plans for a series of activities to take place during the coming month.

The president of the group, Ernest Smith, revealed that a "Spanish Night" will be held on the evening of December 12. Invitations have been extended to Rosemont, Bryn Mawr, Immaculata and other neighboring colleges, as well as guests of the members. Arrangements are in charge of Roberto Saurez, chairman, who is assisted by Francis Dittenger, Frank Christianson, Raymond Kelm, Edward and Thomas Daly, and Mr. Shannon. The plans for the evening consist of movies, speeches, music, refreshments and informal dancing.

A Spanish language play was being prepared in cooperation with Rosemont College but had to be postponed because the Field House is still occupied by Freshmen residents.

Roberto Suarez read the minutes of the last meeting and then read a letter from the "Hispanic Institute" at Columbia University. The report of the Treasurer was read by Peter Pallito in the absence of Matthew Kearney.

The gathering agreed unanimously upon a resolution to honor the 150 lb. football team for the good record they compiled on the gridiron against other well known colleges, and called on all the College Classes and organizations to recognize this effort. Upon adjournment of the meeting Spanish songs were rehearsed.

York and he was in time to catch a front seat on the Miller skyrocket. For four years he roomed with Glenn Miller and all Goodman's predictions came true. In 1942 Miller suggested that Hal start band of his own. Seeing that Glenn proved there's no limit to success, he decided to give it a try, and so, the Hal McIntyre band was formed.

The first date, late in 1941, was at Glen Island Casino in Larchmont, known then and today as the "cradle of great bands." From there Hal moved to the Commodore Hotel in New York and began recording for Victor. The records clicked and the McIntyres went on to make four feature-length movies at the Columbia studios.

While in Hollywood, he performed at the band mecca, the Palladium. He has since appeared at the Sherman in Chicago, the Paramount and Strand Theatres on City, and many others. Hal Mcbrook, the Cass Manana in Culver Broadway, Frank Dailey's Meadow-Intyre and his orchestra also starred on a network commercial sponsored by Eversharp. After a few yearss, Hal began recording for Cosmo, and became their top band.

Birthday Ball Band

One honor Hal cherished was his selection to play the President's Birthday Ball in Washington, D. C., at which the late President and Mrs. Roosevelt appeared.

When the late Glenn Miller died, his music didn't perish along with him. Hal McIntyre is one of the most noted disciples carrying on the style of the great Miller. Seven years ago when Hal joined the Miller band that was to become the most famous in the country he sparked the reed section that was always the outstanding characteristic of the Miller men.

Hal considers the time he spent with the Miller orchestra most valuable. Miller's vision and keen musical understanding, together with his fine executive ability, made him the perfect teacher. He learned a great deal from Miller and feels that he will always be indebted to him.

Miller's Influence

Hal McIntyre feels that Miller's influence is the reason for his own desire to have a great all-around band. He feels that there is a happy medium in music and it can be styled to please both sweet lovers and hot-devotees. Hal contends that the modern band must please the widest audience.

To paraphrase a cliche, a band-leader's best friend is his records. Hal McIntyre has a knack of knocking out one record hit after another. In the last few years it has been clearly demonstrated that there is no substitute for records in terms of reaching the top of the musical ladder. There is no time in getting on the recording Hit Parade. His band was just a few months old when Victor, the top company, signed him. He scored with "Commando Serenade" and hit the top with his recording of "Sentimental Journey." This record was No. 1 nationally.

Recently, the McIntyre's switched to Cosmo which has given the premiere band position on its roster. He immediately came through with three top hits: "The Gypsy," "Cement Mixer" and "There's No One But You." With his knack of fashioning wax hits, Hal McIntyre has little to worry about in his climb to success.

Unique Styling

Hal McIntyre's music is in a class by itself. It's unique because McIntyre has his own ideas on bands and music. He holds that there is no successful challenge to the sweet trend. He has been mixing smooth ballads with the louder and faster numbers, but since the public wants the sweet trend, he has tried to hit upon the happy medium.

His calls for a higher standard of arranging and a tendency toward a marriage of jazz and classical. Especially towards the classical music of the great moderns like Shostakovich, Sibelius and Debussey. Hal has been weaving this new classical modern flavor into his score and the reaction on records and in his personal appearances has been all for it.

'Dry-Land' Sailor

Tired of being a "dry-land sailor," Thomas Donnelly, 19, a seaman first class, of 115 Bryn Mawr Ave., Bala-Cynwyd, had been begging the Navy to put him on sea duty.

Donnelly, who had never been aboard ship in his life, got his wish —and a little more—when he sailed from Norfolk, Va., yesterday with the Byrd Antarctic Expedition for the South Pole.

The youth, son of Dr. and Mrs. John D. Donnelly, joined the Navy last February after being graduated from LaSalle High School and completing one year of a business course at Villanova College. After boot training at Camp Peary, Va., he took a public relations course at Chicago and was assigned to Great Lakes (Ill.) Naval Training Station. His duties in the Antartic will be as a Navy correspondent.

Rev. Edward Dwyer, O.S.A., was elected to the Executive Board of the Eastern Regional Unit of the Catholic Education Association at a meeting held Saturday, Nov. 30, in New York City.

Representing Villanova College, Fr. Dwyer was elected to the committee by the delegates of the various Catholic institutions present at the convention.

The duties of the Executive Board is to determine policies of the association in the Eastern Regional District.

Yuletide Lights To Brighten College Campus

Colored Lights to Deck the Trees and Shrubs in Front of College

For the second year the evergreens and trees on the Villanova Campus will burst forth into a mass of color for this Yuletide Season. Under the able direction of Mr. Edward A. Loughrey, Superintendent of Grounds, the various trees extending from the far end of Mendel Hall, past the Monastery and the Chapel, to the circle in front of St. Rita's Hall will be decorated with colored electric lights.

Villanova has long been noted for its Christmas lighting effects during the holiday season. Last year's display received favorable comment from all the residents of the Main Line, and it is hoped that this year's display can better it.

To Surround Mendel

The entire display includes over fifteen hundred feet of wiring in which there are over a thousand bulbs. Of these bulbs, there are over four hundred covering the shrubs about the monastery, and over two hundred on the trees about Mendel Hall. On some of the larger evergreens on the campus there are as many as eighty bulbs on a single tree.

Monastery Circle Lighted

One of the main features of the display this year is a group of trees in the circle in front of the monastery. In this circle there will be about sixty lights among the small shrubs with a floodlight to illuminate the statue of St. Thomas of Villanova. The windows of the chapel will also be illuminated from within to bring out the effects of the colored glass windows.

This year's effect will be much better than last year's but due to the shortage of electrical equipment it is not what the college authorities anticipated. In future years it is hoped that the lighting effect can be made to reach as far as the Commerce and Finance Building.

Rosemont Choirs Carols Here

Solemn Benediction Enhances Christmas Ceremony

Carolers from Rosemont College participated in a Solemn Benediction in the college chapel on Monday evening, December 16. The group consisted of approximately fifty young ladies who comprise the choir and the glee club of Rosemont.

Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., acted as celebrant. He was assisted by Rev. Robert Sullivan, O.S.A., as deacon, and Rev. James Hannan, O.S.A., as sub-deacon.

This impressive ceremony was begun with the singing of several Christmas carols, among them "See Amid the Winter Snow" and "Lo, How a Rose E're Blooming." The traditional and ever-popular "Silent Night" was beautifully chanted, and the inspiring "Angels We Have Heard On High" were stirringly rendered.

Immediately preceding the singing of these carols, the choir made a dramatic entrance, clothed in caps and gowns. In the flickering light of candles, chanting "The Three Kings," they solemnly proceeded down the center aisle of the chapel.

Congratulations are due to the girls of Rosemont for such a fine exhibition of the vocal art. The men of Villanova have profited a hundredfold from the sacrifice they made in hours of rehearsal.

On behalf of the Faculty and Student Body, the Villanovan expresses sympathy to Marvin Spivak on the recent death of his mother.

Christmas Spirt

Three hundred and fifty-one days have succeeded, somehow or other, in slipping past us, and overcoming the initial surprise at its proximity, we find ourselves in rather hasty preparation for the arrival of that day of tinsel, evergreens and mistletoe—Christmas.

Just about as far back as we can remember, this day has been the big day of our year. It has been the day of uncontrollable exuberance and genuine, irrepressible joy. But these former days of joy were those born of red-cheeked Santa Clauses and shiny Christmas balls. Today, as college men, we don't revel at the sight of ties and socks the way we used to rejoice over our childhood toys, and we are inclined to make the observation: "Well, I'm almost a man now; that's why I can't seem to get this "Christmas Spirit."

In a way we're right. We do find it difficult to become excited over those elements of Christmas that once enraptured us, and in this sense we have lost the Christmas "spirit." But the beauty of it all is that now, being mature minds, we are able to take our Christmas joy from sources far more profound, from sources which, upon thought and consideration, we realize to be full of the true joy of such a right-fully joyous day.

Some nineteen and a half centuries ago, the Christ Child was born in Bethlehem. But in reality there was a double birth that day. Not only was Jesus born, but with Him was born a hope which, since the time of Adam, had been non-existent, unborn. There, in that stable, as part of that tiny body, were the hands that would one day insert the "key" of self-sacrifice in those long-locked gates of Heaven.

In this act is the source of our new Christmas "spirit," our fuller and deeper joy; because, by this act of the Nativity and the subsequent death of Christ as man, we once again can give vitality and inspiration to our living; for now we have a goal, Heaven, and a model for the reaching of that goal, Christ.

Plans Progress For Belle Air Dance Success

Nancy Reed, Charming Vocalist, to Appear With Hal McIntyre's Band

Now that the band arrangements have been completed, the senior dance committees are making the final plans for the first formal dance of the year. Tickets may be obtained for the sum of $5.50 from any member of the ticket committee.

Since this is the first formal dance of the school year and the return of a name band to the campus, a large and enthusiastic turnout is anticipated. Due to the restrictions of the field house, a limited number of tickets will be placed on sale. Seniors will have the first opportunity to purchase tickets and they are urged to do so as soon as possible. No subscriptions will be taken at the door. So buy your tickets now to be sure that you'll be on hand to dance to the music of Hal McIntyre and his orchestra.

It isn't often that one bandleader helps another secure a vocalist. But Hal McIntyre was practically gifted with Nancy Reed, a talented singer from Pittsburgh, by rival Vaughn Monroe. Nancy came to New York in 1945 to study harmony and theory at the Juilliard School of Music.

Monroe Discoverer

A yen for pocket money landed her a job at the Cafe Umbriago in Newark where Vaughn Monroe, by pure chance, happened to hear her. He hired her as intermission pianist for the Hotel Commodore where he was playing at the time. When he left town, Miss Reed was still caressing the keys as the McIntyres stepped into the Commodore. By this time, Nancy was singing along with her instrumental activity.

Without stepping beyond the confines of the Commodore, McIntyre knew he had a potential star. Nancy joined the McIntyre orchestra and with Cosmo records and Paramount short subjects, she has since become one of the top band vocalists. With all this, Nancy still keeps up with her serious musical training. She is studying arranging and has a few numbers in the McIntyre book.

Made USO Tours

Getting back to Hal, himself, he was the only noted bandleader to make a USO tour during the last war. He sacrificed over $150,000 in contracts to take his band overseas to entertain servicemen for over five months. For several months prior to departure, McIntyre processed sixty-five musicians. Finally Hal came across fourteen musicians, half of them replacements from his original band, and set sail for Europe.

Starting with an audition at the Olympia Stadium in Paris, the band moved eastward across Germany, travelling exclusively in trucks, constructed so that the band could set up anywhere in fifteen minutes and start playing. He played in enlisted men's service clubs, and improvised theatres, in open fields, he played American Reflection . . .

The recent failure of Eugene O'Neil's "The Iceman Cometh" to the America's first great tragedy, while undoubtedly dampening the enthusiasm of those who say that America has come of age, is very apt to become a disproportionate sibboleth of America's greatness or lack of greatness. The thoughtful man in college is in a position to exercise other and more comprehensive criteria in determining the cultural plane of his country. In his own school and especially in the more progressive colleges and universities, he is conscious of changes taking place—changes in fundamental educational policies. Since everyone agrees that education should fit a man for life, these changes are reflections of a new American outlook on life.

Before exercising his criteria in a judgment on American cultural life, the college student must understand what constitutes cultural greatness. It is most difficult to enumerate all the qualities and characteristics that differentiate a truly great civilization from one that is merely mediocre. Let it suffice to say that every great civilization has been great, in our eyes, because of its ability to create something eternal. Thus today we still admire Greek art and philosophy, Roman law and English literature.

Has America made any such contributions? Until now the answer has been a definite "No." But the college man, utilizing educational changes as his criteria, is able to modify this answer "Not Yet." He justifies this modification by pointing to a new conception of what constitutes the ideal American man.

This new ideal man compares favorably with the ideal man who had his existence in the civilizations that are termed truly great. He presents many fundamental differences to the traditional American ideal. He looks upon the classics, not as the worthless musings of a forgotten era but as the priceless heritage of his freedom, his thought, his culture. His sense of beauty is not confined to the big and spectacular alone. His goal in life is not to live for riches but rather to live richly. In essence, his main interest is changing from "How to make a living" to "How to live."

This then is the ideal American man and the schools in their attempt to produce such a man have begun to contemplate basic policy changes if they have not already put them into practice. The college student considering these changes concludes that although America's cultural plane may still be termed "second rate," there are strong indications that seem to point to the creation of a ferment favorable for America's entrance into the sunlight of true greatness.

—In Memoriam—

Dear Editor:

The story on the death of Father Hammond was carried in your first issue. Like a good journalist, you gave the story a prominent position in view of the fact that his death occurred more than a month before your first issue went to press.

As a former student of Father Hammond, even under these conditions, I would have jumped off the deep end, I would have outdone myself in commiserating the death of this truly great and colorful person.

One of the most cherished courses of my college life at Villanova was Organic Chemistry under Father Hammond. I doubt if there are any of his old students who feel otherwise.

Father Hammond classified his students in three groups, which he expressed by the following salutations: "Hello, Steve" (which meant you had it made); "Hello, Doctor" (and things were't too bad); then "Hello, Professor" (which suggested that you were trying to steal his job, didn't know enough Chemistry and didn't want to be a doctor anyway). Despite these verbal classifications, I doubt if any of Father Hammond's students failed without good reason.

A generation of appreciative students, having profited as much by Father's knowledge of Industrial Chemistry, his witty stories and professional admonitions, as by the regular administration of Organic reactions and synthesis, will always remember Father's insisting that stopped being "one third in, two thirds out" and "Don't run from that explosion, Professor. I like explosions, they teach people to be careful."

Eulogies and anecdotes related to Father Hammond have without a doubt resounded from the four corners of the earth. He would remind us: "Be proud, you are great-grand-students of Emil Fisher," but we'll lay aside that fame in preference to a higher honor—being a student of Father Hammond, a great professor and an "alter-Christus."

Requiescat in Pace.

Prayer . . .

Prayer may be defined in a multitude of ways. The dictionary defines it "a solemn address to the supreme being." This is true for in prayer we put forth effort to reach God, to communicate with an invisible being, Creator of the World, Father and Redeemer of man. We ask this infinite Being to hear us and guide us.

Prayer may also be defined as a force for to many it is considered as A Sustaining Power In Our Daily Lives. Some say it is the most powerful form of energy for it is the only power in the world that can turn the laws of nature. It is a force for only in prayer do we achieve a complete assembly of body, mind and soul to give man an unmistakable strength. In prayer we link ourselves with the inexhaustible motive power that spins the universe. We ask that a part of this power be appointed to our needs. Even in asking we fill our human deficiencies and arise strengthened and repaired.

It must be remembered one can pray anywhere—in church, in the classroom, on the street, as well as in the solitude of one's room. There is no specific posture, time or place, for this greatest source of strength which has been left so miserably undeveloped. So remember prayer, remember it is a calling, a divine worship, and make it one of the Resolutions of the New Year.

What A Way to Wake Up!

Several explosions, followed by clouds of smoke, flame and cries of "Fire," aroused the entire college resident body from its sleep at 6:45 A. M., Thursday, December 11th.

The driver of a gasoline-laden truck, proceeding uphill on Spring Mill Rd. between Lancaster Pike and Delurey Hall, heard a hissing noise behind him, and glancing back, noticed flames shooting out from the tank trailer. Immediately the driver stopped the truck, put the gears in low to prevent the stalled vehicle from rolling down the hill, and leaped from the cab. He ran to nearby Delurey Hall to rouse the sleeping students. Several short explosions followed.

Phone Cables Burn

Attempts to phone the Fire Department from Delurey Hall failed because the fire had burned through the leading cables at the site of the conflagration. Other attempts at phoning were also unsuccessful until a phone, in working order, was located in O'Dwyer Hall.

The fire was noticed by the alert Pinkerton guards at the Field House, at the other edge of the campus, who also phoned the Fire Department. Sensing that a college dormitory might be in flames, they woke the Freshmen who went to the aid of those in the stricken area. The caution served its purpose since the Freshmen arrived on the scene in advance of adjacent residents and proceeded to lay out fire hose.

Fire companies from Bryn Mawr, Radnor, Wayne and Ardmore responded to the phone alarms and were soon showering the blazing truck and the surrounding area with tons of water. Fog nozzles were brought into play with increased effectiveness.

Buildings Threatened

For a while the blaze threatened to spread to Delurey, Middleton and O'Dwyer Halls, and to the adjacent private residences across the road from the dormitories, but the action of the combined fire companies prevented any damage to the buildings.

Power and telephone lines were damaged, curbing service as far as St. David's. Damage to college grounds consisted of a score of trees burned down and a wide semicircle of scorched vegetation extending to within a few feet of the dormitories.

NROTC Notes

By JOE KENNEY

Lieutenant Commander John C. Lang, a field representative for the NROTC units from the Bureau of Naval Personnel, has inspected the educational department of the Villanova branch. Mr. Lang spent two days attending all classes and was favorably impressed with the training received by the Midshipmen.

Praises Unit

He stated that the Villanova NROTC unit was as effective as any in the country. Inasmuch as Mr. Lang has inspected 21 of the 52 units to be inspected the Navy Office was highly elated by the results.

Doings In Town

By FRANK DITURI

We owe our readers an apology. Last week the column read "Tickets for Bloomer Girl are now on sale starting at $1,30." One of our spies reports that the morning the box office opened sale, long, long line of suckers were told that the house was completely sold out (by mail order of course). So now if you want to see the show, all tickets can be obtained from any agency, starting at lots more than $1.30. If things get much worse our poor people will have to be satisfied with the Lux Theatre of the Air.

Dream Girl

The same thing will happen with Elmer Rice's "Dream Girl" opening at the Walnut on Dec. 23rd for a three week run. If you want to see it you'll have to move fast. The show is considered one of the top hits of 1946 as far as box-office appeal is concerned; but the critics still can't understand why, since there doesn't seem to be much point to it except for the gags. The cast is the original one from the New York run, which includes lovely June Havoc in the title role.

The Metropolitan Opera Company will present "Lakme" on Dec. 19 at 8:15. Lily Pons will star in the title role, Raoul Jobin as the British officer, and Martial Singher will take the roleo f Lakme's father.

The Cosmopolitan Opera Company will give Verdi' Rigoletto on Friday, Dec. 20th.

On Wed., January 8th at 8:15, the La Scala Opera Company will present "La Boheme." In the title role will be Claudia Pinza, daughter of the celebrated Metropolitan bass, Ezio Pinza. Miss Pinza will be singing her first role here in Philadelphia. Tickets for all performances are on sale at Haly's, 1505 Walnut.

"Street Scene" Opens

Elmer Rice has revamped his 17-year-old Pulitzer Prize hit, "Street Scene," which opened at the Shubert last night and is scheduled for a two week run. If you're old enough to remember it, the movie version with Sylvia Sidney was quite a hit.

Advance Notices

Advance notice so that you might be able to beat out the scalpers to a couple of seats: Tallulah Bankhead will open in "Eagle Rampant" at the Forrest on Jan. 6. The play, by Jean Cocteau, we know nothing about; but we can recommend Tallulah's acting.

Villanova will play basketball in the Field House on Dec. 18 and 20. Muhlenberg will be the visitors on

Vets News

Mr. Harris announced last week that all possible efforts are being expended at the Veterans Administration to get the backlog of subsistence checks cleared up. He advises veterans who have not received their checks by December 17 to report to his office before the Christmas Holiday begins. During the holidays Mr. Harris will endeavor to investigate all cases, therefore it is important that the names be submitted.

Free Dental Care

Many ex-servicemen are aware that they are entitled to free medical and dental care, but do not know how to obtain these benefits. To receive free dental care the veteran must write a leter addressed to the Veterans Administration. The contents should include a request for dental care, serial number, claim number and the name and address of a dentist of the applicant's own choosing.

A form will be returned and after this form is filled out and returned the Veterans Administration will send a letter of authorization to both the applicant and the dentist. Upon examining the patient, the dentist will send in a report and he will be advised as to what work will be paid for by the Veterans Administration.

Ex-Servicemen Eligible

Ex-servicemen who have been discharged less than a year prior to the date of application are eligible for almost unlimited dental benefits. However, those who have been out of the service longer than a year may receive free dental care only for teeth treated while in the service.

Veterans who wish to apply for medical care may procure forms from the Veterans Office. These forms should be returned to Mr. Harris and in due time a letter of authorization will be mailed to the applicant.

Now that the trend of thought has shifted from the gridiron to the court the exploits of the recent football season are almost forgotten, that is, with the exception of Hal Varani. Since the Army-Penn scrimage Hal has been continually murmuring, "They must have been thinking about the Princeton game, can you loan me five?".

Dave Marano approached Jim Yates yesterday with the "Can you top this" attitude. Dave had the story of stories about his weekend date but reliable Jim came through again. Yes, Jim you look very tired, but according to recent rumors you won't be next week.

What is the quickest route to Manayunk? According to Maurice Wilhere it is through the Immaculata campus; what's the attraction Maurice?

Initiatons

The holiday last week saved many of the engineers, don't woory boys the Phi Kap won't let you down. Bill Monagle has been in a dilemma over his recent brainstorm regarding the initiations. Seems he can't wait for the ninth to fool around.

Dan Fisher was sporting a technicolor eye last week. He received many flattering comments but the bouquet goes to a noted prof for his, "Sonny, that's some decoration you have there."

Intelligence

Congratulations to Hank Franconi on his method of paying a thirty dollar check in New York. It sure is a lot better than washing dishes. Who was your accomplice, Hank?

Dick Livingston and Al Mazanek have been appointed the guardians of Dan Wylde. It seems that Dan spends most of his time eating a daily ration of only ten sandwiches, consequently forgetting about his classes. Maybe Al and Dick should eat his lunch for him, thus benefitting all concerned.

LOST—Ten pounds. Will the finder please return to Alex Coleman in the E.E. Lab? Maybe Joe Kerrigan could loan you ten, Alex, so you can get in shape again. Speaking of Alex reminds me that Doc Eldam and Tony Paruta make sure that the geniuses in their classes stay awake. How could anyone sleep with the glare from their bald heads hitting them in the eye? Tony claims he has more foliage than Doc, really splitting hairs, all six of them, isn't it boys? That's one way to avoid the cost of hair tonic, we suggest that Bill Halm follow their method.

Interest

It's heartening to witness the effect produced on such renegades as Vince Garonski and Tom Kiely, with their association with such lovelies as Gloria and Alma. They have become frequenters of the Germantown area.

The love affair of John Martin and his Alice has become so intense that "My John" is not permitted to play basketball this year for fear of mussing his wavy brown hair.

Rose Anne has finally nailed Neale "Bristol" McGee. Of course she denies the fact that the effects of Sunday afternoon's cocktail party had anything to do with his American Reflection . . .

The recent failure of Eugene O'Neil's "The Iceman Cometh" to the America's first great tragedy, while undoubtedly dampening the enthusiasm of those who say that America has come of age, is very apt to become a disproportionate sibboleth of America's greatness or lack of greatness. The thoughtful man in college is in a position to exercise other and more comprehensive criteria in determining the cultural plane of his country. In his own school and especially in the more progressive colleges and universities, he is conscious of changes taking place—changes in fundamental educational policies. Since everyone agrees that education should fit a man for life, these changes are reflections of a new American outlook on life.

Before exercising his criteria in a judgment on American cultural life, the college student must understand what constitutes cultural greatness. It is most difficult to enumerate all the qualities and characteristics that differentiate a truly great civilization from one that is merely mediocre. Let it suffice to say that every great civilization has been great, in our eyes, because of its ability to create something eternal. Thus today we still admire Greek art and philosophy, Roman law and English literature.

Has America made any such contributions? Until now the answer has been a definite "No." But the college man, utilizing educational changes as his criteria, is able to modify this answer "Not Yet." He justifies this modification by pointing to a new conception of what constitutes the ideal American man.

This new ideal man compares favorably with the ideal man who had his existence in the civilizations that are termed truly great. He presents many fundamental differences to the traditional American ideal. He looks upon the classics, not as the worthless musings of a forgotten era but as the priceless heritage of his freedom, his thought, his culture. His sense of beauty is not confined to the big and spectacular alone. His goal in life is not to live for riches but rather to live richly. In essence, his main interest is changing from "How to make a living" to "How to live."

This then is the ideal American man and the schools in their attempt to produce such a man have begun to contemplate basic policy changes if they have not already put them into practice. The college student considering these changes concludes that although America's cultural plane may still be termed "second rate," there are strong indications that seem to point to the creation of a ferment favorable for America's entrance into the sunlight of true greatness.

Dear Editor:

The story on the death of Father Hammond was carried in your first issue. Like a good journalist, you gave the story a prominent position in view of the fact that his death occurred more than a month before your first issue went to press.

As a former student of Father Hammond, even under these conditions, I would have jumped off the deep end, I would have outdone myself in commiserating the death of this truly great and colorful person.

One of the most cherished courses of my college life at Villanova was Organic Chemistry under Father Hammond. I doubt if there are any of his old students who feel otherwise.

Father Hammond classified his students in three groups, which he expressed by the following salutations: "Hello, Steve" (which meant you had it made); "Hello, Doctor" (and things were't too bad); then "Hello, Professor" (which suggested that you were trying to steal his job, didn't know enough Chemistry and didn't want to be a doctor anyway). Despite these verbal classifications, I doubt if any of Father Hammond's students failed without good reason.

A generation of appreciative students, having profited as much by Father's knowledge of Industrial Chemistry, his witty stories and professional admonitions, as by the regular administration of Organic reactions and synthesis, will always remember Father's insisting that stopped being "one third in, two thirds out" and "Don't run from that explosion, Professor. I like explosions, they teach people to be careful."

Eulogies and anecdotes related to Father Hammond have without a doubt resounded from the four corners of the earth. He would remind us: "Be proud, you are great-grandstudents of Emil Fisher," but we'll lay aside that fame in preference to a higher honor—being a student of Father Hammond, a great professor and an "alter-Christus."

Requiescat in Pace.

Prayer . . .

Prayer may be defined in a multitude of ways. The dictionary defines it "a solemn address to the supreme being." This is true for in prayer we put forth effort to reach God, to communicate with an invisible being, Creator of the World, Father and Redeemer of man. We ask this infinite Being to hear us and guide us.

Prayer may also be defined as a force for to many it is considered as A Sustaining Power In Our Daily Lives. Some say it is the most powerful form of energy for it is the only power in the world that can turn the laws of nature. It is a force for only in prayer do we achieve a complete assembly of body, mind and soul to give man an unmistakable strength. In prayer we link ourselves with the inexhaustible motive power that spins the universe. We ask that a part of this power be appointed to our needs. Even in asking we fill our human deficiencies and arise strengthened and repaired.

It must be remembered one can pray anywhere—in church, in the classroom, on the street, as well as in the solitude of one's room. There is no specific posture, time or place, for this greatest source of strength which has been left so miserably undeveloped. So remember prayer, remember it is a calling, a divine worship, and make it one of the Resolutions of the New Year.

What A Way to Wake Up!

Several explosions, followed by clouds of smoke, flame and cries of "Fire," aroused the entire college resident body from its sleep at 6:45 A. M., Thursday, December 11th.

The driver of a gasoline-laden truck, proceeding uphill on Spring Mill Rd. between Lancaster Pike and Delurey Hall, heard a hissing noise behind him, and glancing back, noticed flames shooting out from the tank trailer. Immediately the driver stopped the truck, put the gears in low to prevent the stalled vehicle from rolling down the hill, and leaped from the cab. He ran to nearby Delurey Hall to rouse the sleeping students. Several short explosions followed.

Phone Cables Burn

Attempts to phone the Fire Department from Delurey Hall failed because the fire had burned through the leading cables at the site of the conflagration. Other attempts at phoning were also unsuccessful until a phone, in working order, was located in O'Dwyer Hall.

The fire was noticed by the alert Pinkerton guards at the Field House, at the other edge of the campus, who also phoned the Fire Department. Sensing that a college dormitory might be in flames, they woke the Freshmen who went to the aid of those in the stricken area. The caution served its purpose since the Freshmen arrived on the scene in advance of adjacent residents and proceeded to lay out fire hose.

Fire companies from Bryn Mawr, Radnor, Wayne and Ardmore responded to the phone alarms and were soon showering the blazing truck and the surrounding area with tons of water. Fog nozzles were brought into play with increased effectiveness.

Buildings Threatened

For a while the blaze threatened to spread to Delurey, Middleton and O'Dwyer Halls, and to the adjacent private residences across the road from the dormitories, but the action of the combined fire companies prevented any damage to the buildings.

Power and telephone lines were damaged, curbing service as far as St. David's. Damage to college grounds consisted of a score of trees burned down and a wide semicircle of scorched vegetation extending to within a few feet of the dormitories.

NROTC Notes

By JOE KENNEY

Lieutenant Commander John C. Lang, a field representative for the NROTC units from the Bureau of Naval Personnel, has inspected the educational department of the Villanova branch. Mr. Lang spent two days attending all classes and was favorably impressed with the training received by the Midshipmen.

Praises Unit

He stated that the Villanova NROTC unit was as effective as any in the country. Inasmuch as Mr. Lang has inspected 21 of the 52 units to be inspected the Navy Office was highly elated by the results.

Philadelphia Students Attend UN Meeting at N.Y.

Chen See and Fanelli Hear Discussion of South African Question

On Sunday, December 8th, a group of college students from Philadelphia and its suburbs went to a meeting of the General Assembly of the United Nations at Flushing, New York. This journey was sponsored by the United Nations Council of Philadelphia through the United Nations Student Council for the benefit of the member institutions.

Because of the limited number of tickets available, the opportunity to observe a meeting of one of the world's foremost organizations was restricted to two students from each college. Villanova was represented by Ed Fanelli and Jasper Chen See.

Indian Problem

The topic under discussion was the problem of the Indians in the Union of South Africa. Their lot in the Union has been, and still is one of oppression and lack of freedom. They have lifted their voices in seeking aid for their cause from the champions of human rights, and have found response in Madam Pendet of India, who has presented the matter to the U.N.

Within the U.N. this Indian problem has become a test of the assembly's integrity and functional value. The question has arisen as to the right of the U.N. to deal with the situation.

Floor Debate

Sir Hartley Shawcross, United Kingdom delegate, held that the U.N. has no jurisdiction in the matter on the ground that Article II, Section F, of the Constitution explicitly states that the U.N. cannot act on domestic problems. On the other hand, thePhilippine delegate, Lt. General Carlos Romulo, pointed out that the Indian problem in the Union of South Africa is not a domestic problem but is one of morality, that it is now a question of human rights, and therefore a business of the U.N. "After all," said Romulo "does not the U.N. owe its very existence to the underlying principles of human rights? Are we to turn to the Indians and tell them we are sympathetic but sorry we cannot help them?"

Agreeing with the Philippine delegation in principle were delegates Costillo Najera of Mexico and Roberto Timmeny of Panama, while the Netherland delegation adhered to the viewpoint of the United Kingdom.

Prominent as points of conflict were the meaning and scope of "Domestic Problems" and "Human Rights." Just what do they embrace? To determine this problem, several of the delegates proposed that the problem be referred to the International Court for a decision.

The problem was not solved during the three hours that the Assembly met It has been a matter of dispute in previous meetings and will be in many to follow. Only a fraction of the fifty-two nations expressed its views on the matter.

After the trip, Chen See said, "To the skeptics who condemn the U.N. without giving it a chance, it is well for them to observe that the organization is young; that nationalism is still playing havoc with its attempt to achieve a workable peace; and that matters of great importnce require care, deliberation, time, and the grace of God to be solved rightly.

Our support is necessary for its success as it is for our benefit that the U.N. is working. Be alert, but patient, and perhaps it will some day prove to you that the 'pen is mightier than the sword.'"

Augustinians Note Anniversary of U. S. Province

150th Year of Order in This Country Celebrated by Solemn High Mass at Chapel

The on-hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the opening of the first Augustinian province in America was celebrated last Wednesday, December 11.

The occasion was marked by a Solmen High Mass in the College chapel, followed by a dinner in the monastery dining room. The Mass was offered in thanksgiving of the blessings which have marked the Order and their work in this country.

Celebrant of the Mass was Very Reverend Mortimer A. Sullivan, O.S.A.; the deacon was Reverend John J. Barthouski, O.S.A., and the sub-deacon was Reverend Charles Baker, O.S.A.

History of Order

The sermon, delivered by Rev. Joseph M. Dougherty, O.S.A., recounted the history of the Augustinians in the "new world." Father Dougherty, Prior of the Villanova monastery, stressed the important contribution of the College Summer School to Catholic education. Among the many clergy present were the Most Rev. Pulgar, O.S.A., Bishop of Iquitos, Peru; Very Rev. Joseph A. Hickey, O.S.A., and Very Rev. Charles Meichior, O.S.A., Assistant General and Prior Provincial respectively of the Province of Our Mother of Good Counsel in the midwest wherever doughboys gathered. After two or three shows a day, almost every night some of the men wound up in enlisted men's dayrooms with after-hour music sessions.

The dinner gathering was briefly addressed by Father Sullivan.

The McIntyre band was lost for a while, while touring in southwest Germany and more or less bummed around playing for whatever unit would feed and transport them. Then, by chance, they heard of another USO unit entertaining in Nuremberg. Due to the shifting of many troops from one sector to another, it was almost impossible to obtain transportation.

After many hours of anxious waiting, the McIntyre band joined a convoy moving to the Nuremberg area. When they arrived they were more than welcome and entertained with such stars as Ingrid Bergman, Jack Benny, Larry Adler and others in the Sportspalast in this German city. The show this group put on was long remembered and Hal McIntyre added substantially to his ever growing list of followers.

SENIOR'S ASSESSMENT

Seniors who have not paid their assessments may do so on the 18th, 19th or 20th of December or on the 6th or 7th of January, following the holidays. Those who have already had their fee collected will pay only the added fifty cents with the presentation of their receipts.

ENGINEER'S MEET

Villanova College was represented at the fall meeting of the Middle Atlantic Section of the American Society for Engineering Education at Wilmington, Delaware December 7. Among those present at the meeting were Prof. of Mathematics, E. Amelotti, Prof. of M.E., George H. Auth; Prof. of Ch. E., Francis J. Blanchard; Prof. of M.E., Joseph C. Greyson; Prof. of E.E., H. S. Bueche; Prof of C.E., John J. Gallen, Dean of Engineering, J. Stanley Morehouse and Prof. of M.E., Jerome Steffens.

Severance's Comments

Reorganization of basketball activity at Villanova College, and it might be said of all other athletic endeavors, continues apace with plenty of vigor and enthusiasm in a determined effort to bring to the blue and white in all branches of athletic competition the glory that was once theirs. And although the talk of great things is current among those whose perspective is from a distance and from all sides prognostications babble on like Tennyson's "Brook," to join an endless river of seemingly endless predications that things are looking up.

Something new has been added and it isn't just a dreamed up preseason exhuberance, but a fine combination of cooperation on the part of administrators of athletic policy, a new found wealth of material, and an incentive to attempt to inculcate a systematic development of new athletic skill and punch. However, just as Rome was not built in a day neither will new and mighty Villanova teams be created overnight. But one thing seems clear—the Wildcats definitely have lifted the anchor of wartime athletic doldrums and have set sail for a place in the new athletic sun.

Turning to a resume of the Rider game last Friday night, the significance of the victory can be summed up by recalling to mind that old phrase, "One robin does not make the Spring." The Rider ball team, fighting from the opening whistle to the final gun, was definitely not of sufficient potential strength collectively or individually to constitute a measuring rod of the potentials of this year's Villanova team.

The home team's ability to penetrate the zone defense from a natural asset, namely, the ability to score from the outside, left the great enigma unanswered: Can the team, when the gunners fail to hit, execute under the basket technique which is the pay off and the margin of victory when equal material meets head on.

The performance of captain Joe Lord was self evident and little can be added here for his sterling qualities of leadership and the inspiration that he gave to the rest of the club. Leo Wolfe, a yearling from the town which gave the valient colonials such a great boost in the dark days of the Revolution, also served notice that his contribution on the wooden way this season should have like effect on the home folks. Joe Bremer, always analytical, definately has corrected some glaring faults of fundamentals and although, on one or two occasions had mental relapses, nevertheless, his overall game was most stimulating. The custodian of the pivot position, Brooks Ricca, did a masterful job off the back boards and his assists foretold future contributions of magnificent proportions. Silent John Blong and vivacious "Jay" Raiken, solid and steady ball players, have not yet reached their full stride but will undoubtedly come into true perspective after the season starts to roll.

Three men in particular gave indication of not only strong secondary and supporting strength but their spirit and drive may be taken as a warning that they will be contending for first call posts. Dynamic and competitive in every sense of the words Major McDonald brought back shades of the past and without a doubt can be relied upon to stimulate and spur up a tired and lagging ball club. Del Purgatorio and Crossin with future competitive college experience will

Lack of Indoor Track Hurts; Many Record Holders on Squad

By PAT SPLANE

While, for the last two and a half months, people have been filling stadiums across the country to watch football games week after week, the Harriers, who are now about to share the limelight with the basketball teams, have been getting ready for one of the most demanding of all sports.

Need Indoor Track

The preparation for the indoor track season, which opens for the Wildcats with the Philadelphia Inquirer meet on January 24, has been seriously hampered by the lack of an indoor track. This factor, unless quickly remedied, will put the Villanovans at a definite disadvantage in all of their meets throughout the season. Coach "Jumbo" Elliot has a wealth of material with which to work, but he will not be able to do much with it if he is unable to get an indoor track.

Although the schedule is very tough, the scales are being balanced by the quantity and quality of material that has turned out for track this year. There are from fifty to seventy-five men who have reported for this sport. Although Jumbo has been sick and has had very little time since the opening of school to find out just who can do what, he knows some of the men from past seasons and from their records. Hampered as he is by his sickness and the lack of an indoor track, Elliot has said that he can't state positively what the season will be like. However, he did say that, from what he knows, he will expect to be very strong in sprinting, middle-distance running, and the weights; and, so far as he is able to tell, fair in the distance runs, the polevault, and the high jumping.

Champ Relay Team Returns

This year a lot of the past aces have returned in the running department. Some of these men are: Ed Fitzgerald, the former St. Thomas More track star, who is a veteran of the '42-'43 season; Dutch McCarthy, who is also a member of the '42-'43 season; Bob O'Sullivan, considered by Jumbo as the best indoor man he ever had; and George Guida, who tied Jesse Owens' time for the 200 meter dash when he beat Herb McKenley, Illinois, the holder of the World's record last year. These men made up the mile relay team that won the Penn Relays in the '42-'43 season.

Robert "Ace" Reagan, the 2 miler from St. Peter's, New Jersey; Dan Remond, winner of the mile race last year in the annual Princeton Invitation Meet; and Frank Himmenkamp, four year track man at Harrisburg High School are all former Villanovan Harriers.

Jack Holmes, South Jersey sprint champion for the 100 and 220 yard dashes from Haddonfield High School; Leo Dillon, Philadelphia sprint champ for the 100 and 220 from West Catholic; and Gene Kelley, a member of the N.A.A.U. championship mile relay team, who runs the 440 in 51 seconds are all Freshman additions to the team's supply of sprinters.

Ross Heads Distance Men

The list of distance men is headed by Browning Ross, who has lost four races in five years of running. He runs all the distances from the mile to the cross-country marathons. This year he has received an invitation to run in the steeple chase event in the Sugar Bowl, the biggest track meet in the South. Brownie is well deserving of this invitation, as the first time he ever ran a steeple chase he placed first, and has yet to lose in such a race.

This year the steeple chase will hold a special thrill for the fans as it will mark the first time since last year that Ross will compete with Forrest Efau, last year's two mile champion. Ross and Efau

'Cats Pointing for Major Upset; Meet Loyola Greyhounds Friday

Two Strong Rivals Invade Field House This Week; Baldwin, Donovan Lead Mules

Al Severance's Villanova Wildcats will return home to face one of the strongest basketball quintets in the East, when they meet Muhlenberg's Mules tomorrow night. The tapoff is at 8:30 P. M.

Eastern representatives in the National Invitation tournament for the last two years, the Mules have fielded another powerful club and although beaten already by Temple, they have set their sights on a mid-March Garden invitation again this year.

Loyola Moves In Friday

On Friday night the Wildcats will face their last foe before the Christmas holidays in the person of Loyola College of Baltimore. The Greyhounds have a log of two wins against three losses but the latter have been incurred by top-flight teams.

Muhlenberg, under a new coach, Clyde "Bud" Barker, has three holdovers from last year's five which breezed through a 28 game schedule suffering only five setbacks. Led by Captain Oscar "Red" Baldwin, the Mules also have brothers Harry and Ed Donovan back from the 1945-46 aggregation.

H. Donovan Gets 43 In Game

Baldwin has been a star for the Cardinal and Grey ever since he stepped on the Allentown campus as a Navy trainee in 1944. In his first year he lead the team's scoring and was chosen All-State, while last year he was runnerup to Harry Donovan for scoring honors. He should be a valuable steadying influence for some of the less experienced members of the team.

Harry Donovan led the 'Berg's scoring parade last year with 389 points and is off to a good start again this year. Harry racked up 43 points in the Mule's victory over Newark last Wednesday night. Brother Ed, though not as proline a scorer as Harry, is two inches taller and is a fine asset under the boards.

Deep In Reserves

Newcomers who are proving to be a great lift to Muhlenberg's hopes are John "Reds" Graner and Dick McGee, two Allentown products. Graner is a graduate of Allentown High while McGee was an All-Catholic selection while playing for Allentown Central Catholic.

Two short men who fit into Coach Barker's plans are Al Saemmer and Ed Schwob. Both are fast, aggressive and good ball handlers, assets which to help to compensate for their lack of size.

Three service veterans who previously won varsity basketball letters at 'Berg are back. Jim Capehart, Chuck Thelsen and Dick Miller are the trio and they should be a big help when they return to their pre-war form.

Loyola Starts Fast

Loyola College's basketball team started off the season with hopes of a successful campaign taking their first two encounters, 52-49 gainst the Alumni and 58-42 over Fort Belvoir.

However the Greyhounds ran into trouble during the three game road trip on Dec. 6, 7, and 8. Rhode Island State, Seton Hall and La Salle College tripped the Baltimore lads on successive nights by scores of 84-55, 60-38, and 71-46 respectively.

Wildcats Rout Rider 71-32; 'Major' Stars; Lord Gets 19

The 1946-47 edition of the Wildcats' basketball team opened the current basketball season last Friday night at the Villanova Field House with an impressive 71-32 victory over a hard-fighting Rider College quintet. After spotting Rider six points, Villanova proved most decisively that they have once more returned to prominence in the collegiate basketball world.

Rider Takes Early Lead

Rider, taking advantage of Villanova's difficulty in finding their range on long shots, commanded a 6-0 lead in the early moments of the ball game. However this lead proved to be a temporary one, as Joe Lord sank a long shot paving the way for the avalanche which was to follow.

The first half was featured by the "dead-eye" shooting of Captain Joe Lord from the outside and by the adroit ball handling of Leo Wolf. Lord sank 7 shots out of 12 attempts in the first half thereby giving advance notice to all future opponents that he will have to be guarded closely if they are to win.

Wolf Great Ball Handler

Leo Wolf's exhibition, especially early in the first period when he outmaneuvered three Rider men to give Villanova a lead which they never relinquished, brought back memories of the days of Billy Woods.

The stunning effectiveness of the Cats on their long set shots was shown when after only seven minutes of playing time had gone by, Rider was forced to switch their shifting zone defense to a man to man defense. It was then that Ricca became most effective. Working from his pivot post, the tall, rangy center set up play after play until Villanova led 33-13 and Al Severance withdrew his first string to give their understudies a chance to get some experience. Spearheaded by "Major" McDonnell and Del Purgatorio, the second string pressed the attack and at halftime Villanova led 40-18.

Blong and Brehmer Impressive

The "Judge" started his regulars in the second half and the team, moving fast, went on a scoring spree of 16 points. Instead of getting their points on long sets as they did in the first half, their play was marked by short passes and fancy ball handling. Blong, who had been held scoreless in the first half, along with Brehmer, accounted for most of the baskets.

The second team then returned and put the finishing touches on what proved to be a most enjoyable night—from the viewpoint of a Villanova supporter, that is.

Major Sparkles

Led by the "Maj" and Jack Crossin, the second team put on an exhibition which had the crowd of 2500 on their feet for the remaining moments of the ball game.

Crossin, who played on a better than average Sampson team last year, by virtue of his outstanding floor play and spirit, should with

Coaches Corner

Villanova is Proud Of "Jumbo" Elliot, Track, Golfer, Coach

By BOB McNAMARA

The indoor track season is close at hand so this is an appropriate time to have an inside view of the man behind the activities of Villanova's runners, the coach, Jim "Jumbo" Elliot.

Soon after Jumbo came to Villanova in 1931, he inaugurated his collegiate career by leading Villanova to the national freshman mile relay championship. He also went undefeated in all dual meets during the frosh campaign, participating in the quarter and half mile events.

Went Undefeated

The next year Jim represented the varsity squad and was invaluable in starting a Villanova domination in the mile relay event held annually at the Penn Relays. Jim anchored this famed quartet which notched first place in 1933, 34 and 35. During these same three years, which were Villanova's "golden days in track," Jumbo went undefeated in all dual meets in which he handled his favorite assignments, the quarter and half mile.

Jim captained the cindermen in both 1934 and 1935. The latter, which was his last at Villanova, is probably the best he has turned in. It was this year that Jim ran his 47.9 seconds quarter and 1:54.1 half which are both far in front of any times ever recorded by any other Villanova runner.

Broke World's Record

During the winter of 1935 Jumbo ran his greatest race although he had to content himself with second place. This took place in Madison Square Garden during the renowned Milrose Invitation. Of all the events in this annual classic the most heralded is the "Milrose 600" which brings together America's top four performers in the 600 yard run. This particular year it was generally conceded that there was no runner in the country to contend with undefeated Horntostel, the National Collegiate half-mile champ. However, at the end of the race opinion changed because Jim Elliot had raced Horntostel to a new world's record only to lose by a scant six inches. The official time was recorded as 1:11.3 which bettered the old world's mark by .3 of a second. So, really, Jumbo broke the world's record only to have it shaded in the same race.

It was during Jim's abbbreviated two weeks' preparation for this race that he outran the great Gene Venzke while doing an unofficial 1:55 half mile. This, however, was only a practice run for both athletes.

Coaching Ten Years

The year after his graduation Jim returned to his Alma Mater to take over the coaching duties of the track team, a job he never relinquished except for a period of naval service. Before this tour of duty Jim gave Villanova many fine track teams, two of these, the '38 and '39 squads, went undefeated in dual meet competition. However, Jim will not hesitate to recommend the 1941 organization as the best of the ten he has tutored to date.

The mile relay quartet of this year, which was made up of O'Sullivan, Guida, Hooper and Dunbar, easily won the class B mile run at the Penn Relays despite the fact that George Guida was caught in a pocket and was forced to break his stride. Despite this mishap the official time was 3:18.8. This '41 squad also placed second in both indoor and outdoor IC4A meets. The performance of Billy Hooper, that year, were a personal tribute to Jim Elliot since Hooper's first contact with the track sport came during his Sophomore year at Villanova. Jim who readily saw the potentials of this untried runner, patiently instructed him through the fundamentals of the cinder game and brought him to the point where Hooper turned in 49.1 quarters, 1:56.4 halves and 4:18 miles.

Great Golfer

Jumbo's athletic activities have not been restricted to just one sport, in fact he has won much national recognition on the golf links. He captained the Villanova golfers in 1934 and 1935. In the Berkshire Invitation, an annual golf classic, he carded a five under par 68 in 1941, a tournament record that still stands. In 1943 Jumbo teamed with Jimmy Demaret in an exhibition match against Byron Nelson and Jug McSpaden that ended in a deadlock when Jim's birdie three on the eighteenth hole took best ball.

Jim, who returned last year, has every hope of molding another championship squad of the caliber of his pre-war teams.

Severancemen Travel to Meet Princeton Tigers

'Cats Out to Avenge Double Setback of Last Season; Nassau Club Rated High in Ivy League

By JIM LYONS

Tonight the Wildcat five travels to Princeton, New Jersey to meet the Nassau Tigers in the first game of a home and home arrangement. The 'Cats, who defeated the Rider Roughriders in their opener, will be striving for win number two. Oddly enough, Princeton also inaugurated its current basketball season with an impressive 59-36 conquest of the Roughriders.

This year Princeton is one of the highly touted clubs of the Ivy League. The Orange is led by Captain Art Wilson, a great Negro star. Wilson is a flashly player, who specializes in assists. His hand-offs are on the Howie Dallmar style. Wilson is a hold over from last year's Bengal five, which tamed the Wildcats on two occasions. The scores of these encounters were 47-40 and 44-36.

Ricca vs. Kolff

Pivot man Van Bredda Kolff is a 6'3" natural, who plays with the grace of a ballet dancer. Kolff is a great Princeton find. Although he was used sparingly against Rider, he did sink six goal on six shots from the floor. Brooks Ricca will have a busy night guarding this ambidexterous player.

Another mainstay of this quintet is "Whitey" Pratt. Pratt is tall and air tight on defense. He can also play the pivot position in case Kolff is out. When Kolff is in "Whitey" is used at guard. The other sure starter for the Ivy Leaguers is Lawry, who teams with Wilson at guard. Lawry's 14 points made him the high man in the Princeton-Rider game.

Former Ace Grounded

The remaining regular berth is being contended for by Moore, Hallman and Raleigh. An indication of Princeton's depth is the fact that Neil Zundel, last year a three letter man and basketball star at Old Nassau, failed to make this year's squad.

Princeton will oppose the 'Cats on January 7 at home. The Wildcats must win both of these contests if they are to revenge their 1945-46 setbacks as the hands of the Tigers.

In The Sportlight

By BOB McNAMARA

This week the sportlight is on Joe Lord, the captain of the Wildcat quintet and the high scorer with 19 points in the season's opener last Friday night.

JOE LORD

The athletic career of Joe Lord was launched at Norristown High. Here Joe compiled an enviable record while performing three years on both the basketball and baseball teams. For his outstanding work during the 1938-39 basketball season, his junior year, Joe was voted a berth on the All-Suburban Philadelphia team. The next season pacesetter Lord was listed among the top five players in the state of Pennsylvania.

In September 1940 Joe came to Villanova with ambitions pointed toward a business education and an athletic career. The latter ambition materialized early when Joe was elected captain of the freshman team for the 1940-41 season. This team, which was the best team ever to represent Villanova, amassed 34 wins without a single setback.

This same season brought Joe national recognition when he was chosen YMCA All-America for his sterling play.

The start of the 1941-42 season found Lord among the starting varsity five. Joe again was a big factor in bringing Villanova a fine 13-3 win, loss record that season, and was impressive enough to be selected on the All-Philadelphia collegiate five.

Naturally he was on the floor at the start of the next campaign, but an army call temporarily ended his court career before the halway mark of another promisingg season.

While in the service Joe still found time to appear o nthe hardwoods. For the third time in his comparitively young career Lord was elected to captain his team. On this particular occasion it was his Corps team which went on to capture the title of Maxwell Field. Joe, through consistently bright play, ended his year's effort at the southern air base with a game average of 23 points.

Joe returned to the main line item to provide the spark to an inexperienced team of last years. Although the team fell short of a .500 winning average Lord broke the all time Villanova season's scoring record with 303 points in 23 games for a 13.2 average.

Speed Plus

In our midst here at Villanova, we have a well-known personality in the track world. He is George Guida from the "City of Brotherly Love." George was born on August 29, in 1923 here in our own big city of Philadelphia. He attended St. Paul's Catholic High School and then later matriculated to Villanova. George was with us for a year when Uncle Sam called him to enter the Navy for three years.

When George was a senior at West Catholic, the track moderator succeeded in getting George interested in track. It was this year that Guida won the 600 yard dash at Convention Hall in the W.P.A. meet. In the Catholic league, George placed second in the 100 and 220 yard dashes. Joe Gimbell was first in the 100 yard dash. Cornelius McCarthy was a member of the mile relay team that came within 1/5 of a second of the Interscholastic record.

While at Villanova, Guida ran with Dunbar, DeCarlo, and Bob O'Sullivan in the mile relay that won the Mellrose Trophy for the fastest team. He also ran another team that won the Class B mile relay in the Penn relays. When he was in the Navy, he was assistant coach to Henry Kumph at P.R.I. at Troy, New York. He also coached at the Sampson Naval Training Station for two years in track. During the time he was stationed at this base, he ran on the mile relay team that was the Service Champs for the last two years in succession.

He was still at Sampson Naval Training Station when he won the Jr. N.A.A.U. 200 meter. His time was 20.9 which is the same time Jesse Owen ran when he won the Olympics 200 meter in 1936. George also won the 300 yard dash for the last two years in succession also in the Inquirer Invitation. His opponent was Herb McKinley from Illinois who holds the world's record for the 400 meter and the American record for the 200 meter.

The track meets that George likes to remember best are the ones in which he was placed last. George is a serious minded lad and a gentleman at all times. Modest would be a mild word to use when I say that George Guida is the hardest man to get to talk about himself.

The contribution of the other players was comforting but indicated that they will need a good deal more work and time alone will be the factor which will mold their efforts into a cohesive and well playing unit.

Foley's 170 Leads Bowling League; Indians in Front

The Intramural bowling league, with the completion of last weeks matches will enter into its third week of play today. The league which bowls at the Rosemont alleys on Tuesday at 3:40 o'clock is composed of both residents and day hops. Fedigan, Austin, Mendez Alumni, Simpson, O'Dwyer and Good Council are represented by players on the individual teams.

Powers Paces Indians

Bob Powers with a three game average of 152 enabled the Indians to remain in the coveted first place position by winning two out of four points from Fedigan Hall. Ray Berninger captained the Fedigan team by getting a three game total pin average of 162.

The Iron Men who were in third place last week took over the second position spot by taking three out of four points from the Red Eyes. Pete Pallitto and Dan Orazi were high scorers for the Iron Men with a 163 and 161 three game average respectively. Orazi rolled a 200 game opener and Crotty had a 166 game for the Red Eyes.

Foley Averages 170

Lou Ceccariello and Foley set the pace for the Warriors as they gained three points from Adumni. Foley, who had a three game average of 17, and Meccariello, 165, is the league in total pins for three games. Flanelly rolled a 180 game for Alumni.

With the completion of Tuesday's match the Iron Men have high team average of 711, and the Warriors being a close second with 707. Foley has a high 170 average for the league while Ray Berning is second with 162.

Band's Third Concert Given at Malvern

Program on Christmas Theme; Trumpet Solo by Dave English

The Villanova College Symphonic Band is in full swing having completed three very successful informal concerts at Rosemont College, Immaculata College and Malvern Preparatory School. Under the able direction of Rev. Ralph Handran, O.S.A., the band has improved with each recital and Jim Rodgers, band manager, has announced that a far more extensive schedule will follow the first of the year.

Carols Played

Malvern Preparatory School was the scene of the third informal concert last night, December 16. In keeping with the traditional spirit of the Christmas season, the evening's program featured several favorite Christmas Carols, among which were "Little Town of Bethlehem," "The First Noel," and "Silent Night."

Other selections included: "National Emblem March," "Irish Medley," "Bassology," "Body and Soul," "Wanting You," "The Thunderer March," "Belle of the Ball," "Our Director March," "Service Song," and the "Malvern Alma Mater."

Dave English Soloist

A trumpet solo, "Gounod's Ave Maria," was played by Dave English with band accompaniment. James Duffy, Bill Chauvenet and George Beitzer were the trio of trombonists who rendered expertly "Three Trombonists," a study in close harmony.

James Duffy was a member of the United States Navy in the Asiatic Pacific before matriculating at Villanova College and played on the high school band at Media High before matriculating at Villanova College and played on the high school band at Media High before entering the service. James as well as George Beitzer, Dave English, and Bill Chauvenet are also members of the Villanovans.

The next band engagement will be at Chestnut Hill College Monday evening at 8 P. M., January 13, 1947. An tire new program will be arranged for this concert.

Debating Society Wins Decision Over Bryn Mawr

Villanova College's debating team won its first decision debate of the current season, outpointing the representatives of the Bryn Mawr College on Wednesday, December 11th at 8 P. M. in the C&F building.

The subject of the debate was: Resolved: "That the 'Big Four' powers had the right to bring to trial the German war leaders." Villanova, proposing the affirmative, was represented by Edward Schollmeyer and John Hennessy, while the delegates from Bryn Mawr were Sylvia Good and Pam Stillman.

Presenting the negative side of the question, the debators from Bryn Mawr pointed out that since there was no prior international law, we did not have any legal or moral right to try the war leaders. The orators from Villanova upheld the right of the war tribunal to try these war criminals, declaring that since the German government had surrendered unconditionally the Allies were now the governing powers of Germany.

Following the debate, the audience questioned the debators.

Rev. Joseph Gildea, O.S.A., judged the contest, and Ed Sullivan presided as chairman.

TWO BARRACKS COMPLETED

Rev. E. B. McKee, O.S.A., Vice-President of the college, has announced that the first barracks will be completed today. The remaining structures will be opened at intervals of ten days. The two barracks nearest the Field House will be the ones now ready for occupancy.

All the units are to be coal heated; the rooms measure approximately 12 feet by 12 feet. Both floors of the dormitories are provided with shower facilities.

NO PAPER NEXT WEEK

Due to the holidays the next issue of the Villanovan will be published on Tuesday, January 14th, 1947.

Msgr. Hawks Is Speaker At Spanish Night

Right Reverend Monsignor Edward Hawks, Rector of St. Joan of Arc Parish, Philadelphia, was the guest speaker of the evening at the Spanish night last Thursday in C & F Auditorium.

Monsignor Hawks stressed the importance of Pan-American relations and the wonderful opportunities offered by a close cooperation with our South American neighbors.

Students of Spanish from several colleges in the near vicinity were also guests of the evening. Among the events of the evening was a Spanish movie with sound, "Sixty Seconds to Live."

Spanish Songs

Spanish songs by the Glee Club of Spanish classes and piano selections by Teddy Garcia highlighted the social which interested and pleased all in attendance.

Two short Spanish plays were also given in a program which was packed full of enjoyment for all.

Father Lorenzo Lozano, OSA, moderator of the club, gave a welcome address to the guests and members at the beginning of the evening's entertainment.

Capable Committee

The committee, under the direction of Roberto Suarez, arranged and carried out the program very well. Others on this committee were Raymond Kelm, Edward Sullivan, Frank Christianson, Edward Daley, Thomas Daley, Francis Dittinger and William Shannon.

Refreshments were served just prior to the movie during the intermission, and the movie closed the evening's events.

Interracial Club Attends Meeting

The Executive Council, Philadelphia Region, of the National Federation of College Students met at Rosemont College on Sunday, Dec. 8, and awarded the Regional Commission on Interracial Affairs to Villanova College.

This is a great honor for the college as it involves leadership in the entire intercollegiate program for racial tolerance in the Philadelphia area. It will be the duty of the local group to aid in organizing interracial groups in the surrounding colleges and to stimulate their activities.

Prior to the afore mentioned meeting the Intercollegiate Interracial Council met to elect officers and formulate a program of activities of next year. The following were elected as officers: Herman Diesel, Pres., Villanova; Larry Pierce, Vice-pres., St. Joseph's; John Harris, Treas., La Salle.

The Council agreed that the secretary should be chosen by the president and that he should come from the same college in order to facilitate matters of business.

Miss Lillian McBride, Chestnut Hill College, made a strong appeal before for the formation of more groups of college students who would devote part of their time to catecheticalm work or supervise athletic programs at local CYA's. Details of this program will be given at the next meeting to be held at Immaculata College on January 12, 1947.

booking her solid up until and including the Senior Prom. Now all Neale needs to worry about is whether or not he'll be lucky enough to get a ticket.

Ft. Burke's nemeses, the "Blonde B's", Burke and Boyle, have temporarily shifted their fields of operation to Harcum. It isn't everyone who can boast of a 5' 6" blonde alarm clock, whose phone call arouses "Big Bill" daily at eight.

Obie O'Brien's problem has Wisly Collins on the ropes. Why doesn't Obie leave the kid alone, he has enough troubles without making him talk to himself.

Last Monday night we borrowed Father Burke's sweet potato, mussed up our hair, made sure we had our membership card for local 987 of the Musician's, and headed for Immaculata College . . . Yes, Father Handran and his hirsute harmonizers gave their second concert of the season this time for the girls of I. C.

The boys started with a bang, for the bus driver announced their arrival by banging into the wall which adorn the front of the campus. Like the true musicians that they are, the fellows picked up their instruments, mounted the stage and began to play. After their first number we applauded heartily until the girl on our right told us that they were merely warming up.

After the concert the girls served ice cream and cake. Perhaps it was the hungry look in the eyes of some of the fellows that prompted this action, at any rate it sure was appleciated. A juke box supplied the music and there were millions of swell girls to dance with. We were fortunate enough to overhear the following conversation between John McNamara and one of the girls: He: "May I have this dance?" She: "I guess so, I don't want it."

Highlights of the Eevning

Dave English's trumpet solo on Ave Maria . . . It was really sweet. The flocks of women around George Szymanski . . . It must have been that new after shave lotion of his. In a Barn Yard, is its handle . . . Bob McFarland got plenty of exercise for he was constantly jumping up and down waving to his sister who sat in the front row.

On and On They Go

Last night the band played at Malvern and a concert at Chestnut Hill looms . . . If they're not careful they will have Petrillo demanding dues.

CAPTAIN CONVALESCES

Captain Thomas, the Commanding Officer of the unit here, after having undergone an eye operation, is convalescing at the Naval Hospital ata St. Alban's N. Y. He will remain there for about ten days.

It has been announced that plans are being formulated in preparation for a dance to be held in the near future for the NROTC students.

his only pre-game campaign with the Green and Grey. In 1943-44 he topped all Mason-Dixon individual scorers and set a new record for the loop.

Among the other starters are co-captains Sid Roche and Gene O'conor. Roche is a veteran of two years play at Loyola. He will man the pivot spot and figures to do a commendable job. O'conor is the best defensive man on the club and does his share of point-making.

Veterans Return

The other two starting posts will probably be filled by Tom Gisriel and Ed McGarry. Gisriel picked up some fine points during his tenure with the Naval Air Station team at Norfolk. He is one of the many returned veterans on the Greyhound squad possessing former experience under Coach Lefty Reitz. McGarry devotes most of his efforts to teamwork and floor play. His fighting spirit keeps the team driving on both offense and defense.

Rochester Club To Play Host At Holiday Dinner

Mr. William Friel, 3d, Villanova Alumni Secretary, has received an announcement of a gala Christmas Party and Dance, sponsored by the Villanova Club of Rochester, N. Y., a prominent alumni group of our college, to be held at the Ridgemont Country Club, Rochester, on Saturday evening, December 28th.

Dinner will be served at 7:30 P. M., and dancing will begin at 10:00 P. M., and last until 1:00 A. M. It is the wish of the Rochester group to have all Villanova students from that area attend. For those students, the cost of activities is reduced to five dollars per couple. Reservations must be made by December 23rd by contacting Bill Turner, in 7 Simpson Hall.

The trend in Alumni groups is to include undergraduates in the activities of the association. To familiarize them with the advantages to be gained when they reach the status of alumni is the purpose of this plan.

The next issue of The Alumnus, official publication of the Villanova Alumni Association, will be distributed during the middle of January.

The alumni association of Villanova extends to the priests, faculty and student body Holiday Greetings and the best of wishes throughout the coming new year.

The Christmastide swells within our poetic breast a feeling of bonhomie towards all mankind (and Kearney too). "Peace on earth to men of good will," is a quotation that we should carry in our hearts throughout the year; then, perhaps, we may yet see that futuristic "Peace in Our Times."

Father McQuade Appointed President of New College

Veterans Advisor Leaves Campus for Andover, Massachusetts

By FRANK DITURI

Rev. Vincent A. McQuade, O.S.A., Assistant Professor of Social Sciences and chairman of the Veteran's Guidance Bureau, will leave Villanova College in the near future to head the new college to be established by the Order of St. Augustine on the outskirts of Andover, Mass.

Very Rev. Mortimer A. Sullivan, O.S.A., provincial of the Eastern Province of the Augustinian Fathers announced the appointment of Father McQuade as president of the new institution. The college will be built on the former Driscoll Estate and will serve the Boston, Lawrence, Lowell, Reading, Haverhill and Andover areas. A day school with facilities for about 300 men, it will offer courses and grant degrees in liberal arts, science, business and education.

Classes to Start Soon

Original plans called for classes to start in 1948, but the schedule is being advanced in an attempt to meet the present educational shortage. Father McQuade asserted that "every effort will be made to begin classes in September, 1947, in an attempt to meet the educational demands of ex-servicemen in the area." He also added that only freshmen would be admitted in the first class.

No name has yet been given to the school; the decision on that matter resting probably with the new president. The administrative and teaching staff is just in the process of organization. A cadre corps will come from Villanova College because of the large experience of the members of its faculty. The remainder of the staff will then be drawn from the younger men of the Eastern Province.

Member of Faculty Since 1938

Father McQuade is a well-known Catholic authority on labor and sociology, and has been on the faculty of Villanova College since 1938. Originally from the Boston area, he was born in Lawrence, Mass. in 1909. He received an A.B. degree in liberal arts from Villanova in 1931.

Father McQuade was ordained in 1934 after completing his theological studies at the Augustinian College, the Catholic University of America in 1938. He then joined the faculty at Villanova College.

Prominent on Campus

During his last two years at Villanova, Fr. McQuade has served as chairman of the Veteran's Guidance Bureau, which he organized from the first days of the influx of veteran students. Previous to that he was assistant to the president, acting dean, and head of the college's V-12 training program.

Very Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., President of Villanova College, expressed the regrets of the faculty and students at losing such an able and popular administrator and the pleasure felt by all in the honoring of Father McQuade and Villanova College by selecting him for the position.

BUILDING PLANS

The building project, consisting of the new library, chemical engineering, and naval science buildings is to get under way soon after the next Villanova College Board meeting to be held during the first week of February. Headed by the Rev. Francis X. McGuire O.S.A., president of Villanova College, the board will decide on the bids of the various contractors, and will choose one of them to construct the buildings.

Dean Morehouse, and several professors and teachers of the school have helped in the designs of the buildings, and many new and improved systems of heating and other devices will be incorporated.

PKP Initiates Engineer Pledges

Thirty-nine New Members Paddled Profusely

Wednesday night, January 8, 1947 Phi Kappa Pi held its initiation in Mendel Hall. Thirty-nine pledges went through the "tried and true" form of initiation to become members of the Engineering Fraternity on the campus.

Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., President of the College, was the honored guest at the supper after the initiation and he addressed the members. Rev. John O'Leary, O.S.A., Moderator of the Fraternity, Rev. J. Vrana, O.S.A., Dr. Haenish and Mr Ammelotti also spoke to the old and new members of the Fraternity.

Pledges Accepted

With all the new members added to the ranks of the fraternity, the organization has grown to be the largest active group on the college campus. The fraternity hopes to go far ahead of any existing organization in its social plans.

In prewar days the fraternity had an active bowling league, with members competing for a bowling trophy. It is the hope of the present leaders that the bowling league will start in the near future. Many other social events are planned as well as field trips to neighboring industrial plants.

Ban on Campus Parking Starts Tomorrow

Auto Owners Asked to Abide by College Regulations on Parking

A campaign to prohibit campus parking will go into effect tomorrow, Wednesday Jan. 15, it was announced today. Professors and students are requested to abide by the college regulations on this subject as published in the handbook.

Many complaints concerning the parking problem have come from the fire marshal, businessmen and trucking concerns making deliveries on the campus. Contractors engaged in the construction of the barracks on the campus have remarked that the roads in the vicinity of the Commerce and Finance Building are almost impassible due to parked cars. In case of fire or emergency crowded roads are a menace.

College professors and instructors have been asked to park their cars in the triangle, in back of Mendel Hall; as well as the lot in back of the Commerce and Finance building. Students are to make use of the lot adjacent to the tennis courts and the lot opposite the gymnasium.

Many suggestions on how to alleviate the parking problem have been received by the administration. One of the suggestions likely to be considered, if the parking problem is not solved will be the organizing of campus police. If this method is adopted these officers will be instructed to issue "tickets" for illegal parking. It is hoped by the administration that cooperation can be had by observance of the regulations.

Dinner Dance

Chales LaBelle, Chairman of the Senior Dinner Dance Committee, announced the completion of plans for this traditional affair. The dinner dance will be held Sat. evening in the Hotel Adelphia beginning at seven o'clock.

Bob Shebley and his Sextet will be on hand to furnish the music for the dance. This year for the first time since before the war the dinner dance will be held on the evening following the Belle Air Ball.

Formal Dance at College To Feature Popular Band

Tickets Still Available; Senior Dinner Dance Following Evening at Adelphia

With the date of the Belle Air Ball rapidly approaching, the campus is alive with final preparations for the evening's entertainment. The chairmen and the student body are in high gear, striving to make this dance the high-spot of the social year at Villanova.

Sam Canning, the dance chairman, reports that he is well pleased with the work of the various committees and the students are supporting their school's social functions. Following an anticipated rush for tickets after the return from Christmas vacation, the ticket committee announced that there are still tickets available and they may be purchased at any time in the information booth in Mendel Hall.

The music makers, namely Hal McIntyre and his orchestra are already on hand, playing an engagement at Philadelphia's mecca of name bands, the Click. Hal is being received favorably by his Philadelphia audience, so much so, that the orchestra is being held over until the 15th of the month. Many of the students have previewed Hal at the Click and report that he will be a big success and one of the best bands to play on the campus in many years.

Decoration Elaborate

John Burke and his committee have finished the arangements for the decorations. Many themes were carefully studied and from all reports the committee's choice will be received with awe. Extensive plans have been worked out with an interior decorator from Philadelphia, to transform the field house into a ball room suited to the occasion of the Belle Air Ball. The decorations ,as always will be unique and the committee hopes to surpass the designs of the past dances.

The design of the programs will be in keeping with the theme of the affairs and the committee feels sure that their choice of a program will be pleasing to all. The programs will consist of white leather booklets and should be a fitting keep-sake of the occasion.

The feature of the dance as always will be the Senior Promenade, followed by the dedicatory dances for each of the classes. Dan Redmond, the senior class president, will lead the Senior March and then the graduating class will dance to the tune they selected as their favorite. The Junior, Sophomore and Freshman choices will follow in that order. Only the members of the respective classes will dance while their selection is being played. This is just one of the many traditions that makes the Belle Air Ball a function every

Students Move Into Barracks

Freshmen Invade Recently Finished Army Barracks

Freshmen, till then residing in the Field House, responded gleefully, upon their return to the college on the evening of the 5th of January, to the news that they would "have to" move to the second of two completed barracks on the succeeding day. That night most of them drowsed restlessly awaiting the time when they would move.

On Monday morning, the general exodus from the Gym began when early risers commenced to cart their personal belongings to the long-awaited new dormitories.

The 2-story barracks, Army type T-B, 100 feet long by 30 feet wide, are locted along Lancaster Pike, across Ithan Ave. from the Field House. Plans call for four barracks to be converted into dormitories, each containing 25 rooms.

Barracks Insulated

The barracks have been insulated with metal foil, and the walls of the rooms and passageways are built of fire-proof composition boards. Heating is accomplished by a hot air circulating system, separate to each building.

Each floor of the new dormitories has a large, commodious shower and wash room fitted with the very latest facilities obtainable.

Two students will occupy a room, and their furnishings consist of a double-decker bed, large Navy-surplus locker, two tables, two chairs, two desk lamps, and two built-in clothes closets. This arangement provides ample space for extra conveniences as the rommates desire.

All the men residing in the barracks agree to the merits of the barracks building as a dormitory and join in wishing the residents of the Blue Rooms that they too gain pleasure of moving into Barracks 3 which will be finished in a very short time. In simple but descriptive words C. Tyson Reilly, Class of '50, described his delight at life in the old Army barracks with "It's swell!"

The Man Bilbo . . .

Last week the Eightieth Congress of the United States was convened in Washington. This congress is faced with some of the most difficult problems in American History. It has an opportunity for distinguishing itself that has seldom been offered.

The House of Representatives was convened with apprehension but after the delay occasioned by the presentation of so many new members that body settled down to the work of the nation. The Senate had just been reconvened when the formalities ground to a stop, a lengthy and bitter debate began, and a filibuster threat was issued.

The cause of that delay and that apprehension is the subject of this editorial. The cause was the seating of the Senior Senator from Mississippi, Mr. Bilbo and the Representative from New York, Mr. Marcantonio. In both cases the validity of their elections was questioned and in the former case a very serious charge of graft-taking was imputed.

The Senate and the House sit in judgement of the legality of the elections of their members and it is up to them of decide upon the credentials of the two men in question. The Senate has officially called into question the election of Bilbo but as yet the House has ignored the Marcantonio affair.

There are some state right's enthusiasts who have taken issue with our Congress on the grounds that it must not interfere with the right of the people to elect the men they choose. We agree with them in principle but that principle is not in question. In fact that principle is the basis of Congress's attempts to reject these men. The fact of the matter has been revealed in court testimony in the case of Bilbo and has been very pertinently hinted at in the case of Marcantoinio. The fact is that these men were not elected by a plurality of their constituency who wished to vote without restraint.

The virtual exclusion of the negro from the polls in Bilbo's case has not only aroused the democratic feeling of the better part of the country but has rendered illegal that man's claim to a seat in the legislature of a nation which constitutionally and morally guarantees the franchise to its citizens regardless of their race. On the basis of this alone the Senate should debar "the man"; however, there is a far more serious charge which he should face and which should draw a far more severe penalty.

Bilbo has been seriously accused of receiving bribes to throw war contracts in the direction of his benefactors. Such vile corruption in such a high level of government must be violently smashed. Let no cynic smile, the right of the matter is evident and right is right when nobody's right. Much has been said about the suffering of our servicemen in the field, but too much cannot be said. We cannot lapse into the cynicism of twenty-five years ago, we cannot "hardboil" ourselves into a total disregard of all standards of ethical conduct. Such crime, if actually committed, was a crime against the state, against every individual of our nation and our allies, and should be prosecuted to the limit.

Mr. Vito Marcantonio has tested too far the public with his strong-arm methods of campaigning. The brutal election murder in his district in New York is not yet completely solved, but there are strong indications that Marcantonio or one of his henchmen is involved. This is in reality only the most sensational manifestation of Marcantonio's political idealogy. In congress, Marcantonio has continually followed the "Russian Party Line" flowing with all the serpentine convulsions of Stalin's policy. The murder and the other violence and restraints at the polls in his district are the electioneering policies of the "party line." If this man is guilty of crime he should be doubly prosecuted because of the effects of the felony and the honored position of the perpetrator.

These men are shadows thrown over our Congress, their names must not only be stricken from its rolls but must be made warnings to all who would disregard our Constitutional principles.

It Can Happen Here . . .

During the past six months a terrifying epidemic of tragic fires is sweeping the country. The death toll has been high. Even within the past month, a costly oil truck fire raged at the very edge of the campus. Villanova has had two devastating fires in the last decade.

Villanova is not immune to fires and they can happen here. Following the old adage, An Ounce of Prevention Is Worth a Pound of Cure, we can help avoid fires by simple and thoughtful precautions.

Careless disposal of cigarettes is one of the leading causes of fire. Use the ash receivers provided for the purpose of "butting" smoked cigarettes. Avoid putting papers in ash trays. Use the receptacles rather than endanger the life and property of your fellow student.

Fire Hazards can readily develop in many parts of the college. Hallways and rooms carelessly cluttered up with old newspapers and debris under proper conditions could turn any dorm into a roaring inferno.

Please take proper steps to do away with these dangers. Do your part in protecting your property and life and that of your fellow students.

Help avoid fire hazards. Take the proverbial ounce of prevention. Remember, It Can Happen Here!

Obey The Laws . . .

On page one of this issue is an announcement regarding new parking regulations to go into effect tomorrow. The school authorities up the the present time have not enforced the existing parking rules in hopes that the students themselves would obey without compulsion. The congested situation on the campus obviates the necessity of adopting sterner measures. The fire marshal has repeatedly warned the school that, because of the many vehicles cluttering up the grounds, fire-fighting equipment could only be put to use with great difficulty.

It is the duty of the student body to obey the laws of the school. Since they have not done so it becomes imperative that they be forced to do so.

All those who drive cars on the campus will save themselves untold "ticket headaches" and perhaps stiff fines by simple regard for the regulations. Why court trouble when you can avoid court?

THE BULL PEN

By JOHN L. KUCHA

To make a long sentence short . . . Get a parole.

Influence

Having played guard for a full sixty minutes at the Punch Bowl game (sponsored by the Hiram Walker for President Club) and having recuperated sufficiently from this merry wassail to pose for two Bromo-Seltzer ads, we mounted our hippogriff and wingfooted back to the campus to hear some distressing news. John J. Brinjac of Steelton, Pa. marries Miss Ann Verbos, also of Steelton.

The event took place December 30, 1946. (This no doubt is a sly move on Brinjac's part for the current Internal Revenue Bulletin reads as "and who shall be living with spouse on the last day of the calendar year, is entitled to classification as a married person." But enough of such potpourri for the nonce, here are the details of the wedding which we obtained from Brinjac by the liberal use of the thumb screw and rack (currently selling at $5.98 at Moe's, 606 Market Street, the big store with the small rear).

The bridegroom was led to the altar (hah!) by his father, a smiling man who seemed relieved, wore a tweed suit with zoot trousers complete with a long chain (very symbolic), an Arrow shirt (with Cupids) two socks, suspenders, as well as a shoulder length veil of illusion attached to a braided tiara of the same material. He carried a bouquet of white roses and stephanotis centered with a detachable corsage of camellias. The bride, a usual necessity at these affairs, also attended and the wedding ended with Mrs. Brinjac putting the ring through his nose. Ah, yes! It was a bully affair! All Villanova joins us in extending the Brinjacs! And many of them.

Speaking of marriages, we were thumbing through our English book at Random (a small town in Wisconsin) when we ran across this little gem on page 418 of "Reading For Our Times." It's an excerpt from a snazzy dissertation cyclept "Business Before Grammar" by one Walter Prichard Eaton who criticizes literary 'Boweryese' after quoting verbatim (in fact word for word) the following:

The average guy's opinion of himself reaches its highest level about five minutes after the most wonderful girl in the world gasps "Yes!" He always thought he was a little better than the other voters, but now he knows it! Of course, he figures, the girl couldn't very well help fallin' for a handsome brute like him, who'd have more mony than Rockefeller if he only knew something about oil. He kids himself along like that, thinkin' that it was his curly hair or his clever chatter that turned the trick. Them guys gimme a laugh!

When Mamie Mahoney or Gladys Van de Vere decides to love, honor and annoy one of these birds, she's got some little thing in view besides light housekeepin'. Some dames marry for spite, some because they prefer limousines to the subway, and others want to make Joe stop playin' the races or the rye. But there's somethin' there—just like they have to put alloy in gold to hold it together. Yes, gentel reader, there's a reason!

But if you're engaged, son, don't let this disturb you. I've seen some dames that, believe me, I wouldn't care what they married me for, as long as they did.

Well, we're not sure, but it sounds like the stuff Villanova students will be purring over in satisfaction a hundred years from hence.

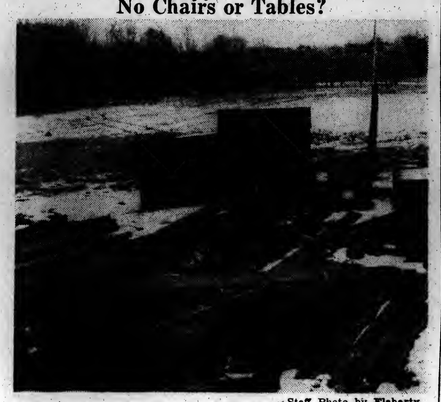
On January 17, 18 and 20, the Philadelphia Orchestra under the direction of Eugene Ormandy will feature Robert Casadesus as piano soloist. Mr. Casadesus, who is well known for his sparkling interpretations of Mozart, will play that composer's A minor Piano Concerto, as well as the Ravel Concerto for the Left Hand for Piano and Orchestra. The balance of the program will feature Ormandy and the orchestra in performances of the Sibelius Seventh Symphony and the Debussy tone poem "Iberia."

Maurice Ravel's Left Hand Concerto is another one of this impressionist's stunt pieces. The work is written in one movement, and designed to show off the technical abilities of the soloist's left hand. Though not without distinctive musical merit, it derives it popularity (somewhat like the same composer's "Bolero") mainly through its originality.

The Debussy tone poem, also a product of the Impressionistic school, is derived from the lengthier composition "Images pour Orchestra" and is a brilliant example of Spanish music. The suite is divided into three sections, each portraying the composer's impressions of a Spanish scene. This and the symphonic suite "La Mer" are considered by many to be the most representative compositions of this French modernist.



The concerts will be held as usual in the Academy of Music on Friday at 2:30, and on Saturday and Monday at 8:30. Tickets may be purchased either at 1505 Walnut St. (Heppe's), or at the Academy. Prices run from $1.36 to $4.94.

The current thread of reviving hit shows of yesteryear has brought to Philadelphia a production of Victor Herbert's classic musical comedy "Sweethearts." Herbert's charming music is supplemented by the lively antics of comedian Bobby Clark and a supporting cast of 100 to provide the theatre-goer with a pleasant evening. The operetta book responds well to modernization, showing no marks of being "dated." In a like manner, Robert Russell Bennett, a leading orchestrator, has streamlined the musical score. The production is at the Forrest Theatre. Ticket are priced from $1.86 up.

Tallulah Bankhead shows Philadelphians just why she is regarded as one of today's finest actresses of the legitimate theatre. In "The Eagle Has Two Heads," Miss Bankhead gives a signal performance, acting in many scenes with profound power. The play itself is the English version of a three act French melodrama written by Jean Cocteau. Ronald Duncan, in keeping the original terseness and drama present, has done a workmanlike job of translating the French of Cocteau. "The Eagle Has Two Heads" is at the Forrest Theatre, where tickets may be purchased from $1.86 up.

The Theatre Guild's technicolor production of the Shakespeare play "Henry V" continues to play at the New Pix Theatre, 1830 Market St. Laurence Olivier is starred in this British produced film. All seats are reserved, and the prices run from $1.95 up.

Vets News

By J. J. MILLER

Mr. Harris, Veterans Training Officer at Villanova College, wishes to remind veterans that all earnings must be reported promptly. Earnings report forms may be obtained at the Veterans Office, Room 111, Mendel Hall. Mr. Harris is in the Veterans Office Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays and invites students to stop in at any time of the day with the exception of the hours from 11:45 A. M. to 1:00 P. M.

Veterans who sometimes feel as though they are getting a late start in education might be heartened by the optimism shown by sixty-three-year-old James A. Chesnut who has just enlisted in the U. S. Army. He plans to serve eight years and retire at seventy-one. When asked what he would do after that, he said, "Well, seventy-one isn't too old to start going to college."

State Bonus

Recent action by the Legislature of Michigan entities Michigan veterans to $10 for each month of domestic service with the Armed Forces, and $15 per month for foreign service, up to the maximum set at $500.

An incomplete report shows that New Hampshire is paying veterans $10 per month with a maximum of $100; Massachusetts is offering a sum of $100 for domestic duty and $200 for foreign duty and has already paid the first $100; Vermont is paying $10 per month with a maximum of $120.

Honorably discharged veterans and ex-Merchant Marines of Rhode Island will receive $200 if the bill receives the voters' sanction in the November elections. If New York's bonus bill receives favorable action in the 1947 Legislature it will be submitted to the people's vote in November and if it becomes law it will provide for $50 per month of service up to a maximum of $250. Pennsylvania has no definite bill pending, and in the state of Maine the bonus bill was turned down at a referendum.

NROTC Notes

A recent Navy Department notice disclosed that there have been 50,000 applications received from students throughout the country desiring NROTC or NACP training. Of these applicants only five or six thousand will be accepted.

Candidates will be chosen as Midshipmen on the basis of a competitive examination to be held here under the direction of Rev. Joseph J. Boyle, O.S.A., Registrar of the College. Villanova will receive fifty-five of the five or six thousand accepted upon the commencement of the Fall semester.

Captain Thomas, the Commanding Officer of the unit stationed here, said that competition will be keen and the examination difficult. Only those of the highest caliber will make good Naval Officers.

Sub Commander Added to Staff

The Educational Department of the Villanova unit added Lt. Cmdr. C. L. John, USN., to its faculty. Commander John recently was in command of the USS Skipjack, a submarine that operated in both the Atlantic and Pacific theaters of war. He will be an Assistant Professor in Navigation and Engineering. In addition to holding three Silver Stars Mr. John has the Bronze Star and the Legion of Merit.

Lt. Cmdr. E. M. Koos, USN, a Naval Aviation officer stationed here was detached.

Vice Admiral Kauffman, Commandant of the Fourth Naval District, is expected to make an inspection tour of the unit on January 21. It is probable that he may attend the ceremonies of breaking the ground for the new Naval Science building to be erected in a few months.

BOOKSTORE NEWS

During the past week, the bookstore has been a beehive of activity with new lighting fixtures being installed, text books for the coming semester still being received, and the semi-annual report to the government on veterans' allotments for books, stationery, and other supplies currently being filled out.

Concerning the latter, a notice was posted recently notifying all veterans that their accounts will be temporarily closed until the start of the coming semester in early February. This will provide time necessary for filling out the reports.

Additional lighting was a necessity since the bookstore was formerly a classroom. The system just installed includes fluorescent lighting according to the plan devised for the engineering drawing rooms.

'NEATH THE SPIRES

By FRANCIS J. HANSSENS

To a lot of us people wandering around here on earth, it seems as though we've been given a pretty screwy deal. Through no particular fault of our own we found that here we were, all of a sudden, inhabitants of this place called earth, and that just as suddenly we were caught up in this mad dash for some phantom objective upon which we couldn't quite put our finger.

Fortunately, however, though hardly more clear to us, we did succeed in naming our objective, that is, our personal, and in a sense material, objective here on earth. We called it happiness. So now we find ourselves grown to the stature of college men, and it is safe to say that a very great many of us are still looking for our phantom goal. Where is it? What is it? Is there a formula for attaining it? It was in search of the answer to the latter question that we stumbled upon the following passage entitled: "The Man Laughed Long":

"The king was ill, weary of life, and all the court physicians could not rally him. Finally a wise man appeared at the gate and asked the privilege of prescribing for the king. He talked to him of many things, studying his moods. Then the savant announced that the only thing which would save the king's life and restore his spirits was to sleep one night in a happy man's shirt.

"No man could be found in the court who was truly happy. All of them wanted at least one thing to reach that state. Soldiers were dispatched through the whole land to find a happy man. But there was none. As the last of the messengers came home, they saw a man lying under a distant tree and hailed him: 'Are you happy?' He answered cheerfully that he was, and they gathered around to find if there was anything he wanted. The beggar would not confess to a single wish, but expressed perfect contentment. Convinced at last, the soldiers bade him rise and give them his shirt for the king.

"'The man laughed long, and said, 'I have no shirt!'"

Thus, to our great surprise, we find that here is our "formula for happiness," and it turns out to be nothing more than the simple application in our lives of God's beatitude: "Blessed are the poor in spirit—"

Now it remains for each one of us to apply that formula in his own life, and thus succeed in freeing that spirit within us for the happiness which has been there all the while, imprisoned by a too strong attachment to the transient things of this all too-transient life.

Behind the Eight Ball

By DICK RANDOLPH and LARRY LYONS

After a very enjoyable vacation we are once more back in the saddle. We're not going to say that the time went fast over the holidays, but when we interrupted trimming the Christmas tree to celebrate the New Year we were called down for making noise in class.

Before the vacation we received our quarterly marks. We always heard that E was one of the most used letters in the alphabet and now we believe it.

Dedication

This week we would like to dedicate the column to that handsome romeo, Bob McNamara. Bob celebrated his second anniversary last Monday night. Yes, two years ago he discovered that Margie was the only girl in the world. We understand that last Monday night Bob held her hand during a movie. He has really made great strides in the last two years. Patience will-win out.

Desertion

While returning home from the recent A. S. Ch. E. (translated: All Sympathize with Chemical Engineers) convention at Atlantic City, the car in which Ed Deasy and Ray Kasper were riding in had a flat. Being true buddies Ed and Ray promptly hopped out of the car and proceeded to . . . get another ride home.

Darts

Mark Manning, another rider of the ill fated car, found a dart board while waiting for the car to be fixed. After watching Mark play for awhile we were convinced that all his spare time is not spent with Mary. Practice makes perfect. Incidentally Mark has teamed up with Bill Leighton and they are entertaining the girls that ride the P & W. A floor show on wheels. No other trolley car can make that statement.

Disillusioned

Over the holidays we stopped at Lake Placid and we were amused to see Philip "Hans" Keon zooming down those dangerous slopes with nary a fear. We think, however, that someone should tell Phil that the object is to stand on the skiis, not lay on them.

Discoloration

Last Monday we were surprised to see that someone had "hung one on" peaceloving Jim Fallon. It was the prettiest "shiner" that we have seen in a long while. Jim says "I didn't get it easily, I had to fight for it."

Decision

To most of the students the recent vacation meant freedom. However, to John Brinjac it meant future restriction. Yes, old John B. took the drastic step, he was married.

Destruction

Last Wednesday night Phi Kappa Pi had the initiation of new members . . . Oh it was so bloody . . . Iver Peterson, Robert Roach, and William Doland wished that they had never left the depths of their swimming pool abode. Those paddles really burned them up.

Speaking of paddles, Tom Santry made the biggest paddle that we have ever seen. Maybe he thought that if he made it big enough the boys would be unable to lift it.

Walter Napp had a rather in-

week the Eightieth Congress of the United States zened in Washington. This congress is faced with the most difficult problems in American History. It portunity for distinguishing itself that has seldom ...red.

The House of Representatives was convened with apprehension but after the delay occasioned by the presentation of so many new members that body settled down to the work of the nation. The Senate had just been reconvened when the formalities ground to a stop, a lengthy and bitter debate began, and a filibuster threat was issued.

The cause of that delay and that apprehension is the subject of this editorial. The cause was the seating of the Senior Senator from Mississippi, Mr. Bilbo and the Representative from New York, Mr. Marcantonio. In both cases the validity of their elections was questioned and in the former case a very serious charge of graft-taking was imputed.

The Senate and the House sit in judgement of the legality of the elections of their members and it is up to them of decide upon the credentials of the two men in question. The Senate was already called into question the election of Bilbo and As yet the House has ignored the Marcantonio affair.

There are some state right's enthusiasts who have taken issue with our Congress on the grounds that it must not interfere with the right of the people to elect the men they choose. We agree with them in principle but that principle is not in question. In fact that principle is the basis of Congress' attempts to reject these men. The fact of the matter has been revealed in court testimony in the case of Bilbo and has been very pertinently hinted at in the case of Marcantonio. The fact is that these men were not elected by a plurality of their constituency who wished to vote without restraint.

The virtual exclusion of the negro from the polls in Bilbo's case has not only aroused the democratic feeling of the better part of the country but has rendered illegal that man's claim to a seat in the legislature of a nation which constitutionally and morally guarantees the franchise to its citizens regardless of their race. On the basis of this alone the Senate should debar "the man"; however, there is a far more serious charge which he should face and which should draw a far more severe penalty.

Bilbo has been seriously accused of receiving bribes to throw war contracts in the direction of his benefactors. Such vile corruption in such a high level of government must be violently smashed. Let no cynic smile, the right of the matter is evident and right is right when nobody's right. Much has been said about the suffering of our servicemen in the field, but too much cannot be said. We cannot lapse into the cynicism of twenty-five years ago, we cannot "hardboil" ourselves into a total disregard of all standards of ethical conduct. Such crime, if actually committed, was a crime against the state, against every individual of our nation and our allies, and should be prosecuted to the limit.

Mr. Vito Marcantonio has tested too far the public with his strong-arm methods of campaigning. The brutal election murder in his district in New York is not yet completely solved, but there are strong indications that Marcantonio or one of his henchmen is involved. This is in reality only the most sensational manifestation of Marcantonio's political ideology. In congress, Marcantonio has continually followed the "Russian Party Line" flowing with all the serpentine convulsions of Stalin's policy. The murder and the other violence and restraints at the polls in his district are the electioneering policies of the "party line." If this man is guilty of crime he should be doubly prosecuted because of the effects of the felony and the honored position of the perpetrator.

These men are shadows thrown over our Congress, their names must not only be stricken from its rolls but must be made warnings to all who would disregard our Constitutional principles.

It Can Happen Here . . .

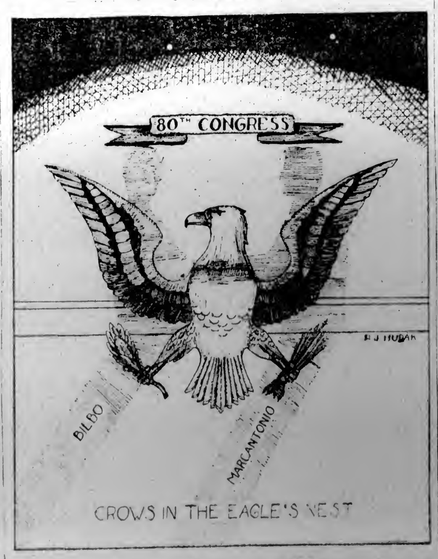
During the past six months a terrifying epidemic of tragic fires is sweeping the country. The death toll has been high. Even within the past month, a costly oil truck fire raged at the very edge of the campus. Villanova has had two devastating fires in the last decade.

Villanova is not immune to fires and they can happen here. Following the old adage, An Ounce of Prevention Is Worth a Pound of Cure, we can help avoid fires by simple and thoughtful precautions.

Careless disposal of cigarettes is one of the leading causes of fire. Use the ash receivers provided for the purpose of "butting" smoked cigarettes. Avoid putting papers in ash trays. Use the receptacles rather than endanger the life and property of your fellow student.

Fire Hazards can readily develop in many parts of the college. Hallways and rooms carelessly cluttered up with old newspapers and debris under proper conditions could turn any dorm into a roaring inferno.

Please take proper steps to do away with these dangers. Do your part in protecting your property and life and that of your fellow students.



Help avoid fire hazards. Take the proverbial ounce of prevention. Remember, It Can Happen Here!

Obey The Laws . . .

Vets News

By J. J. MILLER

Mr. Harris, Veterans Training Officer at Villanova College, wishes to remind veterans that all earnings must be reported promptly. Earnings report forms may be obtained at the Veterans Office, Room 111, Mendel Hall. Mr. Harris is in the Veterans Office Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays and invites students to stop in at any time of the day with the exception of the hours from 11:45 A. M. to 1:00 P. M.

Veterans who sometimes feel as though they are getting a late start in education might be heartened by the optimism shown by sixty-three-year-old James A. Chesnut who has just enlisted in the U. S. Army. He plans to serve eight years and retire at seventy-one. When asked what he would do after that, he said, "Well, seventy-one isn't too old to start going to college."

State Bonus

Recent action by the Legislature of Michigan entitles Michigan veterans to $10 for each month of domestic service with the Armed Forces, and $15 per month for foreign service, up to the maximum set at $600.

An incomplete report shows that New Hampshire is paying veterans $10 per month with a maximum of $100; Massachusetts is offering a sum of $100 for domestic duty and $200 for foreign duty and has already paid the first $100; Vermont is paying $10 per month with a maximum of $120.

Honorably discharged veterans and ex-Merchant Marines of Rhode Island will receive $200 if the bill receives the voters' sanction in the November elections. If New York's bonus bill receives favorable action in the 1947 Legislature it will be submitted to the people's vote in November and if it receives law it will provide for $50 per month of service up to a maximum of $250. Pennsylvania has no definite bill pending, and in the state of Maine the bonus bill was turned down at a referendum.

NROTC Notes

A recent Navy Department notice disclosed that there have been 50,000 applications received from students throughout the country desiring NROTC or NACP training. Of these applicants only five or six thousand will be accepted.

Candidates will be chosen as Midshipmen on the basis of a competitive examination to be held there under the direction of Rev. Joseph I. Boyle, O.S.A., Registrar of the College. Villanova will receive fifty-five of the five or six thousand accepted upon the commencement of the Fall semester.

Captain Thomas, the Commanding Officer of the unit stationed here, said that competition will be keen and the examination difficult. Only those of the highest caliber will make good Naval Officers.

Sub Commander Added to Staff

The Educational Department of the Villanova unit added Lt. Cmdr. C. L. John, USN., to its faculty. Commander John recently was in command of the USS Skipjack, a submarine that operated in both the Atlantic and Pacific theaters of war. He will be an Assistant Professor in Navigation and Engineering. In addition to holding Oree Silver Stars Mr. John has the Bronze Star and the Legion of Merit.

Lt. Cmdr. E. M. Koos, USN, a Naval Aviation officer, stationed here was detached.

Vice Admiral Kauffman Commandant of the Fourth Naval District, is expected to make an inspection tour of the unit on January 21. It is probable that he may attend the ceremonies of breaking the ground for the new Naval Science building to be erected in a few months.

BOOKSTORE NEWS

During the past week the bookstore has been a beehive of activity with new lighting fixtures being installed, text books for the coming semester still being received, and the semi-annual report to the government on veterans' allotments for books, stationery, and other supplies currently being filled out.

Concerning the latter, a notice was posted recently notifying all veterans that their accounts will be temporarily closed until the start of the coming semester in early February. This will provide time necessary for filling out the reports.

Additional lighting was a necessity since the book-store was formerly a classroom. The system just installed includes fluorescent lighting according to the plan drawn for the engineering drawing room.

'NEATH THE SPIRES

By FRANCIS J. HANSSENS

To a lot of is people wandering around here on earth, it seems as though we've been given a pretty screwy deal. Through no particular fault of our own we found that here we were, all of a sudden, inhabitants of this place called earth, and that just as suddenly we were caught up in this mad dash for some phantom objective upon which we couldn't quite put our finger.

Fortunately, however, though hardly more clear to us, we did succeed in naming our objective, that is, our personal, and in a sense maternal, objective here on earth. We called it happiness. So now we find ourselves grown to the stature of college men, and it is safe to say that a very great many of us are still looking for our phantom goal. Where is it? What is it? Is there a formula for attaining it? It was in search of the answer to the latter question that we stumbled upon the following passage entitled: "The Man Laughed Long":

"The king was ill, weary of life, and all the court physicians could not rally him. Finally a wise man appeared at the gate and asked the privilege of prescribing for the king. He talked to him of many things, studying his moods. Then the savant announced that the only thing which would save the king's life and restore his spirits was to sleep one night in a happy man's shirt.

"No man could be found in the court who was truly happy. All of them wanted at least one thing to reach that state. Soldiers were dispatched through the whole land to find a happy man. But there was none. As the last of the messengers came home, they saw a man lying under a distant tree and hailed him. "Are you happy?" He answered cheerfully that he was, and they gathered around to find if there was anything he wanted. The beggar would not, confess to a single wish, but expressed perfect contentment. Convinced at last, the soldiers bade him rise and give them his shirt for the king.

"The man laughed long, and said, I have no shirt."

Thus, to our great surprise, we find that here is our "formula for happiness" and it turns out to be nothing more than the simple application in our lives of God's beatitude, "Blessed are the poor in spirit."

Now it remains for each one of us to apply that formula in his own life, and thus succeed in freeing from within his heart the happiness which has been the despair of the ages. Then, unimpressed by a too strong attachment to the transient things of this all too-transient life.

Behind the Eight Ball

By DICK RANDOLPH and LARRY LYONS

After a very enjoyable vacation we are once more back in the saddle. We're not going to say that the time went fast over the holidays, but when we interrupted trimming the Christmas tree to celebrate the New Year we were called down for making noise in class.

Before the vacation we received our quarterly marks. We always heard that E was one of the most used letters in the alphabet and now we believe it.

Dedication

This week we would like to dedicate the column to that handsome romeo, Bob McNamara. Bob celebrated his second anniversary last Monday night. Yes, two years ago he discovered that Margie was the only girl in the world. We understand that last Monday night Bob held her hand during a movie. He has really made great strides in the last two years. Patience will win out.

Desertion

While returning home from the recent A. S. Ch. E. (translated: All Sympathize with Chemical Engineers) convention at Atlantic City, the car in which Ed Deasy and Ray Kasper were riding in had a flat. Being true buddies, Ed and Ray promptly hopped out of the car and proceeded to . . . get another ride home.

Darts

Mark Manning, another rider of the ill fated car, found a dart board while waiting for the car to be fixed. After watching Mark play for awhile we were convinced that all his spare time is not spent with Mary. Practice makes perfect. Incidentally Mark has teamed up with Bill Leighton and they are entertaining the guts that ride the P & W A floor show on wheels. No other trolley car can make that statement.

Disillusioned

Over the holidays we stopped at Lake Placid and we were amused to see Philip "Hans" Keon zooming down those dangerous slopes with nary a fear. We think, however, that someone should tell Phil that the object is to stand on the skis, not lay on them.

Discoloration

Last Monday we were surprised to see that someone had thing on the pedestal using Jim Fallon. It was the prettiest shine that we have seen in a long while. Jim says "I didn't get it easily, I had to fight for it."

Decision

To most of the students the recent vacation meant freedom. However, to John Brinjac it meant future restriction. Yes, old John B. took the drastic step, he was married.

Destruction

Last Wednesday night Phi Kappa Pi had the initiation of new members . . . Oh it was so bloody . . . Iver Peterson, Robert Roach, and William Doland wished that they had never left the depths of their swimming pool abode. Those paddles really burned them up.

Speaking of paddles, Tom Santry made the biggest paddle that we have ever seen. Maybe he thought that if he made it big enough the boys would be unable to lift it.

Chicago Host to National Students Organization

Phil Barret and Jasper Chen See Represent Students of Villanova

During the last world war people of like interest and aims got together and united under a common bond for safety. Thus it is that while the flames of conflict were raging across most of Europe and Asia, students who alighted on the soil of England as soldiers or otherwise got together to discuss their present status and make plans for the future.

These men were students from all over the world and their problems were the common one of the scholar. As such, the British National Union of Students played host to them and with their aid sought the birth of an International Union of Students which would act as the official organ of student need and progress.

Thereafter many meetings were held which led to a conference in Urague, Czechoslavakia during the summer of 1946. From this conference an International Union of Students was born and the delegates returned to their respective countries to set up the machine that is necessary for its useful function. This in turn led to the Chicago Conference of December 28-30, for the purpose of organizing American students into a National Student Organization.

At this conference there were over six hundred delegates and observers from two hundred and ninety-one Colleges and Universities and from about twenty-five National Youth and Student Organizations. Villanova sent two delegates, Philip Barrett and Jasper Chen See, who were to aid in this conference in the setting up of a National Continuations Committee with specific proposals to draw up a constitution for the proposed NSO. The NCC will call a conference in the summer of 1947, at which time the constitution will be studied, amended, deleted or accepted, and the NSO will then be formally launched.

Now, in organizations of this type, there are strong tendencies to misuse them for other than student purposes. The International Union of Students has been called "Red." Undoubtedly it has a strong shade, but it is only so because the Christian and democratic students have permitted the IUS to be Communist-dominated by their negligence and non - participating policies. There is this danger confronting the proposed NSO, and it is up to the American Students to prevent it by actively participating in the NSO and exerting their Christian and democratic heritage in its principles and functions.

Perhaps a few words on the functions of the IUS and the NSO will give some idea of their importance and why they should be supported by every college and University. On our International basis there are:

1. Student exchange: the opportunity to study abroad should be made available for all qualified students. It is a well known fact that foreign students are unofficial ambassadors of good will.

2. Direct relief to students in war devastated countries.

3. Solicitations of funds and materials for rehabilitation and development of foreign universities and libraries where needed from private and public sources.

These are only few of the functions of the IUS which will be only dreams unless there are NSO's to back them up.

On the national basis there are the problems of veteran's housing, teacher's salaries and the like. Here is an example that will give you an idea of the use of an NSO.

In October, 1945, students at Oxford found their college bill increased $180 a year. Immediate investigation by ENUS revealed similar actions impending in Scotland and other English colleges. The BNUS found this action contrary to the purpose of the National Education Act which increased government aid to Colleges with the purpose of expanding the educational system and making a university education available to all students regardless of income. It was then proposed that the increased costs be borne by a corresponding increase in government grants. Together with the National Union of Teachers, the BNUS took the matter to Parliament and a general rise in fees was halted.

If the importance of the IUS and the NSO is fully granted by the American Student as an individual, no impediment should hinder the success of these organizations. Hoping that this will be released, the Villanovan delegates proposed that a strong and responsible student government be set up on the Campus. For just as the IUS is dependent upon the quality of the National Student Organizations that make it up, the NSO in the United States is dependent upon the quality of its campus student governments.

150 Lb. Schedule Announced; Yale Only Addition

By PAT SPLANE

The announcement of the 150 pound football schedule was made last week by the Rev. E. B. McKee, Athletic Director of Villanova College.

Next fall the Kittens will take on one new addition to their schedule of last year. On November 8, they are to play Yale at home. However, Yale did not field a team last year and may not be able to do so this coming season. If they cannot, Lehigh will fill their spot on the schedule.

Yale Won Trophy

Lehigh has filed application for admittance to the IC4A League in 1948. Their game this coming season, however, would not be a league game. Although Yale was the winner of the Smalley Trophy in the last year the league played before the war, they did not field a team last year.

The other five games to be played are with teams that the Kittens played this past season. They open with Rutgers who won the opening game last year by a 7-0 score. Princeton, who dropped a close 14-13 game, will be met the following week in the Villanova stadium.

Middies Tamed Kittens

Then the Kittens will go on the road the following two weekends. They will take on Cornell who bowed last year 14-6; and then Navy who defeated Villanova 20-7 win the Smalley Trophy and push the Main Liners into second place.

The final game of the season will be played at home against Penn. Last year red and blue were nosed out by the Kittens 6-0.

1947 150-POUND FOOTBALL SCHEDULE

Added Feature For Track Men

Villanova's Harriers will embark from Philadelphia immediately following the Inquirer Invitation Meet to journey to Boston for the K. of C. Meet in the Boston Gardens on the following night.

George Guida, the holder of the Charles Paddock Memorial for the 300 meter, will run that distance in the Boston Gardens on January 25. Browning Ross, the Wildcat Freshman distance star will also run in the two mile event.

Coach Elliot's mile relay team, which has not been definitely picked as yet will compete in that meet also.

Raiken's Last Minute Goal Downs Princeton, 42 - 40

By DAN REDMOND

Forced to the limit by a hard fighting, never-say-die group of Princeton basketeers, Villanova's Wildcats eked out a 42-40 decision before some 3000 fans in the Main Line field house.

A one-hand stab, by freshman Sherwin "Shy" Raiken with only 25 seconds left to play gave Coach Al Severance's team their fourth win in five starts and their second win over Princeton this season.

When George Lowry put Princeton ahead for the first time at 40-38, the Orange and Black commenced to freeze the ball and it looked like curtains for the Cats. However the Main Liners got a lift when Art Wilson, smooth Negro guard, was detected walking.

Lord Ties Score

At this point, Captain Joe Lord arched a long shot that equalized the scoreboard at 40 points each.

Perry Del Purgatorio had a chance to put the Cats ahead with his free throw with slightly more than a half minute to play. When Dels' shot slid off the rim, Brooks Ricca, the omnipresent backboard specialist, grabbed the ball and fed it to Raiken who put it in its proper place.

Villanova appeared on its way to an easy triumph after building up a 24-16 halftime score. At one time in the first half the Severance men led, 16 to 7. Lord, Ricca, and Leo Wolf with 9, 8 and 7 respectively, accounted for all of the Blue and

Navy Game No True Test for Weary Courtmen; Subs Impressive

By JACK KENNEDY

On their first overnight trip of the season, the Villanova Wildcats basketball team traveled southward to the nations capitol to play the Georgetown Hoyas of Washington on Friday night and then traveling to Annapolis on Saturday to play the Middies of the United States Naval Academy.

In the second game of a doubleheader in the Catholic University gymnasium on last Friday night before an overflowing crowd of 2500, the Wildcats lost to Georgetown by a score of 68 to 50. Traveling to Annapolis on Saturday to play the Middies, who had won two out of their last three games, the Wildcats came out on the short end of a 47 to 31 count.

Grab Early Lead

Villanova jumped off to a quick 6 to 1 lead over Georgetown in the first four minutes of play on two quick layups by Joe Lord and one by "Shy" Raiken. But this lead quickly disappeared as the Hoyas began to click. Dropping shots from all over the court they held a seven point lead at half time of 33 to 26. With the start of the second half the Hoyas began to get hot again. It was then the Wildcats lost their big man under the backboard when Brooks Ricca fouled himself out of the game with 11 minutes to go. With a better percentage of shots from the foul line the game would have been much closer. The Severance men had 25 attempts from the 15 foot line and made good on only 12 shots.

Lord Continues Pace

Joe Lord was again high man for the Wildcats with 8 field goals and 2 fouls for 18 points, before going out on personal fouls in the last two minutes of play. "Shy" Raiken, besides playing a good defensive game, contributed 5 "deuces" for 10 points.

Disheartened by their loss to Georgetown and weary from the travelling the Wildcats could not keep pace with the fast-breaking Middies, who won 47 to 31. Using an entirely new starting lineup the Wildcats held the Middies to a 5 to 4 lead for the first five minutes. With the entrance of the usual starting lineup the Middies slowly began to pull away as the tired Wildcats could not keep up with the fast breaking plays of Navy. At halftime the score was 24 to 10 in favor of Navy. Again resuming their fast play the Middies sailed home to victory.

Lose At Foul Line

If the team had any luck at the foul line the victory would have probably been Villanova's. Nine free tosses out of twenty three shots were all the Wildcats could make. And strange as it may seem Joe Lord with six points on two field goals and two foul shots was high man for the "Cats". "Shy" Raiken and "Ric" Ricca each had five points.

Fordham Plays Here Tomorrow Night; Manhattan, King's Point Road Rivals

Clann and Karpowich Lead Fast Stepping Rams; Team Averages 58 Points Per Game

By JIM PLUNKETT

Returning from a disastrous road trip, the Villanova Wildcats will encounter the Fordham University quintet tomorrow night in what should prove to be one of the most evenly contested games on our roster. The game is scheduled for 8:30 in the Field House.

After two rather dismal seasons in which they won only 2 out of 19 games, coach Frank "Bo" Adams, like so many coaches this year, finds himself with more players than he can use. Twelve veterans, all of whom have had varsity experience gained either as regulars at Fordham or with service schools throughout the nation, insure the squad of plenty of tested personnel.

Lost Only One This Season

To compensate for the teams evident lack of height—the tallest man being only 6'2"—coach Adams has developed a squad of smooth ball handlers utilizing their speed by employing a fast break system. The Ram's five has used this style of play to advantage as can be evidenced by their record of 4 wins and 1 loss and by their team average of 58 points a game.

The sparkplug and the best set shot on the Maroon five is Co-captain Tony Karpowich, who was the leading scorer on the Ram quintet of 1941-42 and 1942-43. A three year stretch in the army did not impair Tony's shooting eyes, as evidenced by the 19 points he tallied in Ford-

Next Friday night the Wildcats journey to Kings Point to oppose the Mariners of the United States Merchant Marine Academy.

Saturday night the Cats move over to the "Big City" to take on the Jaspers of Manhattan College. The Jaspers are one of the usually successful clubs that make New York, basketball's proving-ground.

Mariners Handicapped

Thus far this season, Coach Edwin Jucher's have enjoyed a fair season, winning half of their games to date. The Kings Point quintet is very effective on defense, but it had failed to measure up offensively. The Mariners are handicapped by lack of height.

Two Phila. boys appear with Mariners. Gilbert Lewis, formerly of Washington and Jefferson College starts at forward and Daniel Ryan from West Catholic performs at center for the Mariners.

Villanova will play host to the Mariners in a return game on Feb. 5, in the field house.

Manhatten Strong in Set Shots

Coach Ken Morton has been assigned the job for returning Manhatten College to basketball prominence. The 1942-43 version of the Jaspers the best team of the calibre, that usually represented the Kelley Green, compiled a won-lost record of 18-2, and received a

Raiken's Last Minute Goal Downs Princeton, 42 - 40

By DAN REDMOND

Forced to the limit by a hard fighting, never-say-die group of Princeton basketeers, Villanova's Wildcats eked out a 42-40 decision before some 3000 fans in the Main Line field house.

A one-hand stab, by freshman Sherwin "Shy" Raiken with only 25 seconds left to play gave Coach Al Severance's team their fourth win in five starts and their second win over Princeton this season.

When George Lowry put Princeton ahead for the first time at 40-38, the Orange and Black commenced to freeze the ball and it looked like curtains for the Cats. However the Main Liners got a lift when Art Wilson, smooth Negro guard, was detected walking.

Lord Ties Score

At this point, Captain Joe Lord arched a long shot that equalized the scoreboard at 40 points each.

Perry Del Purgatorio had a chance to put the Cats ahead with his free throw with slightly more than a half minute to play. When Dels' shot slid off the rim, Brooks Ricca, the omnipresent backboard specialist, grabbed the ball and fed it to Raiken who put it in its proper place.

Villanova appeared on its way to an easy triumph after building up a 24-16 halftime score. At one time in the first half the Severance men led, 16 to 7. Lord, Ricca, and Leo Wolf with 9, 8 and 7 respectively, accounted for all of the Blue and

By JACK KENNEDY

On their first overnight trip of the season, the Villanova Wildcats basketball team traveled southward to the nations capitol to play the Georgetown Hoyas of Washington on Friday night and then traveling to Annapolis on Saturday to play the Middies of the United States Naval Academy.

In the second game of a doubleheader in the Catholic University gymnasium on last Friday night before an overflowing crowd of 2500, the Wildcats lost to Georgetown by a score of 68 to 50. Traveling to Annapolis on Saturday to play the Middies, who had won two out of their last three games, the Wildcats came out on the short end of a 47 to 31 count.

Grab Early Lead

Villanova jumped off to a quick 6 to 1 lead over Georgetown in the first four minutes of play on two quick layups by Joe Lord and one by "Shy" Raiken. But this lead quickly disappeared as the Hoyas began to click. Dropping shots from all over the court they held a seven point lead at half time of 33 to 26. With the start of the second half the Hoyas began to get hot again. It was then the Wildcats lost their big man under the backboard when Brooks Ricca fouled himself out of the game with 11 minutes to go. With a better percentage of shots from the foul line the game would have been much closer. The Severance men had 25 attempts from the 15 foot line and made good on only 12 shots.

Lord Continues Pace

Joe Lord was again high man for the Wildcats with 8 field goals and 2 fouls for 18 points, before going out on personal fouls in the last two minutes of play. "Shy" Raiken, besides playing a good defensive game, contributed 5 "deuces" for 10 points.

Disheartened by their loss to Georgetown and weary from the travelling the Wildcats could not keep pace with the fast-breaking Middies, who won 47 to 31. Using an entirely new starting lineup the Wildcats held the Middies to a 5 to 4 lead for the first five minutes. With the entrance of the usual starting lineup the Middies slowly began to pull away as the tired Wildcats could not keep up with the fast breaking plays of Navy. At halftime the score was 24 to 10 in favor of Navy. Again resuming their fast play the Middies sailed home to victory.

Lose At Foul Line

If the team had any luck at the foul line the victory would have probably been Villanova's. Nine free tosses out of twenty three shots were all the Wildcats could make. And strange as it may seem Joe Lord with six points on two field goals and two foul shots was high-man for the "Cats". "Shy" Raiken and "Ric" Ricca each had five points.

150 Lb. Schedule Announced; Yale Only Addition

By PAT SPLANE

The announcement of the 150 pound football schedule was made last week by the Rev. E. B. McKee, Athletic Director of Villanova College.

Next fall the Kittens will take on one new addition to their schedule of last year. On November 8, they are to play Yale at home. However, Yale did not field a team last year and may not be able to do so this coming season. If they cannot, Lehigh will fill their spot on the schedule.

Yale Won Trophy

Lehigh has filed application for admittance to the IC4A League in 1948. Their game this coming season, however, would not be a league game. Although Yale was the winner of the Smalley Trophy in the last year the league played before the war, they did not field a team last year.

The other five games to be played are with teams that the Kittens played this past season. They open with Rutgers who won the opening game last year by a 7-0 score. Princeton, who dropped a close 14-13 game, will be met the following week in the Villanova stadium.

Middies Tamed Kittens

Then the Kittens will go on the road the following two weekends. They will take on Cornell who bowed last year 14-6; and then Navy who defeated Villanova 20-7 win the Smalley Trophy and push the Main Liners into second place.

The final game of the season will be played at home against Penn. Last year red and blue were nosed out by the Kittens 6-0.

Lehigh will replace Yale if the latter withdraws from the league.

Added Feature For Track Men

Villanova's Harriers will embark from Philadelphia immediately following the Inquirer Invitation Meet to journey to Boston for the K. of C. Meet in the Boston Gardens on the following night.

George Guida, the holder of the Charles Paddock Memorial for the 300 meter, will run that distance in the Boston Gardens on January 25. Browning Ross, the Wildcat Freshman distance star will also run in the two mile event.

Coach Elliot's mile relay team, which has not been definitely picked as yet will compete in that meet also.

Fordham Plays Here Tomorrow Night; Manhattan, King's Point Road Rivals

Clann and Karpowich Lead Fast Stepping Rams; Team Averages 58 Points Per Game

By JIM PLUNKETT

Returning from a disastrous road trip, the Villanova Wildcats will encounter the Fordham University quintet tomorrow night in what should prove to be one of the most evenly contested games on our roster. The game is scheduled for 8:30 in the Field House.

After two rather dismal seasons in which they won only 2 out of 19 games, coach Frank "Bo" Adams, like so many coaches this year, finds himself with more players than he can use. Twelve veterans, all of whom have had varsity experience gained either as regulars at Fordham or with service schools throughout the nation, insure the squad of plenty of tested personnel.

Lost Only One This Season

To compensate for the teams evident lack of height—the tallest man being only 6'2"—coach Adams has developed a squad of smooth ball handlers utilizing their speed by employing a fast break system. The Rams's five has used this style of play to advantage as can be evidenced by their record of 4 wins and 1 loss and by their team average of 58 points a game.

The sparkling and the best set shot on the Maroon five is Co-captain Tony Karpowich, who was the leading scorer on the Ram quintet of 1941-42 and 1942-43. A three year stretch in the army did not impair Tony's shooting eyes, as evidenced by the 19 points he tallied in Ford-

Manhattan Features Set Shot Artists; 'Cats Earned Split With Both Teams Last Year

By JIM LYONS

Next Friday night the Wildcats journey to Kings Point to oppose the Mariners of the United States Merchant Marine Academy.

Saturday night the Cats move over to the "Big City" to take on the Jaspers of Manhattan College. The Jaspers are one of the usually successful clubs that make New York, basketball's proving-ground.

Mariners Handicapped

Thus far this season, Coach Edwin Jucher's have enjoyed a fair season, winning half of their games to date. The Kings Point quintet is very effective on defense, but it had failed to measure up offensively. The Mariners are handicapped by lack of height.

Two Phila. boys appear with Mariners. Gilbert Lewis, formerly of Washington and Jefferson College starts at forward and Daniel Ryan from West Catholic performs at center for the Mariners.

Villanova will play host to the Mariners in a return game on Feb. 5, in the field house.

Manhatten Strong in Set Shots

Coach Ken Morton has been assigned the job for rebuilding Manhatten College to basketball prominence. The 1942-43 version of the Jaspers the best team of the calibre, that usually represented the Kelley Green, compiled a won-lost record of 18-2, and received a

Holiday Doings

Bill Sullivan, captain of the football team, scored a touchdown for the North in the annual North-South game on Dec. 28. Bill, who played outstanding ball all afternoon, took a pass from Carmen Falcone of Penn in the end zone for one of the two scores made by the North all-star aggregation as they lost 20-13.

Leo Wolf, freshman basketball ace, scored the winning field goal for an Eastern all-star team that defeated Johnny Lujack's all-stars over the holidays.

Browning Ross won the Middle Atlantic A.A.U. cross country championship in the Fairmount Park run Dec. 20, and ran second to Fortest Efaw in the steeplechase event in the Sugar Bowl on New Year's Eve.

Joe Lord bagged 27 points against Loyola to take the lead in the scoring race in the Philadelphia district. At present Lord has scored 125 points in seven games for an average of 17.85. At this pace Joe would easily surpass his record breaking total of 303 points set last season.

Guida Defending Champ in Inquirer Meet; McCarthy in Last Bid for 'Cats

Although the lack of an indoor track and the sickness of the coach have been a great handicap to the Villanova track team, it has not stopped them. In the Inquirer Invitation Meet on January, they will be well represented.

George Guida will defend the Charles Paddock Memorial in the 300 meter race in which he won that title last year. Three Wildcats will run in the Lawson Robertson two mile, two in the sprints, two in the 1,000 yard handicap, two in the 1,000 yards novice, and a strong quartet in the mile relay. Three stalwart Cats will also strive for great heights in the pole vault, and one in the high jump.

Ross vs. Efaw

Challenging Guida for the Charles Paddock Memorial will be Clenmore Harris of the Shore A.C. who is the National indoor 600 meter champ and the National outdoor 400 meter champ. Browning Ross and two other Villanovans will challenge Forrest Efaw in the two mile. Ross and Efaw have met three times in the past and Brownie is on the short end of a 2-1 score. The other two Cats who will be in this event have not yet been decided by Eliot.

Jack Holmes, South Jersey sprint champ in the 100 and 220 yard dashes from Haddonfield High School; and Leo Dillon, sprint champ from the 100 and 220, from West Catholic are Jumbo's selection for the sprints. These men will race against Eddie Conwell who is one of the co-holders of the World's Record for the 50 yard dash.

In the 1,000 yard handicap, Villanova is only permitted to enter two men, and as yet they are not known. Jumbo said that he has a number of good men for this distance and that he will not know definitely who will run before next week.

Veterans in Relay

Frank Hinnenkamp, a veteran of pre-war Wildcat track teams, and Harry Schmidt of La Salle high school are the men who will try for honors in the 1,000 yard novice.

George Guida, Bob O'Sullivan, John "Dutch" McCarthy, Ed Fitzgerald, and Frank Hinnenkamp are all members of former Villanova quartets. It is from among this group along with two new men, Gene Kelly and Roy Cameron, that Coach "Jumbo" Eliot expects to pick his mile relay team. "Dutch" McCarthy, who is the only track member to graduate in February, will definitely run one leg of this event.

The pole vaulting team will be made up of Jim Tuppency, last year's Catholic League Champ from West Catholic; George "Buck" Coleman, also of West Catholic who jumped 13' 3" for North Carolina Pre-Flight; and Bill Allen, who jumped 12' 4" for Reading Catholic.

John Sheehan, a member of this year's Wildcat eleven, will compete in the high jump.

ham's opener with Iona College.

The other co-captain is guard Herb Clann, who led his team in scoring last year with a total of 210 points for the season. This is Clann's last year at Fordham and at the rate he is going this year he should surpass the mark he set last year.

Smith Freshman Ace

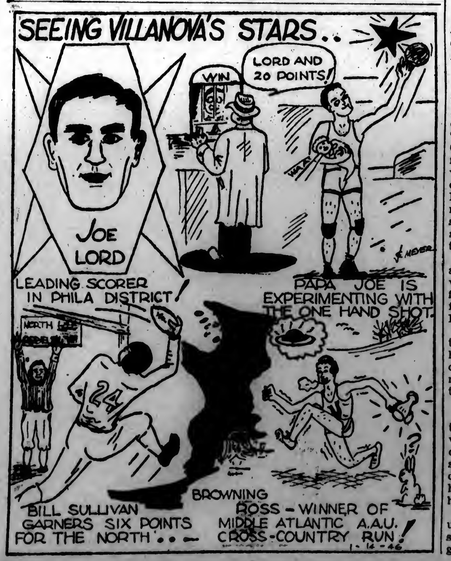
The only freshman on the starting team is Jerry Smith. Jerry, who played under coach "Bo" Adams in prep school, is considered by Adams as one of the finest prospects he has ever seen and expected him to develop into one of the best courtmen in the East.

Bob Mulvihill and Dan Graham, two veterans of the 1943 team which placed 4th in the National Invitation Tournament, round out the squad. Mulvihill, a 6' 1" guard was recognized as one of the best defensive players in the East in 1942-43 and the job of guarding Joe Lord will most likely fall upon him. Graham is the center and tallest man —6'2"— on the squad. Although he was unable to play basketball while in the service his natural ability especially in working the pivot and in controlling the backboard has earned him the nod for the starting center post.

If the Rams are to revenge themselves for the 56-39 drubbing they took at the hands of the 'Cats last year, they will have to do it in this game as it is the only scheduled game between the two clubs this season.

Manhattan

bid to the National Invitation Tournament in the Garden.



Coach Norton, a great player at L.I.U., will have his squad playing a Clair Bee type of ball. This type of playing calls for a maximum of set shots. The three returning members of the '42-'43 teams: Captain John Veryzer, John Burke, and Sig Skronski, are all better than average shots from the outside.

Much Reserve Strength

The new coach has been successful in 10 out of 12 starts. An outstanding factor in these Jasper victories has been the backboard work od Sig Skronski and Alex Ezersky 6'3" and Frank Howlan, 6'4.5"

An indication of the Jaspers strength is the fact that of the four returning starters of the 1945-46 varsity, none are regulars. Last year, the Jaspers won 15 and lost eight, and in their encounters with Villanova they won 57-47 at home and bowed 42-40 in our Field House.

This colorful Manhatten quartet will appear in the Field House on Feb. 7.

Foley, Flannelly Set Pace in League; Iron Men in First

Having entered into its fourth week of match play, the intramural bowling league standings began taking a more consistent form, with the Iron-Men having a three point advantage over the second place Indians. The Warriors and Red Eyes are tied for third, both having won eight and lost eight. Fedigan maintains the number five position with a record of seven and nine, while Alumni continues to hold down the tail end spot with four wins and twelve losses.

Flannelly High Man

Flannelly rolled a three game average of 183 for Alumni Hall, thereby aiding his team in securing two points from Fedigan. Berninger, Delaney, and Kryzoziak were instrumental in getting a high team single of 807 for Fedigan.

The Iron Men took four points from the Warriors, having a three game total pin score of 2264. Joe Foley maintained his high league average of 167 by getting a 208 game for the Iron Men. Vince Franchetti who rolled a high average of 187 for thee games the previous week had a 172 game or the Warriors.

The Red Eyes handicapped by 32 pins lost three points to the Indians. Higgans and Weidener led the Indians in capturing the three points, while Monahan and Crotty rolled high games for the Red Eyes.

White scoring during the half.

Princeton Fights Back

During the first eight minutes of the second half, the fans witnessed a scoring famine with the Wildcats going much hungrier than the Tigers. At the end of that time the Cats had only a 27-25 lead. Lord's field goal and Wolf's shanty toss were the only Villanova markers chalked up during that period. Princeton by virtue of Joe Holmans' field goal, and three successive goals by George Lowry, was able to come within reaching distance of the startled Villanovans.

From that point on it was nip and tuck with the home team always in front until Lowry's last field goal brought the Tigertown fans to their feet to cheer a 40-38 Princeton lead.

This set the stage for the entrance of Lord and Raiken as the heroes of the evening and both obliged with performances that are now part of Villanova's sport history.

Lord Gets 19

Lord's 19 points was tops for both teams. Leo Wolf, whose fine floor-work has been one of the features of Villanova's play, lent an offensive punch with an 11 point production. Lowry, who scored ten of his twelve points in the second half was high for Princeton.

Villanova's victory put them one up on the Tigers in their all time series which now includes seven games.

In The Sportlight

By PAT SPLANE

With two major sports in full swing here at Villanova, the Sportlight this week features outstanding men in both: Browning Ross in track and Bob "Major" McDonnell in basketball.

While Browning Ross was in the eighth grade at Woodbury Junior High School, George Benjamin, recipient of the Congressional Medal of Honor posthumously, and holder of the present Middle Atlantic A.A.U. shot-put record, was track coach there. It was he who started Brownie on the road to fame.

That year, while still in the eighth grade, Brownie ran the mile and half mile for the freshman team.

In high school he ran cross-country as well as the mile and half mile, and went undefeated in 27 starts. When Brownie was a senior, he won the National Interscholastic Indoor mile in 4.31 and the two and one half mile High School cross country title. That year he also won the New Jersey State Cross Country and mile races and the Middle Atlantic cross-country.

Ross entered the Navy in July, 1943, and after 4 months of school in the signal corps, he was shipped overseas where he remained for 18 months. His first running while in the service was in the Allied Championship cross-country meet. In July of '44, he became the first sailor in Rome when he entered that city one week after its capture to run in that race. At that time Brownie was stationed in Sicily, and ran for the Island Base team. In the 5,000 meter race, he ran third to two French Moroccans. This marked the first time in his career that he failed to place first.

He did no more running while overseas; but, when he returned to the States in April, 1945, he ran nearly every week from then through the end of the indoor season.

In that year, he beat Forrest Efaw in a 2 mile race in Madison Square Garden while stationed in Little Creek. His time in defeating the National 2 mile champ was 9:36. Later that year, Efaw avenged himself when he led the field in the Cleveland K. of C. 2 mile. Brownie also bowed to Fred Filer of Drake in that race as he placed third. This was his second failure to take first place.

When Little Creek traveled South to place second in the Southern Conference meet, Brownie did his share by establishing a new mile record for the Southern Conference of 4:24.4. He also came back an hour later to win the half mile race in 2:1. Later still, he ran a 220 leg in the relay race.

His third loss came in the IC4A meet in Van Cortlandt Park in New York, while he was running for Villanova. Half way through the race he was in third place when someone stepped on his heel and his shoe came off. Several men tripped and fell over him, and by the time he was up and had his shoe on, the rest of the field was out of sight. He did, however — and it is a tribute to his greatness —manage to place 56 and be the first Villanova man to cross the finish line.

Since at Villanova, he has also run in the cross-country meet against Fort Dix, and the Berwick

Bob "Major" McDonnell started his athletic career while attending St. Ann's Parochial School in Kensington. He started every game and was the high scorer for the basketball team when he was in the eighth grade. That same year he was also the pitcher for the school nine.

After his graduation from St. Ann's, he entered Northeast Public High School. There he played on the varsity basketball team for four years. "Major" was chosen chaptain of the team in his senior years and was picked as a forward on the All-Public team. He also played baseball there, and was the starting pitcher in most of the games for the freshman club. He played on the varsity for three years. He won three and lost one in his senior year and had a batting average of over .300.

"Major" went from there to Brown Prep for a year, and he left a very enviable record there that year. He earned himself a berth on the varsity five and sparked the team through a season of 19 wins and 4 losses. In the spring, he took to the mound and went undefeated, winning eight straight games.

When the "Major" enrolled at Villanova, he easily secured for himself a starting position on the freshman basketball team. The "Kittens" that season won 29 straight games and finished the season undefeated.

In his last year at Villanova before entering the Armed Forces, McDonnell started in every game for the varsity that won 19 games and lost only four. He also pitched for the baseball team that year, announced the amateur boxing bouts that were held in the field house, and acted as the Master of Ceremonies for the Amateur Night Show.

"MAJOR" McDONNELL

The "Major" became a "Doughboy" in March, 1943. A Sergeant in the Infantry, he saw plenty of action throughout Africa and Europe. When his Division had time to think of sports, it was McDonnell who played a major role. He became the Assistant Coach of the basketball team and the starting forward on it. In the Springtime he took to the mound and became the playing coach of the baseball team. That team did very well as they won the Post Tournament. It was the "Major" himself who pitched the deciding game at Camp Shelby.

After he was discharged from the Army, he once more returned to Villanova. Last season he played on the varsity five and was the co-captain with Joe Lord. On the diamond he also did his share of the work, pitching for the varsity and batting over .300. The "Major" was the starting pitcher last year when the Wildcats dropped a close 7-6 game to the Phillies. It was a home run knocked out by Joe Marty in the first that enabled the Phillies to come out on top that afternoon.

"Major McDonnell, along with being a great ballplayer and a darn nice fellow to know, has a very good sense of humor and loves to "put on act." On the Basketball court, he has just about "done everything with that ball but eat it" as one fan puts it. As a result of this, he is a great favorite with the fans who can never get enough of the "Major."

William Friel III Becomes Father

Alumni Secretary Is Proud Father of Son Born on New Year's Eve

Mr. William Friel, secretary-treasurer of the national Alumni Association, became a father on New Year's eve of last year. The child was born at 12:40 P. M. at the Miseracordia Hospital in Philadelphia. Statistics recorded were: weight, 7 pounds 2 ounces; eight, 20 inches.

The name to be given him is William F., the fourth. Both great-grandfather and grandfather reside in Philadelphia. The latter is employed by the Pennsylvania Railroad as an auditor.

The Friel's will celebrate their first anniversary on January 27th of this year. Mrs. Friel is the former Marie Selfridge; she appeared as a member of the queen's court at the junior prom of 1942.

Class of '43

A graduate of the class of 1943, Mr. Friel majored in accounting. He received a B. S. in Economics. Discharged last year from the service, Friel was Sgt. major of the 36th Fighter Sq. of the AAF during his enlistment.

Besides his connection with the Alumni, Mr. Friel acts as placement Counselor for the College. The family lives on Ashford St., Philadelphia, in St. Clement's Parish.

Asked as to the boy's future, Mr. Friel could only say "Villanova in 1965."

I Have Been To—

On I have been to college for four long years;
Those days have seen some fun and often tears.
The day has come when I to work must go,
In order that my knowledge I I might show.

At first I thought I'd be an engineer;
I like to play with slide rules and drink beer.
When all the problems of that course were fought,
My strength gave out and honor grades were nought.

I found the slide-rules either loose or tight;
Instead of hours, homework took all night!
The whole thing went entirely too slow,
What in the world does make those darned things go?

My next attempt found me in chemistry:
"Now mix this stuff with that and red you'll see,"
Said all the profs, but oh, not so with me;
For KOH was my HNO3.

But later on I found inspiration.
Enough of superficial calculation!
My thoughts had turned to worthy lib'ral arts—
You know, the stuff that's meant for tender hearts.

My English marks were fine because my name,
You see, reflected all my native fame.
I knew at last that I had found my place
Amidst the surging competitive race.

And now I am about to leave this hall,
I've studied long and now away I'll haul.
Farewell to slide-rules, test-tubes and this hovel—
I start next week to work with pick and shovel.

ALUMNI NEWS

The Villanova Club of Philadelphia will hold its regular monthly meeting on Thursday, January 16, at the Philopatrian Club, 1923 Walnut St. Nomination of officers of the club for the coming year will be the major consideration of the assembly.

Mr. Friel, the Alumni secretary, announced that notices have been sent to all the Alumni in the Phila. area informing them of the meeting. All the members of the Alumni are urged to attend, even though some may have failed to receive a notice.

Meeting of the Villanova club of Phila. are usually held on the third Thursday of each month except during the summer months when they are suspended.

genious paddle. He made it in the shape of a hand. During the course of the evening the paddle was frequently before Walt's face with the thumb rather close to his nose.

Rowland Higgs took good care of his boy Jim Wilkes. We doubt that Jim will be able to walk for less than a week.

When we saw Jim Fisher and Roland Mayer they were getting a large charge out of chinning themselves. In fact they liked it so well that they refused to let go of the bar. Earlier in the evening Jim O'Brien, head of the initiation committee, was testing out this chinning bar. He received quite a shock when he found out that it was working. Perhaps what was even funnier was that there was nobody near the switch to relieve Jim of his agony.

John Britt, Carl Hasselmaier and Bill Brennan were three more fellows that looked as if the evening would never end.

Delegation

Several fellows were terribly embarassed for while standing blindfolded they were asked what they thought of certain profs. Upon answering, their blindfolds were removed and they found themselves face to face with said professors.

Consipicuous because of his absence was Dave Marano. Dave tells us that he was on a doggie roast. I guess that is the price one must pay for being so handsome.

"De' End

As Bill Stern would say, we have reached the three 0 mark. Before we go we would like to remind anyone that needs a ticket for the Belle Air Ball that L & R are still selling them for ten dollars per.

Marathon. He won both of these, and in the latter he established a new record for the nine-and-one-third-mile course.

He also ran in the 4.7 mile Camden Y.M.C.A. Handicap. He won the time prize for that race, coming within one tenth of a second of the 22:49.9 record which was established 5 years ago.

Three days before Christmas this year, Brownie placed first in the Middle Atlantic A.A.U. cross-country when he led the Wildcats team to an eight point victory. His time for that 10,000 meter course was 33:20.

Brownie lost his fourth race on december 31, 1946, when he placed second to Forrest Efaw in the Steeplechase event in the Sugar Bowl. Efaw ran that 2 mile medium hurdles race in 10:20, and Ross crossed the finish line 8 seconds behind him to beat Joe McClosky of the New York A.C., and Leo Casey of Manhattan.

Villanova's hope for recognition in distince running this year will, for the most part, be on the shoulders of Browning Ross.

vantages too numerous to mention. However, let us present to you what might be the case at other schools via this minute Bacchian tome. The scene takes place at Burpo University, near Pepto Bismoi, Pa. Burpo University (remember there's nothing more dismal than B. U.) during the war years trained the CORTO (Conscientious Objectors Reserve Training Corps) and now has its postwar roster swelled by a zealous student body, all enrolled in an accellerated course in woodchopping (using double edged blades).

Professor Abercrombie, old Dandruff, Fitch has just finished his lecture to the little shavers on the "30 second workout" and the co-ed student body adjourns to the wrestling room for a vigorous bit of extra curricular activities as outlined in the Montclarion. Hyacinthus Lafferty is striding down the hall with Hesperides Smaltz, a zoftik who was chosen by the Plumbers' Union as the girl they would most like to be plumbed with.

Scene I

Hesperides: Say, Hya, let's go down to the Rec Room. I must show you the latest letter from Charles Atlas. Ah, there's Endymion Randolph and Dejanira Pinkham. (All four exit, the boys carrying dumbells on one arm and the bar belles on the other.

Scene II

(The Rec Room—several students attired in diaphonous dhotis are swinging in the air to the tune of "The Man on the Flying Trapeze." In one corner some freshmen are indulging in wrestling matches and at the moment the matches are winning by using a double toe hold hot foot. Enter Hyacinthus, Endymion, Hesperides and Dejanira).

Dejanira: (yawning) stuffy in here with all these Athletes Feet cluttering up the joint.

Hesperides Laferty: (roaring like a lion and at the same time a lion standing in the corner roars like Laferty) This is too crowded—let's go up to the attic of the Administration Building. It's less noisy!

Endymion Randolph: (who is arguing with Dejanira about music) You can't compose a trepak in three quarter time, Dej, it can't be done. Look at Beethoven (all four immediately look at Beethoven, who, in the corner, is writing "Woodchoppers' Ball," the Burpo U. Alma Mater.)

Beethoven: Eureka Vacuum Cleaners! I've done it. Here it is—the Alma Mater.

(All in the room rise, throw various strangleholds and half nelsons around their fellow students and sing:

Let the chips fall where they may,
Old Burpo's out to win today,
We will figth, fight, fight right down the field,
Gizmos all, we'll never yield.

II

To the Black and Blue we're ever true,
To the Rest darn school we ever knew,
We will Burp, Burp, Burp
Burp with all our might.
Burpo we are for you.

Extra curricular activities reach a new high at Burpo and by the time the authorities from the D. A. (plus a photographer from Official Detective) arrive, they've discovered that it was the Endymion Randolf who stole the crown jewels. Finis.

We have just received a telegram from Washington to effect that the Fuller Brush men are suing for portal to portal pay. We can't think of anyone who is more entitled to it than they.

A columnist of our staid stature seldom raises an inquisitive supercilium to the news of the passing day. In fact we have a small, undernourished freshman read the newspapers for us and condense it all into Basic English. However, lately we have had to do our own reading as the chap who was doing it for us had become an ardent admirer of Gertrude Stein's works and lectures and as a consequence, we were beginning to mix our absinthe with beer. This sort of carrying on would eventually lead to gastric ulcers of the acute superative type, so something had to be done! It would certainly lead to it would, that it would to stomach ulcers. (Pipe that, Gertrude!) Although we managed to rid ourself of the Steinish freshman by gently executing a ripid solfeggio on his spine and then smashing him in the sweetbreads, Gertrude's little phrases keep repeating themselves to us like radishes. So from here on in, kiddies, hold your hats! And grab your citro-carbonate! For anything we may hear you say about the campus will be repeated, will be, will be repeated, that it will!

Oh, Yes! The New Year is here and we couldn't let this first issue get by without a good crack at Homann. Really though, Homann is the most cultured person we know on the campus. In fact, he's a little . . . but that is neither Besame nor Mucho. Nor even a Dziggetai of a different color. Yes, to know Homann is to loathe him.

Last but not least! To Bill Friel, Congrats on becoming a father. May we offer this pertinent bit of advice . . . In order to rear children correctly, one must do so.

SYMPHONIC NEWS

Rev. Ralph Handran, O.S.A. and the Villanova Symphony Band traveled to Mt. St. Joseph's College at Chestnut Hill on Monday, January 13. They presented a concert, which started at 8:30 P. M., before an appreciative audience.

Two new numbers were added to the program. These were "American Patrol" and "Stars and Stripes Forever."

Dave English was featured on the trumpet in a solo of "Ave Marie." A trio, composed of Jim Duffy, Bill Chauvenet, and George Beitzer, played a number entitled "Three Trombonists," a study in close harmony.

The symphonic band and the glee club presented a New Year's Day broadcast over station WIBG. Recordings were waxed before the holidays in the Villanova Field House.

RELATIONS CLUB

Activity for the International Relations Club in the new year will commence on January 16 in Mendel Hall room 215 at 8:20 P. M. Mr. Louis Rabaut and Mr. Edward Quinn will present prepared papers on the topic of United States Imigration Policy.

The Club has disposed of many tedious problems of organization since the opening of school. It is now ready to make future meetings more informative and interesting with as much time as is possible left to the topics to be discussed. Anyone desiring to join this group will find these meetings an informative supplement to what they know now. Members of the club extend an invitation to anyone interested in joining.

Chestnut Hill Gives Xmas Play For German Club

Dancing and Caroling Climax Evening of Enjoyment

A pre-Christmas evening in December once again witnessed the presence of Villanova's German Club members as guests of the Chestnut Hill Club's annual Christmas play and dance. The play's theme centered about the birth of Our Lord in the stable and was sung in German by the Hill's all-girl choir. Following the play all present joined in rendering, in German, the traditional holiday songs. Dancing and refreshments climaxed the evening's fun for everyone.

"Longing for the Saviour" was sung beautifully by the choir to open the program, after which came the Prologue by Miss Anne O'Donnell in a finely knitted German. The Annunciation, done by the Speaking Choir, covered the announcement to Mary that she was to be the Mother of Our Lord, Miss Natalie Nevins' fine rendition of 'Ave Maria' followed. The Imperial Order was next on the program, in which Miss Rose Glackin sang the "Herald" and the choir again beautifully performed "The Saviour is Born." "The Angel," by Miss Pat Garrity, and the "Sing you Holy, Heavenly Choir," of the choir, were done throughout the "Shepherds on the Hillside" scene. Following this the choir rendered "A Rose Has Arisen." The last scene portrayed the arrival and the wonderment of the Wisemen from the Orient as they spread about their gifts to the new born Saviour. "Three Kings from the East" was given by the speaking choir and "Silent Night, Holy Night" was rendered by the choir singers to complete the play.

Dinner Dance Plans Completed

Charles LaBelle completed arrangements for the Senior Dinner dance to be held the following evening. The dinner and dance will be held in the Adelphia Hotel. This affair is for the Senior class only and will begin at 7 o'clock. Bob Shebley and his Sextet will furnish the music. Shebley has built up quite a reputation in the Philadelphia area and was seen recently by many of the students at the Rosemont College Prom.

With the first big weekend of activity since before the war, Villanova opens it's 1947 social season. It is hoped that in this inaugral venture of the New year that the Belle Air Ball will be hugh success and set a precedent to be aimed at by the affairs to follow in the years to come.

The Belle Air Ball ticket committee announced the distribution of the complementary tickets for the dance. If any of the professors have been overlooked in this matter it would be appreciated if they would get in touch with the committee chairmen as soon as possible.

Science Dean Radio Speaker

Rev. Joseph M. Dougherty, O.S.A., Prior of Villanova Monastery, and Dean of Science, is currently being heard on the broadcast "Great Moments in Science" on Station WIP in Philadelphia. The program is sponsored in behalf of the parochial and public high schools and academies in the city, and nearby areas.

Father Dougherty has already appeared on two programs, the first dedicated to Gregor Mendel, Augustinian monk and father of scientific heredity, the second to Anthony Van Leeuwenhoek, father of Microscopy. In the programs the life of scientist is narrated and important events therein are dramatized. Then Father Dougherty answers questions presented by two students invited to the programs.

Today at 1:45 P. M., Father Dougherty will be heard on the life of Edward Jenner, conqueror of smallpox, and next week the program will take up the life of Louis Pasteur. After this series of programs, Father Dougherty will appear on the program again in March with a new series.

Students Praise Senior Ball

Field House Transformed Into Stately Ballroom

By J. L. KUCHA

Six hundred formally attired Villanova students and their partners attended the Belle Air Ball last Friday evening and danced to the sophisticated rhythms of Hal McIntyre's orchestra playing in a Field House magically transformed into a stately ballroom that would have made an interior decorator sigh in satisfied appreciation.

The dance floor, bordered with columns topped by ferns which shadowed the alternate pale-green and blue lights romantically setting the scene, was highlighted by a centerpiece of four white columns capped by gracefully twining ivy, forming an arcade. Through this bedecked center, led by Dan Redmond, Senior Class President, marched the Seniors and their ladies in the traditional Promenade.

Following that, the Alma Mater, sung by the Seniors aligned at the foot of the stage, and the favorite popular songs of the various classes, rendered by Nancy Reed, Frankie Lester and Johnnie Turnbull, vocalists with McIntyre's band, were heard by the attendance.

First Couple Greeted

Jack Casby, '49, and Joan Reilly, the first couple to arrive, were greeted by Rev. John W. Tuohy, O.S.A., Moderator of the Seniors, and Sam Canning, Chairman of the Dance Committee.

Other members of the committee, Charles La Belle, Warren Sexton, Harold Varani, George Scharnberg, John Burke, Edward Holland, William Monagle, James Conaty, James Bonner, James Boyle and John O'Brien, were prominent in the swalow tail section of the crowd and helped make the annual ball "THE" social success of the season.

Ralph Buswell summarized the evening with true Senior laconism by saying, "Pretty good conflab." The Villanova students who attended will agree with him that the Graduating Class offered a truly gala affair as a parting memory.

Dinner - Dance

Senior Class Holds Affair in Adelphia

On Saturday evening, Jan. 18, 1947, the Senior Class attended the dinner dance held in their honor at the Adelphia. For the first time in many years the dinner dance was held on its traditional date following the Belle Air Ball.

The class of 1947 heard their moderator Fr. John Touhy address them on the spirit they dispayed and the benefits to be derived from such affairs. He congratulated them on the success of the Belle Air Ball and thanked the whole class for their cooperation.

Dan Redmond, the Senior Class President, bid the gathering welcome, gratitude and farewell. He welcomed all seniors of past classes who have been dlayed in graduation due to military service. He expressed his gratitude for their cooperation and wished farewell and luck to the members of the class who are leaving in February.

Fathers Coan, Dillon to Lead Annual Retreat

College Convocation Starts Thursday, Feb. 8, in Chapel; Mass Intentions Published

The Rev. Edward B. McKee, O.S.A., in his recent letter to the student body, called attention to the coming retreat. This, the One Hundred and Fourth Annual Retreat at Villanova, will commence on Sunday evening, February 2, and conclude on the morning of the following Saturday. Fr. Francis X. Coan, O.S.A., and Fr. Francis Dillon, O.S.A., will conduct the ceremonies.

FATHER DILLON, OSA

Fr. Coan and Fr. Dillon, members of the Augustinian Missionary Band and both recently discharged from the U.S. Army Chaplain Corps, are graduates of Villanova. Fr. Coan, a member of the Class of '23, served as Professor of Biology here and Fr. Dillon graduated with the Class of '31.

Three New Buildings To Grace College Campus

Many Notables to See Turning of First Spade; Band and NROTC to March at Ceremonies

By FRANK DITURI

Ground will be broken at noon on Wednesday, Jan. 22, at the sites of three new buildings to be erected on the Villanova College campus. Many distinguished guests, the faculty, the administration, the student body, and all College employees will gather on Mendel Field to witness the colorful ceremonies that will mark the inception of the largest building program in Villanova's history.

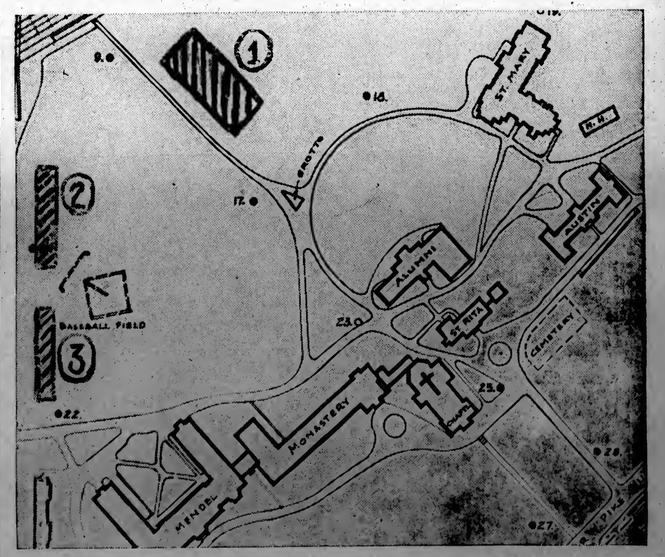
All masses said on campus that day will be for the special intention of the solemn undertaking. Students, faculty, and employees will attend a series of masses to ask the blessings of Almighty God on this venture. Three masses have been scheduled before eight o'clock classes begin so that all students may attend. In addition there will be Solemn High Mass in the College Chapel starting at 11:00 A. M. for all those able to attend. The Mass will be said by the Very Reverend Joseph M. Dougherty, O.S.A., Prior of Villanova Monastery, assisted by Reverend Edward B. McKee, O.S.A., Vice President of the College, and Reverend Edward B. Dwyer, O.S.A., Dean. The Seminary choir will sing at all masses

Classes Dismissed

Classes will be dismissed from 12:00 until 2:00 so that all may attend the actual ceremony. At 12:00 the NROTC unit will assemble in the present Armory area to be inspected by Vice Admiral James L. Kauffman, USN, Commander of the Fourth Naval District. At 12:15 all others will gather in back of Alumni Hall, the oldest standing building on the campus.

On Mendel Field, the positions of the three new buildings will be marked by flags. The Chemical Engineering Building will be erected in the Northwest corner adjacent to the gate leading to Spring Mill Road. North of it and adjacent to the Pennsylvania Station is the site of the Naval Science and Tactics Building. The new Library will be situated South of the path leading from Alumni Hall to the Pennsylvania Station. On the Field there will be stationed a sound truck to broadcast a description of the day's activities.

College Band



Following the inspection in the Armory, the NROTC unit will march to the site of the Naval Science Building. Meanwhile the procession, led by the Villanova College Band, will move from Alumni Hall to the site of the Chemical Engineering Building. Ground will there be broken by the Very Reverend Mortimer A. Sullivan, O.S.A., Provincial of the Eastern Province of the Order of St. Augustine. Father Sullivan will be surrounded by the Engineering Faculty led by Dean J. Stanley Morehouse.

The procession will then proceed to the site of the Naval Science and Tactics Building where the visiting Naval Officers and the NROTC unit will be waiting. Sod will be turned by Admiral Kauffman, surrounded by Capt. H. R. Stevens, USN, Director of Training of the Fourth Naval District, Capt. Frank R. Dodge, USN, Commander of the Naval Training Program at the University of Pennsylvania, and Captain T. C. Thomas, USN, Commander of the Naval Training Program at Villanova College.

Two Wars

Admiral Kauffman is a veteran Destroyer commander of two World Wars. In World War I he commanded the USS JENKINS, Destroyer, DD-42, operating on submarine patrol in the eastern Atlantic. In the recent war he returned to submarine patrol as Vice Admiral commanding Destroyer Squadron 30, and later Destroyer

TUESDAY - - - - - - - JANUARY 21, 1947

End or Beginning . . .

In less than two weeks, more than fifty men will walk through the portals of this great institution into the world at large. They will take with them not just their baggage, their books, and the best technological knowledge that a modern college can offer; but most important of all, these men will go forth with a Catholic philosophy of life. This is the distinguished contribution of Villanova to the young men of America. This is the Villanova way.

Very few of these men have had the opportunity to pursue their education for four uninterrupted years, for most of them are veterans. They are men who have answered the call of their country in a crisis that has tested the faith and strength of man by once more exposing them to the venom of the evils that beset us. These are the men on whose shoulders now rest the responsibility of preserving that peace, and constructing that world for which those who will never return have given their all.

Graduation is a serious business. It is a special event in which some will be starting out in the world to harness an existence out of a highly competitive way of life, while others will continue to unravel the problems of education in specialized fields, regardless of what the future may hold, this is a time when solemn thoughts must be cast back on the field days of one's college career.

Four years of college can be justly compared to four years of farming. Like the farmer sowing his seeds at different seasons and reaping the fruits of his labor at harvest times, so does the student in amassing his wealth of knowledge during years of cultivation. The "field" being fertile and the "climate" favorable, the quality of his knowledge is therefore proportionate to the time, care, and skill that have been employed, for one gets out of a pot only what has been put into it.

There are many who think that the sole purpose of this college is to prepare its students with true knowledge and therefore over emphasized knowledge as such. Certainly, knowledge is wealth, but it is of no value to an individual and his fellow men unless it is properly used. More than ever are the principles governing the various branches of science stressed in their respective courses, but it is in the field of philosophy that the morality of the application of knowledge is indispensably treated. We are taught that good works are the foundation to constructive progress in the betterment of humanity, and we are held responsible to assert our Catholic philosophy in our thoughts, words, and deeds.

The "Reformation" that received such an impetus from Luther, Calvin, and Knox was more than a mere Protestant revolt. It was a complete change in the ways of thinking and in the values placed on things. Men became more and more bigotted, immoral, and destructive because they have taken unto themselves the fallacy that truth is based on individual interpretations. They have disregarded established truths and have twisted others to serve their purposes, until the situation has now become critical through the satellites of Marx and Engels.

Men of Villanova! You have a great task ahead of you. It is apalling to observe the lack of Catholic lay leaders outside the realm of the priesthood when there is such a great need of them. You must by your actions as doctors, lawyers, chemists, engineers, sons, and fathers, prove to the world the validity of your beliefs and the fallacy of the doctrines that spring from men like Luther, Calvin, Knox, Marx, and Engels.

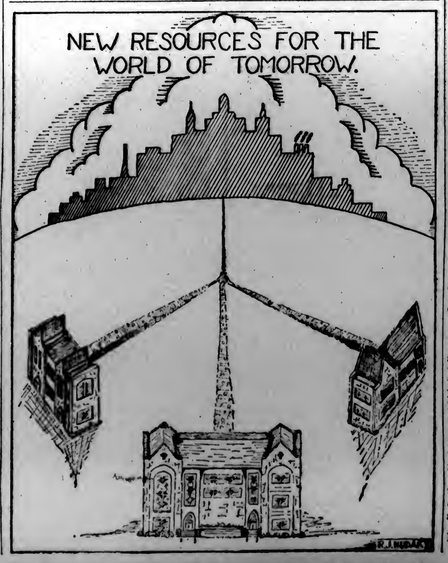
Yes, you have a great duty awaiting you outside these walls, but there is also a responsibility here that you must not shirk. This is your college. You have now completed your training and are about to leave. Are you going to depart never to return or to take any interest in its future? No, let us hope not. Many of the improvements here have been accomplished with the aid of the Alumni. We have had the benefit of these additions, so let us not forget them nor fail to do our share for the future generations of Villanovans.

Education today has become a vital program in development of any country. It should be of great importance and concern to all good citizens who have the welfare of the nation at heart. The problems of Villanova as an educational institution, therefore, are your problems. They become even more so because you are Villanovans and she is your Alma Mater. Let us continue to keep in close contact with her, and let us do our best to help build her into America's best.

On Groundbreaking . . .

Tomorrow three new stones will be added to the everrising edifice of Catholic education in America. In breaking ground for the new library, the Chemistry Engineering Building, and the Armory, Villanova will bring one hundred and five years of toil and expansion to a noble and fitting climax. The erection of these buildings is not the work of one man or any one generation, it is the cumulative effect of many hands and many minds. Whatever Villanova is, whatever it may become is owed in great part to those founders who transformed a barren farm into a thriving seminary and college. The actions of tomorrow will be another milestone along that long and winding path which stretches from struggling obscurity to the present.

The work that is begun tomorrow is the realization of many hopes. For years these buildings and the library in particular have been planned, they have been the subject of many drives by the Alumni and the student bodies. At times the projects were on the verge of acceptance when conditions forced their abandonment. Now at last can be seen the concrete results of the careful planning of the administration and the untiring support of Villanovans. There have been many disappointments, the problems may have seemed to be insoluble, but now the difficulties have been surmounted, hopes and dreams have become reality.



It is peculiarly fitting that this should take place as the nation is recovering from a mortal effort and has turned its attention to forming a new world. The growing complexity of living and the intense training demanded by the professions have made necessary the use of all possible facilities by all students. Facilities are now being afforded us, it is now up to us to do something with them.

We must think of these buildings as tools wherewith to better build our futures, as weapons wherewith the better to face the opposition of the world. They are the anvils of the intellect, our wills must be the hammers.

These piles of stone and steel are only just that until they are utilized by men. No building, no structure, however perfect its form, however intricate its design, means anything unless it has a purpose and that purpose is fulfilled by men. The library, the lab, the armory mean nothing unless they become new resources of power and learning to us. This thought should pervade our minds as we participate tomorrow in the ceremonies, we now have new resources, we now have new duties.

This project will serve as a monument to all those who labored so long and so valiantly to bring it about. How much more inspiring would this monument be if it were doubly dedicated by the application and achievement of the students utilizing it. How much further would the purpose of those men be fulfilled.

—DON COLLINS.

Our English professor continually keeps telling us to read—read—read! Being a model student, we naturally follow any and all instructions. In the course of our quest for knowledge, we have become avid readers, stopping at nothing and reading billboards, pocket manuals, dictionaries, and the writing on sidewalks as well. So it is only natural that we should have read the December issue of "Gay Love Stories," published in Holyoke, Mass. Knowing you will be interested in cultivating such classic literature, we are taking the liberty of quoting freely from its steaming pages.

In "Something Better To Do," we have a representative literary jewel. Quote: In the doorway stood a man to take her breath away. He was big, but not too big. And he was well dressed, but not too well dressed. He was handsome, but not too handsome. Perhaps it was his eyes, They were dark and warm and had a twinkle. . . . Susan Baker was young, she was wide shouldered and thin hipped; her skin was creamy and her hair shiny bronze. Her eyes were the same shade with brown flecks and they were set beautifully in her head. She wasn't too tall and she wasn't too short; in fact there didn't seem to be much wrong with her.

Well, the story goes in the usual manner and ends with this, "—But she didn't. She couldn't, not with Joe's lips against hers, hard and warm. Dimly she heard the thunder of airborne engines, but didn't realize that it was the incoming airliner. She was conscious of but one thing and that was—Joe and flying were in her blood. They belonged to her as she belonged to them. There was no love without them."

All this for 15c! we haven't much to say as regards this love story business except that the author is a bit indefinite about his characters. With your permission (there's not much you can do about it) we shall rewrite this story in a more dashing fashion. Our hero is Peter McManus—our heroine, Ophelia Cynwyd. We're calling it, "Peter, or the Wolf." Any similarity between the actors and living things is a very remote possibility. Here goes!

In the doorway stood Peter McManus who had a breath to take you away. Not too tall, not too short, so round so firm, so fully soused. He was dressed. He was handsome, but not too handsome, with just the right number of ugly bags under his eyes to give him that "devil-may-care look." Perhaps it was his (or maybe his tooth.) They were dark and warm and were still reflecting two bottles of Schenleys. He had a clean cut look about him, in fact, his jugular was spouting the red stuff.

Ophelia was spouting the red stuff.

Ophelia Cynwyd was young. She was thin shouldered and wide hipped. Her skin was creamy like last week's milk, and her hair slimy bronze. Her eyes were the same shade with brown specs. And they were set beautifully in the back of her head. She wasn't too tall and she wasn't too short (just a little lopsided.) (This story is evidently written by a senior who has served four years of uninterrupted Pacific duty.)

And so follows the usual interim of distracting incidents but at the end of the story, love smoothes the way and Peter and Opelia are together.

Peter tried to draw away but couldn't for Ophelia's old man is Chairman of the Board at Republic Steel and Pete was suffering from acute anemia of the wallet) with Ophelia's lips against his, soft and blubbery, he dimly heard the thunder of the train, but didn't realize it was the Paoli local. He was conscious of but one thing, and that was that Ophelia and railroading were in his blood (in fact, the Blood Donor's Service had refused him for just that reason. You see, Ophelia would pop out of a vein riding the caboose of a fifty car freight job.) There was no love without them, in fact there was nothing. How true, how true!

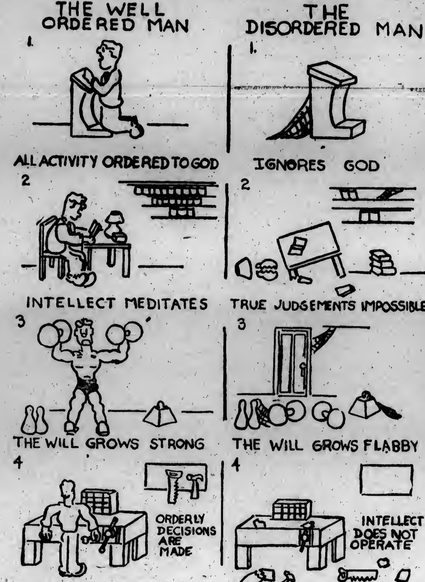
'NEATH THE SPIRES



By FRANCIS J. HANSSENS

OUR PRAYER:

"Witness, O Lord, this, the plea of a sinner and yet a servant. I stand before Thee, My God, confused and somewhat frightened by the veil of ignorance and deficiency which shrouds this, the nature Thou hast given me. I say I love Thee, that I will serve Thee, yet this flesh of mine says, "Do not love, do not serve, for you cannot see, you cannot touch." But I must serve. My mind says there is a God, the earth and sky echo my mind, and my soul says, "Serve" But then that awful thing, I know not what, swells up within me and I hear its ominous chant: "You cannot see, you cannot touch, you shall not serve!"

"I joy at contemplation of my priceless intellect, this soul, these powers which are mine, this Image of You that is I. I must build these things to the utmost perfection; I must seek to be what this phantom voice would not have me be, a perfect reflection of Thy own beauty. But again this awful thing withine me clamons, "Forget this intellect, sate thy body; cast aside this contemplation of soul, seek after gold. Be thou lawyer, doctor, clerk, but strive not to be Man. For my pitiable sir, you cannot see, you cannot touch those things which make you Man."

"And thus confused and weary with struggling, I come to Thee, O my God, quelling, as best I might, this voice within me; this, O Lord, is my prayer, 'Silence this horrible voice within me that would effect my own destruction. Let me be lawyer, yes, but lawyer ever mindful whence this law has come; a doctor, yes, but doctor ever mindful of life's true source; let me know gold, but not be shackled by its power; let me be a credit to Thee, my God, that thus, though I cannot touch, I cannot see, I will live mindful of the day when these eyes shall open and a new voice shall say, I can see; I can touch; I've won my fight."

the students. It is a time for introspection and spiritual readjustment and should be utilized by all.

"Many of the students now on the campus are making a transition from military life to life in the classroom. Such transition brings about a change in our habits of life and there is need for proper direction. This transition to be effective cannot be haphazard. There is need for skillful planning and prudent direction."

It is hoped all will make use of this opportunity to further their spiritual advancement. Our future attainments and happiness rest solely upon the help of God. Here we are offered the means to secure that for which we strive.

Vets News

By J. J. MILLER

Veterans who have allowed their service insurance to lapse are being urged by the Veterans Administration to reinstate their policies before January 31, 1947. Up to that date veterans may be reinstated by paying two back premiums. No physical examination is required.

Upon reinstatement a veteran may choose one of six plans: ordinary life, 20-payment life, 30-payment life, 20-year endowment, endowment age 60, and endowment age 65. If the veteran so desires, he may specify a lump sum settlement. A disability clause will be included in the policy for a small additional premium. In the event that the insured would be totally disabled, he would receive $5.00 per $1,000.00 each month for the rest of his life.

Since the government pays the cost of National Service Life Insurance clerical work, its rates are substantially lower than that which any corporate life insurance firm can offer.

Terminal Pay

A recent statement from the Army Finance Office disclosed that approximately thirty-three percent of the number of applications for terminal pay have been returned to the applicants. Several causes were given for this action: failure to have applications notorized, no discharge certificate photo-stat, photo-static copies not full size, and Navy veterans failing to enclose their form 553.

The Terminal Pay Law states that applications may be submitted up to September 1, 1947. To date, less than fifty percent of the 12,500,000 Army veterans eligible for terminal pay have sent in their applications. Eligible Navy veterans number 3,500,000, yet the Navy has received only 1,620,000 applications.

A Tip

Veterans who have sent in their applications and have not received notification of receipt from the Army Finance Office are warned to refrain from writing inquiries. When the office receives a letter of inquiry, a clerk locates the application in question (which might be very close to the "top of the pile") and after the letter is answered, the clerk puts the application with the incoming applications.

A veteran who has lost his discharge certificate may get another one by filling out a form at the Veterans Administration. Since presentation of a discharge certificate is required for many reasons it is advised that application be made at an early date, for usually the new certificate is received from three to five months after application has been made.

NROTC News

By JOE KENNEY

Captain Thomas, Commanding Officer of the Villanova NROTC unit, has recently undergone a second eye operation. The operation was performed at the Naval Hospital, St. Albans, New York. The Captain was confined to the hospital for a short time and was back on duty within ten days.

While the operation has not restored complete vision to his right eye, the Commanding Officer declared that his sight is much improved. It is necessary that Captain Thomas undergo another operation sometime next summer. This operation will be a Cornea Transplant to be performed by the well-known Dr. Castrojevo, a specialist in Cornea Transplants.

Cruise Planned

Notified by the Navy Department, the Navy office announced, that all Regular NROTC students in the Junior and Senior classes are obliged to take a three months cruise. The cruise will take place this summer and the destination will be Europe. Midshipmen from the Naval Academy at Annapolis will accompany the NROTC students.

Junior and Senior Contract members may, if they so desire, take a three weeks cruise at the end of the coming semester. Where the Midshipmen will go on the cruise was not disclosed by the Navy Department.

About Eleven Go On Active Duty

From present indications, Captain Thomas said, Villanova will have about eleven Regular members of its NROTC unit, who will graduate this year and go on active duty after a thirty day leave.

On January 15th, Colonel John, USMC, visited the campus and inspected the Marine division of the NROTC. Col. John is a delegate from the Marine Corps Headquarters.

The Top Hatter

Cinema and Stage

By F. ANTHONY HOMANN Jr. '50

One of the finest moving pictures, British or American, to be shown in Philadelphia is the production of the Shakespearean drama "Henry V," starring, and produced by, Laurence Olivier. It is a movie which when properly understood and properly interpreted will fascinate the discriminating theatregoer. While it is not a movie for an Abbott and Costello fan, neither is it a movie only for those steeped in the lore of Shakespeare. Rather, for those who appreciate the pageantry and drama of the theatre, and understand the background, it will prove to be well worth the admission.

The film was financed by the British government to play up the idea of the British Empire in the minds of the English people at a time when its existence seemed to be threatened by political trembling within. The play itself is an ideal vehicle for this purpose, as its theme is the glorious tradition of the Empire. If one keeps this in mind and consistently applies it to the various scenes, they lose their apparently meaningless position, and begin to dovetail into a vital and integral idea. Without this, many concepts which would be readily grasped by an English audience, would be lost to the ordinary American. The dialogue, which admittedly is difficult to understand at times, can be better appreciated by reading some Shakespeare and making use of the footnotes.

The production is at the New Pix Theatre, 1830 Market Street. There are two shows daily, for which all seats are reserved. Tickets are priced at $1.95 for the matinees, and $2.00 for the evening shows.

Central Park

Sigmund Romberg's hit musical "Up in Central Park" returns to Philadelphia after two years on Broadway. Such well known tunes as "Close as Pages in a Book," "Carousel in the Park," "When My Love Walked in the Room" are featured in the story of New York during the Gay Nineties and the reign of Tammany. The book and lyrics are by Herbert and Dorothy Fields. The production, sponsored by Michael Todd, is at the Schubert Theatre. Tickets for the two week run are priced from $1.30 to $4.55.

Elizabeth Bergner takes on the leading parts in two offerings at the Forrest Theatre. The plays are "Miss Julie" by August Strindberg and "The Proposal" by Anton Chekhov. Tickets run from $1.30 to $3.90.

At the Academy of Music on the 24th, 25th, and 27th, the Philadelphia Orchestra will hold its regular concerts. The program includes the Scarletti - Tonnasini Ballet Suite "The Good Humored Lady," the Roussel "Concerto for Small Orchestra," the Dukas scherzo "The Sorcerer's Apprentice," and the Brahms Symphony in D major.

Sorcerer's Apprentice

The highly descriptive music of the "Sorcerer's Apprentice" was inspired by a Goethe ballad based on a fable better than eighteen hundred years old. The story concerns an ambitious understudy to a traveling magician who longed to duplicate his master's trick of making a broom carry water. One day he ever heard the magic words, and soon after tried to put them to use. The words worked well enough, but when he tried to stop the broom from fetching water, the dismayed apprentice discovered he had forgotten to learn this important command. Desperately he split the broom in two—but then there were two brooms carrying water! The fortuitous arrival of the master saved the day. The comedy can be clearly followed in the music which makes very enjoyable listening.

Tickets are available for the concerts at the Academy of Music, or play itself is an ideal vehicle for from Heppe's, 1506 Walnut Street. Prices run from $1.36 to $4.94.

On January 29th and 30th, The Philadelphia Forum will present The Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo in the Academy of Music. On the 29th, the program will consist of Dvorak's Serenade," "The Night Shadow," "Pas de Deux," and the "Gay Parisienne" of Offenbach. The next evening, Tchaikowsky's well known "Swan Lake" will be given along with "The Bells," "The Bluebird," and "Rodeo."

Swan Lake, together with the ever popular "Nutcracker Suite" is one of Tchaikowsky's finest attempts at ballet music. The infectious waltz rhythms, touched only briefly with the usual morbid poignancy of the composer, represent the best of Tchaikowsky.

Tickets for either performance may be obtained at Holy's, and are priced from $1 to $2.50.

Immaculata President and German Club Attend as Guests

Monday evening, Dec. 13, saw the popular pre-war campus activity of the German Club revived in the form of a "Musical Banquet." It was presented under the direction of Doctor Haenisch, Professor of Chemistry and an authority on classical music.

The Right Rev. Monsignor Vincent L. Burns, J.C.B., Ph. D., Sc.D., President of Immaculata College, greatly honored the occasion and the assemblage by his genial presence. Members of Villanova's "Neustaedter Kreis" and their guests of the "Sankt Bonifaz Klub" of Immaculata College composed the audience.

Following introductions and a word of welcome by the club's moderator, Fathey Lunney, Dr. Haenisch was presented to the group. The evening's entertainment was opened by presenting short reviews of the works of Beethoven, Brahms and Wagner, the great artists of classical German music.

Before each recorded rendition of their principal works, Doctor Haenisch presented the more well known and important themes of these pieces on the piano. Beginning with Beethoven's first movement of the Emperor Concerto—a piano recital in large measure by the famous Walter Geisicking—there followed a rapid stirring, martial movement characterized by a continuous, ever-gloding of the orchestra, wherein was clearly distinguishable the well known "V for Victory" signal of Beethoven's Fifth Symphony.

With a soft rumbling orchestral arrangement, the final movement of Brahms' First Symphony of Fate, was introduced. Herein was portrayed, via the Dawn theme, man's struggle and ultimate triumph over Fate, a symbol of human greatness. The theme variation, commonly associated with the Westminster Chimes, was included within this arrangement.

Wagner's "Ring der Nibelungen," with its four operas: "Rheingold," "Die Walkuere," "Siegfried," and "Goetterdaemmerung," was next presented. Particular attention was given to Valkyrie and the story of the unfaithful Brunhild, favorite daughter of Wotan, her punishment and her rescue. The music of this opera is particularly striking in its vivid portrayal of characters and events, by a stirring, perfectly blended arrangement of the many themes under the direction of Leopold Stokowski.

Dramatic Club To Be Revived

Plans for a Reorganization of Belle Masque Drafted

Plans for the reorganization of the Belle Masque, Villanova's Dramatic Club, were discussed at a meeting held in Mendel Hall, Tuesday, January 14, it was announced by George Scanlon, moderator.

Thirty-five men turned out for the initial meeting and plans for the presentation of a trilogy of one-act plays to be staged after the resumption of classes next semester were outlined. Original scripts for the plays will be written by student members of the club. Due to the fact that the organization is hampered by the lack of props and trained technicians, details for the production of the plays are still tentative.

The group will cooperate with the Dramatic Clubs of Rosemont and Immaculata Colleges in staging these productions. It is possible that the club will produce radio plays in conjunction with the similar organizations at the girls' colleges.

Another reorganization meeting will be held Thursday, January 23, room 215, Mendel Hall, at 12:00 for dayhops and at 7:00 for residents. All students interested in joining are invited to attend.

Student Council Debates Current Campus Problems

Increased Council Activity, Superior Sanitary Conditions and Parking Problem Are Issues Group Considers

Student Council President Jim Bonner called a meeting of the organization recently at which student motions and suggestions were discussed and voted on. The main point discussed at the meeting was the need for more activity by the group.

Among current problems discussed was the possibility of obtaining soap, towels and mirror for the washrooms used by the Day Hops. Don Collins introduced the issue and went into detail on the facility with which such a project could be started. It was voted that the measure be brought to the attention of the authorities.

DON COLLINS

Once again the parking problem on the campus was brought up before the council. After heated discussion, the subject was laid on the table for a future meeting. A few days later, Official Regulations on Parking were released from the office of the Vice President.

The measure which was voted on at the previous meeting stands, "That any member of the Student Council may refer problems directly to the President of the Council without the formality of a meeting."

The president of the Council will have the decision as to the validity of the issue and will refer it immediately to the proper authorities if the condition warrants such action.

Another meeting will be held promptly on the beginning of the Spring semester.

By VINCE O'DONNELL

When you stop to think about swing side men and the like, do you ever wonder who was responsible for this new style of music? The two men who worked and slaved to have their music heard and appreciated were Fletcher Henderson, Swing's first arranger, and Benny Goodman, Swing's first band.

The idea was thought up by the creative mind of Henderson and he so influenced Goodman that Benny quit his job to organize a band of his own and later become King of Swing.

It wasn't all gravy, for when Benny opened up in 1935 at the Congress Hotel in Chicago, he received a non-descript reception. They didn't applaud him nor did they "boo" him off the stage but they just stood there in bewilderment, for this was the start of a new musical era. Even though they were discouraged, the boys in the band didn't give it up, but went to New York looking for the opening that eventually skyrocketed them to the top of the heap. But these people, too, just stood in amazement for they couldn't quite get Ben's point. The road looked good to Ben, so packing his clarinet, he and his boys went on tour. Every town that they hit gave the band the same reception as they received from the other towns. When they arrived in California Benny gave the boys in the band their notices explaining that they just didn't have it, but asked them to play the Palamar, later called the Paladium, that night, their last night together. He also asked them to give it everything they had for old times sake.

Now Ben in the old days was very shy and because of his shyness, he always played with his back to the audience. Well the time for the slaughter had arrived and Ben mounted the stand and gave the boys the downbeat on "Christopher Columbus." The boys played that night and the fans caught on and went wild when the number was finished. When Ben heard this ovation, it brought tears to his eyes and his body shook with sobs, for he knew that the band had it now and that no one could stop them from becoming big time.

The National Biscuit Co. offered Ben a spot on their program along with Murray and Cugat. Goodman also signed with Victor in the same year.

After putting out such numbers as "Sandman," "Christopher Columbus" and "Good-Bye" Ben had the country swing-conscious and he also had Benny Goodman in line for the first King of Swing of the country and probably of the world.

Someone once said that "All good things must come to an end." This must also be true of all bad things for this column is the last one for this semester. But please, dear readers, (that's a laugh) no tears for we become terribly depressed at the sight of such emotion, besides there is the possibility that we will return next semester . . .

Biography

The end of the semester means graduation for those individuals who have endured the hardships of four years of college life. One of the fellows lucky enough to be getting out next month is Harold Varani. Hal has been at Villanova so long that we were beginning to think of him as being part of the college itself. He entered Villanova in September 1939, the same year that we entered sixth grade. After spending two years here Hal decided that Penn was the school for him. A year spent at the Penn. Veterinary School of Medicine, with all those lovely things called women running around, was too much for our hero, so he returned to the Main Line. This time he thought that he would give English a whirl. This move caused H. V. to be put back into the Freshman Class. In 1943, Hal received a letter from F.D.R. telling him that he was physically, mentally and morally accepted for the armed forces of the United States.

Of the two years that Hal spent in the service, he was an Air cadet for nine months, maybe the Army figured he need a little education. November 1945 found Mister V. once more knocking at the door of his former Alma Mater, Villanova. With one hundred and ninety-nine credits, not including the forty-five acquired at Penn, Hall is ready for graduation.

We all hate to see him go, for this short, handsome, well dressed fellow with his wonderful personality, has become one of the best liked fellows on the campus. (Ed. note: This last sentence was written by H. V. with the permission of Lyons and Randolph.

The person who sent in the above biography will receive by return mail two tickets to that stirring play, O.M.O.C. (Old Man Oo Ring play, O.M.O.C. (Old Man Oo Campus).

Enough of the biography, now for the bull . . .

Has anyone notice how emaciated looking (besides that he looks thin) Bill Foster has become? We understand Bill is on a diet. Someone ought to tell him about Ry Kriap.

Beauty and the Beast

John McGrath has been doing an awful lot of visiting on Chew St. Perhaps if we knew somebody we would go and visit them too.

Ed Herkorne must be after the title of the Chew Street king. Everytime we go to said establishment we see Ed. We wonder if it is one girl or all of them that attracts Mister H.

Joe King has been beating a path to the Willow Grove Air Station, for there is a cute little secretary there that Joe has his sights set on. Why don't you join the Naval Reserve, Joe, and ask for duty at Willow Grove? You would be surprised to see how much carfare you save every month.

Louie Alvare and Ray Brown are spending an awful lot of time at a certain girls college. Well we guess that someone has to keep up the morale of those poor homesick young things.

Blues

The chief objector to the recent invasion of the German Club meeting by the "Blue Room Boys" was Jim Conaty. Vice President Jim was interrupted while making points with the Immaculata Club President, "for strictly fraternization reasons only."

Bull Matas was caught looking at rings in 69th Street last week. Of course in all seriousness Bull replied that he was shopping for a ring for his sister. That one is too old, even little Bull could do better that that, especially when we know she does not exist.

Book

Walt Lyttle (two t's or not two t's, that is the question) is really getting up in the world. The crossword puzzles in the daily newspapers were getting too easy for Walt and didn't take enough time, so he gave an ostentatious demonstration (splurge, to you) of his spending powers and bought a two-bit book of puzzles, or maybe he wanted to be sure he had a puzzle for all occasions . . . Ball

Soft lights, sweet music and having your arms around one hundred and ten pounds of female beauty are wonderful ways to spend an evening, and that is exactly what we did last Friday night when the Seniors gave their annual ball.

The decorations were terrific, the orchestra was ideal, and the whole dance was a credit to the Seniors. Dan Redmond, President of the class and Sam Canning, dance committee head, deserve a lot of praise for a job well done.

Bruisers

Shipstads & Johnson please note:

If you think the Ice Follies were terrific don't miss the currently featured show at the Ardmore Rink. Dan Brown and Ed Lannigan are the star attractions and they're the debs swooning daily. Dan is so interested in his new sideline that he had some trouble deciding whether to go to the Ball, but Flossie won out . . . again.

Belittle

At the head of the list of disappointments last Friday night was John (I can't do anything about it) Martin. In order to see her ex. the girl of his dreams preferred another dance and of coures John consented, nice going, good school support, Mr. Martin. On the other hand there's John Callahan who

New History Professor Added

Charles J. Bruderle Becomes Assistant Professor of History

A recent addition to the faculty of Villanova College is Charles J. Bruderle, who assumed his duties as Assistant Professor of History here last month. Mr. Bruderle comes to Villanova from George-town University where he obtained a Master of Arts Degree in History.

In 1938 and 1939, Mr. Bruderle attended the London School of Economics and Political Science, London University, on the Carnegie Junior Year Abroad Scholarship awarded by New York University. Two years following he received a Bachelor of Arts degree at New York University and a Fellowship in history at Georgetown University in 1942 and 1943. Completing a well-rounded educational background, he was awarded a Master of Arts degree at Georgetown in 1946.

During his years abroad he traveled through Belgium, Germany, Italy, France, the Channel Islands, Ireland, and Scotland. While in Belgium Mr. Bruderle studied the Jocist movement, a form of Catholic action known as the Young Catholic Workers. Upon his return to the United States he led a Jocist movement in the diocese of Brooklyn.

Mr. Bruderle is a member of the history department and is teaching World History to the Freshmen engineers. During the war he was Office and Personnel Manager of the Todd Shipyards Corporation in New York City. Mr. Bruderle is married and has a family of two boys, both redheads.

CAMPUS HISTORY

Today, there are other buildings to be erected; a library, a Naval Science building and a Chemistry Laboratory. Compared with the Villanova of the past, containing only three buildings, ten students, nine professors and one course of studies, the Villanova of today consists of a building for every purpose and a course of studies for any student. The Augustinian Fathers are happy that they have succeeded in giving to the Catholic scholar an aducation equal to that of any other college in the country, but, still not being satisfied, they wait and plan for the greater and better Villanova of tomorrow.

Lord Scores 42 Points in Victories Over Kings Point and Manhattan

By JACK KENNEDY

On the road for the second successive weekend, the Villanova "Wildcats" traveled to New York to meet and defeat the United States Merchant Marine Academy of Kings Point, 49 to 35, and a highly rated Manhattan five, 56 to 50.

Led by Captain Joe Lord, who was high man that evening with 24 points on 9 field goals and 6 fouls, the 'Cats snapped out of their three game losing streak to hand the Kings Point "Mariners" their first defeat of the year on their home court.

Subs Carry On

Kings Point scored first on a long set shot by Captain Bill Faris, but Villanova came back strong and with eight minutes, of the first half to play, Al Severance removed the starting team of Joe Lord, who scored 18 of his 24 points in the first 12 minutes of the game, Leo Wolf, Brooks Ricca, "Shy" Raiken, and Perry Del Purgatorio and began to substitute freely. But this could not stop the 'Cats who led at the half time 33 to 13.

In the second half, with substitutes playing a majority of the time, Villanova walked away from a small and inexperienced Kings Point five.

In the Manhattan game, played on the Jaspers' home court before an overflowing crowd of over 1,000, the Wildcats won their second game in as many nights over an experienced Jasper five.

Best Game of Season

Neither team could score from the floor for the first five minutes of the game until Manhattan's "Ziggy" Skronski broke the ice. But the next fifteen minutes of the first half had plenty of scoring thrills. Playing their best game of the season, the Wildcats led at halftime 26 to 20.

Starting the same team in the second half, the 'Cats forged ahead to a 42 to 25 lead. With seven minutes remaining in the game, Brooks Ricca went out of the game on personal fouls. Handling the ball with perfection, the Wildcats kept the Jaspers at a safe distance and went on to score a 56 to 50 victory over Manhattan.

Joe Lord was the high scorer again in that game with 18 points. "Shy" Raiken, the man who dropped the winning field goal in the Princeton-Villanova game, trailed Lord in scoring by two points. He matched Lord on the field goals, each had seven, but it was Captain Joe's four foul shots to "Shy's" two that gave him the higher score. "Sig" Skronski, who was high for Manhattan, was held to 12 points by "Brooks" Ricca.

Halftime—Villanova 33-13

For A Dying Cause

Brooks Ricca, Wildcat center, and Bob Mulvihill, Fordham, are ready to go up for the rebound on this shot. But Leo Wolf's long set hit the cords in a fruitless attempt to overhaul the Rams. Ricca was brilliant under both baskets and had 13 points to lead Villanova's scorers in their 41-39 setback.

'Cats Lose to Fordham 41-39; Ricca Brilliant

Lord Held to 10 Points in Dull Game; Karpowick Leads Ram's Attack

By JIM LYONS

The Rams of Fordham University handed the Villanova College quintet their third consecutive defeat, when they staved off a last period rally to down the Wildcats 41-39. The game was played last Wednesday in the Field House before 2500 disappointed, partisan rooters.

The "Cats" jumped into a 2-0 lead on a foul conversion by Leo Wolf and a spectacular backward shot by Brooks Ricca. Then followed two foul conversions by Bob Mulvihill of the Rams. At this point "Shy" Raiken sank a long (one of the meager two that the "Cats" made in the first half.) Smith tallied on a jump-shot for the Rams and Lord converted a foul for the "Cats." Then Co-Captain Karpowich, a talented set-shot, sank one from the outside and Fordham went ahead 7-6. The Wildcats never regained the lead.

Schwille Impresses

The remainder of the first half was punctuated by 15 fouls and numerous spills. Fordham's fast break seemed more adapted to this style of play and the Rams were pulling away at this point. Coach Al Severance replaced Raiken with nimble Bob Schwille, who presently intercepted Fordham passes and seemed right at home in this type of contest. However, the "Cats" failed to click as a team. Their long shots were off and they abandoned all the orthodox systems for a type of "intra-mural ball." Although Fordham was anything but a smooth fast-break club, they did play fire-house ball consistently and they led 19-13 at half-time.

The "Cats" had gotten off to slow starts on previous occasions but 13 points in a half is out of the slow-start category. Raiken and Ricca tallied the only longs for Villanova in the half and as for "picks" there weren't any.

Coach Severance made only one change in his starting line-up. Joe Brehmer replaced Jim Bunn at guard at the outset of the second half. The "Cats" seemed "sparked" as they came down the floor and scored on a beautiful hand-off—Brehmer to Lord. Fordham retaliated on a fast break by Jerry Smith. The Cats came down the floor again and scored on a long shot by Ricca. Karpovich matched this for Fordham.

Karpowich Big Threat

The "Cats" were scoring more now but Tony Karpowich was "hot" and sank several consecutive longs and prevented the "Cats" from overhauling the Rams. The gaps between the teams remained the same until Ricca and Wolf sank successive longs. This made the count 31-27 with 8 minutes remaining.

Although the "Cats" were determined and each player tried hard,

Saul and Wanzer Will Be Men to Stop — Both All-America Candidates; Pirates Victorious in Last 25 Games

By DAVE RYAN

Seton Hall, victorious 15 times in as many contests this season, comes to the Villanova Field House tomorrow night for its only game with the Wildcats this year. Game time is 8:30 P. M.

Coached by alumnus Bob Davies, probably the outstanding athlete in Seton Hall history and one of the country's leading basketball players at the outset of this decade, the Pirates seem definitely headed for the mythical New Jersey State championship, having already defeated their most dangerous pre-season rival for that title, Princeton, to the tune of 63-47.

Sure Bet For Tournament

If they maintain their present pace, or reasonable facsimile, there is little doubt that they will receive an invitation to one of the several post-season tournaments. At this time, they have completed more than half their schedule.

Three good reasons for the success of the Seton Hall aggregation are: Bob Wanzer, Frank Saul and Whitey Mackanowski. This trio performed on the '42-'43 team, Wanzer being the highest scorer during that season. They are the only letter-men on the squad.

All America Prospects

All three are fine players—good ball handlers, excellent shots and good team men. Wanzer has a deadly eye but is even better defensively. Seton Hall fans still talk of his defensive performances as a sophomore. Saul, who closely resembles Coach Davies because of both his appearance and playing mannerisms, and Mackinowski have both stellar ability and basketball savvy.

Averaging just a slight fraction of an inch above six feet—the tallest man on the squad, "Big Ben" Pagliaroli being 6'3½"—Seton Hall makes up for what it lacks in

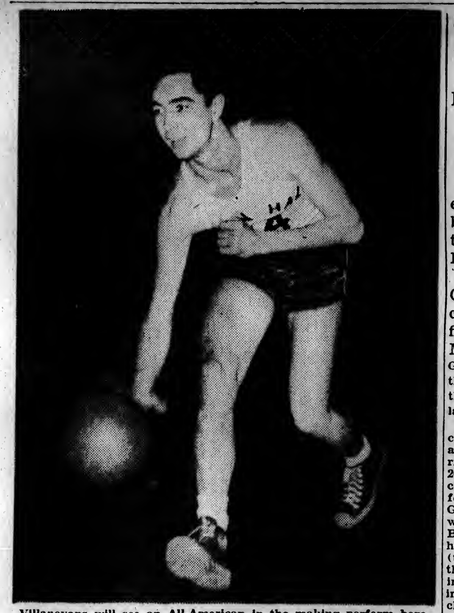
Once Beaten Fire Ball Quintet Provides Second Stern Test This Week

By BOB McNAMARA

Friday night Villanova's basketeers travel to the birthplace of "firehouse" basketball for their annual contest with the once defeated Rhode Island State team.

This contest will undoubtedly prove to be one of the Wildcats sternest tests, since this year's edition of the Rhode Island five differs in no way from the past aggregations; and, like former "Rhodie" teams, they think nothing of scoring more than 100 points a game. Playing the traditional "run and shoot" brand of ball for which they are justly famous, the Kingston quintet has passed the century mark on three occasions this year, with the high mark being a 124 victory over the Quonset Naval Air station.



Regulars Return

Three of the starting five are holdovers from last year's squad which registered a win-loss record, including post-season tilts, of 21-3. (Last year the New Englanders

George Guida will defend the Paddock Memorial Trophy (shown above) Friday night in the Inquirer meet. Guida is pictured receiving the victor's spoils from Lt. Col. Howard J. Berry after winning the featured 300-yard sprint in last year's event.

Villanovans will see an All-American in the making perform here tomorrow night in the person of Bob Wanzer, Seton Hall captain. His deadly shooting and play-making have enabled the Pirates to enter the Field House with an unblemished record in 15 contests this season.

Iron Men Hold Bowling Lead

By ARNY KEEHN

With only one remaining match before the close of the semester, the Iron Men have a secure hold on first place with their three game edge over the second-place Red Eyes.

The Iron Men, led by Joe Foley and Dante Orazi easily retained first place by taking three points from the Indians. The Indians, aided by a handicap of forty-five pins, took the opener by the slim margin of one pin. Foley, who rolled games of 181, 188, and 187,, was high scorer for the Iron Men, while Pete Pallitto and Orazi averaged better than 160 for the three games. Donahue and Higgans rolled high games for the Indians.

Siano Helps Red Eyes

The Red Eyes dropped Alumni deeper into last place by taking four points. Siano was instrumental in helping the Red Eyes go into undisputed possession of second place by averaging 156 for three games. Ringelstein and Butler had high games of 166 each. Flannelly set the pace for Alumni with 161, 179 and 176 games for an average of 169.

Ray Berninger of Fedigan rolled games of 183, 161, and 139 thereby continuing to be up among the five leaders in total pin averages. The Warriors took their only point from Fedigan, when Vince Franchetti knocked down twenty-eight pins in the tenth frame to give his team a one pin margin of victory.

This afternoon there will be a knock down match between the teams. This is a method of evening up the difference whereby the first place team meets the squad that is in second position and so on down the line.

With only one remaining match to be played before the end of the semester, and because schedules will be altered for the coming term, it is hoped that those who are interested in joining the league for the second half will be present this afternoon at 3:40 in the Rosemont bowling alleys.

Fordham Game

they played in a very unsystematical manner. The Fordham club had slowed down a bit, but they were more successful with their long shots.

Lord Kept in Check

Joe Brehmer who had been replaced by Del Purgatorio, entered the game for Captain Joe Lord. Jerry Smith, a recognized defensive player did a fine job in hurrying Lord's set shots and the brilliant Wildcat tallied only one long. However, he did ring up 10 points, mostly on lay ups, on what was definitely an off night.

When play was resumed it was close and fast. The Wildcats couldn't close the four point gap. Fordham remained either 4 or 5 points ahead, until the score was 37-33 with 3 minutes remaining. Fordham began freezing the ball, but Smith gambled on a long one from the corner and won. (39-33) Wolf sank a long shot. (39-35) Mulvihill was fouled by Frick, who had entered for Wolf, and his foul attempt was recovered by Ricca, Lord was fouled while shooting, but he missed his first attempt and waived the second. Del Purgatorio tossed the ball into Lord, who was several feet beyond half court. Lord attempted a premature desperation shot that missed. The ball bounded to Raiken who hooked a left in from the corner. (39-37) When Dan Graham was fouled with little more than a minute to play, the Fordham center elected to shoot rather than take the ball out of bounds. His conversion made the score, 40-37.

Decide To Try Foul

Fordham was no longer gambling when Tony Karpowich chose to shoot a foul rather than take the ball at side court with less than a minute left. His conversion gave Fordham its final point. (41-37) Although Captain Joe Lord made a long basket for the home team, insufficient time remained for Villanova to gain possession again before the game ended. (41-39)

Ricca Standout

This was a disheartening blow to the many loyal rooters who either overlooked the recent defeats by Georgetown and Navy or expected the Wilcats to be on the rebound. Villanova's only bright spot in this dismal defeat was the brilliant performance of Freshman center, Brooks Ricca. Ricca did yeoman work on the boards, sank 4 out of 6 long shots and tapped in a follow-up. In all, he collected 13 points and surpassed his great play in the second Princeton game.

Track Team Opens Indoor Season Friday

Formidable Villanova Squad Out to Reclaim Past Honors; Guida, Ross, Mile Relay Team Run in Boston Saturday

By PAT SPLANE

Villanova has entered 18 men in eight major track events in the third annual invitation track meet sponsored by the Philadelphia Inquirer which will open the indoor track season next Friday night, January 24, at Convention Hall.

In each of the events the Cats will be running against champions in the respective fields. In the Charles Paddock Memorial 300 yard, however, George Guida of Villanova will be the defending champion. He was the winner of this trophy for the last two years straight.

Two speed boys who will be challenging Guida's crown this year are Barney Ewell and Elmore Harris. Barney is the present National 200 meter champion and one of the co-holders for the World's record for the 50 yard dash. He broke Guida's record for the 300 meter when he defeated him last year in Buffalo. Ewell is the only man to have taken three championships (the 100 and 220 yard dashes, and the broad jump) for three years in a row. He was the IC4A champ in 1941-42-43, and the National champ in 1942-43.

Elmore Harris is the present holder of three National championships: the indoor 600 yard, the outdoor 200 meter, and the outdoor 400 meter. The latter he has held for the last two years in succession.

Ross vs. Efaw

The Lawson Robertson two mile will feature the third meeting of Villanova's Browning Ross and the National two mile champ, Forrest Efaw. Efaw is the defender in this event as well as the present National champion of the 3,000 meter steeplechase. He also held this title in 1941 and '44. He is also the present National three mile champ for the second straight year. Ross, who has lost only three races in his life, is on the short end of a 2-1 score in three encounters with Efaw.

Earl Mitchell, who ran a 4:08 mile in 1943 and was the Big Ten and N.C.A.A. two mile champ before he entered the Navy, will also be in the two mile event. He won the two mile race in the Sugar Bowl on December 31, 1946.

Two former IC4A two mile champions: Armand Osterberg of N.Y.U. in 1944, and Ed O'Toole of Manhattan in 1945, are also running for the Lawson Robertson trophy.

Strong Pole Vault Entry

Three Cats will compete in the pole vault: Jim Tuppeny, last years Catholic League champ from West Catholic; George "Buck" Coleman also of West Catholic; who jumped 13'3" for North Carolina Pre-Flight; and Bill Allen from Reading Catholic, who jumped 12'4" while still in high school.

These men will run into plenty of stiff competition in the persons of Howard Jones, a former Philadelphia champion; and Martin Korik from Penn, who last year jumped 13' to become the only Philadelphia boy to attain this height while in high school.

Sheehan Lone High Jumper

Villanova has one entry in the high jump: John Sheehan. This stalwart member of this years Villanova eleven is a very good jumper. His strong sturdy legs make him a good competitor in this event.

Albritton has been in this field longer than any other high jumper. He has won the outdoor National Championship many times, the first time in 1936; and he is now the holder of this title. He was a runner up in the 1936 Olympics and the former co-holder of the World's Record, which record has since been broken.

Vislocky is the present indoor National champ; Irving Mondshein is the present National Decathalon Champ; Matt Kashula, who won this event last year, is the defending champ; and Williamson, who won the National outdoor championship in 1942, shared the indoor title with Albritton last year.

Dillon and Holmes in 50 Yd.

In the 50 yd. dash Villanova's Jack Holmes, South Jersey sprint champ, and Leo Dillon, Catholic League sprint champ, will have to do some fast stepping to keep abreast of the champions entered in this event.

pushed Kentucky to the final whistle before losing a 46-45 battle for the National Collegiate Championships). These three men are Al Nichols, Jack Allen and Al Palwiere.

Nichols, who handles one of the guard posts, is the team captain and second highest scorer. He should have little trouble this campaign in eclipsing the 232 tallies he collected last year.

Jack Allen, who is 5 feet 11 inches and the smallest center in the big time Collegiate basketball world, is at present leading the Rhode Island squad in the scoring column. However, Allen is more outstanding as a clever ball handler than as a scoring ace.

The other starting holdover, Al Palwiere, started the current season as the sixth man, but moved into a regular berth after his 21-point outburst against Brown.

Regulars in Reserve

Blowit and Ulles, a pair of freshmen, round out the team that will be on the floor at the tap-off.

The "Rhodies" obviously are as deep as they have been in past years with Ken Goodwin, a 46-46 regular, acting as sixth man and Sal Sclafani, another holdover, also on the reserve list.

Last year Villanova played one of their finest ball games when they made their annual visit to the "Rhodie's" home court. Although the Wildcats were handed an 84-67 setback the game was actually close until midway in the final session when the Cats lack of reserves became more evident as the gap widened.

Joe "Toad" Hannon and Joe Lord were two Villanovans who turned in noteworthy performances against the "Rams." "Toad" registered 25 points for the evening while Captain Joe collected 21 tallies.

Swimming Team Being Planned

Intramural Meet for Next Semester; Enter Collegiate Competition Next Season

By PAT SPLANE

It was called to the attention of Rev. E. B. McKee, Moderator of Athletics at Villanova College, that on the campus there is a wealth of material with which to build a swimming team; and, as a result of this, plans are now being formulated to put a Villanova team into Intercollegiate competition next year.

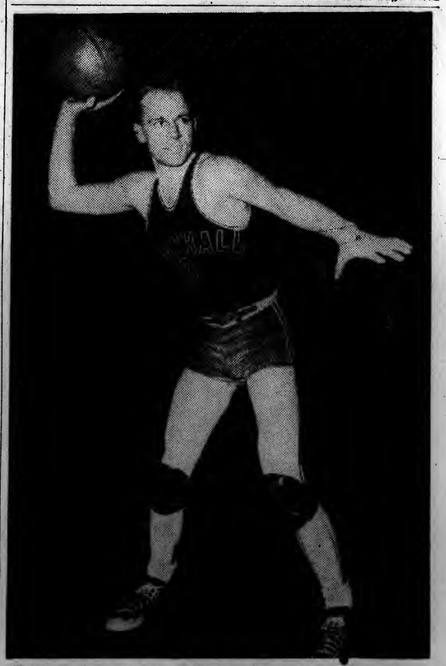
McFarland National Champ

Gene McFarland, the man who brought the information to Fr. McKee, is himself a good swimmer and diver. A graduate of St. Joe's Prep, Philadelphia, he was a member of the varsity swimming team there for four years, swimming the 50 yard free style and the 60 yard breast-stroke, as well as doing some fancy diving. He has won the Catholic League, City and National Catholic diving championships.

Another champion who swam for four years on the varsity team at Roman Catholic High School is Gene Feeney. He won the Catholic League championship for the 50 and 100 yard Free Style.

John Goldsmith, another graduate of St. Joe's Prep, was a member of a relay team that won the National Catholic championship. He swam on the varsity for four years at the Prep and placed second in the 50 and 100 yard Free Style events in the Catholic League Championships.

Three products of Northeast Catholic High School, who swam on the varsity swimming team there and are now attending Villanova, are: George Gibbons, Joseph Saxton, and Dave Maien.



George Gibbons, a three year varsity man, swam the 60 and 100 yard breaststroke for Northeast. Dave Maien, also a three year varsity man, swam the 100 and 200 yard free style, and placed second in the championships for those distances.

Joseph Saxton, who swam for four years on the varsity while at Northeast, placed second in the championship in the 60 and 100 yard back-stroke events.

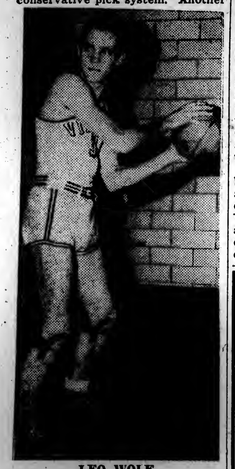
In The Sportlight

By BOB McNAMARA

Before the Sportlight is dimmed for this semester, we'll let it shine on two bright spots in Villanova's athletic program—Leo Wolf a basketeer and John "Dutch" McCarthy, a track man.

Leo Wolf:



Leo Wolf's athletic career dates back to the fifth grade of his grammar school days. By the time he reached the eighth grade of his elementary schooling, Leo had developed enough proficiency to lead his Immaculate Conception team to the city title.

Freshman and Jayvee ball consumed the spare time Leo had in the first two years of high school. The next year Wolf entered varsity competition with a bang, having one of the very best seasons that he has enjoyed. Wolf was top scholastic scorer in his home town, Trenton, accumulating a total of 263 points in 23 contests. At the end of this season, Leo was awarded a berth on the All-City team, but to Leo this was only a climax to the victory over Trenton H. S. which was the first win for Trenton Catholic against their traditional cross-town rivals in thirteen years. Leo captained the varsity five in his final year and during this season he played what he himself considers his best game to date when he tallied 26 markers in a hotly contested victory.

At graduation Wolf was given the athletic award marking him as the outstanding sports figure in his class. This honor, however, runs a poor second in Leo's estimation, to the award he earned in his junior year for sportsmanship.

Leo found little time for basketball during his two-year tour of duty in the Navy, since most of this time was spent in the Pacific theater. At the cessation of hostilities, however, Leisure time became more prevalent and Leo utilized it to regain his stride. Before returning to the states, Leo established the league scoring record for a single game with 37 points.

Entering Villanova last October the 6-foot, 160 pound yearling had little trouble adjusting himself to the pick system advocated by Al Severance since Leo's high school mentor was Dick Gray, a former Wildcat and firm believer in the conservative pick system. Another factor that makes Leo a natural for the pick is that his first love on the hardwoods is setting up plays. Leo has played a major role in all Villanova's victories but his most conspicuous performance came in the first Princeton game when he hit the cords for 10 points in the second half uprising.

During the Christmas holidays Wolf was very busy appearing in exhibition games. The outstanding game was played against Johnny Lujack's All Stars, composed of former Notre Dame players, such as Billy Hassett and Frank Gihooley. In this encounter Leo netted a long one with only 24 seconds to play to hand his team a well-earned 57-55 victory.

Praises for Wolf's consistent play have come from every corner but probably the most emphatic was that showered by Coach Leyden, of Rider College, who frankly admitted he'd give Manhattan back to the Indians for Leo's services.

John "Dutch" McCarthy:

Dutch was on hand when the cinder sport was inaugurated at St. Thomas More High School, that soon became a prominent contender in all track events. John's activities here consisted of the mile relay and one-half mile. In his senior year, he went undefeated in all dual meets to earn himself a lane at the starting line in the Boyertown Invitation half mile. As a fitting climax to an excellent high school career, "Dutch" was an easy winner, lowering the record from 2:07 to 2:04.

After graduation in '40, Dutch came to Villanova, where he teamed with Guida, DiCarlo and O'Sullivan to form one of the most formidable mile relay teams in collegiate ranks. This quartet turned in their first victory in the Millrose Invitation, winning over such top-notchers as Notre Dame, Ohio State, N. Y. U. and Army. The following week they engaged Seton Hall and Georgetown in a triangular meet that brought together three of the East's top track teams. The run down to the wire that was expected in the mile relay never materialized, as the Wildcats were clocked in 3:23 over the indoor course.

After a brief rest Villanova's big four traveled to New York for the annual A. A. U. meet, however, they suffered a temporary setback and had to content themselves with the show position. About three weeks later, the boys went to Cleveland to compete in the IC4A and again could get no better than third spot for their efforts.

Those who expected the 'Cats to bound back into the win column at the K. of C. run in the Gardens were slightly let down when Villanova dropped to fourth place at the start of the race. However, immediately after the first exchange of the baton, Dutch started on what was to be one of the best quarters of his career. At the end of his run Villanova was ahead never again to be passed.

The explanation Coach "Jumbo" Elliot gave for the success of the team in the relay event was that Dutch was easily the best number two man of all the teams competing that season. The second leg is considered the weak one, but with a well balanced team such as that Wildcat aggregation, weak man only meant another 50 sec. quarter.

July 1st was the day that John became a member of the Navy. However, he continued at Villanova under the V-12 program until the following November when he left for Northwestern University to attend midshipman school. John's commission came March 17, '44, and soon after that, he was doing LCI duty near Italy. When the European hostilities were drawing to a favorable end, Dutch was shifted to the Pacific theatre. In September of '45, John was given command of his LCI, a post which he held until March, '46, when he returned stateside to await his discharge in July.

Dutch, whose loss will be immeasurable to the track team, is the only senior to end his track career at the end of this present semester. He will run a quarter mile leg in his old favorite, the mile relay, at the Inquirer Invitation Meet this Friday night at Convention Hall. In all probability, he will also make the trip the following night to run in the Boston Gardens as a grand finale to a thrilling career here at Villanova. Good luck, Dutch.

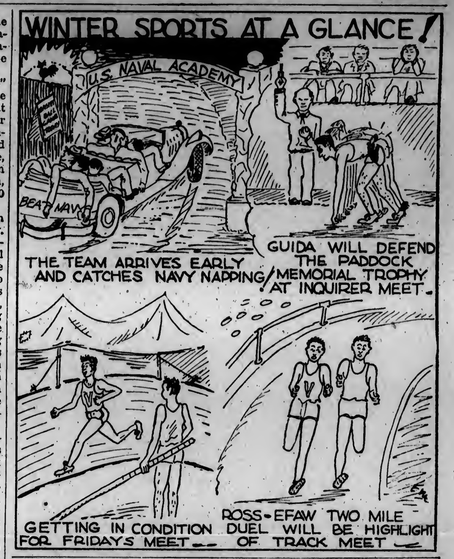
show their stuff next semester. When the gymnasium is finally cleared and the use of the swimming pool is again a privilege offered Villanova students, an Intramural swimming meet will be conducted.



A schedule for next year is being formed now and will be released at a later date. The coach for the team is also unknown at present, but he will, in all probability, be a member of the team.

New Library Structure

View of proposed college library to be erected; recent drive raised much-needed funds for the project.

New Building to House Chemical Engineers

Structure to Contain Modernly Equipped Laboratories and Lecture Classes

The Chemical Engineering Building to be erected on the campus will be a two-and-a-half story stone building. It will be located parallel to Spring Mill Road and the stone used in the construction will match Fedigan Hall.

Floors in the new building will be laid with asphalt tile and the corridors will be made of tarrazza and have tile wainscoating to a height of six feet.

Laboratories will have a calamine floor which is a special hard concrete that doesn't dust.

Piling will be constructed for the foundation of the building and although there will be no cellar it will have a large transformer room and a concrete covered trench under three sides.

The trench will be used to hold the pipe trunk for steam lines, electrical conduits and water pipes and will hav the circular spray pumps for cooling condenser water. It will eliminate unsightly pipes and other lines running through the rooms.

Contain Modern Labs

Housed in the building will be a metallurgical laboratory, an X-Ray Laboratory for metals with a special dark room adjoining it; a unit-operations laboratory and an experimental lab.

It will also have two classrooms, a seminar room, two offices, drafting room, shop and storage space and a boiler and turbine room.

The new boiler, a 60-horsepower high pressure water tube boiler supplies process steam for the unit operations equipment as well as for the new steam turbine equipment housed temporarily for the Mechanical Engineering Department, has arrived and is stored on the campus. Also in storage are specially constructed cabinets and other equipment for the laboratories.

The unit operations laboratory will be open for the full two-and-a-half stories. At two levels it will have galleries around three sides to facilitate experimental work by allowing easy access to the taller pieces of equipment and apparatus that will be installed.

The entrance to the new building will be from a walk that is to be laid from the road behind Mendel Hall down to the building. The walk will go around a pond that is to be dug in front of the proposed site.

The pond will beautify the campus while it is fulfilling its duty as a spray pond to supply cool condenser water for both the unit operations laboratory and the steam turbine laboratory.

College Bell Tells History

By FRANK DITURI

When ground is broken tomorrow for three new Villanova College buildings, the ceremony will be concluded by the ringing of the "Old College Bell' which was used for seventy years to call students to classes and chapel, and before that hung in the State House in Philadelphia along with its famous sister bell, the Liberty Bell. The Bell is not only an important part of the history of Villanova College, but is also a symbol of American freedom of thought and worship. On July 4, 1776, it joined with its companion to "proclaim Liberty throughout the land." It was later toppled from the steeple of a church burnt by mob violence; but was recast to serve again as a college and church bell.

In 1751, the Colonial Assembly of Pennsylvania ordered a bell from England to be hung in the tower of the newly built State House. The bell was hung in 1752, but cracked on its first trial. A new bell was ordered, but before it arrived, Pass and Stow of Philadelphia recast the old one and it was rehung. It cracked again several years after the Declaration of Independence, and was then preserved as the Liberty Bell.

When the second bell arrived from England it was hung in the cupola belfry of the State House attached to a Thomas Stretch clock to ring out the hours. It was also rung to announce the signing of the Declaration in 1776.

In 1830, the second bell and the Stretch clock were sold to the pastor of St. Augustine's Church and remained there until 1844. In May of that year, the "Know Nothing Riots" broke out in Philadelphia. The Know-Nothings were a nineteenth century version of the Ku Klux Klan who indulged in race riots, church burnings, and opposition to all such "un-American elements" as Catholics, Jews and immigrants. As a result of the riots of that year, two Catholic Churches were burnt, St. Michael's and St. Augustina's.

The Bell was badly damaged in the fire and the clock was completely destroyed. The fragments of the Bell were gathered up and were recast in 1847 by Joseph Bernard, whose name may be seen on the present bell.

As a result of the riots, the newly opened College of St. Thomas of Villanova closed for a two year period. In 1846, it was decided to reopen. When the recasting of the Bell was completed it was given to the College. It was hung on a locust tree where it remained for seventy years to call students to classes. In 1917, the electric bell system was installed, and the old Bell was contributed to the newly built Augustinian Church of St. Nicholas of Tolentine in Jamaica, L. I. height and speed and conditioning. Davies, who is also teaching physical educaiton at the college as well as coaching basketball and baseball, has stressed these two particulars in order to forestall possible defeats by teams composed of towering giants.

Pirates Lead Series

The meeting of the Pirate and 'Cat quintets will be the seventh in a series which dates back to 1926. In that season, as in the next, the Main Liners were winners. Since then, however, Villanova has not been able to score a victory over the Pirates.

Villanova served as the Pirates' last victim at the end of the 1942-43 season. Completing an 18 game card with but three defeats, Seton Hall out-shot the Wildcats, 39-28, for its tenth straight win, then closed up shop because of the war. This year marks the revival of the court game at the South Orange college.

Library Plans Reach Fruition After Six Years

Building Will House Almost Half Million Books, Accommodate Five Hundred Students

Six years ago this March, plans were drawn up for a new library at Villanova, to be erected for the celebration of the centennial year. During 1941, conferences were held constantly with the architect, visits were made to various libraries, college and public, with a view to determining the proper type of library for Villanova.

Just as that year was drawing to a close, the plans were nearing completion, only to be interrupted by the outbreak of the war. During the intervening years, the authorities at Villanova continued to ponder the plans with the architect.

After five years of discussion, inspecting and planning, Villanova is prepared to erect a library that will be of practical service to the institution and which will harmonize with the present buildings on the campus.

Three Stories High

The proposed library will be in the shape of a rectangle, and will be three stories high. The front, which will be adjacent and parallel to the path to the Pennsylvania Railroad, will be 130 feet in length. This building will be 100 feet on the sides and 50 feet high. It will be placed just below the grotto between the walk and St. Mary's Hall. Although this site is not the physical center of the campus, nevertheless, it will be in the center of activities. It wil lbe constructed of native rock with the entrance a few steps above the ground, opening on a landing slightly below the main floor.

The basement will house the machine room, containing space necessary for the operation of the building; lavatories for men and women; a cloak room for students; and a photo room, equipped with photomicrographic apparatus.

It is proposed that the browsing room, also located on the ground floor, will contain light literature in an atmosphere conducive to relaxation, where the students may peruse the type of literature that is most pleasing to their fancy.

Contains Classrooms

Seminar rooms, which can be converted in an emergency to small classrooms, are also provided for the accomodation of groups of various sizes. During the Summer Session, these rooms will be used as classrooms for Library Science.

Because book shelving is useless if more than seven feet high, there will be two lvls of stacks on each floor of the building. In the rear of the ground floor will be the shipping room, where books are received, repaired and stored. Adjacent to this room will be the quarters for the library staff, men and women.

The entrance to the first floor will open on a spacious lobby, where are located the main charging desk, large display shelves for various exhibitions, and the only public entrance to the book stacks. This arrangement providing for proper control and supervision of the building.

Large Reading Room

To the left of this charging desk is a large reading room of approximately 3,000 sq. ft. which will contain the reference books and periodicals. This room will comfortably seat 120 students and around the walls will be shelves seven feet high.

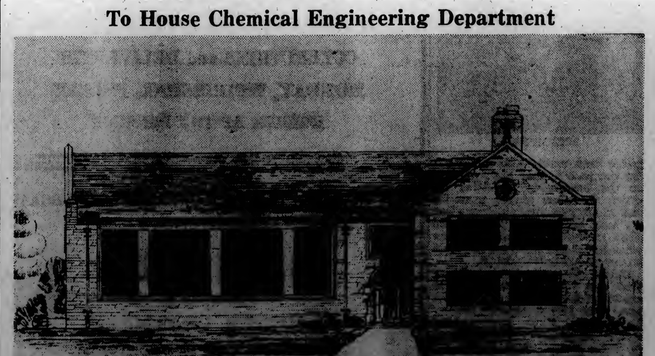
The cataloging room to the right will provide spacious quarters for the staff which prepares the books for the shelves and interprets library material for the students. Eetween the cataloging room and the reserve book room the Librarian's office will be conveniently located so that he may be readily available for discussion of all problems which arise in all departments.

The reserve book room will contain books that are required reading for various courses, but the time a student will be allowed to use these books will be limited to one week or less. This room will seat about 50 students. The periodical room will contain the current issues of all the magazines received in the library.

Wide Corridor

This top or second floor will not be used as frequently as the lower floor. The corridor in the front of this floor is wide with display cases for special exhibitions which a library ordinarily has from time to time. The Villanova room will provide for the material books, periodicals, pictures, etc., pertaining to Villanova, its history and its students.

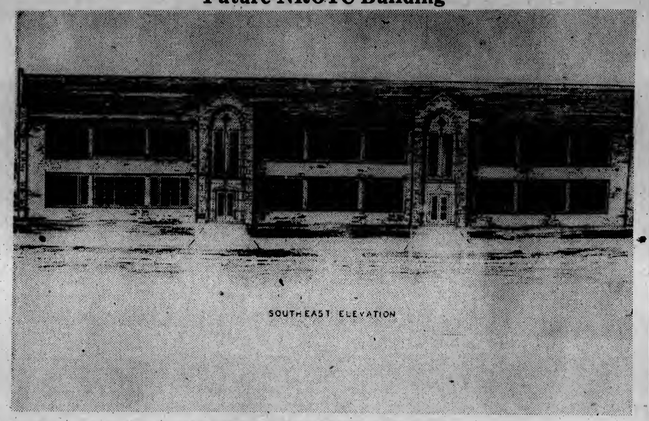
The music room will have special acoustics treatments as it is planned to use this room for the playing of records, classical and semi-classical. The seminar rooms on this floor will be used to provide for special collections, museum, study groups, or even classrooms. The faculty reading room will be used by the faculty, clerical and lay, for reading during leisure hours.



The entire building will comfortably seat 500 students and provide for 400,000 books. It is one of the buildings on the campus used by all students regardless of course or time study.

The Library is necessary for Seminarians, Sisters during summer school, engineers, C & F, science, and arts. It is believed that this library will adequately provide for all students during the years of future development.

ATTENTION



Two days out of every month Squadron 451 meets at the Naval Air Station, Willow Grove, for a four hour drill period. Every marine interested in the reserve, is invited to attend and become familiar with the program. Marines trained in infantry and aviation are most welcome and if interested in the reserve asked to to contact Col. Frank J. Cole, USMCR, at the NAS.

NROTC Building To Be Started With Program

Admiral Kauffmann to Break Ground in Program Tomorrow; Dress Inspection for Middies

Students in the NROTC program at Villanova College will soon receive training in one of the country's most modern and best equipped Naval Science Armories. Ground for the new building will be broken during ceremonies on January 22nd on the campus at the site, an area parallel to Spring Mill Road between Fedigan Hall and the Pennsylvania Railroad station (see map location page one). It is expected that the building will be completed within a year.

Villanova College is one of the specially selected colleges throughout the country wherein the Navy has established a permanent peacetime Naval Reserve Officers' Training Corps unit. The normal size of each unit is 300 men. Most of these midshipmen will obtain commissions in the regular Navy or Marine Corps under the new "Holloway Plan." Other students will be carried on a special "contract basis" and will be given commissions in the Naval Reserve or Marine Corps Reserve. Graduates will be able to assume duties aboard ship as Ensigns with a minimum of friction and indoctrination.

The building was designed by Henry Dagit and Sons, Inc., of Philadelphia, and approved by the Navy Department. Care has been taken in the selection of the stone for the exterior so that the building will harmonize with other college buildings.

Overall dimensions of the NROTC building will be 128 feet by 78 feet. On the main floor will be located the armory of 4200 sq. ft. specially built to support heavy ordnance material, the administrative offices of the Professor of Naval Science and his staff, three offices for the instructors, a library 30 ft. by 38 ft., provided for the use of midshipmen for reference work and conferences, and a storeroom, 29 ft. by 29 ft., where uniforms, clothing and text books will be stored and issued.

On the 2nd floor will be four large classrooms where Naval Science classes will be held. A large part of the space on this floor will be taken up by the Armory which will extend from the ground floor up through both stories.

In the basement will be a small arms firing range, 50 ft. long, a room, 29 ft. by 39 ft., for housing the Sangamo Attack Teacher, an electronic training device for simulating attack on submerged submarines, and a locker room for the equipment of the midshipmen. Maintenance facilities will be provided in a portion of the basement also.

The armory will contain a vast amount of ordnance equipment, ranging from small arms to a 5"/38 cal. double purpose gun. Various types of radar and rocket equipment will be on display for instructional purposes. The Navy is providing samples of nearly all kinds of weapons, and all equipment will be modern in all respects.

Building Through the Years

By JOE KENNEY

On October 31, 1841, Father Patrick E. Moriarity, O.S.A. purchased the Belle Air estate from John Rudolph for $18,000 dollars. The estate consisted of only the Rudolph mansion and a barn. With but five Augustinians in the United States, Villanova was thus organized.

In 1884 an Academy was constructed to house the students, and a chapel was built, which was then known as St. Rita's. The former Rudolph household contained classrooms and the barn was transformed into a gymnasium. At that time the school had nine faculty members and ten students all studying the Arts.

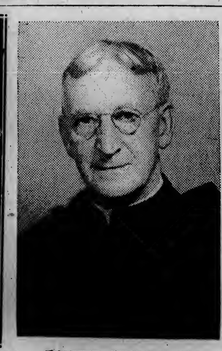
Because of the increasing enrollment of students a west wing was added to the Academy in 1874. The building had within it both classrooms and dormitories and soon came to be known as College Hall. Soon after, a gymnasium was also added as an east wing. This structure is the only symbol of old Villanova. It is now Alumni Hall, so called because the Alumni contributed the major portion of the funds needed to make the additional wings.

Chapel Built in 1887

As the chapel that was in existence became too small to accomodate both students and surrounding parishioners, a new one was erected in 1887. This chapel was to be in the center of the campus, to be taller and more beautiful than any of the otehr buildings. The still stands in all the splendor it was meant to be.

In 1893 the college consisted of three buildings; a chapel, a dormitory and classroom building and the monastery.

The Belle Aire mansion was rebuilt in 1902 and used as a preparatory school for Augustinain novices. A little over a decade later the first fire occured at Villanova destroying this building and inflicting a $100,000 damage. However, on May 4, 1914, as a result of a donation by a man named Corr, the seminary was again constructed. It was then known as Corr Hall and now called St. Mary's Hall.



A monastery was built in 1893 and Mendel Hall, named in honor of the famed Augustinian scientist, was completed in 1902. Both of these structures met with disaster by fire at different times. The first "great fire" occured in 1929 devastating the entire interior of Mendel Hall with the exception of the west wing, housing the present cafeteria and Pie Shop. In 1931 the monastery was burned completely to the ground. Mendel Hall was reconstructed in a few years and a new modern monastery was erected.

A Big Improvement

With the advent of the Commerce and Finance building in 1925 Villanova really began to show its expansion. In 1927 the stadium made its appearance and in 1932 the construction of the Field House enabled the college to carry on its sports program. Fedigan and Austin Halls made available more room for resident students, while the acquisition of nearby homes made still more.

Squadron 7. In 1944 he was assigned to command of the Philippine Sea Frontier; for his outstanding achievements in this command he was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal.

The procession will then move to the site of the Library where ground will be broken by the Very Reverend Joseph A. Hickey, O.S.A., Assistant General of the Order of St. Augustine. Dr. Hickey will be surrounded by the Library Staff and the "Friends of the Villanova College Library." The latter group is the committee of alumni and outstanding laymen who did such an outstanding job of raising the funds for construction of the building.

Alumni Hall

The ceremonies will be concluded in front of Alumni Hall, returning again to the oldest College building. The Band will play from the porch of Alumni Hall that faces the Grotto. On the porch will be gathered the distinguished guests of the day. Pius Cardinal for this special occasion will be the doorstep from the entrance to the original College Chapel. The step was saved at the time the building was torn down, and it was placed among other College relics.

Standing on the old doorstep, The Very Reverend Francis X. N. McGuire will address the assembled throng on the significance of the project begun that day The assembly will then sing the Alma Mater and the National Anthem.

The proceedings will close with the ringing of the old College Bell, a sister to the Liberty Bell hanging in Independence Hall in Philadelphia. The Bell was used for seventy years to call students to classes and to Chapel. It will be rung by Reverend Daniel O'Mahoney, O.S.A., 91, the oldest living Augustinian in the United States. Father O'Mahoney has been a priest for 66 years, and was here at Villanova in the days when the bell was in use.

In Case of Rain

In case of inclement weather, Father McGuire's addresss will be transferred to the Chapel. In the Chapel there will be Solemn Benediction, followed by the address.

Luncheon will be served at one o'clock. The guests, priests, and faculty will be served in the Monastery Dining Room. Residing students will be served in the Field House.

One spade will be used for all three sites, to signify the unity of purpose of the project. After the ceremony it will be suitably engraved and space will be found for it among the other relics of College history. A room has been planned for in the new library as a Museum for these historical pieces. Many of these objects will be on display in the Field House on the day of the ground breaking ceremonies.

Among the guests to whom invitations have been sent asking their presence at the ceremony will be many local Augustinians, the former Provincial, and former College administrators. Also invited are representatives of the architect, Henry Dagit & Sons, and of the contractor, McCloskey and Co.

The Villanovan extends sympathy to Randolph S. Ewing, Jr., Freshman Engineering, whose mother died last week.

Schedule of Ground Breaking

1. Masses to be said for the special intention of the construction project:

6:30 AM—Low mass for Underclass Resident Students,
Rev. E. B. McKea, O.S.A.
7:00 AM—Low mass for Upperclass Resident Students,
Very Rev. M. A. Sullivan, O.S.A.
7:30 AM—Low mass for Day Students,
Very Rev F. X. N. McGuire, O.S.A.
8:30 AM—Low mass for Faculty and Employes,
Very Rev. J. A. Hickey, O.S.A.
11:00 AM—Solemn High Mass for all those who can attend,
Very Rev. J. M. Dougherty, O.S.A.
Rev. E. B. McKee, O.S.A.
Rev. E. Dwyer, O.S.A.

2. Ground breaking ceremonies
11:50 AM—Classes suspended.
12:00 N. —Assembly of NROTC unit in present Armory.
12:15 PM—Assembly between Alumni Hall and St. Rita's Hall.
12:25 PM—Procession starts.
12:50 PM—Address by Very Rev. F.X.N. McGuire, president of Villanova College from steps of Alumni Hall. (In case of inclement weather this part of the program will be cancelled and there will be Benediction and Father McGuire's Address in the Chapel).
1:00 PM—Lunch.
Resident Students in the Student Dining Hall.
Day Students will be served a buffet lunch in the Field House.
2:00 PM—Classes resume.

Until after the conclusion of the ceremonies, all auto traffic will be closed off in the area between Spring Mill Road and the Chapel.

Essay Contest To be Held By Inter-Racials

Justice Week at Villanova During March Will Foster Harmony Between Races

Plans to observe Inter-racial Justice Week at Villanova, from March 1 to March 8, are rapidly taking definite form, it was announced by John Mallick, president of the Villanova Inter-racial Club.

The idea of holding an Inter-racial Justice Week in Catholic colleges was conceived several years ago by members of the National Federation of Catholic College Students, to bring home to Catholic college students as well as to the general public, the need for a more perfect exemplification of the essential unity of all races and peoples under the fatherhood of God.

In this connection the Villanova Inter-racial Club has resolved, among other activities, to sponsor a Poster and Essay Contest. The general theme of essays and posters is "Inter-racial Justice." Any constuctive aspect of this topic, which will tend to foster better understanding and justice between whites and negroes will be considered.

Any student may enter—it is not necessary to belong to the Inter-racial Club—and as many entries as desired may be entered in either or both fields. The essay (or editorial) should not exceed 500 words. Any size poster may be submitted, but the display size is preferred.

All entries should be in the hands of Jack Mallick, President, 403 Mendel, or Father Lunney, Moderator, before February 18.

The best essay (or editorial) will be printed in the Villanovan during Inter-racial Week, and the best poster will be displayed in Mendel Hall.

Reorganization of Arts Fraternity Planned

Arts Students Will Meet With Father McShea to Revive Epsilon Phi Theta

During the next two weeks, beginning with a general meeting to be held on Thursday, January 23, a group of students, led by Don Collins, will attempt to revive the Epsilon Phi Theta Fraternity on the campus. Faculty moderator for the "Arts" fraternity will be Father McShea of the English department.

The primary purposes of this first meeting are to select a constitutional committee and to secure an estimate of those students interested in joining such an organization. The functions, aims, and bylaws of the group will largely await the definition of this committee, but a general plan has been formulated. Those eligible for admission to the fraternity are the members of the "Arts" school; English, History, and Psychology majors.

The fraternity, if successfully instituted, will start with a moderate treasury surplus. The funds are to be derived from the last Interfraternity Ball held in April of 1946.

Publication Planned

The program tentatively decided upon includes among its activities regular semi-monthly meetings. These will feature addresses by members of the faculty and by guest speakers from other organizations of similar or sympathetic nature, both on and off the campus.

The publication of a literary periodical is also under consideration. Father McShea believes that such a publication could be an asset to a school the size of Villanova and that this is a project that rightly falls within the scope of an "Arts" fraternity.

The first meeting will be held in room 215, Mendel, at 12:50 P.M. on Thursday, January 23. Membership application blanks are now available at the information desk and the Villanovan office for those who will be unable to attend the initial meeting. When filled out, they may be returned to the Villanovan office.

Senior President On Graduation

On February 2, 1947, approximately 40 seniors will bid adieu to their undergraduate days at Villanova. For some it was a short stay — a return to complete but a semester's work; for others it is the consumation of long continuous scholastic labor; for still a few others it is merely the completion of the ground work for further study; but for all the graduation ceremony will mark their formal exodus from the halls of Villanova.

It is truly a motley group, probably the most heterogenous array that has ever left Villanova. It is composed of members of the graduating classes from as far back as 1942.

Nevertheless, this group is a part of the class of 1947. Ex-soldier, sailor, marine, or civilian; class of 42, 43, 44, 45, or 46 — all have combined to form an integral part of this year's senior class.

Special commendation is due those men who, despite the fact that they returned when things were partially in motion, participated in the activities at hand and performed their tasks with alacricity. Their interest was indeed gratifying if not surprising, under the conditions which existed.

To these men as cooperative members of the class go the heartfelt wishes of the officers and other felicitators for the greatest of success and happiness in in their future endeavors and undertakings.

well, co-holders of the World's Record for this distance, Tom Carey, Harvey Kilsey, Eulace Peacock and Arthur Smith are the most important men of the group of champions and former champions entered in this event.

Conwell, who is running for N.Y.U., in 1944 took the IC4A championships for the indoor 60 yard and outdoor 100 yard dasnes and won every race that year except those in which he was disqualified for false starts. Carey is the present indoor 60 yard champion. Kilsey, who is just back from the service, was unbeaten in 1943, and was the IC4A sprint champion. Peacock was the National champion in the 100 and 220 yard dashes, and the broad jump champ in 1935—the year in which he defeated Jesse Owens; and Art Smith is the present open champ for the 100 yard dash—running that distance in 9.7 seconds.

Entry in 1,000 Yard

Roy Cameron, Jim Kennedy and Frank Hinnenkamp, will represent Villanova in the 1,000 yard handicap.

Roscoe Brown, Stanton Callender, Elmore Harris, Louis Smith, Al Dailey, and Jim Herbert are the most formidable of the host of speed kings in the handicap.

Brown is the present Middle Atlantic A.A.U. half mile champ; Callender is the present 1,000 yard IC4A champ; Harris is the 600 yard National Indoor champ; and Louis is the present N.C.A.A. half mile champ. Al Dailey is a former IC4A half mile champ; and Jim Herbert was the National A.A.U. 600 yard champ in 1945.

Mile Relay Best Bet

The mile relay will be divided into four events or classes. Villanova's baton handlers will be in the fourth event. Also in class "D" are Brown Univ., Syracuse U. and the University of Pennsylvania.

The Wildact team will be made up of George Guida, John "Dutch" McCarthy, Ed Fitzgerald, and Gene Kelly. The men entered as alternates in this event are: Bob O'Sullivan, Roy Cameron, and Browning Ross.

Immediately after this meet is over, Browning Ross, George Guida and the mile relay team will entrain for Boston. On the following night, Saturday, Ross will run the two mile and Guida the 400 yard event in the Boston K. of C. meet to be held in the Boston Garden.

A.I.E.E. Nominates Frat Officers

At a meeting of the Villanova Chapter of the A.I.E.E., presided over by William F. Boyle, on Tues. January 14, the following men were nominated for offices to be held during the coming semester: Chairman, H. Edwards, Vice-Chairman, L. Fallow, Secretary, Joe Kryzyzoiak, R. Higgs, Treasurer, L. Lyons, W. Wynne.

These nominees are subject to approval. The election will be held Wednesday Jan. 22 in the E. E. lab. at 12:50. All members are requested to cast ballots.

Members of the Senior Electrical Engineering Dept. under the direction of Prof. Harry S. Bueche will attend the annual National Convention of the A.I.E.E. to be held in New York City, Jan. 27 to 31. As this convention is the outstanding event of the organization during the scholastic year, many students are expected to attend.

Activities Curtailed

Activities during the present semester have been curtailed to some extent due to the varied schedule of the members. However, several motion pictures were presented at evening meetings, which proved very interesting.

It is hoped that arrangements of schedules in the future will allow activities on a par with prewar days to be held.

A. I. Ch. E.—The Villanova Student Chapter of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers presented a motion picture program on Tuesday evening, January 14, for the benefit of all engineering and chemistry students. A Walt Disney feature, sponsored by Firestone, depicted the process of tire manufacture from the gathering of the crude rubber to the shipment of the finished tire.

The program was rounded out with the showing of motion pictures of the Villanova — Temple football game played at Temple Stadium in 1941.

More than fifty student engineers witnessed the presentation, which was giveen in the Senior Drawing Room.

Pins were distributed to new members of the Villanova Student Chapter of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers at a meeting held on Thursday, January 14 at 12:30 P. M.

Members of the society also received a reprint copy of the editorial section of Mechanical Engineering (December 1946 issue). Plans were discussed for plant trips during the coming semester.

Symphonic Band Ends Semester's Activity

New Program Being Prepared for Next Concert Series; Broadcast Commended

Chestnut Hill College was the scene of the last informal concert of the present semester given by the Villanova College Symphonic Band under the direction of Rev. Ralph Handran, OSA. The band played before a large receptive audience of students and sisters who responded gratefully to the visit of the first post-war Villanova musical organization.

The concert was held in the Chestnut Hill College auditorium at 8:00 P. M. Attractive programs were distributed to the audience and served to indicate the smooth organizational facility of Jim Rodgers, band manager.

This concert, like previous concerts of the past season, was held on an informal basis. Father Handran punctuated the program with spontaneous remarks about the music and about personalities on the band roster.

Included in the program were selections of Grieg and Schubert, a trumpet solo by Dave English, a trombone trio, several marches, a popular gay-nineties medley, "Belle of the Ball", which was called back for encore, and, as the surprise of the evening, the playing of the Chestnut Hill Alma Mater by the band. "Service Memories" was warmly applauded. In this selection the band members arose as their former service anthems were being played. Navy veterans predominated among the band, with a sprinkling of representatives from the Army Ground Forces, Army Air Corps, and Marine Corps.

Fr. Handran received an ovation when a spontaneous announcement, in behalf of the members of the band, was made to the effect that he had served as Chaplain, with the rank of Lieut. Comdr., USNR, earning eight battle stars, aboard the aircraft carrier USS Cowpens.

Upon the completion of the program, refreshments were served in the cafeteria. An informal dance followed, tendered in honor of the band. At the conclusion of the dance a special bus returned the band to the Villanova campus.

Since October the band has played before audiences at Rosemont, Immaculata, and Chestnut Hill Colleges, and at Malvern Prep. A transcription of the band with the Glee Club was made for Radio Station WIBG, Philadelphia, before the Christmas recess began, and

The Spirit of Service

TELEPHONE LINEMEN braving blizzards to keep lines up and calls moving . . . telephone girls refusing to leave their switchboards even while floods mount and fires rage . . . former telephone employees coming back to work of their own accord to help out in a crisis . . . All this is a familiar story to the public.

To telephone people, it's tradition.

It's the spirit of service that makes telephone people think first and act first in the interests of the public.

It's a devotion to duty that no thing and no one can possibly destroy.

It's loyalty to a cause that is greater than those who teach it, those who learn it, those who feel it, and those who stand by it.

For telephone people, from fledglings to old timers, know what telephone service is and what it means and what it must continue to be.

They know that a single telephone call can be the difference between life and death, joy and sorrow, success and failure, victory and defeat.

They know that nothing must stop telephone calls from going through.

Nothing!

You count on telephone people. You always have. You always can.

They know their obligation. They live it. It's a part of their very fibre. It's second nature to them. It's the thing that keeps telephone service going against any obstacles. It's the thing that seems to produce miracles of service when miracles are needed.

It's the thing that assures telephone service for the people of Pennsylvania . . . come what may.

Alcohol - A Remover

Alcohol will remove grass stains from summer clothes. It will also remove summer clothes; also spring and winter clothes, not only from the man who drinks it but also from his wife and children. It will also remove household furniture from the house and eatables from the pantry; the smile from the face of his wife, and the happiness from the home. As a remover, alcohol has few equals.

We've got some famous men gracing our campus. Outstanding (like a sore thumb) among these is Vincent McPeak, after whom Pike's McPeak was named. Early in life, Vince showed a liking for the higher things in life by making mountains out of molehills.

Later in life, he took up reporting and specialized in interviewing gophers in their native habitat on the campus of Minnesota. During this, he was often heard to remark, "I could gopher you, babe." Lately he has fallen in love and is going steady with a girl named Angina. She is now known as Vincent's Angina.

Congrats to Dave English on that masterful piece of poetry. We have only one comment. That is, make it shorter. Or better still, not at all. Speaking of poetry, we especially like that poem by F. P. Adams. It's entitled, "Fleas" and is reported to be the shortest poem on record.

Quite a few people have asked us how we manage to find so much corn to put in our column. Here's the recipe:

Popcorn Balls

1½ cups corn syrup
1 cup sugar
1 tablespoon water
1 tablespoon butter
1 tablespoon vinegar
Vanilla

Pop enough corn to make about 12 cups of popped corn and use either whole or grind with coarse knife of the food chopper. Then take a small freshman and smear him with syrup. If you haven't any syrup, just take a small freshman and smear him. This will give you more pleasure than popcorn balls anyway so take the whole gooey mess and throw it into the garbage can.

We're so fastidious that we always read Emily Post's column on Etiquette. You might be interested in improving your table manners (after all, eating peas from a knife is all right providing that you extend the little pinkies of each hand while doing it) so here we go with a clipping from dear Emily's works.

"Dear Mrs. Post: I have a friend who never stops brushing her coat. When she arrives, if she can't find the brush, she asks for it and proceeds to brush her coat thoroughly and then it is hung in our coat closet. When she is ready to go home she invariably does the same thing over again! Is this good manners?

Answer: One might have to ask for a clothesbrush on occasion, for example, if one encountered a long white-haired dog on the way. But your friend's behaviour sounds to me like an obsession which belongs in the field of the psychiatrist rather than this column."

Now Emily, don't you think that you're being more than a bit unfair in your conclusions. After all, this friend may really be meeting a long white-haired dog on every one of her trips. Or maybe she's meeting a short white-haired dog on these trips. Or maybe a long black-haired dog. Or a long short-haired dog. Don't try to evade this issue, Emily, by sending her off to some buggy M.D. with a section eight plus a non compes mentis. The party that writes you on this subject is probably trying to give this lifelong friend the brushoff. If she has the time to sit down and write you letters, she probably hasn't cleaned her closet for a month and this friend doesn't care to hang up her long white-haired dog in a dirty closet. After all, a dog is man's best friend. In fact we've known some friends who were dogs. So please, Emily, when some lazy housewife skips cooking her husband's dinner to tear down her barking dogs just because a friend gave her the brushoff, think twice. It's things like this that lead to unrest, in the masses.

There was the sculptor who fell in the mud puddle—the dirty chiseler.

BEHIND THE 6

was determined to be there but had girl trouble at the last minute, and had to spend much time looking for a refund.

Ballet

The music of McIntyre was terrific, but when Bill (Step & Fetchit) Leighton was jitterbuggin' the boys just huddled around, poor Margie.

Boston

If anyone cared to know the name of the Senior who resembles a contortionist while dancing, it was Wally Collins. To learn this Boston arm-breaking step, see Wally in the E. E. lab any afternoon, he also knows of a cheap doctor.

Boosters

Glad to see Alumni members Al Hurford and Jack Glancy at the Ball, they never miss. The Jordans, Don, Dick, John and Nancy, were probably the most represented family at the occasion future ticket committee's please note.

Bashful?

One of the big highlights of the evening was when Dan (where's my carbon paper) Fisher "was forced" to get McIntyre's autograph, looks bad Dan.

Bonair

Bud Hunter and the Misses were a big attraction, seems that Joy has become well known as "The Knitter" but was quite unaware of her popularity.

Backfire

The Inseparables, Edwards & Fallon were missed in the "Follow Me March" but the reason for their delay "Obie" arrived just on time. Larry lost 20 points with Marie, but we guess Harry doesn't have to worry about such trivialities.

Buddy

Most conspicuous by his absence was Ned (I still say I kicked that point) Hoffner. To Ned goes the Orchid of the week for his self sacrificing deed. It seems that it was his week with Sue, but seeing a (friend) in need, Ned came through for the Alma Mater. Not only did he relinquish his time for Friday night but he also gave his friend a few pointers, much to the amusement of Dick Devine, Jim Carroll, and all the others concerned. It really would have been something if his friend, none other than the President of the Senior Class, had come stag, wonder how Sue feels about all this?

Briefs

As we sit here in our dimly lit room, they're strict about the electric bill nowadays, we like to rem . . . rem . . . look back on the current semester, and strangely enough we find that all was not bitter. It is true that we were pretty crowded in class and that lines were so long for the bookstore that we still don't have all our books, but there were lots of good times which overshadowed these rough times. For instance there was the first Football game with Kings Point. It was our homecoming game and we saw many fellows that we hadn't seen in two and three years. The victory that day made the event all the more glorious.

The Pep-rally before the Georgetown game was the revival of the spirit and enthusiasm which marked each football game in the days before the war.

Rosemont's first tea dance was a huge success. Many new friendships started and many old ones were renewed. Bill Boyle, John Burke and Lovey Quinn were a few of the regulars who returned.

Then there was that thrilling Miami game in which Bob Polidar ran 100 yards for one of our touchdowns. It was at this game that Jim Lyons was running all over the stands getting those Florida oranges so that Mom could have them for breakfast next day.

The first dance of the season, The Library Fund Dance, was a huge success. Matt Kearney as Master of Ceremonies tried his best to chase everybody away, but he was unsuccessful.

It was along about this time that the Symphonic Band gave their second concert. It was held at Immaculata College, and the audience consisted of the girls and Ed Sullivan.

On December 11 a few of the disgusted engineers tried to set fire to Mendel Hall by backing a flaming gasoline truck into it. An alert fire department, however, thwarted their attempts. Try again fellows.

The Sophomores had their dance on Dec. 14 and a lot of credit should be given to Joe D'Auria and Phil Appleby for their splendid work in making it such a huge success.

The Christmas vacation came along about then and were we glad. After the vacation the Phi Kappa Pi held their initiations, a cruel and bloody affair.

The Belle Air Ball, of which we have already mentioned, was held last Friday night January 17, and it clamaxed the Fall Semester.

Therefore all and all we can say that the semester was really one that won't be soon forgotten.

Symphonic Band

was played on New Year's Day as a salute to the people of the Philadelphia area from Villanova College. Resident students remember the band for its first post-war caroling just before the Christmas holidays, which drew widespread praise from students, professors, and prominent visitors. At the conclusion of a successful season the Band is now looking forward to a better season in the forthcoming semester.

Interviews Vernon

MATT KEARNEY, JR.

Presenting: Mickey Vernon

By MATT KEARNEY, JR.

Fortune certainly smiled on us this week! Faced with the problem of filling twelve pages, we ran point blank into an informal interview with the batting champ of the American League in 1946, Mickey Vernon. Mickey as you know, plays first base for the Washington Senators and last season, despite Ted William's publicity, slipped quietly but emphatically into the 1946 batting championship of thde American League.

Former Villanovan

Mickey, who attended Villanova in 1936, is a quiet, unassuming guy and is blessed with a genial personality. This is January of 1947 and Vernon is still all smiles over his remarkable feat. He is easy to talk to and was free with any information he could give us.

As a preliminary to our story, we might give the information on how we came to meet Mickey. George Case, of the Cleveland Indians, lives four blocks away from my home and happens to be a friend of my father. It seems the Speed King of the Majors played host this week to his old team mate Vernon, and quite by chance we had the pleasure of meeting Mickey.

"Feller's Got It"

When questioned about who he thought was the best pitcher in the American League, Mickey was quick to reply that Bobby Feller really had it. Surprisingly, Vernon said that Feller's curve was his best pitch in view of the fact that Bob recorded most of his strikeouts by using his hook. However, Mickey quickly came back and said that trying to hit Feller's fast one was no picnic.

The pitcher who gave Mickey the most trouble this year, according to Vernon, was Jesse Flores, of the Philadelphia Athletics. The records show that Mickey got only two hits off Flores in four games he played against him.

A usual question was asked Mickey then: "Who do you think will win the American League pennant this year?"

"Washington, of course!" was Vernon's smiling reply.

Curiosity prompted our next query: "Do you think baseball was played any better in the day of 'old-timers'? "

"Well, you can draw your own conclusions, but records set up by the 'old-timers' are being broken every day in every sport," and Mick awaited the next question.

"What do you think of the news of Hank Greenberg's trade to the Pirates?"

On Greenberg

"Things like that happen all the time. Hank certainly isn't washed up when he can hit 44 home runs." Vernon then went through an explanation of the waiver system and how the Pittsburgh team made the deal for Greenberg.

We asked him what he thought of the bean-ball. Vernon told us, "You've got to be loose at the plate when they are being thrown. I think the Dodgers are the only team that uses that pitch consistently."

Mickey interrupted to sign an autograph, and then related his experiences on the barnstorming trip he took with Bobby Feller last Fall. He told of ho wcoming into a town the weather reports indicated cold weather and snow. He asked Feller if they were going to play. Feller said: "Sure, if it doesn't snow."

We thanked Mickey for his consideration and took our leave. There couldn't be a nicer fellow to know and we all wish him every success in 1947..

Brogan Elected New Student Council Head

Chairman to Broach Plans for New Semester, to Appoint Successor at Next Meeting

Joseph Brogan, senior Electrical Engineering student, has been elected president of the Student Council for the current semester. The appointment comes to him after three years affiiliation with the student-government and vigorous activity with numerous other campus organizations.

Vice-President of the Council is Donald Collins who succeeds himself to that position. The office of Secretary-Treasurer is to be filled at the body's first gathering.

A meeting of the council will be held this Thursday at noon in Room 110 Mendel Hall. All members are to attend. Besides filling the vacant office mentioned above the work of the semester will be outlined. Another appointee to be made at this time is that of a senior class representative to attend, and report upon, Alumni functions. This appointment is at the request of the latter body.

North Catholic Graduate

The new president lives within St. Anne Parish in Kensington. He graduated from Northeast Catholic High School in 1943 under the three and one-half year program, in effect then. At North, Brogan was active on the Bowling and Swiming teams.

He completed one year at Villanova in an engineering course before the Army interrupted his education. There followed service training at Fort Benning, Georgia, at the ASTP school; and assignments to OCS, plans for which never materialized, and duty in the 86th Division at Camp Livingston, La. He was medically discharged from Longview General Hospital, Longview, Texas.

Active in Many Groups

Joe returned to Villanova in the fall of 1944 as a sophomore. For the next three years he was active in many groups. Outstanding among his extra-curricular activities are membership on the Villanovan News and Sports Staff, in the Phi Kappa Phi, engineering fraternity, in which he served terms as Treasurer and Vice President, in the American Institute of Electrical Engineers Chapter and, of course, on the Student Council. At present besides his council position he is Vice President of the AIEE, and President of the Phi Kappa Pi.

Among the latest honors of which Joe is the recipient is the announcement that he will be listed in the 1947 edition of Who's Who in American Colleges.

Asked as to his plans during his tenure of office the new President said he would like to faithfully handle all student complaints and to insure the smooth operation of all student activities so as to be conductive to maximum cooperation among the student body, the faculty and all groups connected with the college, such as alumni, parents, etc.

New Buildings Get Underway

Work Progressing Despite Cold Weather

Great progress is being made on Villanova's important building program. This advance is most evident in the case of the three imposing structures for which ground was recently broken.

Excavation has been going on despite the cold and inclement weather. Bulldozers, steam shovels, trucks, and graders are making short work of the frozen turf.

A serviceable tool shed, resembling a small prefabricated house, has already been constructed.

Besides excavating and grading, the construction men have been unloading lumber, steel reinforcing rods, and other equipment. The concrete forms for the foundations are now being laid and the concrete will be poured as soon as possible. To facilitate and expedite the construction of these forms, an electric power saw has been set up on the campus.

To insure that the forms are laid level and true, the surveyor is keeping a constant check on grade lines.

The new boiler for the chemical engineering building, a sixty horse power, high pressure water tube boiler, which will supply process steam for the unit operations equipment as well as the new steam turbine equipment has arrived and is stored on the campus.

Years of planning are at last beginning to reach fruition. With work being carried out on schedule, it is highly probable that all present Villanova students, with the exception of the seniors, will be able to avail themselves of the services of these new buildings.

Year Book To Be Printed in March

Belle Aire to Have Many New Features

Tom Schubert, Belle Aire editor, has announced that the year book will go to press on March 4th. It's theme will be based on St. Augustine's immortal work The City of God.

The many illustrations expressing the theme are the handiwork of Eamon Walsh and Ed Wilbur. Schubert has commended the entire staff for their excellent work, with special commendation for the fine work of Ray Cummings and Jim Mitchell.

Twenty-fifth Issue

Since this is the twenty-fifth year of issue of the Belle Aire, a special feature has been included which gives an account of the history of the year book. Another special feature has been included describing the process of "going to press." Pictures for the year book were made by Zamsky Studios.

Concerning the coming edition of the Belle Aire, editor Tom Schubert has said, "We don't expect to come up to the high standards of pre-war issues, but this year book will cover more features than previous issues."

Dramatic Club To Present Three One-Act Plays

Casts To Be Selected From Student Body in Near Future

The recently revived Villanova Dramatic Club has announced plans for a late March offering. Under its moderator, Rev. William J. Krupa, OSA, the club will present three one-act plays.

Eugene O'Neill's drama of mood "Where the Cross Is Made," and Susan Glaspell's tale of subtle revenge, "Trifles," have definitely been chosen and are now in the process of casting. A third play, in the vein of comedy, is being sought, and an announcement will be shortcoming.

The various difficulties accruing to the resurrection of the Club are gradually being surmounted, with the assured cooperation of the school authorities. Final organizational matters are pending, and with their solution the Club can again occupy its place of prominence among student activities. There are no hindrances to membership, and all are invited and urged to join. All interested should contact Fr. Krupa or his assistants, Mr. Whalen and Mr. Scanlon.

Local Colleges Cooperate

The cordial cooperation of Rosemont College's Dramatic Club has been obtained, and this has supplied the Club with the needed actresses for the forthcoming production. Future plans include cooperating with Rosemont in a series of plays to be presented at Rosemont sometime in April. A like project with Immaculata College is in the embryo stage. A full-length spring production here is also being contemplated.

Time and place for try-outs and rehearsals will be posted on the main bulletin boards of the school. Any other important announcements will be made in the Villanovan. The Club needs but one thing now for assured success, the cooperation of the student body.

ATTENTION SENIORS

There will be a meeting of all Seniors IIs tomorrow, Wednesday, at 12:30 P. M. in room 215 Mendel for the purpose of nominating candidates for the position of Student Representative on the Alumni Board of Governors. It is important that a representative number be present for the nomination, which will be as brief as possible. It is hoped that a statement of the class's financial condition will be ready at that time.

Campus Additions To Be Temporary Structures

Extra Buildings Will Provide Classroom and Office Space to Accommodate 400 Student

"Two more building units will be added to the Villanova Campus this spring," was announced last Thursday by Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., president of the College. The two new units will serve as a pie shop and as an extra classroom building.

The one building which will serve as a classroom building is now serving as a Navy administration building at Port Cummington, Maryland. The building is one - hundred and thirty-five feet by fourty-two feet and is two stories high. The wooden structure will house sixteen new classrooms and six offices for use of the faculty. Prendergast and company has been awarded the contract for construction. That is the organization which handled the construction of the dormitory barracks.

Work to Start Soon

As soon as possible the building will be panelized and transported to the Villanova campus. Father McGuire announced that if conditions were favorable, the work would begin soon.

It is estimated that the new building will serve as class-room space for four-hundred new students and as office space for eighteen members of the faculty. This was the first release which turned up to end the classroom shortage which has been so pressing and which has forced the administration to introduce night classes in the college for the first time in its history.

To Replace Pie-Shop

The new pie shop will be built from six steel sash frame buildings acquired by the college from the War Assets Administration. These buildings measure twenty-feet by fourty-eight feet and will be joined together to form an over-all structure of over five thousand square feet floor space. Four of the six buildings will be arranged in a square and will serve as the cafeteria proper. This building will be able to serve all the students and will replace the pie-shop which is now in the basement of Mendel Hall.

The serving line of the new cafeteria will be fourty-eight feet long and will be served by the most modern equipment. This equipment has been purchased and is already in storage on the campus. The other two buildings will be joined to the lunchroom along the center of one of its sides, thus forming a T-shaped structure. They will house the kitchen and storage facilitie There also will be some auxiliary buildings erected to complete the plant. Although it is not known just when the buildings will be completed but the latest possible date is for the opening of the fall semester.

Villanova Band Gives Concert

Evening of Fine Music a Big Success

Continuing its series of informal concerts, the Villanova College Symphonic Band, under the direction of Rev. Ralph Handran, OSA, played before a gathering of about five hundred students and guests in the Field House, on Monday evening, February 17.

The band played a program similar to those presented at Immaculata, Chestnut Kill, Rosemont, and Malvern Prep. Between selections Fr. Handran punctuated the program with frequent comments and interpretations which often brought bursts of laughter from the assemblage.

Included in the program were marches, a trumpet solo, "Ave Maria," by Dave English; "Bassology," featuring the seldom-recognized basses; "Three Trombonists," played by William Chauvenet, George Beitzer, and James Duffy, with band accompaniment, "Belle of the Ball," a medley of gay-nineties songs, with audience participation; "Service Memories," a collection of marching songs of the Field Artillery, Marine Corps, Air Corps, and Navy. The program ended with the playing and singing of the Villanova College Alma Mater, and the National Anthem.

The concert was held in the best theatrical manner, the gym having been draped with special acoustic curtains used during stage performances. Comfortable seating was provided, and printed programs were distributed. Every detail was faithfully arranged through the efforts of Jim Rodgers, Band manager.

Alumni Vote Senior Delegate

New Policy of Representation Written Into Association's By-Laws

The Alumni Association of Villanova College, at a recent meeting, passed a new amendment providing for liaison between the student body and the association.

The new amendment was passed at a regular meeting of the Association and was adopted by the Board of Governors on August 11, 1946.

The Association feels that an active, creative-minded member of the senior class showing zeal, loyalty, and unselfish service will be an asset.

This senior will also be instrumental in instilling in the minds of the student body a clear understanding of the aims and principles of the Alumni Association, and in acquainting the students with the true alumni spirit.

Senior To Be Elevated to Board

The amendment proposes that, at the beginning of each academic year, an outstanding member of the senior class, elected by the senior class, and approved by the President of the College, serve as a special member of the Board of Governors. This student will then become a minority appointee by the President of the Alumni Asen,

ATTENTION STAFF MEMBERS

There will be a general meeting of the Villanovan staff in the newspaper office, 119 Mendel on Tuesday, February 25 at 1:00 A.M. It is necessary that all men attend the meeting at which the organization of the newspaper for this semester will be set up.

It is necessary that former members attend so that information may be obtained for the presentation of Keys to the staff. Some of the records are incomplete, and if there is no objection raised at this meeting, the plans will be carried out as they now stand.

If anyone wishes to become a member of the staff and could not make the meeting last week, he may still sign up. There are some positions on the sports staff that are still open.

Statement . . .

This is the first edition of this newspaper for the spring semester and the first under the present staff. Whenever a newspaper passes under new management it is necessary that the editor declare the editorial policy of the paper. This then is our policy.

During the next semester, the Villanovan will attempt complete coverage of all news of the campus, of the administration, of the sports, and of the societies of the students. Since the newspaper is the only extra-curricular activity which reaches the entire student body, it will be the purpose of the paper to correlate and be of service to all the student organizations.

In addition to the news, this paper will print a set of features for information and amusement. The content of our features will be decided by the preference of the student body as it is interpreted by the staff. Each week this paper will print a number of editorials dealing with college and world affairs. The paper will accept for consideration editorials from any member of the student body.

All the departments will strive to attain the highest possible level of efficiency in rendering their service to the student body.

For The New Order . . .

Since the close of the war, Villanova has received several students from foreign countries eager to gain knowledge under the American educational system. Villanova welcomes these students.

The point to be considered is the determination of a certain Polish student recently admitted to the college. His background is certainly not one of luxurious living. He had the mental anguish of not knowing the fate of his family in war torn Warsaw. After a valiant struggle to live, and the finding of his family, his friends, and his home in a state of confusion, unrest and disillusionment, he was not despondent to the degree one would expect.

In contrast, he has gained admittance to Villanova College to attain knowledge and wisdom and apply these things to the building up of a new and better way of life. These things, seemingly of little value separately, when grouped together in the human intellect will serve as a background for constructive thinking and definite progress in analyzing the causes for such things as war, pestilence, and poverty.

The courage of men under these circumstances is displayed in his desire to foster his education in a land foreign to his own. It is sure that the knowledge gained will be useful in any place in the world. If only all nations would interchange students in this manner, their manner of thinking would become more unified and serve to coordinate the efforts of diplomats and statesmen in moulding the policies of the world powers into a pattern of peace and prosperity.

The study of foreign language, international law, and diplomacy would ameliorate the conditions existing in diplomatic circles today. That is, ambassadors could speak to leaders of other nations in their native tongues on solid ground and carry on a convincing argument as to the settlement of mutual difficulties. This end can be attained by knowledge of the right subjects, and it is certain that many obstacles can be overcome and a faster, more amicable settlement of world affairs may be reached.

Positive Action . . .

Last Wednesday began the holy season of Lent. The season is one of fasting and self-denial in preparation for the anniversary of the passion, death, and resurrection of Our Lord.

The Catholic faith prescribes certain obligations for the faithful during this time, the purpose of which is to bring the will of men once again in conformity with the will of God. It is important that we do not confuse the purpose behind Lent with the specific measures we take to reach this end.

Man is a rational animal and thus his will is continually torn between two standards. In order that man conform his will to God's he must deny his body and perform acts of will so that it might become a strong and a willing facility. The character of a man is the summation of his ability to control his will, thus Lent is primarily a period for the building of character.

The strengthening of the will can be accomplished by positive acts as well as by denial. This positive approach is all too often forgotten in consequence of the puritanical tradition in American religion. By positive action man can merit grace, and make easier his practices of denial.

Principally, the Catholic religion is built on love, love for God and love for fellow man. The love of faith is kindness and unselfishness, and this kindness and unselfishness should be our principle devotion during Lent and throughout the year. Kindness to our associates, teachers, administrators, and to all with whom we come into contact is the Catholic way of life, and the only practical manner in which to a free society can be carried on.

Labor Before the Law . . .

One of the principles upon which the American government is based is the equality of every man before the law. Just what this principle means, however, and therefore how it is to be applied is not immediately clear. Certainly in our courts circumstances determine to a great degree the punishment of a crime. Malice afore-thought and temporary insanity have become stock phrases in court decisions. The conditions of the crime, the education, circumstances and social position of the accused are all taken into account in the decision rendered.

It is therefore evident that the equality of the law is something very simple and very fundamental, meaning that men are equal only in their essence and not in the accidental qualities which they have acquired.

There has been much flaunting of this phrase lately in the committee rooms of Congress where amendments to the labor laws are now being considered. It is to be feared that our legislators will lose sight of the meaning of the principle and will rush inadvertently into the passage of laws which will be seriously detrimental to justice and to our national well-being. The relative conditions of labor and management must be considered before any attempt be made to place them on an equal legal footing.

That organized labor has overstepped justice in many cases while still within the law is very true but ex post facto laws cannot be passed whether of fact or of purpose. True it is that there should be no double standard for the same nature but it must be recognized that unions and capital are not of the same nature.

Certainly labor or any powerful group should have responsibility for its actions, but that responsibility is commensurate with and conditioned by the rights and power of the group. It is evident that unions and capital do not have the same rights and at least not the same type of power. How then can the responsibility of these two factors be the same?

JOHN P. MALLICK

Well, here I am back again after a long absence, thanks to the editors. But, of well, there might be at least one student this semester who apreciates a good piece of journalistic talent. After reading Kucha's Bull Pen, I think I should have many followers. The title "Bull Pen" sure fits the author, he can really throw it.

That's enough of the chatter and now on with the corn. (At least admit it, Kucha.)

I should like to dedicate this little excerpt from the LAFAYETTE to a certain Chem student on the third floor of Simpson.

I
Mr. Quam is my teacher, I shall not pass,
He maketh me to prove dense
equations,
He leadeth me to expose my ignorance before the class,
He maketh me draw figures on the board for my grade's sake.
Yea, though I study till morning I shall gain no favor.

II
The experiments bother me and the laws sorely trouble me.
He prepareth my quizzes in the presence of mine enemies,
He giveth me a low mark, my work runneth over me.
Surely zero will follow me all the days of my life
And I shall dwell in a chemistry class forever.

In fact this little poem may be applied to any chem student (poor soul.)

We were having breakfast at home a few weeks ago and since we're always on the alert for interesting news, we lifted our weary eyes from our Nescafe and suddenly sat bolt upright upon reading the literature on a box of breakfast cereal put out by General Mills. Allow us to quote you some of the propaganda that they're handing out to the prospective juvenile delinquent trade:

"ONLY 16c PLUS THIS BOX-TOP FOR THIS "KIX" ATOMIC BOMB RING.

See genuine atoms split to smithereens. Look into the lens and — Flash! (Alongside of this bit of scientific explanation there's a picture of a small brat operating the mechanism while saying, "WOW! Another atom bit the dust.") WHAM! You'll see frenzied flashes of uncontrollable light . . . caused by the release of energy of the atoms splitting like crazy in the sealed warhead atom chamber. NOT A MERE TOY! The Kix atomic bomb ring is based on a scientific principle used in laboratories for the study of nuclear fission. It's an atom cracking beauty!"

We doubt very much whether the General Mills people realize exactly what sort of devilish device they're foisting on the public in the hands of children. For instance, little Willie Jones might get one of these atomic rings. Willie's old man comes home from a hard night at the local pub and tries to discipline the bad little kid. But no, Willie whips out his Kix Atomic Bomb ring, throws a few beta and assorted gamma rays at his unsuspecting parent, and blasts him to Jonesereens (something like Smithereens, only different). During this neat little operation, Willie has managed to transmute the genes of the termites in the woodwork, so Willie's mother has to put in a hurried call for the exterminator while everybody goes bugs trying to figure out the codicils in the old man's will. General Mills, how could you?

We go a little buggy ourselves reading those advertisements that various publications throw at us. And then there's radio advertising to contend with too. Practically everyone has read or heard those ads for MUM and HUSH. Well, we're putting our own preparation on the market. It's called SHADDUP, "for the woman who doesn't care." This marvelous preparation contains "Phew," a new and secret chemical formula which enables you to forego bathing as well as forego company. Listen to this unsolicited testimonial from Emily Glutz of Auckland, New Zealand. "Before using Shaddup, people wouldn't talk to me; now that I use Shaddup, people not only talk to me, they tell me where to go." Use Shaddup! Even your best friends won't tell you, they'll be holding their noses! This preparation comes in the two gallon economy size for fasthideous women. When no one is looking, ask your druggist for it! Compare! Comparison proves! Shaddup will make you perspire underwater as well as underarm. No fuss, no bother! Just push pull, click, click, it's recommended by all the women at Zamboanga. Get a car load today! You probably need it!

Thinking back on that atom deal, we understand that Einstein solved his theory of relativity by leaving his in-laws and coming to America. Mathematicians and prospective husbands, please note.

Every now and then we like to pull an old bear up to the fire and just sit there thinking about the good old days. Remember when you could go to the movies for a nickel and when the Athletics were in the American League? Lana Turner was only a young slip of a bunsen burner giving off 3 B. T. U's per mole but Clara Bow was cooking with kerosene. Nils Aster was hypnotizing assorted heroines with Freudian neuroses. Harold Lloyd was dangling out of skyscraper windows while the extras inside danced the Black Bottom and drank bathtub gin. Hitler was painting houses and Trotzky was the big wheel in Moscow 'till Stalin made a pascudnik out of him. Westbrook Pegler hadn't developed ulcers and John L. Lewis was working for a living. Hoover was talking about two chickens in every pot while the chickens refused to lay eggs. Ah, yes; the good old days. We were single then (if our wife reads this, we're only kidding, Honey) and Pop would always slip us a nickel. We remember once how we spent that nickel on chewing tobacco, but that's a gastric disturbance of a different hue.

NROTC Notes

By JOE KENNEY

A recent Navy Department announcement disclosed that the average mark in the recent examination held for candidates seeking admission to the Naval Reserve Officer's Training Corps was ninety-five. Villanova will receive approximately fifty-five of the students who took the nation-wide test at the beginning of the Fall semester.

Captain Thomas, Commanding Officer of the unit stationed here, said the same test was given for comparative purposes to Villanova's Freshman NROTC students who attained an average mark of 117. While the Captain was very much pleased by the result, he cautioned the students to remember that only those who have a mark of 120 were accepted to receive training at Villanova.

The Midshipmen weathered the semester final examinations very well, with less than one percent below standards.

Georgo A. Harris, Veterans Training Officer, extends a welcome to all veterans matriculating at Villanova College. Along with his welcome, Mr. Harris extends an invitation to veterans to stop in his office (Mendel Hall, Rm. 111) to discuss their problems. Because of duties at other institutions Mr. Harris can be contacted only on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays.

Income Tax

Veterans receiving training under P. L. 16 or P. L. 346 are not required to file an income tax report if government subsistence has been their only income in the past year. However, if a veteran student received an income from any other source he is required to submit a report. If he earned less than $500 he should receive a refund equal to the full amount which had been deducted from his earnings. Although not taxable, subsistence income should be entered in the report.

According to a recent announcement issued by the Department of Internal Revenue, parents who have contributed 51% of a veteran's income may list him as a dependent. However, this does not hold true if the veteran has earned over $500 in addition to his government subsistence.

Insurance

In recent months the Veterans Administration has voiced warnings to the effect that January 31, 1947 would be the dead-line for veterans to convert their G. I. insurance. However, veterans are still being reinstated. New legislation has authorized the Veterans Administration to continue reinstating veterans under the same regulations as before, with one exception, that the veteran may in some instances be required to take a physical examination.

Veterans, this is your column and should be written as you like it. All suggestions will be welcome. Address your suggestion to "Vets News" and drop it off at the Villanovan office.

Doings In Town

By DON BURNHAM

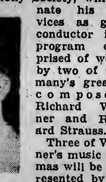
This column is under new auspices since the last man met with an unfortunate accident after a very uncomplimentary review. Since I am a man with nine children only rave notices will appear in this department from now on.

With a brief fanfare on of Opus one we begin with the news of the week.

We were strolling down Broad Street the other day looking for a representative cigar butt when a shady looking character appearing like something out of Al Capp's New York News accosted us. Suddenly there were two hard, round things pressed into our abdomen. The one seemed to be a grubby, little fist holding two tickets and the other was an equally grubby, little fist holding a .45. The only explanation for all this odd conduct was a growling "These'll cost ya five bucks, Mac."

Thus another man became a patron of the Arts, and thus we are writing the column. Up until now we had gone along in blissful ignorance of the fact that the name "Lincoln" stood for a great deal more than a mere Prep school and one of our former presidents. But on perusing the pasteboards shoved at us by the now rapidly retreating fellow of the last paragraph we found that there was a Lincoln Theater in Philadelphia. Now Broad and Lombard isn't very far south for a guy who has been to the Navy Yard twice so we took ourselves to the thitter.

You can probably imagine our joy when we found that our old favorite, Maurice Schwartz had his company down for this week. And as soon as we read that the play was by Sholem Aleichem and the score by A. Goldfaden and J. Rumshinsky we were so overjoyed we had to go out and drink to our good luck. And there was our mistake. One thing led to another and we led with our right and we were led into Broad Street by a long, hardly grubby at all, hard fist.



However we are determined to get back to the little theatre with the big front, to catch some of the productions later this week by name: Yoshe Kalb and The Dybbuk.

On Stage Wagner

By F. ANTHONY HOMANN Jr.

On Monday night, March 3, at 8:30 in the Academy of Music, the Philadelphia Orchestra will hold its second concert-meeting of the season for the benefit of the Orchestra Pension Foundation. Bruno Walter, newly appointed musical director of the New York Philharmonic Symphony Society, will donate his services as guest conductor in a program comprised of works by two of Germany's greatest composers, Richard Wagner and Richard Strauss.

Three of Wagner's music dramas will be represented by the Gotterdammerung Funeral Music, and the Prelude and Liebestod from Tristan and Isolde. In addition, the poignant Siegfried Idyll will be presented.

This Idyll was composed by Wagner not only as a birthday gift for his wife Cosima, but also as a reward for the son she had borne him. On Cosima's birthday, Christmas morning 1870, Wagner and his little orchestra stood before her door playing this beautiful serenade. The music itself is drawn largely from the love music in the third act of the opera Siegfried. It also includes the old German cradle song, "Schlaf, mein Kind."

Mr. Walter will also lead the orchestra in two tone poems, Don Juan and Death and Transfiguration, by the contemporary Richard Strauss. It would be hard to say that these are the best of Strauss's tonal portraits, for there are about five which are equal in popularity. It was primarily due to these compositions as well as those of Franz Lizst that the tone poem received universal acceptance. Not a few present day composers base their works upon Strauss and Lizst.

The proceeds from this concert-meeting go to the Pension Foundation whose purpose is to collect a fund sufficiently large to enable it to pay lifetime incomes to retired members of the Orchestra. Since these men are working for a non-profit organization, they are not entitled to old-age benefits under the present Social Security Laws. Information on tickets may be had by calling the Orchestra office at Rittenhouse 6-5470, or by inquiring at the Academy of Music.

The comparatively new Philadelphia "POPS" Orchestra under the direction of Max Leon will present another of its series of concerts in Town Hall on Feb. 28, at 8:30.

The soloists of the evening will be the noted violinist Antony Zungolo and the baritone Francis Guarrera. Also present at the concert will be the Pennsylvania Choral Society from the University of Pennsylvania. In keeping with its character, the Orchestra and soloists will feature songs from Sigmund Romberg's operetta "The Student Prince." Tickets for the performance may be purchased at Haly's, 1505 Walnut St.

On March 4, at the Academy of Music, the Metropolitan Opera will present Wagner's opera "Tristan and Isolde." Helen Traubel, famous Wagnerian soprano, will sing the role of Isolde. The orchestra will be under the direction of Busch.

The opera "Tristan" is in three acts, and tells of the fate of the famous lovers. It had its first production in Munich, 1865. The legend of the Irish princess and the knight of ancient Cornwall is centuries older than the opera, but minus the details of time and place, the story is as ageless as humanity. With the genius of Richard Wagner, it assumes the fiercest utterance of human passion that music can produce.

Tickets for the opera may be obtained at Haly's, 1505 Walnut St.

'NEATH THE SPIRES

By ANTHONY COPPA

In these days when new philosophies based on new "truths" are being brandished throughout the world and thrust into the hands of the downtrodden, suffering people of the war-ravaged nations, the practitioner of the Faith must vow himself a Defender of the Faith. Religion, now dormant in the hearts of many Catholics, must emerge from its secret place to resound loudly in the sickening softness of Passivism, the abyss of untruth.

Our faith, divinely revealed to us by Christ, though all-powerful and universal in its essential being and though independent of human acknowledgement for its existence, cannot triumph (though it must triumph) over these false philosophies unless the tongues of the Faithful are unleashed and their energies alerted against them. This obligation rests not only on the Pope and the priests, not only on the Catholic philosopher who labors long in his efforts to provide the simple mind with the meaning of complex principles, but extends to all Catholics. It is a duty which is fundamental, and its end is the upholding of truth and all goodness.

Thus it is for us who now are students, but someday will be men of the world, first to realize that duty, next to resolve ourselves to it, and finally to make the resolution materialize. The duty itself consists in not only continuing the good practice of the faith in the ritual, but also in living it in our daily life — constantly endeavoring to expand our understanding of its principles, and what is more, striving to strengthen the belief in its universality.

After we have sought and found the capacity to explain, we must explain to those who require it. Only by proclaiming our beliefs can we ever fulfill the noble purpose of our needed effort. This is the good that will give the results, this is the light which will enkindle the trodden flicker of faith that gasps for truth in the smothering atmosphere of untruth.

In every effort dedicated in this behalf, we will gain that contentment of mind which comes when one forwards his sincere beliefs. In the end what is there in man that makes his life worthy in the sight of righteous men and God? — fame or blinding wealth, or grand accomplishment? No, such is a wasted life unless such accomplishment was hewn by true, sincere motives —that same motive which will stir us toward the accomplishment we must undertake, the re-arousing from its dormant state of our faith. It will be no small accomplishment; indeed there can be no greater.

College Commends Student Support

The college administration wishes to express its appreciation of the manner in which the students have cooperated with the parking regulations. It is hoped that these rules will be understood by the student body. They are intended to prevent confusion and delay that would assuredly result from the presence of a great number of vehicles in the heart of the campus. With the increase in enrollment, the number of student-owned cars has, quite naturally, increased. The college's parking facilities, however, have been unable to expand and thus rules become necessary. Of late, student cooperation with these rules has made the situation beneficial to all, and the college authorities believe that a better understanding of the reasons for these rules will also help.

Wilno to Villanova: A Polish Student's Odyssey

Freshman Led the Life of a Displaced Person in Europe and Asia

By GEORGE SZYMANSKI

In the summer of 1939, a twelve year old boy lived in Wilno, an old historical city in northeastern Poland. He never dreamed that seven and a half years later he would enroll at Villanova College, in far-off Villanova, Pennsylvania, U.S.A. After bouncing about the world like a ball in the hands of Fate, Jozef Tyszkiewicz, now 19, comes to us as a Freshman Electrical Engineering student, rich in bitter experience which contained the death of his father.

Jozef was born in Wilno where he attended Catholic schools and lived a normal life until 1939. Then the lightning bolt of war struck Europe. Unappeasing Poland became the maelstrom of battle for the ideals closest to the heart of free men. The Nazis struck at western Poland, and the Soviets followed suit by enveloping eastern Poland, including Wilno.

Exiled to Siberia

For two years Jozef remained in Wilno, under Soviet occupation. In the summer of 1941, he and his whole family, one of hundreds of thousands of innocent families, were dragged from their homes and sent away into the wastes of Siberia, a name synonymous with the word "exile."

During his stay in Siberia a pact was signed between the Polish government-in-exile and the Soviets. It provided for the liberation of Poles held by Soviet Russia, and permitted them to join forces with the Allies. Unfortunately, the pact was too late to save Jozef's father, who died from the torture imposed by living conditions in Siberia.

Traveled Through Persia

In 1942, Jozef and the remaining members of the Tyszkiewicz family continued their trek towards freedom. Three months were spent in Turkestan, followed by weeks of quarantine and travel through Persia. Finally they reached Bombay, India. Jozef and the family spent a year in various Indian states through the generosity of the Indian princes.

The time arrived in 1943 when an American ship was to take them from Karachi, India, to happier lands. Boarding this ship Jozef glimpsed the cities of Melbourne, Australia and Wellington, New Zealand. One day, many weeks later, the ship reached San Diego, and Jozef was sent to the Polish refugee community at Leon, Mexico.

At Last Mexico City

Wishing to continue his high school education, he took advantage of the opportunity to enroll in the American School Foundation in Mexico City, from which he graduated in June, 1946. This accounts for his knowledge of Spanish and English languages.

Jozef then followed his mother to New York City in October, 1946, where he occupied the months before entering Villanova.

Mrs. Tyszkiewicz, looking forward with renewed hope to the day when her son, Jozef, receives his college degree, has settled in Shenandoah, Pa., where she caters to the needs of Jozef's younger brothers, Andrzej, Artur, and Karol.

Interviewed in Polish

When he was interviewed in his room in Good Counsel Hall, Jozef still remembered the days of horror, but with a smile he spoke warmly of the attitude of understanding, friendship, and good will shown to him by Villanova priests, professors, and students.

The Villanovan welcomes Jozef Tyszkiewicz to the Villanova fraternity of men.

CONTEST

A "Letters to the Editor" contest will be conducted by the Villanovan during the month of March. The best letters on the subject "how the Villanovan can be improved" will merit cartons of cigarettes.

The contest will be conducted by the staff of the Villanovan, with the cooperation of Joseph King, Chesterfield Representative on the campus. The best letters will be published in the Villanovan, during the month of March.

Rules of the contest are: 1. All contestants must be registered members of the student body. 2. Letters must follow the theme "How the Villanovan can be improved." 3. All letters must be submitted to the Editor of the Villanovan before March 31, 1947.

DELTA PI EPSILON

There will be a meeting of the Delta Pi Epsilon fraternity in the commerce and finance auditorium next Thursday to discuss plans for the coming inter-fraternity Ball. This fraternity is the first to start planning the dance.

At this moment as we are going to press no time has been set for the meeting. Notices of the time will be posted before the meeting, however, and there is a possibility that there will be two meetings in order that all students will get a chance to attend.

It is desired that as many as are able to make it will attend.

PHYSICS FRATERNITY

The Kappa Gamma Sigma Fraternity of Villanova held its elections of officers last Thursday evening. Those elected were Bill Connors, president; Bill Turner, Vice-President, and Ed Healey as Secretary-Treasurer.

Formed with the advancement and dissemenation of Physics as its object, the organization is advancing along its chosen lines since its start about wto months ago.

DON COLLINS

MATT KERNEY

This semester finds the Villanovan in the hands of a new editor-in-chief—Donald M. Collins. He succeeds Matthew J. Kearney who now has his own radio show in the town of Morrisville, Pennsylvania. Collins is well known throughout the school and seems the logical choice for this responsible position. Although he was appointed editor-in-chief previously, this is the first time that he has actually taken over the reins. At that time a change in course made it impossible for him to assume the responsibility. Don is in the Arts school majoring in philosophy and is one of the school's most active and progressive students. Matthew J. Kearney, the former editor, is also enrolled in the Arts school. He has been connected with the Villanovan almost as long as he has been connected with Villanova. After serving as writer, and sports editor he received the editorship which he held last semester.

Arts Fraternity Reorganized Last Wednesday

Campus Group Gets Fresh Start After War-Time Lay-Off

Like many of the other college organizations, the Villanova Arts Fraternity succumbed to the effects of the recent war and during these years it existed, if at all, in name only.

The close of the last semester witnessed a futile attempt at reorganization which was forced to yield to the forces of inadequate time and scholastic activities. Now, with the beginning of a new semester, the unrelenting efforts at reconstruction promise to be realized at last.

The present attempt at revival commenced last Wednesday, February 19th, and the attendance of some thirty studeuts proved encouraging and augurs a brighter future. The success of this meeting is evidenced in the establishment of a Constitutional Committee whose task will be the drafting of a new constitution.

Wildcats Make It Eight in Row

Catholic U. and Marines Topped in Final Away Games

Proving that the Wildcats are definitely hitting a slightly terrific late season pace, the Villanova basketeers continued their victory string, making it successively number seven and eight in a row over the Cardinals of Catholic U. and the Marines from down Quantico way.

Journeying to the Capital on Friday night last, Raiken, Lord and company proceeded to overwhelm the Catholic U. five with a second half rally that netted them a handy 64-43 victory.

Break Tie

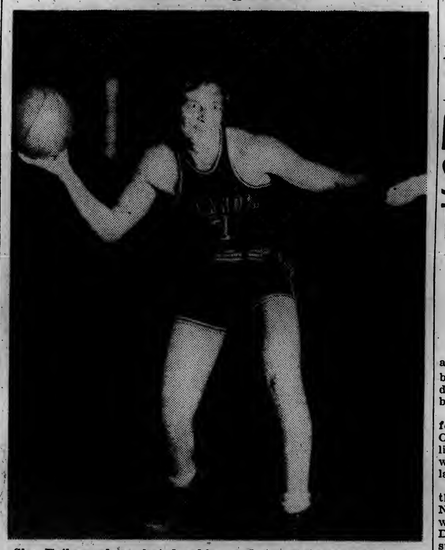
In hanging up victory number seven in their last seven starts, the Wildcats found a considerably stubborn foe in the outset, being held to a 14-14 tie at the end of the first period. But from the moment when Brooks Ricca's foul shot zipped the cords to initiate the second quarter proceedings, Villanova, finding itself in the lead, never let up, and breezed from their 31-22 half time lead to a handy 21 point final margin.

Showing some of the form that made him Public League scoring champ at Dobbins in his senior year, "Shy" Raiken turned on the steam and registered 17 points to top both teams in that department. Joe Lord with 12, had his usual double figure evening and Ricca checked in with 10.

Improved Showing

In downing the Cardinals, Villanova showed considerably more polish and drive than was evidenced in a rather shoddy performance against the Sailors from down in Maryland last Wednesday night, all of which seems to indicate that another team from the Capital City had better be on its toes this March 6th, when the Wildcats will be gunning for a suitable climax to a more than successful campaign.

Marines Bow



At Quantico some twenty-four hours later, the Villanova five found the Marine barracks' court to their liking and made it victory number 14, in their present 20 game string. Having more than a little trouble with the accurate shooting of Marine forward Dave Steindler, who netter 28 points, the Wildcats succeeded in counteracting Steindler's performance with some remarkable "pop" shots by the radar equipped trio of Lord, Ricca and Sabol to fashion a well-earned 74-53 triumph.

It was a story of "passing where they were" in this particular set-to, as the Wildcats' passing hit a peak for the season. The backboard work of Sabol and Ricca featured the smooth all-around showing of the Villanova five.

Sailor's Nightmare

Shy Raiken whose fast breaking and acurate eye rang up 16 points to help down Bainbridge N. T. C. 77-59 Wednesday night.

'Cats Down Bainbridge For Twelfth Win of Season

Lord, Swanson Hook Up in Scoring Duel; Raiken, Crossin and Wolf Set Fast Pace

By BOB McNAMARA

The Wildcats logged the 12th win of the campaign and the 6th of the current string of victories last Wednesday night at the Villanova Field House against a mediocre Bainbridge team. The only commendation that can be afforded the Commodores, who showed a void in polish and teamwork, is that they scrapped right to the finish at which point they were on the short end of a 77-59 count.

Bob Swanson opened the scoring with a long one-hander and a moment later he hit again from his pivot post to gain the sailors an early 4-0 advantage. Del Purgatorio broke the seal on the Villanova basket with a foul throw, which was followed in quick order by a field goal and a free throw by Shy Raiken to knot the score at 4 all. Throughout this stage of the game, Bainbridge's tall timbers were controlling the boards as was expected and this accounted for the Mariners' next four counters which came via the tap-in route. At this point the boys from Maryland were enjoying an 8-4 lead which evaporated under the set eyes of Joe Lord and John Crossin who contributed a bucket apiece to even it at 8 each. Raiken hooked in a left hand shot from in close to send Villanova in front to stay. From here on the Cats were never pressed and when Ricca and Weglicki made their appearance the control of the boards changed hands thus ending all semblance of a contest and resulting in the second "Lord's" day of the week.

Cats Use Fast Break

From the spectators' viewpoint, the game, despite its unevenness, was interesting to watch since it was one of the few occasions when the Cats discarded the conservative pick system in favor of the thrill producing fast break. As could be expected, the system highlighted the respective talents of Jack Crossin and Shy Raiken, who used their speed to great advantage by hitting often while driving towards the basket. Captain Joe, of course, was effective from the outside and ended the evening with 13 field goals made in only 26 attempts, plus 5 charity tosses for the amazing total of 31 points.

Bob Swanson, a former end on the University of Michigan football team, gave a creditable performance in the pivot slot for the visitors. Although he lacked the finesse of a finished ball player, he was deadly enough to match Lord's 13 goals, but only four foul conversions made him surrender the night's scoring honors to the Villanova leader. Villanova led at the end of the first quarter by an 18-12 count, mostly on Raiken's seven counters. When Shy was relieved, Lord assumed the scoring duties and Villanova's advantage rose to the 9 points it held at the halfway mark, 39-30.

Raiken Shines

At the outset of the third chapter, Shy again brought the spectators to their feet with a sparkling 7 point rally, then retired to the bench where he viewed the rest of the encounter. This outburst resulted in the 59-41 score at the close of the third session. Joe Lord toyed with the Swabbies in the final canto to notch 12 markers and round out the 77-57 win. This was the third time in the last four engagements that the Wildcats recorded the comfortable total of 77 points.

SEEN

From the Sidelines

Joe Lord, in an interview, expresses a desire to don the colors of the pro Warriors, if a bid is forthcoming from that corner. At present Joe has been no small apple in the eye of several of the other pro league coaches.

Wildcats Seek To Extend Victory String

Bisons and Soldiers Appear in Week's Games, as Tall Teams Promise Stiff Opposition

By JAMES PLUNKETT

The "Thundering Herd" of Bucknell and the "Wildcats" of Villanova will clash tomorrow night on the home court in what will undoubtedly be one of the most thrilling games seen in the Philadelphia District this season. As usual, the tap-off is scheduled for 8:30.

The 'Cats will be putting their current winning streak in great danger. This season coach "Woody" Ludwig has assembled one of the finest quintets ever to wear the colors of Bucknell. The Bisons, besides being the tallest squad Villanova will face this year, is also one of the most experienced, with the first seven men on the squad all having at least two years of varsity college basketball to their credit.

Experience Abundant

The guard spots are capably handled by co-captains Lou Desci and Jim Steel. Desci, 6'3", played center with Bucknell in 1944-45 before transfering to Harvard. Last season, playing forward with the Crimson, he was second to Yale's "Rhapsody in Blue" Tony Lavelli in Ivy league scoring with a 319 point total. Jim Steel who was also captain of last year's basketball squad, is another Bucknell player who has played Ivy League ball. Jim played with Yale in 1944-45.

The Bisons are also able to boast of two 6'4" veterans, Bob Williams and Bill Hoeveler, center and forward respectively. Besides being the tallest men on the team they are also the most experienced. Before joining the Marine Corps, Hoeveler played two years with Temple and one season with Bucknell, while Williams played with the Bisons in 1944-45 and with Rochester the following year. In his first year at Bucknell, Williams was named by the Associated Press to the All-Pennsylvania basketball team.

Frank Hass is the other forward who rounds out this fine quintet. Frank and his teammate Gene Wilson practically beat Villanova by themselves last season scoring 26 points between them, only four points less than the 'Cats point total. Wilson, who lead the team in

Midseason Mark Stamps 'Cats as Track Threat

Guida, Coleman, Ross Lead Powerful Team Through First Six Meets; Point for IC4A's Saturday

By DAN REDMOND

Too commonly overlooked, the achievements of Villanova's small but powerful indoor track team during the past five weeks have been more than noteworthy.

Paced by sterling individual performances by George Guida, the Olympic hope, Coach "Jumbo" Elliott's proteges have been heaping weekly increments of fame on Villanova's growing sports dynasty.

Guida with stirring victories in the Boston K. of C. "600" and the N.Y.A.C. "Buermeyer 500" has been, with the possible exceptions of Gil Dodds and Joe Nowicki, the outstanding performer of the indoor season. His 1:10.9 clocking in the "600" is the year's best and has been excelled only by Hugh Short and the late John Borican, co-recordholders with a 1:10.2 time. George came in second to Dodds in the voting for the best performer of the evening at this, the Boston K. of C. meet.

Guida Wins "Five Hundred"

His victory in the N.Y.A.C. special "500" event, coupled with his brilliant first leg on the Mile relay team that evening, gave the wing-footed South Philadelphian the NYAC American Legion award as the outstanding ex-serviceman participating in the meet. George's 0:58.7 time was identical with Elmore Harris's winning time in the same event a year ago.

Two other Wildcats who have copped individual honors for themselves at the Main Line school are Browning Ross of distance fame, and George "Buck" Coleman, the vaulting stratosphere taster.

Ross trailed Forrest Efaw to the tape in his two mile essay but he in turn led many "names" to gain some consolation. Coleman, improving with each week, leaped 13 feet to share in a two way tie for first place in the N.Y.A.C. meet. Previously he had placed third in both the Inquirer and Boston A.A. Meets.

Sixth Victory in Millrose Mile Relay

Outstanding mile relay victories were turned-in in the Inquirer, Boston K. of C. and Millrose A.A. meets on successive engagements. The quartet of Guida, John 'Dutch' McCarthy, Gene Kelly and Ed Fitzgerald was unbeaten in its three appearances and held the second best mile relay clocking in the East at the end of those three appearances (3:25.3 in the Boston K. of C. Meet). Their Millrose victory, accomplished on the strength of Fitzgerald's excellent third leg, marked the sixth straight year that the Wildcats have been victorious in their mile relay section of the meet.

The Millrose games saw the formation of a Blue and White two mile relay team composed of Roy Cameron, George Thompson, Dave Williams, and Browning Ross. This foursome with Ross turning in a superb anchor leg, outfooted the New York Pioneer Club and Columbia to win in 7:57, a time that has been excelled only by Fordham in the East.

After the Millrose Meet the win-

Twin Bill Opens Intramurals

All Halls Represented in Competition

By MIKE MARSHALL

Thursday night the Field House was the scene of the double barreled opening of the intra-mural basketball contests. The schedule calls for fifteen such twin thrillers to round out the season of the six participating teams.

Each of the halls has a team clamoring for top honors. The Good Counsel men are playing with the Mendel team, and all of the barracks are represented by one Barracks contingent.

According to Father Kemme, the Ned Irish of the campus quintettes, several of the aggregations are loaded with talent. Before the season ends on March 27, the student spectators will have seen some spectacular, hard fought games that will compare favorably with the varsity variety.

Capable Team Captains

Austin Hall is captained by Bill Barry, Fedigan by Pete Knapp, and Alumni by Mark Weber. Leading Mendel into the fray is Chuck Raffetto, while Harry Knecht is the standard bearer for the Doms, and Ed Schaub masterminds for the Barracks.

This week two pair of games are

Joe Lord Breaks Scoring Record For Single Game

Villanova Star Tops Old Record Held by George Senesky

With one of the most spectacular exhibitions of sharpshooting ever witnessed in this area, Joe Lord was able to bring the single game scoring record to Villanova. Starting at the terrific clip of almost four points a minute, Joe scored 19 points in the first five minutes, this sum representing the whole of Villanova's score for that period. The former district record of 44 points, set by George Senesky of St. Joseph's College, presently one of the brightest stars on the Philadelphia Warriors professional team, was made in 1943.

Playing against a fast and rugged Kings' Point five, Joe, the Philadelphia district's leading scorer was on—but definitely. Everything the Norristown star threw up seemed to drop through. His shots included lay-ups, tap-ins, pivots, fouls, and, of course, his dependable set-shots. These combined to give him a total of eighteen field goals and nine fouls for the record-breaking 45 points. Try as they might the merchant sailors couldn't stop Joe's point production.

After this display of fireworks, Joe Lord turned his sights to the season high of 515 points, also held by Senesky.

At the present time Joe is far ahead of all rivals with 371 points amassed in 20 games. With four games remaining on the card Joe will have to average 28.8 points per game to set a new standard. This is, of course, a large average to hit.

Joe has already broken the Villanova record total of 303 points which he set last year.

being played, and each succeeding week until the season's end, there will be at least two twin bills. The week of March 17 will see some hectic scrambling for position, as the lads start the stretch drive. That week four double doses of heads up ball will be administered to the appreciative spectators.

The intial game each night starts at 6:45, and the final exactly one hour later at 7:45. There will be no time wasted on formality at these jousts. Every minute will be action packed, and no one will want to miss the mass production of points.

IM Football Sets High Standard

All of the games promise to be thrillers, and if one were to judge by the intra-mural football of the past season, there is a considerable amount of undiscovered talent lurking about. Perhaps one of next season's stars will be discovered through the intra-mural medium.

Outstanding Award

Dempsey trophy to be awarded to Villanova's oustanding athlete.

BEST ATHLETE TO GET TROPHY

On November 26, 1946, the Villanovan announced that Villanova had been chosen to participate in the "Jack Dempsey-Adam Hat Sports Welfare Trophy" contest.

At the time, no specific method for the choosing of Villanova's "Outstanding Athlete" was offered. Now, however, after due consideration, the following plan has been adopted: Beginning next week, March 4th, and continuing for the succeeding two weeks, a poll will be conducted to determine Villanova's "Outstanding Football Player."

Next week's edition of the Villanovan will contain suitable blank "ballots" which will facilitate the voting. Each student will be permitted one vote. The name of the football player chosen in the poll will be announced on March 16th.

In the weeks following, elections will be held in like manner to determine the respective outstanding performers on the track, basketball and baseball teams. From the four athletes so chosen, a final vote will be taken to determine Villanova's representative in the nationwide contest.

The earnest cooperation of the student body is sincerely requested for the carrying out of a successful poll, so that Villanova may enter in the contest a nominee in the true tradition of Villanova enthusiasm, cooperation and sportsmanship in athletics.

It is in line with the aim of the representatives of the Adam Hat people, and in the fine tradition of a great boxer, Jack Dempsey, that this trophy is being offered. Let us make Villanova the recipient of this signal honor.

Bowling League Resumes Action

Main Line Bowling Center Scene of League Action

By ARNY KEEHN

Intramural bowling was resumed after a lapse of two weeks at the Main Line Bowling Centre last Tuesday afternoon, as the league entered into the second half of match play. Final results of the first half of play will be published in the next issue of the Villanovan although prize money will be distributed until today.

The Warriors, having a three game total pin average of 780, 818 and 812, took possession of first place in an easy fashion, as they took four points from the Iron Men. Donoghue, of the Warriors, had a three game average of 205 with games of 181, 123 and 221. Marking in every frame with the exception of the ninth, Donoghue topped John Siano's high game of 214. Pete Pallitto rolled a high 187 game for the Iron Men while Joe Foley who set the pace for the league during the first half had a three game average of 161.

Alumni Hall took three points from Fedigan as Flannelly and McCluskey rolled high games for the winners. Flannelly had a 191 game for Alumni while McCluskey averaged 155 for the three games. Knapp had a 170 and 179 score for Fedigan.

Smith Sets Pace

Joe Smith sets the pace for the Indians with games of 190,181 and 188 for an average of 186. Taking three points from the Red Eyes, the Indians went into a second place tie with Alumni. McGowan rolled games of 178, 140 and 156 for the Red Eyes.

Baseball Squad Returning Intact

Return of Starting Nine Plus New Prospects Indicate Successful Season

With the close of the basketball season just two strides away, and the approach of March and warmer weather, all sportsminded persons are turning their attention to the national pastime. The return of last year's complete team will give coach Phil Weinert an abundance of material with which to put Villanova in its rightful position in intercollegiate baseball circles.

Last season's peerless outfield of Smith, Litwa, and Casey return as a unit. Bill Smith, last year's leading hitted at .405 is equally effective at the plate, the left field slot, or on the pitching mound. The start of this term showed the return of Al Litwa. Al returned to Villanova after leaving for a term, and all those in the baseball know suddenly started smiling. Rounding out the outfield in right is Dan Casey, who believes in the "Teddy" Roosevelt policy — "Speak softly and carry a big stick."

Infield Intact

The infield also will return intact. At third, Norm Kline who is best remembered by his first showing in a Villanova baseball uniform, when he socked a triple and three singles in four "a.b.'s" at Princeton. The heads-up keystoners, Bill Doherty and Joe Lord are back, and with an added year of experience are set for bigger things. At first, big "Chuck" Comerford will face all comers. Unfortunately, "Chuck" pulled the season's highlight away from home, when he pounded a 354 ft. home run, which incidentally was the only one credited to the team all year, to help upset favored Yale 4-0.

Without a doubt, the 'Cats last year boasted one of the best, if not the best corps of hurlers in collegiate ranks. Headed by Stan Chojnacki, (you pronounce it) last year's most effective moundsman, Mr. Weinert is also blessed by the return of the fireballer "Jigger" Donohue, "Major" McDonnell, who gave the Phils nine innings of cold sweat last year, and reliable "Bull" Matas.

The battery is rounded out by Frank O'Neill. Frank last year was consistently good in the pinch and proved especially helpful in handling jittery pitchers.

In The Sportlight

By VINCE O'DONNELL

The sportlight shines this week on two bright spots in the realm of Villanova sports, Tom Sabol, a cageman and Ed Fitzgerald, a trackman.

TOM SABOL

Tom's sports career started back at Southern High and he left a pattern of versatility that will be hard to duplicate. Tom played two years of basketball, two of football and one of baseball. An interesting sidelight is that Tom was playing at Southern when they were having good clubs. Just to show you that it wasn't by chance that Tom made these teams, he was All-Public forward in basketball in '44 and '45. The forty five team won the league championship, but lost to South Catholic by one point. Tom claims that this was the most heartbreaking game that he has played. Incidently, he held Larry Foust, 6'9" center at La-Salle to seven points.

The blond and slender lad also played football for the Orange and Black on their championship teams of '43 and '44. For his prowess on the gridiron, Tom made ALL-CITY end for two straight years.

Tom also hurled a baseball pretty well. He pitched a no-hitter, two one hitters and a two hitter for a record of eight wins and one loss. This team also took league honors in '45. The Navy veteran's biggest thrill and most embarrassing moment occurred in competition with the same school, West Philly. Tom scored three T.D.'s against West and he also split a pair of basketball shorts against the same club.

He was also awarded a cup by the Crime Prevention Boys Tournament in 1944 for being the most outstanding athlete.

Although hampered most of the season by old injuries, Tom has consistently turned in good showings. He attributes his showing to Al Severance and "Major" MacDonald who have been more than willing to give the 6'1", 175 pounder plenty of tips.

ED FITZGERALD

Ed remarked that his running days began at a church picnic and he has been running ever since, continuing through St. Thomas Moore High School in Phila. and his days at Villanova. Ed runs the quarter mile and is anchor man on the mile relay team.

The best man that Ed ran against was Grossberger at the New York meet back in '43. Ed also recalls a funny incident in this race. It seems that he and Grossberger were throwing elbows at each other trying to get the lead. Grossberger threw one at Ed as he was making his bid for the lead and Ed says that he actually went into the air because of the slant of the track but Ed outdid his opponent in the last couple of yards and went on to win.

On asking Ed what was his biggest thrill in track, he relates that you get your biggest thrill after winning a race. He has participated in all the meets so far this season, winning the Inquirer Charities, Boston K. of C. meet and the Millrose AC games, which Villanova has won the last seven seasons. He had his best time in the Penn Relays, although he lost. His time was 48.3 for the quarter but he was running against Nowicki of Fordham and Heumes of Michigan.

The heartbreaker in Ed's career came at the Penn Relays of '46. The field was so crowded that the event had to be run off in heats against time. Villanova, with Short, Redmond, Ed and DeCarlo running in that order, won their heat by thirty-five to forty yards, but Colgate, pushed right to the tape, won with a time one tenth of a second better than the "V's" time.

Ed attributes his success to "Jumbo" Elliot, but also points out that George Guida gave him many a good hint on the game.

Guida Captures Legion Trophy

Replaces Sickenger as Meet's Outstanding Ex-Service Man

By HUGH W. JOHNSON

Villanova's George Guida did it again. This time the 23 year old stalwart of the Wildcat track squad won the New York American Legion Athletic Club's trophy for his excellent showing in the New York Athletic Club meet Saturday night a week ago in Madison Square Garden. This trophy, awarded to the outstanding ex-serviceman in the meet, was won last year by Fred Sickenger of Manhattan College for his record time in the 880.

Over such big name runners as Barney Ewell, Les MacMitchel, Bill Hulse, and Joe Nowicki, Guida, winner of numerous other trophies in his running career, was chosen. His fast (49.7) quarter on the initial leg of the mile relay, coupled with his thrilling finish in the Buermeyer "500," were the deciding factors in his selection.

The Buermeyer "500" was, in George's opinion, one of his most exciting races. Slow on the start, he found himself in fifth place on the first lap. His decision to trail the field for the first two laps paid off in the final analysis. The National Indoor 200 meter champion was still running fifth when he hit the back stretch. Passing such runners as Sause of Georgetown and Quigley of Manhattan, he sprinted to pass the rest of the field just before the last turn. On the home stretch, he pulled away to go on and win in 58.7.

Commenting on his award, Guida said, "The trophy to me will be everlasting proof that anything is possible with Prayer."

In George's opinion, the remainder of the indoor season and the coming outdoor season will find many of the old established records lowered. "The fellows," to quote George, "have much more opportunity now than they had while in the service to get into shape. This should be the deciding factor." On one issue that everybody seems to be talking about, he informs us that from his observation, Gil Dodds will not be able to better the record of Greg Rice in the two mile event of this year. 'However, there is little doubt that Dodds will turn at least one faster mile than he has shown this season but his unorthodox pace will handicap him in anything over the mile."

Yes, George Guida has won another trophy. But he is not the type fellow that would let glory go to his head. Next week he'll be out to win his favorite "600" in the ICRA Championship meet in New York and George Guida, one of the finest athletes to ever enter Villanova, can rest assured that the whole school will be plugging for him.

Inter American Union Meets in Philadelphia

Formed to Combat Evils of Communism and Totalitarianism

Sunday, February 16, the Inter American Union held its monthly meeting at the Philo Patriots Club of Philadelphia. As is customary, the meeting was divided into two parts.

The first of these from two o'clock until three fifteen was devoted to an informal talk by Ralph Duncan of Saint Joseph's College who is the State Chairman for the Chicago Convention. The second half was comprised of entertainment in the form of dancing.

The bulk of the talk given by Mr. Duncan concerned the decided need for organization which exists for the students of the colleges of the United States. Mr. Duncan referred rather meaningfully to the evils of false, anti-democratic ideas which are creeping surreptitiously into the thoughts of students in many colleges today, and expressed the necessity of united action to render these ideas impotent.

I.A.U. Formed by Immaculata College

The Inter American Union is a relatively new organization. Formed and chartered about six months ago by Immaculata College, while still in its infancy it has received some little attention from the Chicago Convention and other thinking bodies of students in the United States. The Union has now about three to four hundred members representing almost all the Colleges in the Philadelphia area.

The object of the I.A.U. has been declared as fourfold: first, to stop racial discrimination; second, to check religious prejudices; third, to encourage relations both cultural and commercial with all foreign countries, particularly those of the Americas, and finally to combat forces of communism and totalitarian thinking in the United States.

High sounding as these ideals may seem, the I.A.U. feels that they are practical and of great importance. Due largely to the energy of the members, the I.A.U. has made a good deal of headway toward recognition.

Membership Open to All College Students

Despite the fact that the Club is chartered by a Catholic school, membership is open to all college students, none excepted. This in itself goes far to demonstrate the aims and principles of the organization. It may openly set example for the type of democracy they advocate.

For some reason the I.A.U. has not been very well received at Villanova. This indicates either a definite lack of interest on the part of the student body or a failure on the part of those who might publicize and encourage the Union.

Ed Sullivan, the representative from Villanova, has stated his belief that the cause is a worthy one. The thought of the College students in the United States is of vital importance to the future of our country and the I.A.U. is a step toward making that thought effective.

Catholic Thought Must Be Expressed

If the students of Catholic colleges such as Villanova do not put forth the effort to make Catholic thought felt, there will be an inculcation of false, alien thought even into such organizations as the I.A.U.

It has been divulged that there is to be a drive for student membership in the Inter American Union, and it is hoped by those who are already active in the organization that there will be an increased interest displayed by the students of Villanova in reference to the problems and prejudices which exist today, and toward this possible step toward their solution.

scoring the first half of this season, had to leave school because of class work deficiencies. Haas playing his first year of college ball last season led the Bison scorers with 216 points. With Wilson off the squad, Frank will be playing regularly and can be counted on to give the 'Cats plenty of trouble.

Series Even

This, the lone meeting of these traditional rivals, will mark the 15th time Villanova has met Bucknell with the series now standing at seven wins apiece. Last season the two squads split; Bucknell winning the opener by a count of 44-32 and Villanova coming back to win a thriller 54-52.

With D. Collins and R. Randolph officiating, the meeting progressed in good order. Fr. McShea, O.S.A. addressed the group and emphasized the necessity of timely and careful planning as the basis for a firm foundation.

The meeting this coming Wednesday will be allotted to nominations and voting. The following Wednesday is the date set for the Committee to submit their plans for the Constitution. This organizatoin is certainly off to a good start and we may well look for an impressive and active Arts' Fraternity during the years to come.

ning mile combination had to be broken-up because of the veteran McCarthy's graduation. Immediately the versatile Browning Ross stepped into the vacancy. However, hard luck beset the Woodbury wonder in the next (Boston A.A.) meet. Coasting along on the third leg with a 12 yard lead on Fordham, and a 25 yard lead over Manhattan, Ross dropped the baton and the Cats had to be content with a third.

Misfortune seemed to stalk the mile miler in this meet for it was there that he was spiked on the first turn in the 1000 yard invitation. In spite of this handicap he did well to finish fifth in a star-studded field of fourteen.

Coleman Wins Pole Vault

In the N.Y.A.C. Meet in addition to Coleman's and Guida's victories, the relay team ran second to Seton Hall who turned in the best time of the Eastern meets thus far with 3:23.3. Villanova had led this same team home in the Boston K. of C. mile relay, but the Wildcats this time were represented by different men. Harry Schmidt who replaced Kelly, and Ross, who took over for the graduated McCarthy, joined the bellwethers, Guida and "Fitz" for this performance.

Prep for IC4A

Coach Elliott is now priming his charges for the IC4A meet this Saturday. Villanova will send its strongest team in years to this meet and in spite of the lack of depth in the team, the 'Cats should make a commendable showing. High hopes are held for Guida and Fitzgerald in the middle distances, Ross and Williams in the distance events, Coleman in the pole vault, and the relay teams in their respective distances.

German Club to Expand Social Program

The meeting of Neustaedter Kreis' members on January 20 affected the formulation of plans for the Spring semester by way of more frequent meetings and closer contact with outside groups.

The college now has a greater number of German language students than in previous semesters. It is with this group that the German Club is concerned. Any future success of the club will depend upon the enthusiastic, willing co-operation of these men at the meetings and in activities from both a cultural and social viewpoint. These qualities have not been found lacking in the recent past.

If all German students will give to their respective class professors, within the next week, those free hours during which they would desire meetings, progress will be made. Hours will be selected for morning, afternoon and early evenings so as to accommodate every member.

In April, the club is to have social contact with Chestnut Hill college, for which occasion the Villanova members will provide the entertainment. It is asked that all those possessing any musical or acting talent please contact their German professors.

It is traditional with the Bell System that its executives come up from the ranks. In each of seventeen operating companies of the Bell System, including The Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania, the man who today is President started at the bottom.

Completion of Barracks Opens Seminar Rooms

Rooms in Simpson Hall Will Again be Host to College's Various Clubs

With the opening of the fourth of the new barracks, Villanova has fulfilled her promise to make available adequate living space for all her resident students. The freshmen who were billeted on the first floor of Simpson Hall since the start of the scholastic year, breathed a sigh of relief, packed their bags and moved into the new building.

Now that this floor in Simpson Hall has been vacated, the school will again have space for her Seminar Rooms. In pre-war years, many clubs—Music Club, The Foreign Language Club, The Liberal Arts and History Clubs—held their weekly meetings in this building. Some renovation will be necessary before the rooms will be able to house the re-activated clubs.

During the war, many of the activities that formerly met in the Seminar Rooms were curtailed due to the accelerated program under the Navy. Now, however, with the return to college normalcy and with the availlbility of these club rooms, it is hoped that many students will take part in these extra-curricular activities.

Debating Team Plans Season

Peter Turney, president, and Ed Sullivan, secretary of Villanova's Debating Society, have submitted their resignation to Father Krupa, the moderator, to become effective upon the reorganization of the club.

A committee of five, Peter Turney, Ed Sullivan, Carl Yeager, Tom Sullivan, and E. Schollmeyer, has been appointed to reorganize the club and to draw up a new constitution, subject to approval of Father Krupa.

This change was necessitated by conflicting opinions among the members of the society. The new organization is expected to be stronger and more solidly unified.

There will be a meeting of the club this week for the purpose of reorganizing the society. Prospective members are invited to attend this meeting.

The schedule of debates for the coming semester was released today. On the agenda are two road trips to be made by the members of the Club.

The following is the schedule published by Pete Turney, president of the Debating Club:

February, 25, Away — Rutgers (Don Collins and Ed Sullivan). "Resolved: That the United States Should Pursue a Policy of Free Trade." Villanova will be the affirmative.

February 27, Away—Bryn Mawr, Villanova Negative, Labor Question.

February 28, Home — Rutgers, Villanova Negative, Resolved: That Labor Should Have a Direct Share in the Management of Industry.

March 13, Away — St. Joseph's, Villanova Affirmative.

March 14, 15, 16, Mt. St. Vincent's Girls' College, Away. (Tom Sullivan and Carl Yeager).

March 22, Trip to New England—Rutgers, Boston College and Wellesley College.

Revival of "Philadelphia Scrapple" Discussed; Large Turnout at Meeting

At the recent meeting of the Villanova Club of Philadelphia, on Thursday, February 20, 1947, in the Philopatrian Club, 1923 Walnut Street, election of officers for the ensuing year took place.

Results of the election were—President, Vincent J. Gordon, '42 BME. At present he is working on a jet propulsion project at Westinghouse. Vince lives in Drexel Hill.

Vice-President—John J. Fitzgibbons, '45 BS in Economics. John graduated in the Fall of '45 from the School of Commerce and Finance. He lives in Upper Darby and is in the Real Estate business.

Treasurer—Jacques Mauch, '42. He was a member of the Centennial Class and lives in Drexel Hill. Formerly connected with the Etna Life Insurance Co. Jake is now attending Law School at the University of Pennsylvania.

Secretary — Frank Fitzpatrick, '40. B.A. Another resident of Drexel Hill. At a previous meeting he was elected chairman of the Annual Football Banquet sponsored by the Philadelphia Club for the members of the football team and the coaching staff.

Retiring President H. Bruce Murray '30 did an admirable job in reorganizing the staff after the war. He commented favorably on the attendance on the eve of the worst snow storm in the Philadelphia area this winter. He wished the new President and his staff all the success in the world.

Many points were brought to the attention of the members. A committee for a Spring Dance was appointed and plans for a bigger and better Villanova Club of Philaddelphia were discussed. Along this line the revival of "Philadelphia Scrapple" the monthly paper put out by the Club and distributed to its members was taken into consideration.

The Ways and Means Committee is investigating methods to enliven the Club to obtain more active members.

The Club wants to compile and publish a Directory of Members of the Philadelphia Branch with the correct home and business address of each member and distributed it to the members. Forms for information will be mailed to the members shortly. Any correspondence concerning this or other topics related to the Club may be sent to President Vincent J. Gordon of Vilanova Colelge.

Meetings are held the Third Thursday in each month except during the Summer and over the Christmas Holidays.

Kappa Gamma Sigma, the new Physics Club, held its first official meeting on Wednesday, February 26, in the Physics Lab. The meeting was conducted by President Bill Conner, who outlined the aims of the organization, and listed a tentative program of activities. Rev. John Crawford, O.S.A., is Faculty Moderator of the group.

This is the first time since 1942 that Villanova has had an active Physics fraternity. The members are interested in furthering their theoretical and practical knowledge of the science of Physics. They plan to hold technical discussions and give demonstrations in cooperation with the science groups of Villanova and other colleges.

A program committee composed of Gerard Bruno and Bob Sohmer was appointed by President Conner, and was charged with the responsibility of initiating Kappa Gamma Sigma policy.

New Members Invited

All students interested in the study and practice of the principles of Physics are invited to join. Information may be secured from the Moderator or from any officer or member of the club. Meeting notices will appear on the various bulletin boards throughout the school.

The other officers who took over theid duties at this first meeting were Bill Turner and Ed Healey, Vice President and Secretary-Treasurer, respectively.

John Kane, a member of the Physics club, has been working on an electronic flash gun to be used by the Villanovan. When the flash gun is completed it will increase the efficiency of our action pictures about one hundred percent. He has been working on the project with Norman Wilson, noted photographer.

Student Council Sets Stage for Inter-Frat Ball

Plans for Coming Activities Are Discussed

J. L. D'AUBIA

Villanova's student council met on Thursday afternoon, February 27, with the new chairman, Joseph Brogan, presiding. Plans for the coming semester were discussed.

At this meeting it was decided that the three fraternities, (DPE, PKP, and Arts) sponsoring the Interfraternity Ball, would each appoint three men to serve on a Dance-Directing committee. One of these nine men will be elected chairman of the committee. April 12, has already been selected as the date of the Ball.

Foot Baths Requested

Members of the council also decided that a request be presented to Reverend Edward V. McKee O.S.A. for the installation of foot baths in the shower-rooms of the resident halls.

The chairman of the council announced that there would be a joint meeting with the International Relations Club within two weeks for the purpose of formulating plans to support the National Council Organization.

Members of the IRC feel that the scope of the National Student Organization is so vast and so important that it cannot be handled adequately without the help of the student council.

Election of a secretary-treasurer for the council will take place on Thursday, March 6. This office must be filled by a student council member of the Junior Class. Votes for men not in this class will be invalid. All members of the student council are asked to leave their ballots at the Information Booth any time on Thursday, March 6.

Included with their ballot, Council members are also requested to leave a list of periods that are free, between the hours of 10 A. M. and 2 P. M.

Failure to comply with these requests will result in disbarment from the council.

Any student having complaints may have them brought to the attention of the proper authorities by submitting them to his student council representative.

Student council members are:

Joseph Brogan, chairman.
Donald Collins, vice-chairman.
Jerry Connors, Soph. Class Representative.
Joseph D'Auria, Soph. Class Pres.
Gene Alvarez, Junior Repres.
Peter Pallitto, Junior Pres.
David Ryan, Junior Repres.
Tom Schubert, Belle Aire.
Matt Kearney, Villanovan Junior.
Ed Keller, DPE (Junior).
Ray Kasper, P.K.P. Repres.
Sam Canning, Senior Repres.
Harry Edwards, Senior Repres.
Dan Redmond, Senior Pres.

It has been noted that many student complaints have been made to the school paper, and a still greater number have been aired to other students. In the past the student council has (with little recognition) done much in the way of presenting the views of the students to the school authorities. One of the main purposes of the student council's existence is to give the students proper channels through which they may express their opinions in cases where their interests are involved.

ATTENTION ALUMNI

The Navy Department announced that it will grant commissions in the Supply Corps to graduates of the Commerce and Finance School. Those who fulfill the mental and physical requirements, and who graduate between the ages of twenty-one and twenty - five, are eligible. Those selected will go on active duty in the Regular Navy.

Additional information may be obtained at the Navy Office, Room 102, Mendel Hall.

Class Officers Announce Program Set Dates for Junior Week

Week Opens With Mass; Highlight To Be Blazer Ball, Junior Prom and Dinner Dance

Junior Class Officers

Activity is now in progress in an effort to formulate conclusive plans for the first post-war Junior Week. A group has been developing the various social functions since last spring. These plans as they exist are described below. They are released by Rev. Michael J. O'Donnell, O.S.A., moderator of the Junior Class.

The outline of the week, which will run from the 5th to the 10th of May inclusive, lists the following events: Mass at 10 A. M. on Monday, May 5th, for Juniors and their Mothers; the Blazer Ball on Wednesday evening, May 7th; the Junior Prom on Friday evening, May 9th, and the Junior Dinner Dance the following night.

The Mass jointly for the third year men and their mothers is a fitting tribute to the latter; the ceremony will be conducted in conjunction with Mothers Day, the following Sunday. Although nothing definite is yet arranged, tentative plans for some type of entertainment are to be made.

Junior Prom Date Set

Highlight of this week and taking precedence, socially, after the Senior Ball will be the Junior Promenade, on the 9th of May. As of now Father O'Donnell gives guarantee only of an excellent band; no committee has been appointed yet, nor have contracts been submitted for an orchestra. One of the many admirable features for the prom, being considered, is the crowning of a Prom Queen. This ceremony, with its attendant court, was very popular in the past.

The first of two strictly junior functions of the week will be the Blazer Ball to be held on Wednesday evening, May 7th. It will be an informal affair, presented in the Field House. Music for the dance is to be provided by the Villanovans. The Ball is to include a surprise feature. The innovation has been approved; it will be made known shortly prior to the dance.

Dinner-Dance Final Event

As their final event the Class of '48 will hold a Dinner-Dance at the Benjamin Franklin Hotel. Thomas Braun is in charge of arrangements for this affair. Plans for it have practically been completed.

At a meeting of the Junior Class set for tomorrow plans for the various activities and a complete list of committeemen will be drawn up. It will be in the form of a smoker.

Due to the unusual enrollment of the college and the subsequent overcrowded conditions such standard features of Junior week as open house will be omitted this year. However, in conjunction with Father McKee's office, an attempt will be made to hold several important athletic contests during the festive week.

The juniors who have placed orders earlier in the year have received rings. The purchase of a blazer is optional. The committee assigned to tackle the problem was under the chairmanship of Robert Manske. He reports, as expected, high prices and poor selection.

Racial Council In Public Forum

Mr. Melvin Racusin of the International Relations Club of Villanova, attended a banquet at the University of Pennsylvania, Friday, February 21. This banquet, sponsored by the United Nations Student Council of Philadelphia, had representatives from the University of Pennsylvania; Temple University; Drexel Institute; Swarthmore College and Bryn Mawr College, in addition to others.

The Panel Of Americans, an interracial group, composed of six girls, striving to promote good will, addressed the audience. Each girl typifying a race or religion, pleaded for intergroup tolerance and brotherhood. Because of illness the Catholic and Protestant representatives were absent. However a Jewish girl substituted in their absence and presented their views.

Group Tours Nation

This panel had its origin on the West Coast and the members were chosen from the University of California.

After successfully touring California and the West, they commenced a nationwide tour. While on the trip they visited various colleges and addressed responsive audiences.

Mr. Racusin will take part in a forum being held on Atomic Energy. The Villanova representative accompanied by delegates from other schools met with Doctor Brasatoy to discuss plans for this forum.

Father Sullivan Stresses Scansion at Poetry Meeting

Under their new moderator, Rev. Robert Sullivan, O.S.A., the Poetry Society discussed problems of basic poetic metrics and their variations during their Feb. 27 meeting.

Father Sullivan, succeeding Father McShea as counselor, cited examples from Milton—most advanced master of all—to particularly emphasize the readability of true poetry. Scansion and mechanics, it was impressed upon the group, are tools and not masters, in preparing verse for its final test: variety preserving unity.

Further meetings, to be held at 110 Mendel Hall, 7:00 P.M. Wednesdays, will include further analyses, but will center more about student efforts, since the group's final aim is the fostering of creative poetry writing.

The poetry society is an old organization on the campus and like similar groups in other colleges, it has been revived with the end of the war and the return of former students.

Any and all poets, therefore, are urged to attend these meetings and share in the group's activities and benefits.

More to Build . . .

A little more than one month ago, the dreams of scores of loyal Villanovans were materialized with the initiation of a gigantic building project. A solemn ground-breaking ceremony signaled the beginning of construction of three new buildings to add to the beauty of Villanova's campus and to the perpetuation of Augustinian tradition in the field of Arts and Science.

But somehow the thinking student realized that there ought to be another structure given some consideration as long as we had started this building business. Unfortunately, however, Mr. McCloskey couldn't help us on this particular project. The structure that we wish to build is going to be built in the hearts of the student body. It is the edifice called "school spirit" that we wish to erect. And the construction is not going to be an overnight job. It will definitely take time and, what's far more necessary, a real effort on the part of each and every one of us.

We can thrash around in the task of building a strong school spirit with stabs in the dark concerned with attendance at basketball games, school concerts, etc., but all of these seem to work around, instead of toward, the fulfillment of our aims.

The first real step toward the revival and perpetuation of this spirit for which we are striving, lies in the loosening up of more than a few "stiff" personalities and the widespread use of a very simple little word—"hello." Here in a school which, at last count, was not co-ed, we needn't stand on the formality of introduction. Let's get to know one another, for after all, it is from the prime materials of friendship and companionship that we shall build with success our permanent structure of genuine school spirit.

School For Life . . .

Recently the college bookstore has offered a volume of better study methods for sale. A slight perusal of this book will suffice to indicate what the authors believe to be the most fundamental principle of study. This principle which forms the basis of all the study rules enumerated and which (according to the authors) is commonly offended by college students, is nothing more than this: To study well, one must study with the realization that what he studies is present and effective in his daily life. This tells us the seemingly simple truth that to study well we must make our studies live.

If we are studying Economics we must realize that it is not something confined to the covers of a textbook and to the walls of the classroom, but that it is present and very real in our daily existence. We must be able to perceive its principles and understand their application in such things as the corner grocery store, the delivery truck, the heighth of skyscrapers, price fluctuation, labor union effects, etc., etc. If we are studying Physics it must come alive in our daily activities. When we see water flowing off a roof we don't think about the maxim of water seeking its lowest level rather we must (if we are real students) see the operation of the law of gravity. Thus it must be with very subject we undertake.

To the thinking college student the statement of this principle in the form of a rule is unnecessary and almost laughable. He asks, "If you do not study to understand life then why do you study?" He sees that this principle springs from man's nature, from his innate hunger for the complete understanding of all the things of which he is aware. Yet the authors who are prominent educators have found it necessary to state this principle as though it were a rule. They justify their procedure by pointing to the fact that a great many college students do not realize the significance of this principle or have a very hazy understanding of it.

This fact is a very serious reflection on our way of life. It seems to indicate that we do not know the true purpose of education and studying; that we are either studying for the sake of study or for some motive other than the understanding of life.

Bonus Promises . . .

Did you ever see a "beautiful"? Of course not. No one has. Why? Because it is a mystical as a god and as slippery as an eel. Can you touch it? Feel it? No. The same is true of a promise. A promise is as elusive as a greased quarterback and as abstract as an impressionistic painting.

Veterans do not want promises of a bonus. They want action! Money! Cash! Certainly they did not fight the war with promises. Did the Marines fight at Guadalcanal with promises? No! They struck with weapons. They gave action when action was needed. Now that the war has been won, the fighters are soon forgotten. But let us be forgotten AFTER we get our bonus. It is inevitable that the ex-servicemen will be forgotten in time. Past wars have proved this. But shall we let time pass by until the bonus question is an old sore cropping up into prominence every so often?

Were legislators, who are responsible for the passage of the bonus bill, fighting next to you in the war or were they in the capitol wondering how they ever got through such a strenuous day at the office? Are they more concerned with the recent portal pay suits? The worker wants back pay for time spent in washing his hands, hanging up his coat, and rolling up his sleeves before he actually starts work. Pretty soon he will want to be paid from the time the alarm goes off in the morning until he is home again eating dinner. Such suits are occupying the time of our legislators at present and, to be sure, something is being done about them. The veterans bonus question, however, is not receiving its due attention and action has been suspended indefinitely.

The Old Budget Game . . .

The Republican party is without doubt the most powerful political group in the land at present. The only difficulty that its followers seem to have is the question as to who is their leader. The moguls of the party seem now to be pretty well split in their support of possible candidates. Naturally they wish to concentrate the power in the party but are not quite sure which one of the possible leaders will be best supported.

These possibles, ever anxious to comply with the machine, have been searching for a hawser the ends of which they could grab for their tug-of-war. Last month they had one thrown at them.

President Truman submitted his tentative budget to Congress with a "minimum" figure for security of thirty-five and a half billion dollars. The game was cut to order for the political arena and the whistle blew. The Republican party as a whole, for political reasons and altruistic ones, decided that that figure could be cut. How much was the issue on which the test of strength is being fought.

The principle of division of the split is the relative progressiveness of the liberal and shell-backed Republicans.

Now we don't mind if the leaders have their games, but we do wish they didn't use our good money and security as the chips. The subject for debate is so important that any attempt to gain political ends during its process is a vile perversion of the democratic system. These politicians must realize that they held a large piece of fate in their hands. Decisions to limit the funds available to our military forces or to foreign relief are of the utmost gravity. America, democracy, the world may hang in the balance. A penny saved might be a civilization lost.

Dear Sir,

I read with great interest your editorial of the February 25 issue entitled, "Labor Before the Law." I have done a great deal of study in the field lately and wish to take issue on one point of your argument.

You said that labor and capital are of two different natures, and therefore were not to be judged or restricted in the same way. Much of the strife which post-war industry has been subjected to is caused by men holding much the same idea. Labor and capital are only divisions of the same entity and logical ones at that. The difference that we recognize exists only in our minds and not in reality. Labor cannot exist without capital or capital cannot exist without labor.

It is this error which has led to the rise of strong, monopolistic unions, and the mistrust so evident in industrial relations today. The two branches of the same system should be judged as just that. This is the only way that capitalism and the democracy that flows from it can endure. Separation into classes results in class wars and class wars are the stepping stones to Communism.

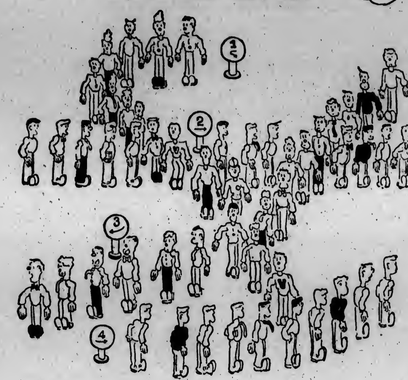
ACS HOLD MEETING



An important meeting for all Chemical and Chemical Engineering students will be held today in Room 410, Mendel at 5:00 P. M.

Elections for the positions of President and Treasurer are to be held. These offices are now vacant because of the recent graduation of both John Skorka and Joe Peace.

Also to be discussed are the plans for the coming semester. These, it is hoped, will include a plant trip and a joint social with the other engineering societies.

Men wishing to join either of the above two societies are urged to attend the meeting where they will be directed.

Midshipmen will form near the Chem Lab at 1200 and police up all the loose atoms lying around.

NROTC Notes

By JOE KENNEY

Captain Thomas issued a memorandum to all NROTC Regular Freshmen students concerning the contemplated cruise. The cruise will take place this summer and will be of eight weeks duration. NROTC students and Midshipmen from the Naval Academy will comprise the squadron. The ships chosen for the cruise, all with famous war records, include the heavy cruiser Oregon City, the escort carrier Palau, and the Destroyer squadron 10.

Many Ports To Be Visited

Due to depart from Annapolis on June 21, the Midshipmen will learn the practical side of their classroom work. All their time won't be spent on the high seas, however, for the ports of Panama, Trinidad, San Juan, Guantanamo and New York City are to be visited. The cruise will be completed upon return to Annapolis on August 15.

Lt. Col. Roose, USMC, the Executive Officer, has returned from Washington with news that the Villanova unit is considered one of the best units in the country.

Colonel Roose and Lt. Comd'r. Little have orders to report to the Navy Department this summer to aid in preparing the curriculum of all the NROTC schools.

Supply Corps Open To C & F

It has been announced by the Navy Department that Commerce and Finance students may, upon graduation, receive a commission of Ensign in the Supply Corps. Those selected will go on active duty in the Regular Navy. Captain Thomas said that this is a splendid opportunity for those who desire a naval career. The requirements are similar to those of NROTC students.

All Stops To Paoli

By A. J. MULLEN

Recently the students of Rosemont College entertained a number of gentlemen friends at one of their Tea Dances which have become so well known to most Villanovans. For those who enjoy dances, this custom of the college 'over the hill' is a thoroughly pleasant habit, however, and it may be well to warn the student who would favor the tea drinking end of it that no tea is served at these occasions.

Being an inveterate tea drinker myself and having come from an old Irish family where the tea is so strong that the spoon will stand up in the cup, I consider myself something of an authority on the subject. It strikes me as slightly sacrilegious to drink tea between the hours of seven and nine. The original purpose of tea was as a complement to biscuits in the afternoon, and as a "pick me up." before laying me down to sleep. Inasmuch as no tea is served at these occasions, I have no complaint save that they are not all their name implies.

The affair was vaguely reminis-

"Met" Stars to Shine

By F. ANTHONY HOMANN Jr.

Two of the Metropolitan's greatest stars are going to make appearances at the Academy of Music during March. Patrice Munsel, the youngest soprano on the Metropolitan's staff, will appear in Philadelphia on March 20, and will be followed on March 27 by the basso Ezio Pinza. Both are making only one appearance in Philadelphia this season. Appearing with Miss Munsel will be two other soloists—Stuart Ross and Betty Woods. Tickets for both performances, which are under the management of Emma Feldman, can be bought at Haly's ticket office, 1505 Walnut Street.

The colorful Don Cossack Chorus will visit Philadelphia on March 25th. The twenty-seven Russian singers and dancers will present a special program of Russian Eastern Music at the Academy of Music. This choral society, led by General Piatoff, is probably the best known group of singers in the world. They appeared in Philadelphia a year ago, and were well received. Tickets for the recital are priced from $1.40 to $3.25, and may be obtained at Haly's.

On the legitimate stage, "Brigadoon" the latest musical production of Cheryl Crawford (producer of such hits as "Porgy and Bess," etc.) has moved into the Forrest Theatre preparatory to a Broadway performance. A traditionally staid Philadelphia audience seemed delighted with the melodiously fresh music of Frederick Lowe. The book and lyrics, by Alan Lerner, unlike most musical comedy librettos, are in a class with the music, and afford the audience a plausible story. Agnes de Mille, well known for her choreographic work in the Theatre Guild productions of "Oklahoma" and "Carousel," has lived up to her reputation by giving "Brigadoon" dances and musical numbers the equal of those of the aforementioned shows. A conductor well known to Robin Hood Dell audiences, Franz Allers, leads the orchestra, and Ted Royal has given well balanced arrangements to the original score. David Brooks, Marion Bells, and Pamela Britton are featured in the plot, while Lee Sullivan, George Keane, William Hansen, and James Mitchell have supporting roles. Tickets run from $1.30 and may be purchased at the Forrest, 11th and Walnut Sts. It is a production well worth seeing.

On the 17th of March Villanova will again be host to the Philadelphia Catholic Girls' Orchestra.

The concert to be presented will feature a Symphonic Band, a Symphony Orhcestra, a Glee Club, and a Verse-Speaking Choir.

These groups are expertly directed and promise an evening of excellent musical entertainment. The program to be conducted will comprise not only classical selections but also some more familiar light numbers.

The personnel of these groups include students from John W. Hallahan Catholic Girl's High School, West Catholic Girls' High School, and Little Flower High School.

Newspaper Staff Plans Dinner

Plans for the Villanovan Dinner Dance are now being put into effect. The date has been set for Thursday April, 17. Several of the hotels in Philadelphia are being considered for the affair, but as yet no specific one has been chosen.

As is customary at these functions, keys will be awarded to those students who have served for a year on the Villanovan and who will be graduating in the near future. Those who are to receive keys are: John Brinjac, Joe Brogan, Jasper Chen See, Jim Conaty, Sam Canning Frank Dituri, Robert Flaharty, Roland Higgs, Matt Kearney, Dave Marano, Pete McManus, Jim McNamara, Lou Meccariello, Bill Monagle, Dan Redmond, and Bill Wencott.

Sometime before the date set for the Dinner Dance there is to be a smoker for the members of the Staff. Plans for the Smoker have received no definite attention but Rev. John A. Klekotka, O.S.A., the moderator for the paper, has announced that he is in accord with the idea.

These two events promise an active social schedule for the staff of the Villanovan. For those on the Staff the Dinner Dance will be one of the highlights of the school year.

Paper to Give Away Cartons of Cigarettes In Suggestion Contest

Observant Villanovans are receiving an opportunity to make criticisms pay dividends in the current "Letters to the Editor" contest.

A carton of Chesterfield cigarettes will be awarded every two weeks to the student writing the letter with the most constructive criticism of the college paper.

Letters wil be judged by the editorial staff of the Villanovan. All staff members are excluded from the contest. The best letters will be published in the Villanovan during the month of March.

Contest rules are as follows: 1. All contestants must be registered members of the student body; 2. Letters must follow the theme "How the Villanovan can be improved."; 3. All letters must be submitted to the editor of the Villanovan before March 31, 1947.

Debating Society Records First Victory of Term

New Rochelle Girls' College To Be Next Opponent

Debaters Don Collins and Ed Sullivan brought home the first victory of the new term for the Debating Society when they outclassed a meek Rutgers team, at Rutgers, on Tuesday evening, February 25th. On the same night, Villanova was host to a visiting Princeton University team. The latter contest was not judged. Peter Turney, president of the Society, has listed New Rochelle Girl's College, of New York, as the next opponent. The match will be held here on the campus Sunday, March 9th, at 2:30 in the afternoon.

In the Rutgers debate, the topic, "Should the United States Support a Policy of Free World Trade?", was discussed, with Villanova upholding the affirmative. The debate was lively and our debaters' words well-chosen, leaving the negative in utter confusion. According to Ed Sullivan, it was one of the Society's better tete-a-tetes of the year.

For Rutgers, this was their last home contest for a while as their little group leaves this week on an extended tour of eastern Canadian universities, bickering all the while.

Students and friends are cordially invited to sit in on the Society's debates. Membership is open to all students, and those interested in joining the Society should contact Peter Turney or any other member.

Arts Fraternity Plans Elections

Inter-Fraternity Ball Committee Appointed at Recent Meeting

The nomination of candidates for election at a meeting of the Arts fraternity held last Wednesday night, marked the first real steps toward the reorganization of that society at Villanova.

Those nominated for the post of president are: Joseph McNamara, Richard Randolph, and Matthew Kearney. The vice presidential nominees are: Maurice Crane, Bill Ward, Bernard Reilly, and John McDermott. For the post of secretary-treasurer, Robert Sabol and Robert Gabriel have been nominated. The list of those nominated for election has been submitted to the Dean of Studies, Rev. Edward Dwyer, O.S.A.; the Vice President, Rev. Edward B. McKee, O.S.A., and the Chaplain, Rev. Edwin T. Grimes, O.S.A. All nomines were approved.

The officers of the infant organization will be chosen from among those nominated by all prospective members at a general meeting to be held March 5, in Room 215 Mendel at 3:00 P. M. Ballots may be obtained at the information booth for all members who are unable to attend the meeting.

Inter-Fraternity Ball

Another point that was covered at this meeting was the Inter-Fraternity Ball. Three members were appointed who, along with members of the other fraternities, will serve as the nuclei of the committees for the ball. This dance will mark the beginning of the social life of the fraternity.

The meeting was concluded with a talk by Rev. John McShea, O.S.A., the moderator. Father pointed out that it was an organization for the development of culture and that every effort would be made to do this. All fields of culture: music, art, and literature would be included so that all members might find a field in which they are interested. All affairs planned in the future will be under the direction of a committee so that all members might play an active part in the fraternity. It was also Father's hope that men interested would attend the next meeting so that work in these fields could begin immediately.

Tom Smith, Villanova football guard, and George Connor, Notre Dame's All-American takle, enjoyed a reunion when Connor was honored by the Philadelphia Sporting Writers' Association. Smith and Connor were roommates as freshmen at Holy Cross before entering the service.

IRC Listens to Interracial Tolerance Plea

"Panel of Americans" Addresses Group Banquet of U. N. Student Council

All six Catholic Colleges, members of the Catholic Interracial Council, will participate in a public discussion of interracial problems and principles to be held at St. Joseph's College, on Sunday, March 9, at 2:15 P. M.

The Council, headed by Mr. Herman Diesel of Villanova, is presenting this program in conjunction with the Catholic Interracial Council of Philadelphia, whose Chairman is Judge Gerald F. Flood, of the Common Pleas Court.

Arranged in the form of an Interracial Hearing, students and members of the Phila. Council will act as accusers and defenders. Practically every phase of the problem will be covered.

Also participating actively, together with Mr. Diesel, is another Villanova student, Mr. Robert Nix.

German Club Plans

Neustrader Kreis Will Produce Musical Comedy in April; Fr. Lunney Talks To Members

Neustrader Kreis, Villanova's German club, reviewed and discussed further plans for the post-Lenten season at its recent meeting. George Szymanski, the club's musical manager and production master, suggested various selections that could be fitted into the production numbers in the musical comedy the club is planning to present in April. Gunter Kaiser, club president, promised formation of a quartet to render the scores chosen for the show.

Rev. William Lunney, O.S.A., moderator of Neustader Kreis, gave indications that last semester's social events would be expanded upon. He impressed the fact that the best way to learn a language is to come into frequent, informal contact with it. He also stressed that since so many Art students are now in the club that a more thorough study of the cultural heritage of Germany would be in keeping with their objectives.

Stanley Debates Jap Question

Monday evening, February 24 over station WFIL the question whether the control of Japan should be multilateral was discussed by representatives from Villanova and Chestnut Hill Colleges.

Mr. John Stanley, from a prepared speech, opposed the multilateral control of Japan. One of the most important points Mr. Stanley used in his side of the argument was the fact that control by the United States is satisfactory to every one with the exception of Soviet Russia. Mr. Stanley mentioned the difficulties of occupation and the progress that has been made until now in our occupation. By our smashing of the mighty war cartels, in encouraging of a real labor movement, and our instituting of educational reforms, he further cited our progress in establishing democracy in Japan.

Miss Agnes Dennisson representing Chestnut Hill College, took the affirmative. She believed all nations which contributed their share in opposing Japan should have the opportunity to rule that nation. From this she excluded the Soviet Union. She stressed that the rule by General MacArthur was not likely to impress the Japanese with the merits of democracy.

During the audience participation portion of the program, both speakers were subjected to intense questioning with Miss Denisson defending her side especially well.

In conclusion Brother Augustine, F.C.S., of La Salle College, summarized the salient features of both sides.

National AAU - IC4A 600 Champ

George Guida, Wildcat ace who carried the colors of Villanova to National Championships in the AAU and IC4A 600 yard run.

Guida IC4A 600 King; Coleman 2nd in Vault

Villanova Ace Wins Second National Crown in Two Weeks. Coleman Upsets Dopesters

America's prime hope for the 600 in the '48 Olympic Games, George Guida, last Saturday night came through with his fourth triumph in six starts this season when he took the IC4A 600 crown from a field which included such stars as John Quigley, of Manhattan, and Ken Coyne, of Dartmouth.

Guida's time in winning his second national championship in two weeks was 1:14.2.

Wins on Sprint

In his usual style, George allowed the other contestants a few moments of leisure as he lagged through the first part of the contest; then came the coup. A breath-taking sprint which showed his heels to all was enough to gain victory for the Villanova ace.

George started the indoor season with a stroke of bad luck, when in defense of his Charley Paddock 300-yard title he was disqualified for stepping off the track on the first turn. The climax was reached Saturday, February 22, when the board king outlegged Elmore Harris for the national A. A. U. crown. Harris, prior to this meeting was considered the number one hope for America's Olympic team.

Mile Relay Team Missing

Traveling to New York last Saturday with only the remnants of a crippled team, the iWildcats nevertheless were able to place eighth in a field of twenty-four competing colleges. Guida's victory and "Buck" Coleman's second in the pole vault were enough to give Villanova the highest score of all Philadelphia schools participating.

"Buck" Coleman, in vaulting thirteen feet, cleared just enough altitude to warrant a second place tie with Art Sherman, of Rhode Island State. In placing second, Bucky upset pre-game dope, which rated him no better than third, behind Morcum, the winner, and Sherman.

Georgetown Here In Curtain Closer; Scranton Tonight

Hoyas Help Close Successful Season. Last Appearance of Lord and McDonnell; Scranton Features Height

With the help of two Jesuit conducted schools, Villanova will pull down the curtain on what has been the most successful basketball campaign for the Wildcats since 1941. Playing host to Scranton University on Tuesday and to Georgetown University on Thursday, the Cats will be engaging two of the toughest teams in the East.

Scranton, after getting off to a slow start, gradually picked up speed as the season progressed, and after James "Buck" Freeman, formerly of St. John's, took over the coaching reins of the quintet, the squad showed marked improvement. The Royals, with a record of 8 wins and 14 losses, have garnered most of their wins under the direction of this capable mentor.

DeNoia, Griglock High Scorers

Even though they have the tallest man that Villanova has or will play against this season, the team is not a tall one, and a fast, agressive offense is used. High scorers on this team are forwards Mike DeNoia and Bill Griglock. DeNoia has countered most of his points by virtue of a talneted right arm while Griglock is the set shot artist on the team.

Kalojeski is one of the eight freshmen on the team and holds down the pivot spot. With more experience, Hank will be a big asset to future Royal teams.

Guard posts are capably handled by Pat McGeehan (an Irishman, no less) and Tom Notchick. Pat hails from Hazelton, where he played on Hazelton's championship team of a few years back. Notchick is a 6'5" lad who can be counted on to give Ricca plenty of trouble under the boards.

This series between the two schools dates back to 1926 with the record now standing at 4 wins each.

Georgetown in Final

The season's finale will be against the mighty Hoyas, of Georgetown, conquerors of such top-flight teams as St. Louis, Western Kentucky and Nevada. The Blue and Gray soundly trounced the Wildcats in their last meeting on January 10, but this was before the Cats had found themselves in the Manhattan game and a much closer and bitterly contested game will be in store for the fans this Thursday.

The Hoyas have three men back from their 1942-43 team which won 19 out of 24 games. This plus a wealth of reserve strength has made Georgetown one of the top teams in the country.

Coach Elmer Ripley, who has returned to Washington after coaching Notre Dame last year, employs the famous five-man offense popularized by the Original Celtics. This system is operated on the fast break principle, hence no pivot man is employed. Hustling, 6'1" Edwin Brembs and 6'3" Andy Kostecka hold down the forward posts for the Hoyas this year. Ed, after playing for Fordham in 1942, entered Georgetown last fall and won a berth on the starting quintet by virtue of his court savvy and ball hawking.

Kostecka Controls Boards

Andy is another of the returnees who played on the '42 squad. His main forte is his ability to jump and thus control the backboards. It will be worth going to the game just to see Kostecka and Sabol

Barracks Win Two In Week's Play

Doms Defeat Mendel as Knecht, O'Brien Star; Farley High Scorer as Alumni Bows

The Intramural basketball season opened at the Field House Thursday night as Barracks defeated Alumni, 27-25, in the first half of a twin bill which saw the Doms down Mendel, 28-23, in the nightcap. In the opening game the lead changed hands several times with the Barrackades leading, 16-14, at the half. Alumni rallied in the second semester to tie the score at 25-25 in the closing seconds, forcing the game into an extra period. Barracks surged into the lead by virtue of a twin-pointer by Drot, and Alumni was unable to overcome the deficit. Farley was high scorer for the losers with 11, and Buckley led Barracks with 9 points.

Knecht Sparks Doms

Captain Harry Knecht sparked the Doms to victory over Mendel as both teams got off to a slow start in their debut. The Doms were out in front, 12-9, at the close of the first period, and had little difficulty coasting to victory. O'Brien took the scoring honors for the Doms with 4 field goals and three fouls for a total of 11 points. McGrath was top man for the Mendelites with 8.

On Tuesday evening Alumni went down to defeat before a superior Austin Hall team, 28-23. Austin's well-balanced team led at the half, 16-11. Farley was high scorer again with 8 points, followed closely by teammate and captain of Alumni Weber with 7. O'Neill and Cheppa each tallied 6 for Austin. Hapless Mendel wilted before the savage second-half onslaught of the Barrackades. The

Streak Continues As Bucknell Falls

Victory String Reaches Nine as Main Liners Score 72-58 Win Over Highly Touted Bisons

By DAN REDMOND

Gaining poise with each sucessive game, Villanova's young basketballers rolled to their ninth straight win and fifteenth triumph of the season by virtue of the 72-58 shellacking they handed Bucknell last Wednesday evening.

Coach Al Severance's minions at times displayed their best team play of the year and during the first ten minutes gave the crowd of 3200 fans a dazzling exhibition of superior basketball. With all of the starting five sharing in the scoring the Cats built up a 27 to 5 lead midway through the first half.

At this point Severance started to substitute freely. Coach Woody Ludwig, apparently disgusted by the apathetic display fo his starting five, inserted a second team with the instructions to play the Main Liners all over the floor. This bottled up the Blue & White offense completely and at the same time seemed to give the Bison's first five the spark they needed.

Villanova, with third stringers in the line-up, watched its lead melt to 28-19 before Coach Severance rushed Captain Joe Lord and Tom Sabol back into the game. Matters remained about even from that point until the intermission, when the scoreboard ceased activity for a brief spell with its figures at 30-22, Villanova.

Lose Sparks Bisons

Scoring during this half was well distributed with Sherwin "Shy" Raiken's seven points leading the parade. The ubiquitous "Shy" showed an uncanny knack for finding lonely spots from which he could leisurely dump his two-pointers. Johnny Lose, Bucknell guard, proved to be the force behind the Bison first half rally with an 11-point production.

Bucknell in the second half looked like a different ball club. They crept to within two points of Villanova at 33-31 on Frank Haas' steal and stuck right with the Cats until the score hit 40-38.

Haas and Captain Lou Decsi looked great during this time and worked well off the double pivot system employed by the Bisons in this half. With pivotmen Bill Hoeveler and Bob Williams becoming increasingly familiar with the basket, things looked black, or at least a little gray, for the Wilcats.

Cats Increase Lead

However, a quick scoring flurry shoved Villanova into a 51-40 lead

Severance's Comments

The elementary student of basketball knows that to effecuate a well disciplined, smooth and efficient contingent, time and competition have their appointed place in the scheme of operation.

The local quintet has been no exception to the rule. Early in the season there were definite indications that time and experience would provide the necessary quotient that would solve many embryonic problems. It was unfortunate that conditions affecting the playing area and lateness in getting under way limited fundamental instruction before the new personalities of the team had a chance to orientate themselves with system and each other. Nevertheless, possessing individual talent and with a great capacity for work and fine courage, the team stumbled at times, but picked themselves up and making good use of early stiff competition they found themselves in the Army game. Using this game for a springboard, they have never faltered.

There is one regretable feature to our present program due mainly to present conditions, but a Junior Varsity program would pay dividends in future teams. With the present quintet improving daily it is difficult to split and expermient with a winning combination. As a result there are candidates who possess great potentials but they cannot realize their potentialities against teams who have begun to falter in the pace of the game and they gain little from weak opposition. Playing against stiff opposition consistenly keeps them at the proper pitch and gives them opportunities that practice sessions can never supply.

The inclusion of a freshman team on our calendar of sports would enable the greener prospects to get in an added year of experience.

The over-all picture is one of pleasing quality but there still remains much to be desired. I feel strongly that this team has yet to reach its peak, but time will give to it poise and reliance far beyond

In The Sportlight

By VINCE O'DONNELL

SHERWIN RAIKEN GEORGE COLEMAN

The Sportlight focuses itself this week on two more stars of track and basketball. Shy Raiken representing the cage game and "Bucky" Coleman the cinder-path.

"Shy" Raiken's sport career began in Dobbins Vocational School in Phila. Shy, besides being an All-Public basketball performer in '46, also played quarterback on the football team and outfield on the baseball club. He slugged the old horsehide for an average of .500 getting eight homers and six triples. In football, "Shy" recalls that he ran for the wrong goal in one ball game but saved the day before going too far by reversing his field and going all the way for a touchdown.

Breaks Scoring Record

Shy will be remembered as the boy who broke George Senesky's Convention Hall record, while still in high school, by pouring forty-one points through the hoops against Bok. Shy also held the individual scoring record for one game up to this year by scoring forty-nine markers. He was the winner of the Eddie Gottlieb trophy in '46 and was also voted the most outstanding athlete at Dobbins. Dobbins further honored Shy by naming Feb. 14th as Raiken Day.

Two of Shy's former court nemeses were Tom Sabol and Brooks Ricca, who are now his team mates. An oddity about Shy's style of playing is that he plays basketball left-handed and all other sports right handed.

Shy credits the great bunch of teammates for pulling him through and in particular to the able guidance of Al Severance and "Maj" McDonnell.

Bucky, a pole vaulter, known to his friends as "the mayor of Collingdale" participated in track and swimming at West Catholic high in Phila. He holds the Catholic League pole vault record at 11'9 but jumped 12' in the Penn High School Championships in 41.

Bucky, an ex-navy pilot, played baseball in the same league with such stars as Ted Williams of Boston and Bob Kennedy of the White Sox while down at Pensacola, but admits that he was no competition for the boys.

Bucky was on the track team at North Carolina Pre-Flight which won the All South Eastern championship that season by beating such teams as Duke, Georgia, and Georgia Tech. In this meet, Bucky vaulted a 13'4" his only try, when it began to rain. Bucky had to be satisfied with a tie for first as the meet was called off at the beginning of the downpour.

The owner of a drug store in Colingdale, Bucky thinks that business is the place for him if he ever gets his break.

Bucky won the New York A.C. meet recently, with 13 feet and placed second in the Boston and Inquirer games. He took fifth place in the New York Nationals.

Bucky's biggest thrill was the time he jumped against Cornelius Warmerdam. Buck says that Warmerdam started where Buck stopped—at thirteen feet.

Bucky said that he has been getting pointers from Dick Ganslon, former national champ, of the Shore A. C. and he states with more of Dick's help he should go places.

3-Way Tie For 2nd Place Marks Fast Bowling Pace

Alumni Continues to Set Pace as Fedigan Climbs Into Second Place Tie With Red Eyes and Indians

Alumni Hall gained four points from the Warriors to take possession of first place last Tuesday afternoon. Having a five man total pin average of 830 for the third game, Alumni edged out the Warriors by 12 pins. McCluskey and Toth were key men in the four point victory with games of 188 and 181 respectively. Spina rolled games of 176 and 174 for the Warriors.

Joe Foley set the pace for the Iron Men who took three points from the Indians by bowling games of 175, 180, 169. Jim Donoghue of the Indians had games of 141, 171, 156.

Fedigan in Tie for Second

Fedigan Hall moved into a tie for second place when they took three points from the Red Eyes. Bruyette and Berninger had three game averages of 156 and 164 respectively. Ringlestein, of the Red Eyes rolled high game for the day, with a 192 score. Monahan was close behind his team mate with games of 163 and 191.

Six teams have been represented in the league to date and it is hoped that two additional teams can be represented for today's matches. Any one who is interested in getting a team together, or those who would like to bowl in one of the teams represented are asked to be present for this afternoon's match.

Pitchers, Catchers Report to Indoor Drill; Baseball Practice Begins

First Call Answered by Veterans and Newcomers; Chojnacki, Donohue, O'Neill Lead Returning Batterymen

Although February's snow is in no way conducive to Spring's baseball, it has failed to prevent the average fan from stealing a longing glance at the season's possibilities. So it is at Villanova, for with the schedule on the verge of being announced and the initial call for battery candidates already made, the student-body has suddenly become baseball minded.

Coach Phil Weinert made the call last week and on Tuesday the Field House became the site of the Wildcat's first mild workout of the season. Answering the call were many experienced hurlers as well as several new ones. Among the returning moundsmen were "Jigger" Donohue and Stan Chojnacki, both starters on last year's nine, and Bull Matas, a dependable relief hurler, while "Buddy" Green shows much promise among the newcomers. Mr. Weinert will also have the services of "Major" McDonnell, another of last season's aces, as soon as the current basketball season comes to a close.

Newcomers Push Regulars

Behind the plate it looks like another big year for Frank O'Neill, although Joe Brehmer, a veteran of the past two seasons, and Charlie O'Malley, a new-comer with plenty of ability, will make him hustle to keep his starting berth.

Behind the pitchers will be an infield and outfield boasting of wide experience. At third base a real battle should develop between two hard hitters, Norm Kline and Dave Marano, and at shortstop, George Warren, who played here during the seasons of '42 and '43, should provide a lot of competition for last years' regular, Bill Doherty. The other side of the infield, according to preseason suppositions, will be occupied by Joe Lord at second, and by slugging Charlie Comerford at the initial sack.

Outfield Promising

To patrol the outfield pastures, Coach Weinert can choose from four returning veterans of last year's team; Dan Casey, a good clutch hitter, smooth fielding Al Litwa, nimble Romeo Cappriotti, and last year's leading hitter, Bill Smith. In this outfield Mr. Weinert has speed, power, and dependable fielding.

The school authorities have not as yet released the baseball schedule, but it should be released within the next week or so, and will appear in your weekly paper immediately thereafter.

Field House Record Set; 'Cats Down Soldiers

89-51 Win Sets Scoring Mark as Villanova Offense Hits New High

By JAMES PLUNKETT

A record breaking Villanova basketball quintet soundly trounced a gallant but inept Fort Dix five last Friday night at the Main Line field house by the score of 89-51. Breaking the old record of most points scored in one half by registering 58 points in the second canto they also broke the record for points scored in one game by flipping in 89 counters.

The game started off slowly with the first quarter score at 15-8 and the half time score ending at 31-18. Raiken opened the scoring with a quick hook shot followed by three successive layups by Sabol, Ricca, and Wolf. As the Fort Dix defense tightened, the game slowed down to a standstill as neither team could find the hoop with any consistency.

Raiken Racks up Seven

With the game begining to show signs of increasing slowness, Shy Raiken, who shared scoring honors with Captain Joe Lord and Del Purgatorio, brought the crowded stands to life with three consecutive baskets and a charity toss.

The precision passing of the Wildcats was shown in the first half when they scored all but eight of their points on layups. This is probably another record for the lowest number of points scored in one half on set shots by a Severance-coached five.

It would be all but impossible to laud any player to degree deserved, but the defensive work of Brooks Ricca, who held the Soldiers' 6'7" center, Kellogg, to 3 points in the first half, must be mentioned; also Tom Sabol deserves a word of praise for the manner in which he took more than his share of rebounds away from the sepian giant.

Cats Get Hot

As soon as the second half started, the Wildcats really began to move. Scoring four and five baskets for every basket the Fort Dix team sunk, they increased their lead to 44-22 at which point Del-Purgatorio came into the ball game. With Del and Captain Joe matching basket for basket, the Cats went on to an unprecedented 33 point lead, their greatest this season. Further substitutions were made, but no matter how deep Coach Severance dug his reserves, the team still continued to score.

With the score standing at 77-46, Major McDonnell was fouled, and, before a hushed crowd, quietly sank both tries to set a new court record, "Maj," ever since his entry into the game, had the fans as well as the players on the bench, roaring with laughter, with his antics and clever ball handling.

Reserves Show up Well

This victory must have been very encouraging to Coach Severance because of the manner in which his reserves, especially Schwille and Fricke, performed. Against Bucknell they were very disappointing; but last Friday they really showed that they had the ability to play good college ball.

Although he had an off night, hitting only 7 out of 20 attempts, Captain Joe scored 17 points and thus broke the 400 mark. Joe now has 402 points. It is virtually impossible for him to catch up to, George Senesky's record of 515 counters. Break the record or not, Joe will continue to be one of the greatest basketball players ever to wear the Blue and White of Villanova.

LORD TO APPEAR ON "THE INSIDE OF SPORTS"

Joe Lord, Villanova College's high-scoring basketball captain, will be featured on "The Inside of Sports" program on Friday, March 7 at 7:45 P. M. on the Mutual Broadcasting System, Commentator Bill Brandt has advised Publicity Director Jim Haughton.

The program will be heard locally on Station WIP and over more than 400 stations from coast-to-coast.

Brandt, who conducts the program in conjunction with Joe Cummiskey, will feature Lord in his finale "Once in A Lifetime" spot, a nightly story depicting the work of a great athlete or an outstanding sports event.

A former sports writer with the Philadelphia Evening Ledger and the New York Times, Brandt was publicity director of the National Baseball League before entering radio. Cummiskey, former Buffalo and New York sports editor, was an all-around athlete in St. Bonaventure College.

The program is sponsored by the Bayuk Cigar Co., makers of Phillies. Brandt featured a story on the late Nick Basca, Villanova football star who died in France, on a December program. It will be reprinted through the courtesy of the Bayuk Co. in the coming issue of the Alumni Magazine.

the vision of the present spectators. To one who knows our system, its demand for split second timing, clever ball handling and proper foot work; to say nothing about top notch conditioning, it is evident we have not achieved that point where the same becomes automatic. There have been opportunities during the past season where the operation of this system was self evident but we failed to realize these opsabilities or were not alert to the situation. Knowledge of the system, I believe, is present among a good many of the candidates, but as was mentioned previously, time and work are the answers to these problems. There are many men who at present are not in varsity competition, but it is hoped that with a spring clinic, they will come forward and engage in this activity, and I fell sure that future teams will witness these men giving a fine exhibition of fundamental basketball.

work under the boards. Most of Andy's points in the previous Villanova game came from follow-ups or tap-ins.

Kenny Brown, 6'4" center, was another thorn in the Wildcats' side scoring 17 points against them. This is Ken's first year at Georgetown and from his performance in previous games this season, he has shown signs of becoming one of the greatest cagers ever to wear the "Blue and Gray."

The guard positions are tended by diminutive Roy Corley and Captain Dan Kraus. Ray, who played last season with the "Ramblers' of Notre Dame, is a fast shifty lad with a deadly set shot which he gets off with amazing speed.

Phillies Here April 14; Vt. to Open March 29

A five-game southern trip and a home meeting with the Philadelphia Phillies highlight the 1947 Villanova College baseball schedule announced by Rev. Edward B. McKee, O.S.A., moderator of athletics.

Coach Phil Weinert's collegians open the 24-game campaign against the University of Vermont on Friday, March 28 at Villanova. The southern swing will be made during the Easter vacation and will open the next day with the Quantico Marines at Quantico, Va.

Other foes to be met on the trip, the first Dixie trip since prewar days, include Duke University University of North Carolina, Wake Forest and Norfolk NTS. It will be the first meeting with Duke since 1940.

Phillies Here April 14

Ben Chapman will bring his Phillies to the Main Line campus on Monday, April 14 to match his former New York Yankee roommate, Phil Weinert. The Phillies defeated Villanova, 8-7, last season.

Home-and-home contests have been arranged with Pennsylvania, Princeton, Georgetown and Quantico. Kings Point, coached by Ray Stoviak, former Villanova athlete, makes its first diamond appearance against the Wildcats and Dartmouth returns to schedule after a lapse of several seasons.

Weinert, former hurler with the Phillies, Yankees and Cubs, is starting his second season at Villanova. The Wildcats won 11 of 17 games last spring and Weinert will have his entire starting nine intact this season.

Prize Winning Essay

Last semester the Interracial Club of Villanova College held an essay contest for the best article submitted on the field of the society. This week, Reverend John Lunney, O.S.A., moderator of the club announced the winner. Edward Oxford, '50. The editors of the newspaper take great pride in presenting to you what we consider a fine product of Catholic and American writing. It is especially significant that this article should appear during inter-racial week, when its principles are the subject of a national movement.

A Mighty Folk of God

Along dusty back roads there ever wanders a giant tan ghost—symbol of a mighty folk of God. This anguished ebon phantom who is a people walks alone. Hurt and bent, saying no word at all, he trods the rough trails in misery, hoping, waiting, praying for that time to come—When will it ever come?—to march the wide road, and stand erect and in the light. His spirit is haunted; he has been set apart. He is alone . . . and he can not rest . . .

There is no rest—not until you and I, every negro and white one of us, have each in his own way done his best to fully know and visibly help the other. In no other way can racial justice be achieved.

Basic-most of all tenets of racial justice is that God created negro and white alike, as men equal, imprinting in each soul His Image. The man of color, this human of equally superb dignity, his brother has oppressed and humiliated to almost unendurable degrees. It is this man, whose ghost travels the back trail, it is this one the white must know.

Understanding—this is the key; it alone can conquer such ignorance and unfairness as now prevails.

"One pinch of understanding," judged Damon Runyon, "often means more than two thousand pinches of sympathy." When we conceive even hazily of the catastrophic results of inter-racial ignorance, the importance of this primal axiom of understanding is all too plain. For the initial understanding concept, not emotion, is the great cause of racial injustice. It is not enough for white barely to "tolerate" negro, and simply sympathize with his subjugation. Nor can there be blind trust that racial justice will painlessly come of itself.

Only by effort—concerted, continuous, individual effort based on understanding—can we attain to united, fraternal harmony.

To know really the Downtrodden Ones, white must realize this: In considering background developments of white, dark, red, or what-have-you, "race" as such simply does not exist. The negro people, as any other type, is but a population. group—and not a caste to be isolated. Further, there is no such thing as racial mental heredity. Even individual mental inheritance remains a vague—very vague—question. How in all rationality, then, can unfavorable mental conditions found in single cases—particularly those actually rare, extreme cases constantly produced by the prejudice-baiter as degradingly typical—how can these be considered as standards, everlastingly repeating standards, of the entire negro group and offspring!

Too, white must realize that God did not implant the weird physical differences pictured excitedly by alarmists. Facial features differ; gland structure varies slightly; heart diseases and tuberculosis are more frequent in the Negro, cancer and diabetes less frequent; undernourishment is less noticeable because of darker complexion; having less opportunity, the negro has not too highly a developed physique. Otherwise, there is no major differences, essential or even accidental, whatever.

Would the white understand the tan, he must go into his life. Have discussions, surely—discussions not simply about negroes, but with negroes. But this is but a beginning. If you would really know the negro, journey into his life. See him, talk with him, listen to him, read his books. And know his peoples, his laborers, miners, mill-hands, actors, subway guards, writers, porters, laundry-men, servants, executives, lawyers, clerks, artists, policemen, doctors. Know these as people—children of God. See them all. See for yourself his conditions. Walk his steps, visit his shapes, see his homes and churches.

And above all else, seek out and see and know his poor. Tramp the city and watch his children driven to playing in the streets and roaving in bitter cliques. Or see him on the farm under the yoke of absentee landlordship. and watch the Southern dark man barred from the polls, and look in his eyes, and understand why a tan phantom passes on the back-trails . . . and can not rest.

Seeing and understanding all this, guarantee every Negro his God-given and civically designated rights. Help—and help visibly—each and every negro attain a decent living, recreation, and self-development.

Let especially the city folk have room, and air to breathe, and places to play. Give the negro child a chance to participate in sports, to develop his native physical ability. Consider the past results with just a few negro stars who had such a chance: Jesse Owens, Henry Armstrong, Kenny Washington, the indestructible Joe Louis, and many others.

Above all educate the Downtrodden Ones. Extend educational and cultural opportunities to all, to young and old alike, and so bring forth new George Washington Carvers, Booker T. Washingtons, Paul Dunbars, Marian Andersons, and Paul Robesons.

Appreciate the true negro talent and achievement: his art, science, and matchless music. See his raw ability as the time-honored "new gold from a mine."

Opportunity, equal opportunity, he asks no more—and deserves no less.

Chinese Student Matriculates for Graduate Work

Joseph Wu Spent Seven Years Under the Japanese; Taught School in Nanking

By GEORGE SZYMANSKI

From the Far East to Villanova has come an addition to the student body of Villanova College, in the person of Joseph Wu, twenty-three years of age, of Mendel Hall.

Joe Wu arrived in the United States, for the first time, on January 21, of this year, entering through the port of San Francisco. After a trans-continental journey by rail, he arrived hastily in New York to get his first view of the gigantic metropolis of the world. Without further hesitation he entrained on the Washington Express, arriving in Philadelphia's 30th Street Station an hour and fifteen minutes later. He made the change to the Paoli Local, so familiar to Villanova students, and reached the century-old town of Villanova. Such was the initiation into our midst of Joe Wu, who calls Shanghai, China, his home.

Captain Joe of Tientsin U.

An interesting background is revealed in the twenty-three year old Chinese graduate. He was born in Peiping, China, where he attended Sacred Heart Middle School. Upon graduation, at the age of seventeen, he entered Catholic University in Tientsin, where he completed his studies in four years, receiving the degree of Bachelor of Science in Civil Engineering, in June, 1945.

Following graduation, Joseph Wu and his cousin, also a classmate, escaped from Jap-occupied Tientsin, and headed for Chungking. En-route, both were detained by Chino-Communist forces for three months. His cousin managed to reach their original destination, and later joined the Chinese Air Force in Cheng Tu, but Joe had to turn back.

Taught High School

He returned to Shanghai. Soon afterwards, he was appointed to teach at the American Jesuit High School, named Ricci College, in Nanking, where he taught Algebra, Geometry, Trigonometry, and Physics.

From that time until he left China, Joe hoped for the opportunity to continue post-graduate studies in Civil Engineering. After some preparatory courses at Villanova, he plans to enter a Graduate School, from which he will return to his native country equipped to carry on his life's work in the China that needs him and many, many others like him.

Altogether, our newest international student spent seven years under different phases of Japanese occupation. He also had the opportunity to meet American GI's at the Ricci School, where the American Jesuits frequently welcomed our servicemen within their friendly gates.

Played Basketball in China

Our school-mate is well built; stands five feet ten inches tall; weighs 160 pounds, has dark eyes, and straight black hair. He likes basketball and soccer, which he often played in high school and college. He enjoys the Villanova games in the Field House along with all Villanovans.

He speaks English with a definite trace of Chinese, but one is attracted to the well - mannered, modest, and friendly Chinese gentleman. His presence is a constant inspiration to his fellow roommates and classmates, who have readily accepted him into their intimate circles.

The scope of Villanova College becomes truly international and the Villanovan welcomes Joseph Wu, of China, and wishes him that he capture the American spirit of brotherhood and good will, and that God's blessing accompany him on his every endeavor.

A smoker for members of the Junior Class has been announced by Rev. Michael O'Donnell, O.S.A., moderator of the group. The affair will be held tomorrow evening, March 5, in the auditorium of the C & F Building. At the meeting final plans nad various committees for the numerous activities of Junior Week will be drawn up. All third year men are urged to attend.

College to Have Representation in NSO

The student leaders of the thirty regional divisions of the embryonic National Students Organization will convene in Chicago on March 7, the purpose of the meeting is to consider articles written into the first draft of the proposed constitution and procedures to be adopted at the Constitutional Convention tentatively scheduled for next September. At that time this draft will be presented for ratification.

Villanova To Be Represented

Although Villanova representatives will not actively participate in the framing of the constitution next week, they will be present at the September convention. Student representatives of Villanova and other regional member colleges have advised Ralph Dungan of St. Joseph's College, the regional head, as to what they wish to see adopted into the constitution. Acting as the representative of the member colleges of this region, Mr. Dungan will present these proposals before the committee for consideration.

Some of the aims of this organization for which the constitution is being drafted are:

1. Free, student-controlled student governments.
2. College newspapers free to express the will of the students.
3. Elimination of racial discrimination on campuses.
4. Advocation of lower tuition fees and the increase of scholarships and government aid to qualified students.

Colleges who are members will be urged to adopt any of these aims which may be finally incorporated into the constitution.

Book Store News

Paper and Equipment Shortage Add to Burden of College Store

Shortages of books, paper, and engineering equipment of all kinds have placed an additional burden on the college bookstore. With the large number of students matriculating in colleges throughout the country, the demand for books and equipment has reached an unprecedented level. The result is that the suppliers have been unable to fill the demand.

The scarcity of paper, which is expected to continue until next fall, is one of the most pressing problems at the moment. Orders placed up to six months ago have not yet been filled. This same condition applies to the shortage of books and drafting equipment to a slightly lesser degree. The shortage of newsprint and the impossibility of estimating the number of students requiring books in each course account for the lack of books. Engineering instruments of all kinds, including slide rules, drafting boards, T squares, and calipers, are especially hard to get, and prospects of obtaining these instruments in the near future are dim.

This semester, the college bookstore inaugurated a new system to relieve congestion. Colored numbered cards were distributed to the students.

which they never relinquished. Perry DelPurgatorio was given a goal when Hoeveler touched the basket in attempting to deffect his basketward shot. Brooks Ricca added four points on two set shots, while Lord and Leo Wolf each contributed sets. The rest of the game was an exhibition of long passes, all-over-the-floor-play, and frequent substitutions with the Cats remaining comfortably in front.

Lord, though scoring "only" fourteen points to tie Raiken for scoring honors, played perhaps his best game of the year as he frequently fed team-mates and snared rebounds. Sabol, though favoring a recent injury, contributed his usual brilliant game, while Wolf and Ricca were little short of terific. Raiken kept his steadily improving play on the rise with another blue ribbon performance.

The triumph was Villanova's ninth in the 17-game series with Bucknell.

College Fosters Knowledge of Racial Problems

From March 1, to March 8th, Villanova College, in cooperation with the National Federation of Catholic College Students, will observe Interracial Week.

One of the most difficult problems in American life is racial prejudice. This prejudice is due to a misunderstanding of the racial situation in America.

Prejudice is inherently unreasonable, and armed with this principle the intelligent man must discard it. He realizes that if the opportunities afforded to the white man were given to the negro racial prejudice would be at a minimum, Negroes are barred from many schools mainly in the field of higher learning. If the negro is fortunate enough to become a university or college graduate he is hindered from entering the professional field not on the basis of his ability but because of the pigmentation of his skin. The main objective of Catholic Interracial Week is to foster an understanding of the racial prejudice problem.

ASCE to Sponsor duPont Lecture, Field Trips

"Research and Better Living" Program to Be Open to All Students

The Student Chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers held its first meeting of the semester last Friday afternoon. Both old and new business were discussed with the accent on a more active organization this semester.

Plans are already in progress for a big program on the night of Monday, March 17th. The only item on the program that is definite as yet is a lecture demonstration on "Research and Better Living" to be presented by the DuPont Company. It is a light, non-technical illustration of the uses of plastics, nylon and other DuPont products.

Program Sponsored by A.S.C.E.

Dan Redmond, President of the Chapter, announced that the program is to be sponsored by the A.S.C.E., but is to be jointly contributed to by the four engineering Societies. All students, engineering or otherwise, and their guests are invited to attend.

Mr. John Gallen, Faculty Advisor of the Chapter, has arranged field trips to Lukens' Steel in Coatesville and a steel plant in Conshohocken. Both trips are to occur within the next month. A man to speak on "Caissons in Bridge Construction" has been contacted for a date in April by Mr. Gallen.

A new constitution for the Chapter was presented and read by the Committee, Hal Varani (in absentia), Al Syvertsen and Don Barton, assigned to that task. The meeting was climaxed with a financial statement by Secretary-Treasurer David Marano and subsequent acceptance of orders for Student Chapter pins.

Senior Class Nominates Two

Edwards, Janeway Appointed for Alumni Board Elections

Harry Edwards and Phil Jakeway, both Seniors in the Engineering school, were nominated for the position of Senior Class representative on the Alumni Board of Governors.

The election to choose between the two men will take place tomorrow, Wednesday, March 5th, outside the Information booth between 11:00 A. M. and 1:00 P. M. All Senior II's will be eligible to vote.

Candidates Have Been Active

Both of the candidates have been active in class activities. Edwards is the past Sophomore and Junior Class President, Veterans' Club President and is presently a member of Student Council.

Jakeway, a chemical engineer, has been an honor student since he first came to Villanova, leading his class for three straight semesters. He was also a member of Villanova's varsity basketball and baseball squads three years ago.

cent of the old days when men were scarce and women were anxious. It recalled memories of other Tea Dances, (veritable man traps), though withal pleasant ones, which were held suggestively in advance of the Villanova dances. Few were the students who could go to those teas without a date for their own dance and leave with whole heart and fancy free. I remember one such dance when I lost my head and ended with a date for a Prom I had not intended to attend. I remember also another such dance where I lost my heart, the details of which episode we need not explore.

Science Dept. Buys Surplus War Equipment

Laboratory Equipment Heads List of Articles Obtained by Father Vrana

The Science Department announced yesterday that Villanova will soon receive, through the War Assets Administration, laboratory equipment and furnishings making possible the complete renovation of the Department. Among the hunreds of items purchased are a pH-meter and a late-model spectograph, the latter, according to Dr. Haenisch, a bargain at twice the price. The equipment was formerly the property of the Aluminum Corporation of America.

Delivery is expected within three weeks, and present physics and chemistry lab stocks will be immediately replaced with the newer items. Calorimeters, fume hoods, glassware and assorted laboratory equipment are included in the shipment. The Chemical Engineering building, now under construction, will receive some of the more expensive pieces of equipment, items retailing separately at three hundred dollars, and up.

REV. J. VRANA, OSA

Spectograph Rare in East

Dr. Haenisch is particularly keen on the spectograph. It seems not every college has one just like it, especially in the east. According to the Doctor, this spectograph permits "complete analysis for the chemical construction of a metallic alloy, to be performed in a matter of minutes, with identification being made by means of the various wave lengths of light emitted by the alloy when heated to incandescence."

The equipment constituted the entire experimental laboratory of the now-idle ALCOA plant in Burlington, New Jersey. It was obtaoined at a ridiculously small cost, 5 percent of fair value, by Rev. V. Vrana and Doctor Haenisch. It is hoped that the new facilities will foster some industrial research in the college on the part of local engineering concerns.

A.S.M.E. Meets

A meeting of the A.S.M.E. was held on Friday, March 7, in the Senior Drawing Room. Dr. Auth distributed cards announcing the monthly meeting of the Philadelphia Branch (Junior Group) to be held on Wednesday, March 12 in the Edison Auditorium, Edison Building, 900 Sansom St., Philadelphia.

PKP TO GET KEYS

Roland W. Higgs, secretary of the Phi Kappa Pi, announced that the senior keys have arrived, and may be obtained by the graduating members of the class upon the payment of their dues.

The following men are eligible to receive their keys: Joe Brogan, James Murphy, R. Higgs, Tom Hanratty, B. Johnson, E. Deasy, W Monagle, Dr. Redmond, D. Marano, J. DeLago, L. Fallon, J. Bonner, H. Edwards, C. Burke, J. Brinjac, S. Korneff, T. Ward, W. Boyle.

Inter-American Union to Meet

Students From Various Colleges to Attend Meeting Sunday

The Inter American Union, a body composed of students from the various colleges of the Philadelphia area, will hold its monthly meeting on Sunday afternoon at the Philopatrian Club.

Guest Speaker Present

Between 2:30 and 3 there will be a business meeting and talk by a guest speaker. Although the identity of the speaker and the specific topic of the talk are as yet undecided, the speech will be on some social or cultural subject of general interest to the students in this area.

The later part of the meeting is largely social. Music will be provided for dancing and refreshments will be served. Any student who feels that he might be interested in such an organization will be welcome as a guest and if he finds the program to his liking his membership will be encouraged.

Purpose and Advantages of Union

In addition to it's expressed intentions of combatting racial and religious prejudice and the furthering of Inter-American relations, the organization also provides an opportunity for the students of the various colleges to become acquainted. This will no doubt lead to a closer cooperation among the schools of this district.

Villanova has been notably absent from many of the activities carried on by the combined efforts of the colleges of this area and it would be perhaps a redeeming factor if she became an active member of this group.

Guida Speaks on Racial Problems

Track Star Speaks at Half of Villanova-Georgetown Game

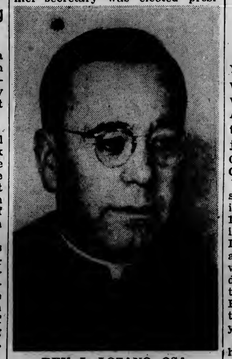
The observation of Interracial Justice Week on the Villanova Campus was highlighted by an interracial basketball game last Thursday evening in the Field House.

Preliminary to the Varsity-Georgetown contest, the game was played between the colored lads from St. Ignatius Parochial School of Philadelphia and the white boys of St. Thomas of Vilanova Grade School, Rosemont.

As a concrete demonstration of interracial sportsmanship this game left nothing to be desired. And while the lads of St. Thomas School carried off the scoring honors, the boys from St. Ignatius were every bit their equals in courage and sportsmanship.

Accompanied by their parish priests, Fathers Mitchell and Powell, the boys from St. Ignatius were the guests of the college at supper.

Father Mitchell Speaks



Immediately after the game, Father John T. Mitchell, Assistant Rector of St. Ignatius Parish, addressed the overflowing audience in the Field House on the application of Catholic principles to the problem of the elimination of racial prejudice and to the estab-

Literary Contest Outlined

Formal opening of literary contest was announced; the competitors will use as their themes the life of the famous Spanish writer Cervantes. Two prizes will be awarded, one for the best prose written in Spanish and the other for the most outstanding poem in English. The awards will be given to the winners at the Spanish Club meeting to be held on Cervantes Day, April 23. A committee has been elected to make arrangements for the affair.

The meeting was adjourned after a few short speeches from the newly elected officers.

Dr. Walter Dew To Speak Before Campus Groups

The combined societies of the engineering school, the ASME, AIEE, ASCHE, and the ASCE will sponsor on Monday, March 17th what should prove to be an outstanding evening for all students, their friends, and dates. Beginning at 7 o'clock sharp in the C & F auditorium there will be a most unusual lecture; given by Dr. Walter Dew —unusual in the fact that it is an entertaining demonstration of scientific subjects. Dr. Dew is well able to tread this difficult middle line in combining the so-called technical aspects of modern advancement with a light, vaudeville style presentation. His main theme will be the acceleration in progress due to America becoming consicous to its inventors, scientists and engineers and of what potentials they possess in terms of good for the country.

Doctor Dew, eastern manager of the Extension Division of E. I. duPont de Nemours and Company, graduated from Princeton where he also received his doctors degree in physical chemistry in 1924. Early in 1943 he was assigned to the Manhattan Project where he handled upPonts' personnel contacts with the University of Chicago. Later at Oak Ridge, Tennessee, he directed the training of supervisors for Hanford Engineer Works.

Feeney Elected Chairman Of Inter-fraternity Ball

Band Committee to Make Orchestra Selection in the Next Few Days

James Feeney, represnting the Phi Kappa Pi fraternity, has been elected chairman of the inter-frat ball which will be held on Saturday night, April 12th, at the field house. The election was held last Wednesday at a meeting of representatives from the three major fraternities.

Supporting Feeney on the dance committees will be: William Monagle in charge of tickets; Larry Fallon and Bernard Barsche in charge of making band arrangements and Roberto Suarez in charge of refreshments. Peter Chaplinsky will direct the program arrangement and William Mooney and Richard Randolph will head the decoration committee.

band has not been signed at this printing, but the baid committee has hopes of releasing that information within the next two weeks.

The Dance will be informal and open to all students. There are indications of a large attendance and the subsequent necessity of an advance ticket sale.

Because of the possibility of such a step, all students desiring to attend are urged to get tickets as soon as possible. Ticket will be $3.00 plus tax and may be purchased from any member of the dance committee or at the information booth within the next few weeks.

The proceeds will be divided among the sponsoring fraternities (D.P.E.; P.K.P.; Arts) to assist them in their activities throughout the school year.

Father Hickey To Visit Rome

First Meeting of Chapter in Eleven Years to Elect Prior General

When she leaves the port of New York on March 15th, the reconverted Italian liner, SS Vulcania, will carry Rev. Joseph A. Hickey, Assistant General of the Augustinian Order in America, who is journeying to Rome to attend the General Chapter of the Augustinian Order.

The conclave, usualy held every six years in the Holy City, will be in session for the first time since 1936, because war conditions made it impossible to convene sooner. Its main purpose will be to elect a new Prior General to head the world-wide organization of the Order of St. Augustine, for a six-year term. The incumbent, Rev. Carlo Pasquini, O.S.A., of Italy, has held the esteemed post for the last ten years.

Approximately eighty of the hierarchy, representing some five thousand Augustinians scattered throughout the world, will take part.

Father Hickey will be one of five representatives from the United States. He has been Assistant General of the Order since 1926, and his scope of authority extends over the English-speaking countries of England, Ireland, Australia and the United States.

Known to and beloved by many Villanovans, Father Hickey will be the first of the United States delegation to leave for the conclave in order to make a study of preliminary conference tracts. The "Vulcania" will take him to Naples, arriving there on March 24th. From there the Assistant General will travel to Rome.

The conclave, scheduled for April 24th, will last one week. At the conclusion of the conference, the delegation will be received in audience by His Holiness Pope Pius XII, to receive the approval and blessing of the Holy See.

Father Hickey will be away from his office at Villanova for a period of about three months. It will not be his first trans-Atlantic sojourn. He has been on missions to Rome and other parts of Europe on many occasions in the past.

Kearney Elected

Former Villanovan Chief Named Treasurer of Council

Mathew J. Kearney, '49, was elected to the post of Secretary-Treasurer of the Student Council last week. Kearney, former editor of the Villanovan was one of seven candidates for the job. The voting was held all day Thursday at the information booth.

Chairman of the council, Joe Brogan, announced the result in a statement to the paper, "With the treasurer elected and the schedules in the council can now get started on its semester business. We are planning to throw our meetings open to the student body so that any difficulties can be taken directly to the Council."

The National Student Organization program is to be taken up this week in conjunction with the International Relations Club. Herman Diesel and Phillip Barret will address the Council and acquaint them with the general aims of the organization and what part the Student Councils of the several members are expected to do.

Smoker Makes Final Plans

Committees Named for Junior Week's Events

In its attempt to complete all arrangements for the forthcoming Junior week, the Junior class held a smoker last Wednesday evening. Peter Pallitto, Junior class president, opened the discussion by giving a brief review of those events and arrangements which were completed.

Following this Rev. O'Donnell, O.S.A., Junior class moderator, advised the Juniors that the success of Junior week varied in direct proportion to the amount of effort expended by the class as a whole.

Ed. Kellar, chairman of junior week then took the floor and made a plea for cooperation in the forming of the various committees charged with the arrangements for the several events. Mr. Kellar asked for volunteers for the committees and the response was fairly good.

A resolution was made and accepted that opened the "Blazer Ball" to all students. It was said that the proceeds of the Ball would help defray the expenses of the dinner dance.

Barracks Win 2; Stretch Victory String to Four

Fedigan Wins Debut, Then Drops Two; Stark Scores 29, Sets New Scoring Mark

As the Intramural Basketball season swung into its second week, Barracks and Austin emerged as outstanding contenders for the league crown. Barracks rolled to their third straight win by trouncing the Doms 35-28. The Doms were on the short end of a 20-12 count at the half, but a fourth period rally brought them within one point of their high-flying rivals. With the score at 29-28 Barracks increase their lead with a 6 point barrage while holding their opponents scoreless for the remainder of the game.

Austin moved into second place by virtue of a 24-14 victory over Mendel. Austin's tight defense held Mendel to 5 points in the first half. Altman of Mendel and Law of Austin were high with 5 points each.

Stark Sets Mark

Fedigan registered a stunning 34-31 victory over the Doms in their initial appearance of the season. Leading the Fedigan contingent with a sensational 29 points was center Stark. A new league record was established as Stark made 13 field goals and three fouls, all but five of his team's points.

On Monday Fedigan suffered their first loss at the hands of Alumni, 33-25. Farley and Suarez supplied the spark that enabled Alumni to race from a scant 15-14 margin at mid-game to a healthy 8 point lead, and toppled Fedigan from the ranks of the undefeated.

On Wednesday night Barracks again demonstrated their nvincible power by drubbing Fedigan 43-34. Paced by Captain Schaub and Severance switched the offense completely and with the substitution of Jack Crossin and Perry Del Purgatorio, the Cats began playing the Hoyas all over the floor. Just when it looked as if the strategy would pay off, Kostecka broke for the basket and scored on an easy lay-up. It was on this play that he crashed into the post behind the basket and sustained an injury to his wrist which necessitated his withdrawal from the ball game.

Even with the loss of Kostecka, the Cats still couldn't counter enough points and time ran out with the score at 43-35.

Lord Leads Cat Scorers

This game marked the final appearance as a Villanova basketball player for Captain Joe Lord. As is usually the case, Joe led the scorers for Villanova with 14 points thus giving him an average of 18.1 points per game and raising his season's total to 438 points.

It was also the last game for "Maj" McDonald, but it is rumored that "Maj" will be back next year in the role of Freshman basketball coach.

Evidently the old belief that the home team gets all the breaks does not apply when the Cats are the hosts.

Warriors Set Bowling Pace

Two records were broken last Tuesday afternoon at the Main Line Bowling Alleys as the Warriors had high game total pins for a five man team of 847 and a total pin score of 2482.

Carl Kramer had the high three game average for the afternoon, as he set the pace for the Warriors with games of 191, 205 and 196 for an average of 197. Taking four points from the Indians, the Warriors gained undisputed possession of first place. Spina rolled games of 195, 193, and 163, while Menghini had a three game average of 180. Donoghue and Powers rolled high games of 171 and 183 respectively for the Indians.

The Iron Men took three points from Fedigan Hall as Mac Stuart rolled a high game of 200. Joe Foley averaged 169 for the three games. Delaney and Trees had high games of 182 and 184 for Fedigan.

Alumni Hall lost four points to the Red Eyes as McGowan led the the team with games of 169, 155 and 175. Flannelly rolled games of 172, 142 and 169, while Toth had a three game average of 165 for Alumni.

scoring punch, but in this game he not only took the control of the backboards away from Kostecka, but also tapped in 5 baskets to keep Villanova in the ball game. Coupled with Brooks Ricca, he played havoc with Georgetown's pivot passes.

Tactics Switched

When the Wildcats could not cut the lead appreciably by working the ball in slowly, Coach Al Severance switched the offense completely and with the substitution of Jack Crossin and Perry Del Purgatorio, the Cats began playing the Hoyas all over the floor. Just when it looked as if the strategy would pay off, Kostecka broke for the basket and scored on an easy lay-up. It was on this play that he crashed into the post behind the basket and sustained an injury to his wrist which necessitated his withdrawal from the ball game.

In The Sportlight

By NED HOFFNER

Brooks Ricca

Brooks Ricca's 6' 3" frame was not a hard one to spot and to corner for some information about him for this week's Sportlight. Brooks was seen about the Villanova Campus in the fall, shortly after his discharge from the Navy. He answered the call for basketball candidates and his accurate right hand and flexibility under the basket made a favorable impression on Coach Severance. Along with long hours of practice and road trips, he manages to hold down the Freshman Engineering curriculum to boot. The latter being no small feat in itself as any bleary eyed frosh with slide rules on their shoulders will tell you.

"Ric's" style of play was initially developed under Charlie McGlone at Catholic High in Philadelphia where he captained the Roman five in 1945. In that year he was also nominated to the All-Catholic honors in the city league. He should be familiar to Catholic High's football followers for his name appeared on the program as left end in the 44 and 45 seasons.

Member of Bainbridge Five

When Uncle called, Ric took with him his basketball shoes and turned in some fine performances with the Commodores at Bainbridge N.T.S., one of the most memorable being in the Sailor's victory over the Cats last year by a 75-50 margin. In that game he hit the cords for 12 points. He was just as instrumental this year in turning the tide for the Blue and White over Bainbridge.

Mr. Severance's fast five man weave usually finds Ric's 185 pounds in the pick off spot or under the hoop for a tap-in or pass out to a teammate. His outstanding performance of these duties have earned him a starting nod in the pivot post throughout the season. A freshman with three years ahead of him, Brooks is a definite asset to Villanova's basketball stock.

Jack Crossin

We tore Jack Crossin away from his studies in the pre-med course to find that he was one of the Luzerne Crossins. In Luzerne, the name Crosein is synonomous with the gathering of a crowd and a basket being nailed to the nearest pole.

Jack's advent to Villanova followed his discharge from the Navy in the summer. The Navy found use for his basketball talents as Luzerne High had done and the 1946 season found him on the team of the Sampson Naval Training Station. Jack found this play a welcome change from playing under and shooting at the court marks set by his brother "Chink," who may be remembered from the Luzerne team he led to the Palestra in 1941, to be beaten out by Lower Merion for the PIAA title.

Three Letter Man

"Whirlaway's" accomplishments in the field of sports at Luzerne are varied. He played halfback on the football team for three seasons, held down the second sack in his senior year on the school nine, and rounded out his schedule with four seasons of basketball. Coming along behind his touted brother, Jack was given quite a large pair of boots to fill; these he stepped into quite capably. In four seasons of ball, Jack ran up a 1318 point total, averaging 23 points a game in his senior year, in 1945. In the same year, as captain of the team, he led his team to the Valley League title and broke the scoring league record for individual game scoring with 36 markers in one encounter. These marks compared well with brother Chink's, who, his mother wrote in the last letter is playing a little intra-mural ball or something with a down town educational establishment.

A year of college experience on the Sampson squad has been evident this year in Jack's fine floor game, in the way he shadows the ball, and is the sixth man in the opponent's plays. A freshman, along with Ricca, Jack is more than likely to spread the fame of the Luzerne Crossins to the Main Line in the next three years.

Scranton Game

end-of-the-game substitute, sparked what little there was of a flame with his accurate shooting to keep Villanova in the game.

The remainder of the squad had little trouble hitting the hoops against the tired but hard fighting upstaters in the last period. After the final three passes between Lord and Del Purgatorio, the whistle blew, and the game ended—score—Villanova, 66; Scranton, 48.

Lord Takes State Lead

This win, the fifth in a series of nine games, was the seventeenth of the current season for Al Severance's high scoring five. For Joe Lord, whose 22 points was the high for the evening, it meant being vaulted into the position of the state's highest scorer with 424 points or two more than Frank Keath, of Elisabethtown.

happy Rhode Island State; Bob Wanser, 1942 All-American and likely repeater from Seton Hall; and Bernie Pagliaroli, towering pivot man also from Seton Hall are teamed with "Watch Charm" guard ace McCall of La Salle College and Lord on this honorary five.

These are probably only a few of the tributes that will rain on our leader. In the wake of these accolades, more pro offers are likely to be given to Captain Joe Lord, Villanova, '47.

Father Maher Publishes Vol. on St. Augustine

Text Originally Subject of Doctorate Thesis

Just published in book form, and disseminated among the theologians, was a dissertation offered for his Doctorate in Sacred Theology, by Rev. John P. Maher, OSA, of Vilanova College.

The dissertation, entitled "St. Augustine's Defense of the Hexaemeron Against the Manicheans," demonstrates St. Augustine's reliability in handing down the doctrine of the Manichean sect on the work of the six days of Creation. Manicheans were a sect established in the third century by Manes, who based all ethics on interpretation of Cosmogony.

When Father Maher undertook this voluminous work, there was interest in this field, because of the discovery of documents of the Manich sect in Egypt. He compared exact copies with those of St. Augustine's, and proved the reliability of the Saint as an authority.

REV. J. P. MAHER, OSA

Published in Quarterly

The text of the dissertation was published in the Catholic Biblical Quarterly, a publication of the American Society of Catholic Biblical Scholars, in five articles, between July, 1944, and July, 1945.

More recently, the Revue Philosophique de Louvain mentioned the thesis in its bibliographical supplement.

Father Maher, born in Shenandoah, Penna., attended Catholic High School in Philadelphia; entered the Seminary in 1925; received his degree, A.B., from Villanova College, in 1932; then, went to Augustinian College, in Washington, D. C.

From there he was sent to Rome, Italy, where he studied at the Pontifical Gregorian University. It was while attending the famous Roman institution that Father Maher wrote the dissertation for his Doctorate. He was awarded the degree, S. T. D., in 1937, and left Rome to return to the Augustinian College in Washington, D. C., where he taught Theology. In 1945, he came to Villanova College, where he now is in the Department of Religion.

Can you imagine what the future will bring? Joe Blotz of Paoli, Pa. is about to have an appendectomy but before he does he signs a contract with Calverts. On the screen flashes this announcement, "This telecast is brought to you by Calverts. Joe Blotz drinks Calverts. (Here they conduct a short interview with Joe on his way to the operating room. Joe is smiling happily, he has a fifth hidden beneath the sheet). The doctor, one Clarence Zilch, enters the room displaying on his back, "Eat at Louie's. It's good for my business." As the ether is administered, the plot sickens. Zilch gets the fifth and leaves for the Firth of Forth. Blotz changes his mind at the last moment and jumps from the table to sweep Shirley Schmaltz, the nurse, into his arms. To the soft background music of a stomach pump, he vows his undying love for her. The group does a fadeout as the announcer gives out with the coming attractions: "Next week! 'Lana Turner in the Removal of a Hangnail,' with Clark Gable in the role of Cutex."

I. R. C. News

Last Wednesday, an executive meeting of the Regional Commission of the International Relations Assn. met at Rosemont College. After much discussion, the constitution for the organization was ratified. Before the meeting adjourned, plans were formulated for the monthly "College Forum" which will be broadcast over WFIL at 9:30 on March 17th, Villanova's delegate was Phillip Barret, the newly elected president.

Newman Club Holds Discussion

Yesterday, under the auspices of the Newman club of the University of Pennsylvania, the Villanova Chapter of the IRC participated in a discussion on the Bernard Baruch Atomic Control Plan. Summed up, the plan calls for the placing of Atomic experiment and production with an international body, rather than in the hands of the individual countries. John Stanley, chief Villanova delegate, stated that the majority of those participating voiced the opinion that the Baruch Plan was the best so far offered to the country, and should be adopted.

Poll Taken On Campus

An interesting sidelight on some of the IRC's work was recently observed. The Statistics Committee took a poll to determine just how well informed the college student body was on this vital question of Atomic Control. The results were most disappointing, only one out of every eight questioned could answer with any accuracy on the basic points of Atomism. Within the near future, the IRC hopes to launch a program here in the schoool to remedy this situation.

Reconstituted International Relations Club Elects Officers

One year since its revival, the International Relations Club elected Officers at a meeting held March 3 in Mendel Hall.

Last March several students, assisted by Father McCarthy reorganized the International Relations Club. At that time two topics given paramount consideration were the United Nations and the background of the Spanish Revolution. When the new school year began in October the club met in Mendel Hall with Father Dunne, the present moderator. Here the arduous task of promulgating a constitution was undertaken and principally through the efforts of Jasper Chen Se and Edward Fanelli this was quickly accomplished. With all preliminaries removed the club began to advance.

At the semester's completion members were displaying a growing interest in this field by alligning themselves with brother and sister colleges and participating directly or indirectly in college forums and broadcasts conducted over station WFIL.

The club with a gradual growth in members has once again elected officers in the hope of duplicating and surpassing the efforts of its worthy predecessors. Mark Doyle has succeeded Phillip Barret as president for the coming year. Other officers elected were: Vice President Edward Fannelli; Recording Secretary, Melvin Racusin; Treasurer, John Rouf; It is the desire of all members that students will participate actively in the International Relations Club in the coming months. Also it is expected that with a growing membership more students will appreciate the value of a knowledge of world affairs.

Father Gavigan to Represent CCICA at UNESCO Meeting

Latin Professor Elected to National Catholic Society of Classic Scholars

Reverend John J. Gavigan, O.S.A., assistant professor of classics at Villanova, was appointed last week to the Catholic Commission on Intellectual and Cultural Affairs by its membership committee. Father Gavigan received the honor in recognition of his distinguished work in his field. He is the first man in the Philadelphia area to be so designated.

REV. J. GAVIGAN, OSA

The CCICA has been organized so that the outstanding Catholic scholars may unite in their contributions to the cultural fields and by so doing present a united front against the profane philosophies. It is headed by Doctor David McCabe of Princeton University and its executive secretary is Reverend Edward V. Stanford, O.S.A., last president of Vilalnova College.

Father Gavigan has been asked to represent the CCICA at the national conference of the United Nations Economic, Social and Cultural Organizations to be held in Philadelphia during the week of March 24. At this conference a general agreement will be reached on a program of education, study of the humanities and philosophy.

The members of the committee have been selected by a consideration of their achievements in their fields. Father Gavigan has published several well known works on classical studies and has had several articles published in Catholic magazines.

"The Syntax of the Gesta Francorum" was published by Father Gavigan in 1943. It is a study of medieval latin and its forms. This spring, he will finish two volumes of translation, St. Augustine's "On Christian Instruction" and Oliver of Paderborn's "The Capture of Damietta." The former is to be published by the Cosmopolitan Science and Arts Service Company and the latter by the University of Pennsylvania.

Classical Critiques have been written by Father Gavigan for the "Tagastan," the "Classical Bulletin," the "Classical Weekly," and the "Classical Historical Review." He also has written biographies of Lupus of Ferrelenes, Nebridius, and Saint Augustine. These works were written in Latin, German and French.

Lenten Sermons Continue Under Father Gildea

Faculty Member Speaks on "Sin and Repentance" in College Chapel

The third of the series of Lenten talk by priests members of the Villanova Faculty was given by Rev. Joseph J. Gildea, OSA, at at Chapel exercises last Monday and Tuesday. The theme of the Sermon was 'Sin and Repentance.'

The basis for the sermon by Father Gildea was the biblical story of Esau, which is read in the Mass and Divine Office during the second week of Lent. Esau, the elder son of Isaac, sold his birthright for a mess of pottage and thus forfeited his right to the promises made by God to Abraham. He awoke too late to a realization of the greatness of his loss.

REV. J. GILDEA, OSA

Drawing an analogy with the story, Father Cildea pointed out the comparison between this and the selling of our birthright as sons of God when we fall into a state of mortal sin. He said that we thereby choose transient pleasures in preference to the gift of sanctifying grace. Such a careless attitude towards our eternal salvation might well result in our unpreparedness and unrepentance at the time of our death. Father Gildea believed that the tragedy of Esau should caution us to prevent the same tragedy from working itself on our lives.

These Lenten talks follow a tradition of Lenten devotions here at the college. Usually, each week a different priest delivers the sermon, which conform to the Mass for the week.

Because of the varied character of the faculty member's interests and because of their facility of expression, these sermons are an insight into the ways that the truths of Catholicism may be viewed.

Villanova Host To All Girl Orchestra

Annual Musical of Combined Orchestra to Hold Concert Next Monday

The annual musicale of the combined orchestra of the Philadelphia Catholic Girls' High Schools will be held in the college field house next Monday, March 17th. This occasion marks the fourth consecutive year that Villanova has welcomed this talented organization to its campus.

Over Three Hundred Members

Included in the total membership of over three hundred young ladies. There are four separate groups: the eighty-five piece concert band conducted by Mr. Benjamin d'Amelio, the Verse Choir under the directorship of Miss Margaret Mary Kearney, and the Glee Club and a Symphonic Orchestra both conducted by Dr. Jeno Donath.

The vocal group includes almost a hundred members; the Verse section has about fifty and the Orchestra is the same size as the Band.

Miss Kearney's group has drawn its ranks from the John W. Hallahan and the West Catholic Girls' High Schools, while the Glee Club is composed of personnel from the Little Flower High School. All three secondary schools combine their talents in the orchestra and band.

Varied Program

The program range is very wide, including both the works of the musical titans and some contemporary composers. Such widely known and popular pieces as Semper Fidelis, William Tell Overture, When Day Is Done, The Gypsies, and the Egmont Overture highlight the program which includes many more selections. The orchestra will feature Guitar Waltz, a composition by Dr. Donath and a Latin-American fantasy, arranged by the conductor.

The program is as follows:

Orchestra Selections
Egmont Overture—Beethoven
Arioso—J. Bach,
Melodies from Anton Dvorak—Arr. by Dr. Donath
Guitar Waltz—Dr. Donath
Hillbilly themes from American Suite—Morton Gould
Latin American Rhythms—Arr. by Dr. Donath
Finale — Southern Rhapsoday—Haswer

Concert Band Selections
Semper Fidelis March—Sousa
William Tell Overture—Rossini
Lady of Spain—Evans
School Days Fantasy—Cobb and Edwards
Adaptation from the operetta Sari—Kalman

Glee Club Selections
Hymn of Praise—Mozart

When Day Is Done—Katscher
A Heart That's Full—Rolyn
Serenade—Toselli

Verse Group Selections
Kittiy of Colerain—Lysaght
The Gypsies—Anonymous
Hymn before Sunrise—Coleridge

Plan Tour

This concert will be one of a series that will include performances at Norristown and Reading. An augmented group will present the musicale at the Academy of Music in Philadelphia in May at the Robin Hood Dell later in the summer.

Villanvoan Smoker

The Villanovan staff has announced its intention to hold a smoker midway in April. Present plans include talks by Rev. J. J. Kletkota and Chief Editor Collins, entertainment and awards for good writing.

The entertainment will be provided by a committee headed by John Kucha. John has refused to drop any hints as to the nature of the entertainment, but it is pretty certain that it will follow the general Kucha line.

Don Collins plans to present a history and criticism of the Villanovan. In his talk he will attempt a coordination of the criticism by the staff and the suggestions received through the "Letters to the Editor" contest now in progress. According to Collins this synthesis should give a more accurate and unbiased understanding of the character of the paper.

Arts Fraternity Elects Kearney to Presidency

Crane and Sabol Also Chosen as New Officers in Reactivated Fraternity

In the election of officers of Villanova Arts fraternity, Matt Kearney was chosen president. Matt is a Junior II arts student majoring in English. The other two officers chosen were Maurice Crane, Vice President, and Robert Sabol, Sec. Treasurer.

The Fraternity will be directed in all it's semester activities by these three officers.

Coinciding with last Wednesday's election was a report by the constitution committee on it's working draft. The draft was reviewed and amended in accordance with the views of the members on the aims of the organization and the mechanical needs best suited to atain them.

In the first draft the membership of the fraternity was divided into two classes, active members who would be required to be students of either the Arts or Education schools, and inactive members who may be members of any of the schools at Vilanova. Active membership includes the right to vote on all matters that affect the basic nature or function of the fraternity. Inactive membership insures the right to participate in all activities of the organization without having a voice in the determination of those activities.

Meeting Tomorrow

A number of questions and decisions were deferred until the next meeting which will be held tomorrow at 2:00 P. M. in Room 210 Mendel. At this meeting the newly elected officers will assume the responsibility of guiding the young organization and the Inter Fraternity Ball committees will make its initial report.

German Club Prepares for an Active Semester

Socials With Chestnut Hill and Immaculata Discussed in Recent Meeting

The Neustaedter Kreis, Villanova's German Club, held an open meeting on Friday Feb. 28. Discussions of future plans—both social and cultural—constituted the major part of the meeting.

Two meetings are planned for the month of April. A joint meeting will be held with the Chestnut Hill German Club on April 25. For the second meeting Immaculata College will be the scene of activities. At both meetings refreshments and dancing will follow the evening's program.

A resolution to hold individual class elections of one representative per class was proposed and accepted. Elections will be held at a future meeting. It is believed that a closer bond of willingness, cooperation, and interest will result from this arrangement.

College Newspaper Scoops Rivals With New Flash Gun

Picture Staff Develops Amazing High Speed Electronic Device

An electronic flash gun, to be used by the Villanova photography department for high speed action shots and sports photos, has been assembled by staff members.

Three times as bright as a standard flash, the unit sets off a flash with a duration of one eight-thousandth of a second. Attachable to a 110 volt A.C. circuit, the gun charges a large condenser to high voltage in five seconds and discharges it through a special electronic flash tube, which has a life span of ten thousand flashes.

The power supply box rests on the floor, and the trigger unit, which simultaneously opens the shutter and sets off the flash, is attached to the camera. The portable flash gun, weighing approximately four pounds, requires only one person to operate.

With the aid of this electronic flash, clearer, more sharply defined photos can be taken. Costing only seventy dollars to assemble, the new unit will prove far more economical than the standard flash bulb.

John Kane, physics major, class of '50, assembled the flash gun with the aid of Bob Flaherty, Villanovan photography editor, and George Szymanski. Constructed from highest quality parts purchased by the school, the new unit required thirty hours to build. Kane, a radio and camera enthusiast, obtained the idea of assembling the flash gun from Norman Wilson, a well known photographer from Haverford College, who made one which operates on a similar principle.

Speaking for his colored boys and parishioners and citing examples of racial discrimination against the lads in his endeavor to find recreational and vacation opportunities in and around Philadelphia, Father Mitchell thanked the College and the Interracial Club for the opportunity of demonstrating the fact that there is no prejudice among Catholic boys. He concluded that as the youngsters learn to play together, so too, they will in later years, learn to work and live together, presenting an example for all Americans.

Charming representatives of the Interracial Clubs of Immaculate College and the Collego of Chestnut Hill were greeted by Herman Diesel, president of the Cafholic Intercollegiate Interracial Council.

During intermission time of the Varsity game, the packed-to-the-rafters Field House was addressed by George Guida, two-time national 600-yard champion. Speaking in the name of the Villanova Interracial Club, of which he is a member, George spoke briefly on the aims of the club and its efforts to aid in the elimination of racial prejudice and to foster interracial justice.

Scranton Royals Clawed as 'Cats Take 65-48 Win

- Lord Scores 22, Takes First in State Scoring
- Race; Slow-Starting Wildcats Hit Pace

HUGH W. JOHNSON

Paced by Captain Joe Lord, who by virtue of his 22 points, became the highest scorer in the State of Pennsylvania, Villanova stretched its winning streak to 11 straight games at the expense of the University of Scranton by a score of 65-48.

The game, however, was not all peaches and cream for the Wildcats as the score would indicate. In the opening half, almost everything they did went wrong. Their passes went wild, their shots, for the most part, were off and their backboard play bore no resemblance to that of last week when Bucknell and Fort Dix felt the scratch from the famous 'Cat.

Team Gets Range

But seconds after the tapoff starting the second half, the team began to find the range. With set shots by Lord and inside shots by Raiken and Wolf, the fast breaking five began to show its colors. By scoring as many points as it had in the whole first half, they came out on the better end of a 48-34 score terminating the third period, and the issue was no longer in doubt.

Scranton did, however, cause some uneasy moments in the initial half. Their use of the zone defense, which is seen in college basketball about as much as the Pop Warner system is in football, really paid off. While rattling the Villanova offense, they kept themselves very much in the game mainly through the defensive work of Tom Notchick, the 6' 5" freshman center, and the point-producing of Jackie Leighton. Notchick, also a constant offensive threat with his one handed hook and pivot shots, was the high scorer for the Royals with 16 points. Not unlike Larry Foust, of La Salle, big things are expected of Tom in his remaining three years in college.

Del Purgatorio Sparks Team

Special praise should be given to Perry Del Purgatorio. During the first period when most of the team was off, Perry, ordinarily an

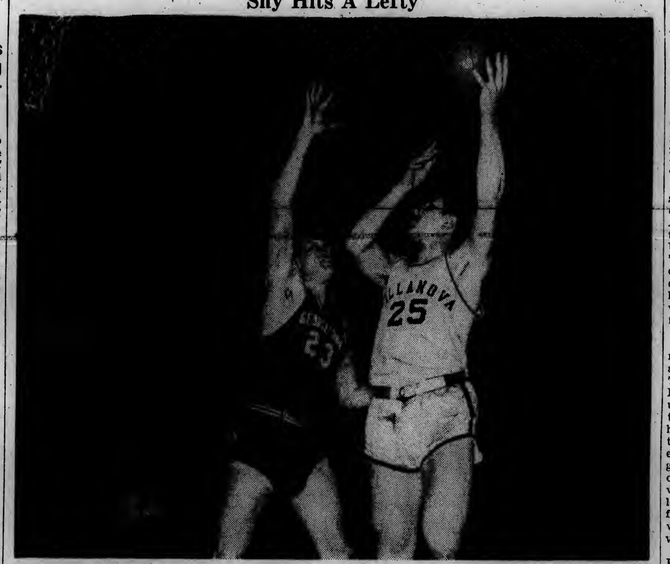
Joe Lord Host to Basketball Team at Dinner

All students are requested to fill in this ballot for the outstanding sportsman in football and return it to the Villanovan office this week. This is the last week that the football ballots are to be run and there are still few ballots returned.



Next week the paper will run the basketball and the football vote will close on Tuesday. Get your vote in early so that the sports staff will not be rushed just before the next issue. The contest bureau also advised the paper the sooner the results are tabulated the more careful consideration the votes will get.

Romeo Capriotti is in the lead in the early returns but it is too soon to make any predictions. Dan Brown has run a close second and there are many contenders. Since the voting is on the basis of sportsmanship and team play as well as individual ability, there are many possiblew inners in the basketball race, As week pass other sports will be represented on the ballots so that no major sport will be left out of the final tally. Get your vote in early!

Shy Hits A Lefty

Dan Kraus' efforts to stop Shy Rainken from scoring are in vain as the Wildcat ace sinks a left hand shot. However "Shy's" efforts were also in vain as the Georgetown Hoyas went to on to defeat the 'Cats 65-55.

Hoyas End Villanova Victory Streak; 'Cats Bow 63-55 Thur.

Led by the sharpshooting of Andy Kostecka and the play-making of Dan Kraus, a highly polished Georgetown quintet defeated Villanova 63-55 in the season's finale for both teams last Thursday night at the Main Line Field House before a capacity crowd of 4000 fans.

For Georgetown, the victory meant possible consideration for a post-season tourney bid, while for the Wildcats, the defeat culminated their longest winning streak in four years at the 11 game mark.

Raiken Evens Count

In the early moments of the game, the Hoyas threatened to turn the game into a runaway. Scoring almost at will, they commanded a 10-3 lead at the 5 minute mark before Shy Raiken tied the contest up personally with three quick baskets and a foul throw. From that point until the end of the first half, both teams were never separated by more than three points even though Georgetown looked much smoother and less tense.

In any other game this this season the Cats had little trouble finding the hoop, but in the Georgetown game, everyone, especially Brooks Ricca had difficulty in scoring consistently. But even though Brooks was unable to find the range, he more than made up for it's deficiency by his splendid works underneath the boards.

Taking into consideration the fact that the 'Cats missed numerous shots, it is remarkable that the half time the score was deadlocked at 28 all.

Villanova Takes Lead

A charlty toss shortly after the second half began gave Villanova its second and last lead in the game. Paced by Andy Kostecka and Rangy Ken Brown, the Hoyas built up an 8 point advantage before the Cats could score again.

At this point, Tom Sabol was banished from the game on five personal fouls. This loss had its immediate effects as the Hoyas ran the score up to 51-37. Usually, Tom is more important to the squad for his jumping ability than for his

Lord Takes State Scoring Title

Total of 438 Points Capture Crown by Six Markers

When Joe Lord tallied fourteen points as the "Cats" bowed to Georgetown, he established two new marks for season scoring. During the last three weeks Lord was pressing Frank Keith of Elizabethtown for the Pennsylvania individual collegiate scoring honors. Only after he chalked up 22 points against Scranton University in the next to the last game did Joe forge into the lead. Going into the last game, the count stood; Lord—424, Keith—420. Thursday night the Villanova captain emerged victorious for he had hiked his total to 438 while Keith tallied 13 to raise his mark to an impressive but insufficient 433.

The other mark that the prolific point-maker established, was a new season high for a Villanova player. His 438 is 135 points better than the old mark which he established last year with 303 points.

In addition Joe has maintained his lead in the Philadelphia scoring race. His per game average of 24 games is 18.25, a mark that is certain to bring him this honor also. He registered the district's high game with a record 45 against King's Point.

Many honors are now being heaped upon the quiet Wildcat. He has been named on the first 1946-47 All State team along with Norman Butz of Saint Joseph's College, Loyola College of Baltimore elected him to their all-opponent team. Three Villanova opponents, Jackie Allen, the leading scorer of point

Eleven Game Win Streak Features 17-7 Campaign

Lord Sets District and Field House Record; Sabol Sparks Team

When the final gun sounded last Thursday marking the end of the final game of the season, a Villanova basketball team left the court with a proud record of 17 wins and 7 losses.

The Main Liners started the season with a bang by winning four of the first five games played. Among the vanquished was the toast of the Ivy League, Princeton University, who succumbed to the 'Cats scoring prowess on two occasions during this period. The only loss of the five was to a highly touted Muhlenberg quintet, which is now under consideration for a Garden bid.

Courtmen Hit Snag

Following this spurt, the boys ran into some very stiff opposition and dropped three games in a row. The first two, to Georgetown and Navy, was just a case of running up against a better team. The third, a decision to Fordham was hard to swallow. The Rams came to the Main Line and put on an exhibition that was just short of a good high school team. Not to be outdone, the 'Cats put up a little worse showing and managed to lose a game which under any performance even close to normal would have resulted in an easy victory.

Following two victories, one over Kings Point, and a surprise win over Manhattan, and two losses to two of the best teams faced this year, Seton Hall and Rhode Island State, the courtmen found their stride. Tom Sabol was injected into the line-up in the Manhattan game and from them on Villanova had a new team. Tom was able, with the help of Brooks Ricca, to almost completely control either backboard in the remaining contests. After the Rhode Island State loss the win streak started. Taking all comers the 'Cats took 11 straight, before the Hoyas halted them last Thursday. During the streak the 'Cats scored 70 or more points in 7 of the 11 games. The highlight of the campaign came when captain Joe Lord scored 45 points against Kings Point to set a new Philadelphia district scoring record. Another record was set when the Severancemen scored 89 points against Fort Dix to set a new field house record.

Star Performance

The 'Cats hit their peak during the Bucknell game. The starting five rolled the score up to 27-5 in the first seven minutes. The passing was superb, and the shots were accurate. Before the game had ended Coach Severance had cleaned the bench and the reserves put up their best showing of the year.

The close of the season was also the close of the basketball careers of Joe Lord and "Major" McDonnell. Joe's steadying influence on the team was one of the big factors in the squad's fine showing. Along with steadying a team composed of four frosh and a senior, Joe wound up the year as the state's leading point producer with 438 points, six better than Keith of Elizabethtown.

Although Joe's loss will be felt, next year's prospects look very bright. The remainder of the starting five are freshmen, but not as far as basketball experience is concerned. With men like Sabol, Ricca, Raiken, Wolf, Crossin, and Del-Purgatorio, not to mention the remaining stalwarts, Villanova is on its way back to its rightful place in intercollegaite basketball.

Pitchers, Catchers wanted

Coach Phil Weinert has issued a call for all pitchers and catchers to report for the next practice. The initial turnouts aside from last year's returning vets was disappointing. If you can pitch or catch, it is requested you report to the field house any day at three o'clock and lend a hand to the squad.

One Track Education . . .

Is the campus at Villanova College a typical college campus? College life, as depicted by movies, fiction, and other forms of propaganda dissemination, appears to be a gay, carefree comeraderie of the youth of our nation in their pursuit of higher education. Does this hold true at Villanova?

Byron once said: "Never let your schooling interfere with your education." Think this over. How true this can be. The mind running in specialized channels every day without diversification soon becomes restricted in scope. Imagine the student who spends four years in college without participating in extra-curricular activities. His mind is active in his particular field but in a socialized atmosphere he is lost. Can he count the friends he has not made? The contacts he has missed? The spirit of fun and cooperative experience that has slipped by him unnoticed?

Extra-curricular activities are as much a part of college life as the classroom lecture. They are not so monotonous and lengthy and they are not required. This is perhaps the main reason for passing them up. The old familiar 'line of least resistence' attitude permeates the student body. This attitude must be dispensed with if the individual is to get his money's worth out of his college education.

Look into the various sports, clubs, and activities, then weigh their membership rolls against the total membership of the college. Disgraceful? Decide for yourself. It's your college. You can better the situation yourself. Join some extra-curricular activities. Don't be content with College learning—get College education.

Operation NSO . . .

Villanova is part and parcel of the National Students Organization. The international relation club of Villanova College has supported the NSO since its inception last December, but the IRC believes that an organization such as the NSO belongs not to one club or to a group of clubs but to the entire student body. Thus it will turn over the reins to the student council at a meeting in the near future.

Some may now ask, "What has this to do with me and how am I responsible?" Just this: the individual student is responsible for the future of the NSO, he must see that those elected or appointed to any committee are students who will devote sufficient time and effort to properly represent the student body and to tackle all the problems arising in the Villanova chapter.

A constitution is being drafted now and will be ready for ratification by next September when representatives of about three hundred colleges and universities will convene. Villanova representatives will be present at this convention, therefore, between now and June the Student Council must inaugurate democratic machinery for the selection of committees.

By putting our weight behind the national student movement we can make sure that it will never degenerate into an instrument that we as Catholics and Americans could not tolerate. It will be an organization run by students and for students to the best interest of both administration and student body. When a group obtains rights it also obtains duties and with the proper leadership these will be performed. Villanova must supply this leadership!

They Build More Than Muscles . . .

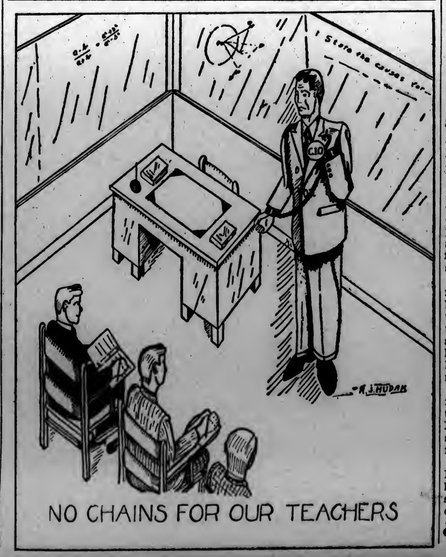
Way down at the bottom of page sixty three of that masterful Villanova publication, the "Students' Handbook", we find a little item that reads as follows: "Every encouragement possible is given to every student to take part in athletics." Now why should the school bother about something like that? Do we intend to start our own little community of "Freddy Physiques," or is the administration trying to distract us from our beloved studies? A quick glance about the campus forces us to answer the first question in the most negative of negatives, and as for question number two, we ourselves know that nothing, however enticing, could keep us from our studies. But still we are urged to participate in sports. Why?

We'd be more than slightly surprised, perhaps, at the answer to that one. For, though each one of us who sets foot upon a basketball court, or tosses a football around, or who takes part in sports in any form lives the answer to that question, he himself seldom thinks about it. He seldom thinks about the fact that "Here I am, in my own humble way, using this body of mine as God would have me use it."

It is in the role of athlete, be he good, fair, or otherwise, that man strives to make of his body the perfectly obedient servant. It is in sports that each student, in proportion to his peculiar natural gift and ability, manifests the fact that, as God has intended, here is the body doing the work that the will says it shall do. The body is tired, but the determination to be a true competitor and the will to win urges the body to "get that rebound," "to go that extra ten yards" — and the body obeys.

Is there ever a moment when the mind is so completely free from taint of impure thoughts or sinful desires than when the body is being made the proper subject of the will through sports? Think back, and the answer shall surely be no.

It is thus that we might change the ancient adage: "sound mind in a sound body" to read: "A pure and sound mind in an obedient body through the application in our everyday lives of the power and determination of will that we manifest through the medium of sports."



Economics Prof, C. I. O.

Recently the nation has been overwhelmed by a wave of propaganda concerning our teachers and the wages paid them. Certainly the situation is intolerable and something should be done about it very soon. We can add no more to what has been said concerning the seriousness of the situation but the point we wish to establish is that this condition must be done away with by means consonant with it.

Strong national unions have seen their opportunity in this case to organize a professional class since there seems to be no other possible means of redress of grievances. We cannot let this happen. The teachers of the nation have a sacred trust. In their hands is the future of our nation, if they are biased regarding some economic and political theories the nation will grow up in conformation with those theories. Our teachers must be objective, they must be given the fair picture of democracy and they haven't been getting it. If the teachers are organized in another of those gigantic labor combines they will be influenced both morally and physically to the line of thought laid down by the heads of their union. To speak plainly they will lose confidence in the American way, they will think of themselves as the laboring class and this is a criterion of communism.

In this case it would be good to consider just what is the American way. In their status as professional people teachers are responsible to society as a whole. Conversely, society as a whole is responsible to them, we the people are responsible to the teachers; they fare as well as we see fit.

This concept of responsibility is the keystone of democracy. We must realize that what the government does is what we collectively do. If the teachers are badly paid it is our fault, if we were ignorant of the situation it was culpable ignorance.

LETTERS

Dear Sir,

My brother is a student of Philadelphia's Central High School. The other day he brought home with him the school's newspaper, The Centralizer. I read it. I'd appreciate your re-printing a portion of the editorial page.

QUOTE . . . "INTOLERANCE HITS HOME . . ."

"Racial intolerance is the kind of thing you read about in the papers. We Northerners may have our little troubles, but lynchings and voting bans belong to the South. Why worry about it?

"Well, there are plenty of reasons to worry. And one of them is that the Southern racial intolerance may disrupt your own plans. That was the case with the '188th' Class's proposed two day trip to Washington, D. C., the capital of our freedom-loving country. When reservations were made for the class members to stay at New Roosevelt Hotel, the New ROOSEVELT, mind you, the management informed the class that it would accept no Negroes.

"The 188th goes a well deserve pat on the back, for they turned down the hotel stay before you could say Jim Crow. However, their action does not correct the situation. In fact there appears to be no simple solution for the problem of white supremacy in the South.

But there is something that each one of you can do. Don't just talk about freedom and equality. Do unto others, whether they be Protestant, Catholic, Jewish, white, black, or yellow, as you would have them do unto you." — UNQUOTE.

An accolade for Central High! I certainly hope that this college keeps the New Roosevelt Hotel (The New Bilbo Hotel would be the ideal name) in mind, in the event of any future plans for trips to Washington.

Last week was Interracial Justice Week. We should have Interracial Justice Week 52 weeks a year, in order to accomplish the good needed.

The late President would turn over in his grave if he were cognizant of that hotel's name. If I controlled the Roosevelt Estate, I'd take legal action.

THE LITTLE WHO'S WHO

College professors are nice people, even the human ones, but they are traditionally eccentric and Villanova is a traditional institution.

The following professor types are well known on any campus:

THE DICK TRACY delights in investigating students: Checks term papers scrupulously for plagiarism; is angry when he can't find offenders; looks at sleeves, shoe laces and under fingernails before tests; usually teaches "Freedom in Education" or similar course.

THE GUM BEATER, usually about five feet tall with vocal chords twice as long, likes to exercise voice (which is probably suppressed by wife at home). Tells students if they don't work, they'll flunk course. Students work, (flunk anyway).

THE ERSATZ, well known in many schools, is so named because he is a poor substitute for a good teacher—Usually great satirist; takes pride in making keen jokes about students who disagree or trip him up in class. Jokes are usually laughed at by B. T. O's in front row.

THE THINKER lectures steadily for hours; ends every other sentence with, "What do you think?" New students who raise hands to answer either get tired or arm falls off.

THE VETERAN OF THE HOME FRONT wears traditional haggard, wild-eyed professor look; stands in front of class for an hour or two discussing domestic situa-

Serenade to a Rib

h! unknown man, whose rib
I am,
hy don't you come for me?
lonely, homesick man I am hat would with others be!
want to wed—
here now it's said.
don't deny and fib)
want my man come at once and claim his rib!

Oh, don't you sometimes fell a lack,
A small rib needed there?
It's I! Do come and get me soon
Before I get grey hair.
Come get me dear,
I'm homesick here,
I want—
And I'll not fib
I want that man come at once to claim his rib.

All Stops To Paoli

By J. A. MULLEN

The only report received by this column as to student opinion of its success was, "It stinks." I wish somebody thought I was kidding. This sort of attitude will get me nowhere unless it puts me out on my ear.

The rumor that there is a communistic group acting on campus and that they had already conducted one riot in the C. & F. building last Wednesday is entirely false. That mob scene in the auditorium was the effect of the two words "lets eat" upon a number of hungry juniors, anxious for a free meal.

Smokers have long been an established custom here on the campus. Smoker—that means the first ten men to the cigarettes don't have to buy tobacco for a week.

If some of the juniors seemed to be carrying a bit of a head around on Thursday morning it may no doubt be attributed to the enormous quantities of Coca Cola consumed in a short time at the smoker. Several of them confided that the potato chips and pretzels would feel out of place with Coke and there may have been some effort made to correct this after the gathering broke up.

Those who attended the affairs are going around with an air of superior wisdom and a knowing smile. After futile efforts to discover the secret, all we could discover was that we would see sometime in the future.

As the smoke cleared away across the hall, dimly we discerned some fifty juniors, fiendish gleams in their eyes, smoking cigars. The fiendish gleams were not council by the cigars. It seems that they have devised the perfect method for tutoring their girl friends. They refuse to let each girl believe that she is the most beautiful at the Prom and will go further out on a limb by choosing one girl to represent the maximum of pulchritude.

No comment on the green gills resulting from the first cigars for the younger members of the class. No comment either on the blinding flashes indicating the representative of the photographic staff with the new Strobo-flash.

We may consider ourselves lucky that by now most of the juniors have recovered and the debris has been cleared away. Make way for the next violent Villanova escapade.

NROTC Notes

By JOE KENNEY

The Villanova NROTC unit will compete in an intercollegitae Rifle Match on March 29. However, the Midshipman will be handicapped because of insufficient practice. The firing range, located beneath the football stadium stands, was unable to be used during the past few months because of the inclement weather. It is expected, in the near future, that the NROTC students will be able to use the basement of the Armory which is now under construction, before the building is fully completed. The rifle range in the new Naval Science and Tactics building will contain the latest equipment and will be soundproof.

Physical Exams This Week

This week the Midshipmen are undergoing their physical examinations at the Philadelphia Naval Base. The examinations must be taken annually with a final physical required for commissioning.

A dance, which will be held at the Officers' Club of the Philadelphia Naval Base, is planned, jointly, by the NROTC students of Villanova College and the University of Pennsylvania.

Town Potpourri

By F. ANTHONY HOMANN Jr.

The Johann Sebastian Bach musical setting of the "St. Matthew Passion" will be presented on Monday, March 24, at the Academy of Music under the direction of Dr. James Allan Dash. The concert is the second in a series of "Great Master Concerts" the first one featuring the "Missa Solemnis" of Beethoven, and the third, scheduled for April 21, featuring the "Requiem Mass" of Guiseppi Verdi.

The "St. Matthew Passion" is the most pretentious choral work of Bach, and contains some of his loveliest cantatas. The music is scored for two choruses, each with its own orchestra, as well as for organ, harpsichord, and five vocal solists. It ranks with Beethoven's "Missa Solemnis," Verdi's "Requiem Mass" and Handel's "Messiah" as the very finest in religious music. Especially profound is its appeal during the Lenten season. Appearing as soloists with the regular symphony orchestra and the Bach Festival Chorus, will be Frederick Jagel, tenor with the Metropolitan Opera; Mack Harrell, baritone, also with the Met, and the Goucher College Choir. Tickets for the performance can be purchased at Haly's, 1505 Walnut Street, and are priced from $1.20 to $3.90.

Under the auspices of the Philadelphia Forum, the Boston Symphony Orchestra will give a concert at the Academy of Music on March 13. Serge Koussevitzky will direct the Orchestra in rendition of the Tchaikowsky Fourth Symphony in F minor, the Mattinu Concerto Grosso for Chamber Orchestra, and the "Song of Songs" by Lukas Foss. Appearing with the Orchestra as soloists will be Bernard Zighera and the composer Lukas Foss to play the twin piano parts for the Concerto Grosso. Ellebella Davis will be the soprano soloist in the "Song of Songs."

Miss Davis appeared in Philadelphia last November when she sang three arias with the Philadelphia Orchestra. She was warmly acclaimed, and hailed by the music critics as Ormandy's latest discovery. On Thursday she will appear with Koussevitzky, who like Ormandy, has done much to stimulate new talent in American music.

The Tchaikowsky F minor Symphony is the first of what might becalled a trilogy of Symphonies—the composer's Fourth, Fifth and Sixth—in which three different aspects of his introspective personality are presented. However, this symphony has none of the poignant grief of the Fifth, or the abject despair of the Sixth. Rather it gives the impression of superb vitality and even humor in its overpowering passages and crashing cadenzas, its brilliant orchestral coloring, and its melodic themes. It is one of his best liked works today.

Tickets for the Concert can be purchased at Haly's Ticket Office, and are priced from $1.20 to $3.90.

On March 14 and 15, Eugene Ormandy will conduct the Philadelphia Orchestra in a program devoted to the music of Claude Debussy. The Orchestra will play the two Nocturnes "Nuages e Fetes," the Ormandy orchestration of the piano piece "Reflections in the Lake" and the colorful "Iberia" suite. Appearing as soloists will be Bidu Sayao, soprano; Rosalind

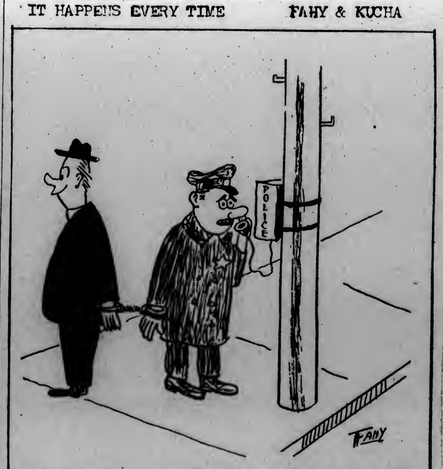
'NEATH THE SPIRES

By ANTHONY COPPA

(Each of us has heard opinions voiced against the belief in anything that pertains to God. These opinions generally try to belittle those who cherish their faith. They scoff at the "weaklings" who forthrightly admit their dependence upon a Supreme Ruler and laugh at the "fools" who pray to Him and sacrifice in His name.)



The zealous Catholic upon hearing such opinion will realize at once who the fools are, and will be prepared to show the unreasonableness of such claims. Many, good Catholics, however, on hearing these same opinions, will not be able to do likewise, for they themselves do not understand the real meaning of their faith.

This understanding comes chiefly from serious thought concerning such things as the motives behind our beliefs and the blessings which they bestow. This understanding is necessary for the fullest appreciation of our faith and indeed, is the fertile ground into which the roots of faith can grow ever stronger. Fertile, that ground must be, for the eternal tree of our Catholic faith, that sprouts from it, embraces all mankind and lifts him into the sunlit countenance of God.

During the routine we follow daily, we have time which can be devoted to the acquiring of this deeper understanding. Perhaps when riding home from school, or while walking for exercise, we might mediate on this matter. We know the doctrines we believe, now let us seek our motives for believing. Are they selfish? Do we believe only because we fear Hell, or do we believe because we love God, the source of all truth and righteousness? Do we lean on God because we fear death, or because He is our loving Father?

Let us seek this understanding of our motives. If we do, we will realize as never before the magnificent beauty of our unchangeable faith. We will realize, that faith exists within our hearts only that we might live a life whose mobility trumpets the glory of God. Let us voice that faith not because it may serve as a blanket under which we crawl when we are chilled by the fear of death; not because it might be a prop to which we cling when our insufficiencies beg for help, but because it is the life giving light which radiates eternally from the heart of Creation, a Light without which the human soul is ever shrouded in a darkness.

Atomic Energy Forum Guests of Franklin Inst.

Dr. Bjarne Braatoy Directs Discussion of Student Delegates

Under the direction of Dr. Bjarne Braatoy of Haverford College, delegates from eleven area colleges met at the Franklin Institute on Saturday morning to discuss the topic "Can We Make the World Safe for Atomic Energy?" Melvin Racusin, of Villanova, was a member of the group.

Address by Dr. Braatoy

Before an audience of some three hundred persons, Dr. Braatoy delivered a short address, pointing out the significance of atomic energy and the importance of lay knowledge of it. He then opened the panel for discussion by directing questions at the student delegates. At frequent intervals, the audience took part in the discussion by directing questions at the delegates and by offering their own opinions.

Some of the points touched were: the veto question; the Lilienthal plan and future social and economic developments brought about by the atom bomb. At times the topics provoked heated discussion among the participants.

Pictorial Exhibit Shown

An added feature of the forum was the Philadelphia preview of a pictorial exhibit having as a theme "Atomic Energy—Force for Life or Chaos," presented through the courtesy of the Enoch Pratt Free Library in Baltimore. The exhibit graphically presented the discovery, development and destructive power of nuclear fission.

Mr. Singher will sing "Three Ballads of Francois Villon," while Miss Sayao, Miss Nadell, and the Women's Chorus will sing "The Blessed Damozel," a lyric poem for women's voices and orchestra.

These compositions represent all stages and styles of Debussy's writing from 1887 to 1912. Most of the numbers played are familiar to Philadelphia audiences, as they have been featured on programs in the past.

Tickets for the concert are available either at the Academy or Haly's, and are priced from $1.30 to $3.90.

PHYSICS CLUB NEWS

The Kappa Gamma Sigma fraternity of Villanova has scheduled another meeting for Thursday of this week in order to initiate various projects outlined at the last Meeting.

Some of the projects are: the installation of a Ultra-High Frequency Transmitter Receiver for the two meter amateur band, short lectures by club members on certain aspects of Physics or allied sciences, and joint meetings with the various engineering societies on the campus. By this means the Physics Fraternity hopes to realize its aim of "The advancement and dessemenation of the knowledge of Physics."

It is desired that as many members as possible attend this meeting.

Junior Week Committees Named by Chairman

Blazer Ball, Dinner Dance, and Junior Prom Important Events of Spring Festival

The selection of committeemen for the various social functions of Junior Week has been completed. Important events of the week, from the 5th to the 10th of May, will include the Blazer Ball, the Junior Dinner Dance and Junior Prom.

ANDREW GORDON '49

Chairman of the week is Edward Kellar. Also closely associated with the planning of this social highlight is Peter Pallitto, Junior Class president, and of course the Junior Class moderator, Rev. O'Donnell, O.S.A.

Gordon is Chairman

Chairman of the Blazer Ball Committee is Andrew Gordon. The affair will be held in the college Field House on Wednesday evening, May 7th. His aides are Edward Crotty, Ernest Williams, John Ringlestein, and John McGowan. At a Junior Class smoker a resolution was made and accepted that opened the Ball to all students.

Prom Co-Chairmen

The prom committee is headed by co-chairmen Nicholas Marziani and Bernard Borschke. Contract arrangements have not as yet been made for the band but an announcement is forthcoming. The Prom is scheduled for the night of May 9th, Friday.

The Junior Dinner Dance, slated for the Benjamin Franklin Hotel, Saturday May 10th, will be directed by Thomas Braun. His assistance will be Thomas Ward, Thomas Kiely, and Vincent Garomski.

The Committees

Committees and their members are as follows:

Tickets: Joseph Healy, Francis Nugent, Edward Walsh, Alfred O'Brien, Robert McFarland, William Diana, A. Dallago, R. Hinnenkamp, D. Orazio, M. Stuart and Gene Hannon.

Decorations: Stanley Bloom, Robert Keller, A. Sylvester, David Cushwa, Bernard Cleary, and Peter Chaplinsky.

Programs: John Mallick, William Brennan, Thomas Scanlan, Art Blanche, Thomas Burke, Francis Stavero, Henry Fessler, and Robert Flaharty.

Publicity: John McDermott, Matthew Kearney, Carl Yeager, Vincent O'Donnell, William Mundy, David Ryan, and William Altenpohl.

The committee promises the affair to be in the best tradition of former Proms. The chairmen expressed their desire to accept as a model the simplicity, yet effectiveness, of the recent Senior Prom.

TICKETS

Tickets for the Inter Fraternity Ball are on sale at the Information Booth.

recognition of his meritorious personal service rendered during World War II.

In the letter received with the award Vice-Admiral L. E. Denfield stated that the efforts of some civilians during the war were so outstanding that the Bureau felt it should show its appreciation for their services.

Fr. Stanford was with Villanova College from 1932 until 1944. He was consultant to the bureau of Naval Personnel and aided in the organization of many Navy College Training Programs. He served on various Naval committees: the Naval Education Advisory Council, the Naval Selection Board for R.O.T.C. Colleges and was Secretary of the Navy's Civilian Advisory Committee.

Van Devanter's Classical and Philological Volumes Bought For Colleges

Books for the new library here at Villanova and for Merrimack College, the new Augustinian School in Massachusetts, were purchased this week by the Provincial of the order, the Most Rev. Mortimer J. Sullivan. They consist of some 9500 books from the private library of Professor H. B. Van Devanter, of the University of Pennsylvania. Included in the library are books on French, Latin, Greek, Spanish, Italian and English. There are also volumes on Ancient, Medieval and Modern History plus some Philological journals.

Father Sullivan disclosed that all duplicates in the library would be sent to Rev. E. V. McQuade, president of Merrimack college, and the rest would be housed in the

Debating Team Drafts Plans For New England Trip

Peter Turney Elected President of Beta Gamma Society at Recent Meeting

The Beta Gamma Debating Society at its semi-monthly meeting held last week, elected officers, planned an intensive schedule, and discussed the possibility of holding an open forum meeting with national figures as speakers.

Peter Turney was re-elected to the office of President. The other officers elected were: John P. Mallick, Financial Secretary; Thomas Daly and Thomas Sullivan, Corresponding Secretaries; Edward Scholmeyer, Librarian.

The society approved a new constitution which was drawn up to co-ordinate and streamline its activities. At the next meeting, President Turney announced the By-Laws will be submitted to the group. All members are urged to be present.

Father Krupa, Moderator, presented a tentative plan by which the forensic group might sponsor an open forum meeting. Speakers, who are recognized authorities in their particular fields, would be invited to debate some question, such as "Labor and Management Difficulties" with students of Villanova and neighboring colleges asking questions from the floor. The student body would thus benefit by receiving first hand information on problems with which the country is confronted at the present time. The discussions would probably be broadcast from the campus grounds.

Villanova debators, John Kucha and Don Collins, will engage Rutgers University this Saturday, March 22, on the subject of "Free Trade"; Station WTTN of Trenton, N. J., will air the argument.

Coming debates were announced as follows:

March 19: St. Josephs, (at St. Josephs)

March 20: Trinity College (at Hartford)

March 21: Holy Cross (Afternoon) at Worchester, Mass.

Tufts (Evening) at Medford, Mass.

March 22: Boston University (at Boston)

March 25: St. Josephs at Villanova

March 28: Gettysburg (at Gettysburg).

DEBATING SOCIETY WINS

Beta Gamma, Villanova Debating Society, won a decision over a debating team representing Bryn Mawr college last Thursday evening, March 13th.

The topic of the meet was, "Resolved, that labor should be given a direct share in the management of industry." Villanova represented by Peter Turney and Thomas Daly presented the negative side of the issue.

Villanova College Host To Archbishop Cicognani

Apostolic Delegate Present At Formal Dinner Honoring Father Hickey

Villanova was honored last week when the Most Reverend Amleto Cicognani, Apostolic Delegate to the Catholic Church in the United States, visited the campus. He was present at a testimonial dinner given in honor of Very Rev. Joseph A. Hickey, Assistant General of the Order of Saint Augustine for the English-speaking countries.

At the dinner, Archibishop Cicognani spoke of Father Hickey as an esteemed and valuable friend. He also congratulated the Order on its work in Catholic education, and stressed the fact that the Augustinians were pioneers in United States.

Present at the dinner were: Most Rev. Hugh Lamb, Auxiliary Bishop of Philadelphia; Most Rev. Bartholomew Eustace, Bishop of Camden; Most Rev. Ochoa, of the Augustinian Recollect Order, a graduate of Villanova, and now a Missionary Bishop in China; Doctor Furey, Rector of Saint Charles Borromeo Seminary, Overbrook; Doctor Burns, President of Immaculata College; and many well known Monsignori.

Archbishop Cicognani was received by an honor guard of Villanova students when he arrived on the campus last Monday. Regular classes, between 11:00 A. M. and 3:00 P. M., were suspended in his honor.

While on the campus the Apostolic Delegate made a tour of the college buildings, and registered pleasure in the manner in which classes and business were conducted. At the conclusion of the tour His Excellency expressed his wholehearted approval and congratulated the priests on their work.

The Most Rev. Amleto Cicognani is a well known figure in Washington, D. C., where he resides as the Pope's representative in this country. He has been in the United States for several years, and has traveled extensively in many states lending his assistance in the important tasks of strengthening Catholicism. His illustrious family is further represented in the hierarchy of the Church, his brother being the Papal Nuncio to Portugal.

Senior Engineer To Be Honored

Scholarship, Leadership Ability and Personality To Be Basis of Selection

Mr. J. Stanley Morehouse, Dean of Engineering, has announced that a Senior of the June graduating class will be selected from the Engineering student body for one of the Merit Awards of the Philadelphia Engineer's Club. The identity of the recipient will be announced by April 15.

The Merit Award consists of a Junior Membership to the society for one year and by it the usual ten dollars entrance fee and the fifteen dollars annual dues are waived. A Senior in Engineering from each of seven area colleges will be presented with a Merit Award and the membership will be conferred on June 1.

Extra-Curriculars Stressed

The basis for selection will be attainments in scholarship, leadership ability and personality. Therefore, not only satisfactory grades but the student's contributions to extra-curricular activities will be considered. At Villanova, each of the four engineering departments will nominate an outstanding Senior and from this group the man to be honored will be picked.

The presentation of Merit Awards marks the re-establishment of a custom dormant during the war years.

Bowling Alley Needed . . .

The other day a senior wistfully remarked that he wished the bowling alley on the campus was open. A freshman was in the crowd and his reaction was one of surprise and chagrin. A bowling alley right on the campus; no lonely bus rides to Ardmore; no fees; the freshman was overcome.

What was once the bowling alley and pool-room is now a storeroom. The equipment is still there but it is hidden under boxes, crates, and bundles. Now we all agree that storage facilities are necessary and are hard to find at present. Yet we feel that there are other places on the campus in which this gear can better be stored.

A possible objection to this project is that the tremendous number of men in the school would overcrowd the place. This is possible but we think that that difficulty could be obviated by establishing nights for each hall and one or two for the day-hops. We would like to see a place made available on the campus for this prais worthy recreation.

Off the Assembly Line . . .

One picture, they tell us, is worth a thousand words, and in many cases they are correct. For usually words are such clumsy tools, invented for one meaning; twisted and distorted into many others—that language expression is often like solving a jig saw puzzle by hammering the pieces into place.

This is not always the case, however, for more than any picture some words give us the true depth of their appointed meaning. No picture can express the full meaning of such words as character, truth, honesty, for a picture or painting, regardless of the artist is essentially superficial. It can communicate the soul of its subject only in so far as that soul or heart is reflected on the surface.

This is the reason that no picture or group of pictures can tell us what college is or should be. They can show us the surroundings and atmosphere of college life and even some of its spirit, but to capture its root is an impossibility. Such is the task of two little words—"Alma Mater" these words tell us that our college must be our mother.

Our Mother—this is the root of the true meaning of college life. This is the meaning that contains the true relationship between teacher and student, a relationship that must be close and personal because of the very nature of man.

If we students are to open up our hearts and minds as true education demands we must be certain that the one to whom we open them is truly interested in us. We are like children in the world of thought and like children we need a mother.

This is the basis upon which we must judge our school. Is it really interested in me personally and am I really interested in it. Am I able to form friendships with professors so that I may benefit from this form of education or am I just another student on the assembly line that ends in graduation and a degree.

If your school is a true college it will realize that education is a very personal process and not something that can be poured into a student. It will encourage and facilitate the formation of good student-teacher relationships and what is more it will truly deserve the name of Alma Mater.

Why Sovereignty? . . .

In a recent audience granted to two representatives of the Associated Press, Pope Pius XII showed evident concern that his ideal of "peace with justice" is not being realized. The Holy Father whose name is synonymous with peace, stated that the nations of the world must surrender some of their sovereign rights if there is to be a lasting peace.

The logic behind this statement seems to be self-evident, and yet the leaders of many countries seem loathe to have their nations part with any sovereignty. As usual our Russian brethern in the person of Andrei Gromyko are diametrically opposed to any such agreement. In the matter of international control and inspection of atomic energy developments, our cousins from the Banks of the Volga have been sonsistently against relinquishing any sovereignty, saying that it is not in harmony with the spirit of the United Nations.

The idea of giving up certain rights and powers to some central authority is certainly not a new one as any student of American history can attest. Back when the United States was trying to become united, that was the main issue. By compromising on problems in a give and take spirit, the colonial leaders set up a central authority by relinquishing title to certain state rights. Thus began the old argument of state versus federal rights, but with the exception of the Civil War the sovereign states composing this nation have managed to live together in comparative concord.

The Pontiff realizes this is a solution to many of the ills of the world. The principle has been shown to work and yet many statesmen refuse to recognize the fact or do anything about it. As the Pope said, the mere fact of the last war and its present after-effects should proclaim the need for such an agreement even though those agreements mean the curtailing to some degree of the sovereign rights of nations.

The General on the Tight-Rope . . .

This week, the foreign ministers of the 'big four' meet again. There is a new meeting place, a new face, but the same old problems. The strings on the diplomatic violin are stretched once more in a new attempt at world harmony, but the international overtones are still to be resolved.

General George Catlett Marshall is playing America's cards this time and it is the first appearance of this master of military strategy on the diplomatic stage. With just a few days gone at this writing, we already have reason to hope that this man will conduct himself with the same aplomb in this field as he did when leading the western allies to victory.

Things have been happening fast, which is indeed unusual in such stratospheric circles. Russia's bombshell on the China issue was capably fended off by Marshall's strong hand and that burst turned into a squib compared to President Truman's startling announcement to Congress last Wednesday.

As Marshall walks into the bear's den, he is facing perhaps the toughest assignment of his career. He must walk the tight rope to honor over the abyss of war. The conference has little chance of reaching any serious decisions unless the western powers make concessions to the U.S.S.R. and it is just this that we must not do. The Russians must be shown that we will not permit any more encroachments on our interests or our commitments. Communism must be stopped in its physical power as well as in its intellectual power.

It is in this field that we can offer assistance to our nation's leaders. We can fight the intellectual battle that must be fought if we are not to be engulfed in the red menace. This is a war to the death with these forces of materialism that we must fight with words before it is too late for such abstruse ammunition.

FACING THE BEAR IN HIS DEN.

LETTERS

This Thursday the Villanovan suggestion contest closed its first section. Two suggestions were of excellence and we therefore will incorporate these suggestions in the succeeding issues. The winner of this contest was Bob Latimer, former Villanovan at present a student at Georgetown Medical School.

Since this suggestion pertains to sports the letter appears on the sport page. The other suggestion of note follows:

Dear Editor:

On behalf of the members of the Inter-racial Club of Villanova, "I make the following suggestion for a worthwhile addition to the "Villanovan."

Since the inter-racial question is one which has been tossed about with comparatively little serious concern on the part of the average college student, I believe that a weekly feature article on the topic would be to the advantage of all. I suggest that this article bring up the questions which are so frequently discussed in the course of an average "bull session," and then attempt to answer each question as authentically a present knowledge and statistics permit.

I think that we all recognize that education is the ultimate answer to the problem, but unfortunately, education can and does work all too frequently in the wrong direction. It is hoped that an article of this type will serve to bring out the true Christian viewpoint on the interracial question.

Thank you for your attention to this letter. I look forward to your favorable action to this suggestion.
Bob Horowitz.

The Bull Pen

By JOHN L. KUCHA

One of the snazziest sounding courses currently being offered at Villanova is that colossal, super-stupendous THERMODYNAMICS. Doesn't that fairly leap out and hit you in the sweetbreads. Pipe a load of some of the zooty dialogue in the text: "Since the change of entropy between states 1 and 2 can be computed for any reversible path or series of reversible paths connecting the points, we may find the change of entropy as though the process were a reversible isothermal (Careful, Bub, this stuff goes home to our parents). Since little work is used to operate the absorption systems, the coefficient of performance has no meaning (he's telling us)." This is not contrary to Umbriago's Law on gases. Put that in your cosine and smoke it.

Every week that the deadline for this column draws near we're faced with huge blank spaces which should contain interesting reading material. Some weeks we get by; we slip in blank spaces galore. This week we're really stuck so we'll run an Innard Sanctum mystery, starring the Student Council, entitled, "Who Elected Dem Guys." Setting: It is twelve midnight. A heavy rain is pouring down. (Sound effects . . . heavy rain pouring down). On stage are two Student Council members noisily inhaling benzedrine. They speak:

1st Member: Huh?
2nd Member: No.
(Enter John Brutus CIO tola, with cloak and dagger. He fires twice at Cassius Canning, but misses.)
CIO tola: I've missed you so much!
(Fires again, neatly cleaving Canning in the cerebellum).
Hic, Hic, Semper Tyrannis.
(Lights soften, "Hearts and Flowers" in background. Kearney enters, blowing his nose in a large red handkerchief. He is immediately banished to the Terghiz Steppes. Collins enters . . . (Sound effects . . . loud hissing and sporadic boos).
Collins: I've a complaint to make!
Brogan (turning off his hearing aid): Eh?
(Two radical students from Fedigan enter throwing home-made atom bombs. The curtain slowly falls hitting two Freshmen selling popcorn.
Spotlight on "The General" sweeping up and spasmodically presenting arms).

Act II

The D. A. and Harrington arrive on the scene. The D. A. speaks.
D. A. Who elected dem guys?
Curtain

The student submitting the best solution to this mystery will be given a free trip to Hollywood with Jane Russell as a guide, dinner at the Brown Derby, and a pony text for that course of THERMODYNAMICS.

NROTC Notes

By JOE KENNEY

The Navy Office announced that it believes a three weeks cruise with the Atlantic Fleet will be offered to the Junior and Senior contract students this summer. All Freshman and Sophomore regular students of the various NROTC units are also to receive a two months cruise in the Atlantic this summer.

Midshipman E. R. Harris will take a three months summer cruise with the Midshipmen from Annapolis as he is the only Senior Regular student in the Villanova NROTC unit. However, next year all Regular students in the Villanova NROTC will be aboard the same ships with the Annapolis students.

Rifle Team Competes

The Rifle Team will oppose the NROTC units of the University of Southern California and the University of Wisconsin on March 22. Each unit will fire on the range at their respective schols and the results of the match will be forwarded to all three institutions in order to determine the winner. This, known as the "Honor system," is advantageous in that more teams can compete with little difficulty and cost.

Lt. Comd'r. Humphries and Mr. Ruth, both of the Naval Bureau of Ordnance at Washington, "came aboard" last week. They consulted with Captain Thomas about installations in the Naval Science building now under construction here.

Lieutenant Richard Register, a naval aviator, will be added to the NACP faculty in April. His appointment will complete the Navy educational staff at Villanova.

All Stops To Paoli

For the past several days there has been a definite, sensible feeling in the air which cannot be explained by the humidity or the temperature. The weather is still cold and there hasn't been much change in the moisture content of the air in this section of the country. Nevertheless the feeling persists. Maybe it is the increasing number of seed catalogues in the mails; maybe it is the way the fellows are beginning to look at the girls or the way the girls are beginning to practice that "come hither" snub, but the fact remains that it is almost Spring.

The hardy perennial daffodil and crocus are starting to show despite the weather and in like manner the students of the schools hereabout are preparing to blossom forth with their Spring formals and the like. There's something in the air and trite as it may seem I'm willing to bet it will pass for love.

Along the Paoli local line the citizens are weeding and digging last year's gardens to ready them for the new season. In the hearts of the young along "All Stops to Paoli," old loves killed during the long winter are being turned under to make room for a new and more fruitful crop. Here too there are a few hardy perennials but as loyal as the daffodil, it is seldom worn in a corsage.

So spring is here and flowers bud,
And birds begin to call,
And young men make, with younger girls,
The greatest mistake of all.

The ground will soon be wet with rain
We'll walk in gooey mud,
But make way ye, with trembling hands
Young love's a mushier bud.

The plot is dug; the seed is sown;
And soon the flower grows.
And the young man finds out with pain
He reaps not as he sows.

The heart he gave when spring was new
And the girl's heart was lighter,
Comes back a bit the worse for wear,
She gave it to some blighter.

You'd think he'd learn his lesson once,
Learn and not forget it,
But he learns his lesson once each spring
And lives but to regret it.

Spring will soon reach us with resounding impact, so take care ye who are fancy free. Your author has few worries about Spring; he's still recovering from the blow dealt him last Spring.

Ed. Note. Since this newspaper is dedicated to the service of the college, we have striven for some time to bring this column to publication. We believe that it will fill a long felt need.

Too many men are entering this school from the service and the high schools knowing little about the fields in which they begin their training. Many men in past semesters have changed their courses and lost much valuable time when they found that they were unsuited to the professions in which they initiated their education.

Mister Oxford has spent a great deal of time preparing the material for this column and we can assure you that the context is authoritive.

MEDICINE

OUTLOOK—Bright, very bright are the prospects in the medical profession today, and for the near future, demand plainly exceeding medical supply. There is an urgent national need for physicians in general, and specialized physicians in particular, Southern and Western States are especially in need of skilled physicians for medical conditions there sometimes border on the woeful. This fourth largest profession in America is now clamoring for youth to offset increasing mortality and retirement losses and to cope with current expansion programs. In short, Medicine is looking to its pre-med schools for new and much needed blood.

CURRENT OPPORTUNITIES— The 40% Selective Service rejection rate has greatly increased public interest and federal aid in medicine. More and more expansion projects are being founded and with an ever growing population, the need is growing. Needs to be filled for the 1940-1950 period are these:

Veterans Administration	4,000
Peacetime Army	9000-10,000
Civilian Population	10,200
Extension of Medicine	8,300
Total Increase Needed	32,000

The Top Hatter 'Cross the Footlights

By F. ANTHONY HOMANN Jr.

Eugene Ormandy and the Philadelphia Orchestra have arranged a widely varied program of melodious and unhackneyed music for the concerts of March 21 and 22. The outstanding number of the program is Beethoven's Pastoral Symphony, No. 6, in F major. Preceding the symphony will be Vaughan William's "Fantasia for Strings" which is based on a psalm—melody by the sixteenth century composer, Thomas Tallis. Following the intermission will be three shorter works — a Philadelphia premiere of the "Cortege Macabre" by the contemporary composer Aaron Copland, the "Swan of Tuonela" by Jan Sibelius, and the "Dance of the Seven Veils" from the Richard Strauss opera, "Salome."

Copland's "Cortege Macabre" is part of the ballet "Grohg," the composer's earliest orchestral score, written while he was studying in Paris from 1923 to 1925. Though the ballet has never been produced on the stage, a "Dance Symphony" has been derived from it, and premiered in Philadelphia by Stokowski and the Orchestra in 1931. The "Cortege Macabre," however, is having its initial performance in Philadelphia.

Vaughan William's "Fantasia" is another little known work. Like the 'Cortege," it is an early work of the composer, having been composed for a Festival in Gloucester Cathedral in 1910. Thomas Tallis, upon whose melodies this was based, is noteworthy in musical history for having served as Royal musician to four British sovereigns —Henry VIII, Edward VI, Mary Stuart, and Elizabeth. At one time Elizabeth granted him and another composer a monopoly on the printing of music in England.

The concerts will be held as usual in the Academy of Music, and tickets for the performance can be purchased there from $1.30 to $3.90

The action in Philadelphia's legitimate theatres speeds up with several well known Broadway shows moving into town. Perhaps the show most anticipated by theatre goers is Rostand's "Cyrano de Bergerac" with Jose Ferrer playing Cyrano. The production, however, will stay at the Forrest for only two weeks beginning March 24 so tickets will be at a premium. "Cyrano" may be ranked with the world's greatest literature. As a drama it contains everything necessary for perfect entertainment — humor, suspense, beauty and plot. Rostand's play has been translated into many different languages, and everywhere it has met with remarkable success. Tickets for "Cyrano," which can be purchased at the Forrest, are priced from $1.30 to $4.00.

Other stage productions coming into town are Sigmund Romberg's musical comedy, "Up in Central Park" at Schubert Theatre and "The Glass Menagerie," by Tennessee Williams, at the Locust St. Theatre. "The Glass Menagerie" enjoyed a very successful Broadway run, and was the recipient of several drama critic prizes. It is a play which will be enjoyed by the discriminating theatre-goer. Tickets for both "Up in Central" and "The Glass Menagerie" can be purchased at their respective theatres.

The Pix Theatre has replaced its technicolor film "Henry V" with another British motion picture, "The Great Mr. Handel." This one, if it does not live up to the reputation of its predecessor, certainly will provide entertainment on a cultured plane for Handel's music is well played by the London Philharmonic Orchestra, and his life has been fairly well written and acted in this picture. At least it does not receive the typical Hollywood mutilation. Wilfrid Lawson plays the title role in this English technicolor production.

'NEATH THE SPIRES

By ANTHONY COPPA

Every day we view the modern trend of things. Wherever we turn we see the streamlined characteristics of modernism. The gaunt lines of the Model "T" Ford have given way to the smooth features of the present day roadster, and the crate-like form of the old flying machines has developed into today's sleek leviathans of the air. The works of architecture, those magnificent skyscrapers that rise majestically into the blue, stand out in vivid contrast with the box-like structures of yesteryear. Such change is sanctioned by God, for this is His will. Man however, in viewing these great works, marvels at his own greatness and reaches out for grander achievement by trying to streamline everything.

But in his mind, man has covered before the sight of the tall, rugged peaks of truth which stand so everlastingly in the presence of God, and, shamed at his display of cowardice, he has dared to streamline these towers of creation into a formless heap of rubble. Inwardly he has succeded in doing so but has pronounced his own death in shouting "There is no absolute truth!" Fierce then is the wrath of God, for this is decadence, and man has become not a little but a great deal "lower than the angels."

What is the result? The modern world has come to accept as true only those things which are convenient and which give life its easy-going way. It has tried to shape concepts to agree with practice, and not practice to conform with unchangeable truth. Thus, we have so many contradicting "truths," that many today don't believe in anything. This scourge is one of the basic features of Communism, which to-day denounces marriage as valueless to a national economy, and the next, declares it as indispensible to civilization's integrity. This change of policy results from the Communistic attitude that maintains the validity of anything that is convenient.

We, living as we do in the blessings of the Catholic faith, must guard against this terrible trend of modernism that it may not thrust its roots into our souls. Whenever we are confronted with difficulty, we must not rationalize and justify a solution that we know to be wrong. Rather, let us strive to solve all our difficulties righteously. It is the successful waging of these little conflicts which will strengthen us for the greater struggles to come for it is the little things that make a great man.

George Sommers Interfrat Ball Band Choice

Tickets To Go On Sale Next Week For April 12th Affair

Jim Feeney, Chairman of the Interfraternity Ball, has announced that the first post-Lenten dance on the campus will be a gala affair, reminiscent of the grandeur that accompanied this festivity in the past.

It will be held on Saturday night, April 12, 1947, in the Field House from 9 P. M. until 1 A. M. and Bill Monagle, who is in charge of ticket sales, states that it will be advisable to secure your ticket as early as possible. The tickets will be on sale next week costing $3.00 including tax. Any member of the various committees will have tickets for sale. If possible a booth will be set up in Mendel Hall and a student will be in attendance to sell tickets.

Played At Sunny Brook

Larry Fallon and Bernie Borsche on the Band Committee have obtained the services of a very popular orchestra—George Sommers. George has played for many college affairs both in the city and at distant campuses. He broke all attendance records at the Brookline Country Club on Saturday March 8, 1947. Sommer's orchestra, of eleven men and three vocalists has an extensive repertoire of both Jive and sweet music.

The decoration of the Field House will be under the supervision of Dick Randolph and Bill Mooney. Since the dance is informal the theme of the decorations will not be too elaborate.

Feeny, who was elected chairman by representatives of all three fraternities (D.P.E., P.K.P., D. P. M.), says that he expects the dance to be a success and an aid to the fraternities in their social program planning for this semester.

New Buildings Shaping Up

Villanova's building program, the largest single construction endeavor in the history of the college, is proceeding according to schedule with notable progress. This is evident on the field behind Mendel Hall where the chemical engineering building and the Naval Armory will be erected.

Modern Buildings Constructed

Two modern buildings have been constructed: one a small serviceable toolshed and the other a larger one-story structure to house engineering and drafting equipment.

Steam shovels, bulldozers, and graders have made short work of excavation, permitting the pouring of the concrete foundations. Surveyors are keeping a constant check on grade lines to avoid faulty construction.

Materials Arrive

Quantities of lumber, steel reinforcing rods, and other equipment are arriving daily. An electric power saw has been set up on the campus to facilitate and expedite the construction work.

The new boiler for the chemical engineering building, a sixty horse power, high pressure water tube boiler, which will supply process steam for the unit operations lab as well as the new steam turbine equipment has arrived and is stored on the campus.

Polish Inter-collegiate Club Makes up Agenda for Year

Ball At Ben Franklin; Trip to New York Scheduled For May

The Polish Intercollegiate Club of Philadelphia held its monthly meeting on Sunday, March 9th, at the International Institute, 645 North 15th St. Mr. Ted Kulpinski, of Temple Law School, president of the group, conducted the meeting.

Among the Villanovans attending the meeting were Emerie Michalik, Lewis Radecki, Ed Szkaradnik, and George Szymanski. Ed Ciesla was elected to full membership.

Alumni member, Mr. Frank Piasecki, president of the Piasecki Helicopter Corp., reported communications from the Polish Intercollegiate Club of New York.

Fete in Ben Franklin

Committee reports were heard on the progress of arrangements for "Polish Night," which will be held in the Crystal Ballroom of the Benjamin Franklin Hotel, in Philadelphia, on Thursday evening, May 1. Advertising campaigns in the Polish and English-language press are fully under way. The Music Committee reported the signing of the Walter Osowski Orchestra, of Camden, N.J., to play for dancing.

A short program is being scheduled for the Ball. The Polish Folk-Dance Circle, an excellent group of performers from New York, will present traditional Polish folk-dances in colorful costumes. Miss Blanche Nowicka, an accomplished young artist, will sing several Polish selections.

The club's monthly publication, the Gazette, was distributed to all members.

Plans were discussed for the organization to spend a weekend in New York, on May 17-18. The group will attend a Polish-American literary reception and a testimonial program at McMullin Academic Theater, Columbia University, on the 17th, in honor of Dr. and Mrs. Arthur P. Coleman. As Professor of Polish at Columbia U., Dr. Coleman has been most valuable as a cultural adviser to the club. On the 18th of May, the club will be the guest of the Kosciuszko Foundation in its new building.

Woman Jurist Speaks

After the meeting was adjourned, the assemblage, numbering over one hundred, listened to a lecture by Mrs. Wanda Kurzetkowska-Plaska, of Poznan, Poland. Mrs. Plaska, a jurist in pre-war Poland, and the holder of five scholastic degrees, spoke about her recent trip to Poland, where she supervised the distribution of relief supplies in behalf of the Commission for Children's Relief, of New York. Her lecture was illustrated with movies. The audience was visibly touched by the scenes of destruction and poverty that were flashed onto the screen, and with the smiles of happiness and gratitude that accompanied the receipt of the American gifts by the Polish children.

Mrs. Plaska also described the plight of the student in Poland. She told of the daily difficulties encountered by professors and students alike. The overwhelming poverty is surmountable only by the sheer determination on the part of these Poles. She urged American colleges to sponsor drives to aid their Polish counterparts.

There will be a meeting of the Sanctuary Society on Thursday evening, March 20, at 8:00 P. M. in Room 215M.

All men interested in becoming members of the society are invited to attend.

Dr. Walter A. Dew Guest Speaker At Joint Meeting

Dr. Walter A. Dew, Eastern Manager of the Extension Division of the DuPont Co., was the principle speaker at a meeting of the combined socities of the engineering school last evening, in the C. F. auditorium. Dr. Dew demonstrated several score of the newest developments of modern chemical research some of which were undergoing their first public demonstration.

The lecture demonstration was entitled "Research and Better Living" and epitomized chemical progress as it affects the average American. Noteworthy in its peculiarity was the manner in which the women guests of the evening were fascinated by the subject. Products such as nylon, plastics etc. were among those shown.

Last night's gathering marked a new era in the social life of Villanova engineers in that it was the first time the individual societies have held a joint affair.

new Villanova library when it is completed.

This step is the activation at last of many years of effort in the improvement of library facilities here at Villanova. The last of these efforts was the drive just completed.

This drive was quite sucessful and it provided the added impetus necessary to get the actual building underway. The college has many book in storage waiting for library space. The books acquired by Father Sullivan will be added to this group.

CONCERT POSTPONED

The annual concert of the combined orchestra of the Philadelphia Catholic Girls' High Schools was postponed until a later date. The musical presentation, originally scheduled to be held last evening, was delayed due to an injury sustained by Doctor Jeno Donath, the conductor of the orchestra and vocal groups.

Dr. Donath suffered leg injuries last week when he slipped on an icy walk in front of his home near Colfegeville, Pa.

Recently this group of messages appeared on one of the bulletin boards:

McNulty—Meet me here at 3 o'clock Wednesday—Mantini.

Mantini—I'm in German class I'll be here at 3:50—McNulty.

McNulty—I have lab then, let me know what time you have open tomorrow—Mantini.

Mantini—I have all morning off, also between 3 and 4 P. M.—McNulty.

When last seen these two men were wandering about Lancaster Pike singing 'Chloe' at the top of their lungs.

Survey

the scarcest category of medical specialists. Sudden demands of veteran rehabilitation has far outdistanced available supplies, even in New York City where there is the greatest concentration of psychiatrists in the Country.

PEDIATRICIANS — These specialists cannot handle the increasing population growth, there being but 1 to every 19,000 children under 15. Some states have as few as 1 or 2 such specialists.

AVIATION RESEARCH — The studies into the super-sonic calls upon all the analytic medical power available to condition the body for strains previously unknown.

OTHER PERMANENT NEEDS TODAY INCLUDE Medical School instructors, Neuro-Surgeons, Industrial and Group Physicians.

TRENDS—Georgraphic: in 21 states population is increasing while the number of physicians is actually decreasing. In 17 states population increase rates are exceeding those of the medical force. Rapidly decreasing are medicine's ranks in the ruralized, low per capita income areas:

State	Decrease %	People Per Physician
Arkansas	29	1,170
So. Dakota	22.6	1,280
Georgia	22.5	1,225
Mississippi	19.5	1,636
Alabama	17.0	1,525

The low income areas are losing their physicians to high per capita urban sections. Physician-population ratios in cities have jumped:

State	% Increase	People Per Physician
California	60.9	630
New York	55	511
Maryland	25.1	619
Massachusetts	18.2	608
Illinois	7.6	613

Rural depletion is strikingly obvious, rural Mississippi's population —physician ration is the lowest, 1640 to 1, while metropolitan New York is highest—520 to 1. Municipal medical centers have particularly drawn many to the urban areas.

MORTALITY AND RETIREMENT FACTORS. For the last 25 years the number of physicians 65 years or older has risen from 8 per cent to 12 per cent, bringing the average medical age to 44.2 years—third highest of all professions. These older men had been heavily burdened during the war, so that now fully 75 per cent of all present day medical school entrants will be replacements for the decade's death and age losses, 25 per cent will represent the new force for expansion.

MEDICAL EDUCATION'S OUTPUT. A definite drop in the number of med graduates is expected by 1950. First signs should become quite apparent in the graduating classes of June, 1949. Recent policies—stringent policies—of national medical authorities, as well as deacceleratd courses point to such downward movement—so much so that the decade's probable total of 60,000 graduates will very likely number 55,000. Graphically, these Mortality and Education Factors are:

Med Gains 1940-1950 55,000—60,000
Med Loss 1940-1950 38,000
Net Med Gain 17,000—22,000

PREVAILING QUALIFICATIONS —General—Graduation from approved medical school, of which there are 77 in America, State Board Examination, State License, at least 1 year's internship (required by 20 states). Specialized—Above plus 3 years training in chosen field, and certification in full by AMA. There are 16 separate examining boards for passing on the 16 distinct specialty fields—their standards are understandably high.

INCOME—Medical earnings are among the highest of professional group workers—the average physician in 1943 being in the top 3 per cent U. S. income bracket. Compared with other fields, physicians' incomes have reached their highest level in the past few years. They are rising now. The doctor has no stated salary: his income varies, depending on training, experience, field and geographic location:

BUREAU OF COMMERCE SURVEY SHOWS

	Gross Aver.	Net Aver.
1941	8,524	5,047
1943	8,688	5,211

As of 1941, when completed data was first available, earnings of physicians were seen to be higher for instance, than those of legal professions. Higher wages, not to mention increased demand have since noticeably raised these figures.

VILLANOVAN SPORTS

All-Opponent Squad Chosen by Cat Courtmen

Lacy Unanimous Choice, Lavelli Repeats From Last Year; McGee, Saul, Kostecka Round Off Squad

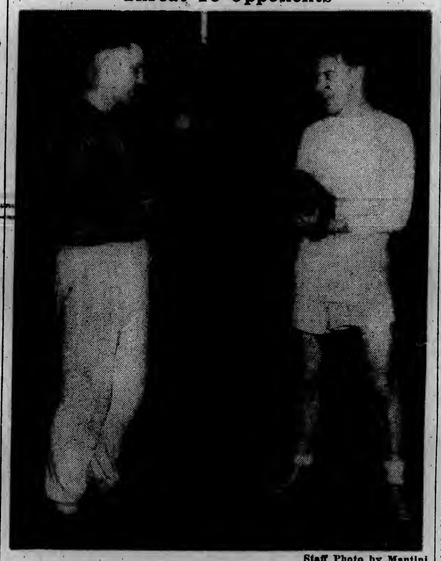
This All-Opponent team will be the fifth consecutive year in which a Villanova basketball team has been honored by the selection of one of its players to an All-Opponent team. This year the honor was bestowed upon Joe Lord, Villanova's high scoring captain, who was selected on the first team of the All-Opponent squad.

The All-Opponent squad of ten outstanding college quintets was picked this week by the players of Villanova College as a final gesture in the closing of the basketball season. With a wealth of material to choose from, it was a foregone conclusion that a powerful aggregation would be selected without any trouble, but the difficulty came in judging which five opponents would constitute the first team.

The usual procedure was followed in the voting. Three points were awarded for a first team vote, two points for a second team ballot and one point for honorable mention.

Lacy Unanimous Choice

As was to be expected, Big Jim Lacy of Loyola, the nation's second highest scorer, was a unanimous choice, the only one on the team. Because the Loyola-Villanova game was played the night the Christmas vacation started, not many of the students saw that game. Those who did see it will never forget the performance turned in that night by this high scoring guard. Besides scoring 14 points on field goals, Jim also sunk 10 out of 10 attempts at the foul line.



McGee of Muhlenberg, one of the three centers named to the first team, was named to the squad chiefly because it was he along with his teammate Harry Donavan, who handed the Wildcats their first loss of the season. Dick was really on that night rarely missing with that unstoppable left-handed hook shot of his.

Lavelli Repeats

The much disputed center post was awarded to "Totalin" Tony Lavelli, Yale's one man team, by virtue of his efforts in making a game of the Villanova-Yale meeting before he fouled out. If it

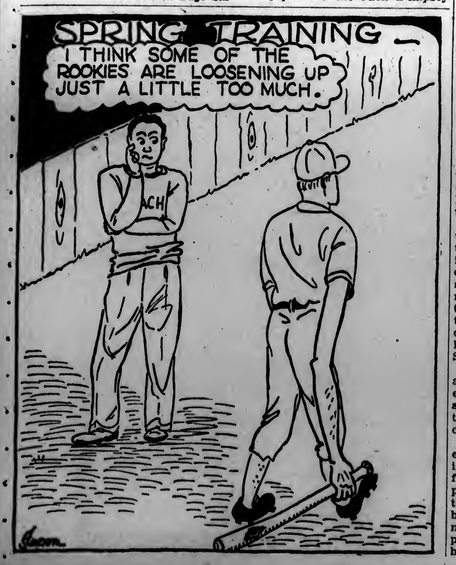
Sullivan Captures Round One of Dempsey Contest

Star End Wins On Close Ballot; Fifteen Players Poll Votes As Gordon Takes Consolation Spot

Bill Sullivan, elected captain of Villanova's 1946 football team, is the recipient of an added honor this week. The popular Wildcat pigskinner, who graduated in February, was voted the outstanding football player at Villanova in the Jack Dempsey - Adam Hat Sports Welfare Poll which closed last week.

The poll for the Jack Dempsey trophy will continue this week, with the choosing of the outstanding basketball player its aim. After the basketball poll has run two weeks, the Wildcat representatives in track and baseball will be selected. From these four finalists the winner of the trophy will be determined, once again by popular vote.



Sullivan garnered 26.3 percent of the total votes polled in gaining his victory. Second with a 20.8 percent vote, was Andy Gordon, Coach Oliver's sophomore sensation, who directed the 'Cats' T-formation. Closely following Gordon were two other Philadelphia boys, Dan Brown, 14.6 percent, and Romeo Capriotti, 10.7 percent; end and half-back respectively.

Linemen, with the exception of ends, experienced their usual ill luck in poll competition with the "stars." Highest among the stones of our forward wall was "Big Bill" Lillienthal with a 4.9 percentage total, followed by George Pavalko.

Sullivan's selection was a fitting tribute to his great end play throughout the season. Although injured in the Army game, Bill came back towards the close of the season and played inspired ball to merit a position on the All-North team for its annual encounter with the South's best. "Sully" scored one of the Blue's touchdowns, but his efforts were in vain as the Southerners prevailed, 20-13.

Outside of his football ability and accomplishments, Captain Bill rated well in enthusiasm, sportsmanship, team spirit, and co-operation, the other requisites that are to be considered by the electors.

Voting was heavier than expected, but it could be much better. It is estimated that one out of every four students participated in the poll. But where were the other three? With performances of the basketball season still fresh in the memories of the fans the ratio of poll participating students should be upped considerably this week.

Lord Selected On All-State Quintet

Raiken, Ricca, Wolf Trail Team Captain In Individual Scoring

Joe Lord, Villanova's high scoring captain, has added one more triumph to his long list of achievements. Joe's point getting ability and general all around play have netted him the greatest recognition possible in Pennsylvania. Together with Harry Donovan of Muhlenberg, Paul Coront of Lock Haven Teachers, Joe Camic of Duquesne, and Norm Butz of St. Joseph's, he has been named to the 1947 All-Pennsylvania collegiate basketball team.

This nomination to the All-state team and the capture of the state scoring crown have climaxed Joe's four brilliant yers in collegiate ranks. Joe will never again be seen in a Villanova basketball uniform, but he will not be forgotten, for the scoring record he has established will long remain untouched.

Joe Betters His Old Record

Last year Joe led his team in scoring with 303 points; this year he again led in the scoring column but with a record breaking 438 points, an increase of 135 points over last year's total. Scoring 178 field goals and 82 out of 128 foul tries, he led his nearest team rival, "Shy" Raiken, by 233 points. Shy hit 87 buckets and 31 out of 49 fouls, for a total of 205 points. Joe scored 30 percent of Villanova's points himself, while he and Shy, together, scored 45 percent of the total.

Following behind Raiken in the scoring, with 174 points comes the man who controlled the backboards for Villanova this season, Brooks Ricca. Close behind follow Leo Wolf with 174 counters and Tom Sabol with 133 points. The value of these three men cannot be measured in points, however, for Ricca and Sabol were invaluable in working the boards, and Wolf's ability to pass and set up plays provided something that was conspiciously absent from last year's team.

Next in order come shifty Jack Crossin with 74 points and Perry DelPurgatorio, who spurted near the end of the season to bring his total up to 70 for the year. Follow-

Perry Del Purgatorio . . .

We've admired the aggressive type of play of Perry Del Purgatorio all season and decided before the season was too far gone to look him up and get the dope on his basketball and general athletic career before he took up basketheaving for the Blue and White.

Union City, N. J., claims the "Hook" as their own. He attended Emerson High School there, graduating in the mid-term of 1946. His activities there along the line of athletics were confined to football, baseball and basketball. Del played first string center on the football team and scooped them up around second base on the baseball team. Basketball is his prime interest and he pursued this interest by playing three years on the Emerson High team. They waxed red hot in the 44-45 and 45-46 seasons, and when Perry quit the books read 45 wins and 4 losses for these seasons. He was nominated to all-county honors in 1945 and in 1946 his team took the Eastern States Championship from Trenton Catholic in the annual tournament held in Glen Falls, N. Y. In the latter season, Emerson met their league arch-rival, Union Hill four times during the season and the playoffs, the outcome of the games always being within a three point margin. Union Hill was led by Harry Donovan whom we can remember was giving the 'Cats a rough time in the Muhlenberg game this year.

Since Perry was graduated in the middle of the Basketball season, he joined the Union City team in the Catholic Youth Organization and the Police athletic leagues. Both of these teams on which he played, won in their districts and went to the Eastern States playoffs. In the CYO league they beat Xavier High in Brooklyn and in the PAL nosed out Baltimore for the title in the New York State Guard armory. The great amount of tournament and close fought games in which he has participated, can be seen in Del's alert floor game no matter the score or the stage of the game. Perry is a freshman and credits the "Major" with giving him a lot of pointers that he has picked up about college basketball but contends that his buddy of the year is Shy Raiken who tapped in Del's deciding foul that rolled off the rim in the closing seconds of that crucial game with Princeton.

John Weglicki

We wouldn't want to write a set of interviews without reference to a home town boy, who made good. We found him in John Weglicki.

"Josh" hopped the Paoli local out this way for the Spring term this year and is a freshman. He was only able to participate in the last ten contests. His accurate right hand and mechanical free shot ability, have made his figure familiar to Villanova basketball fans.

John was first introduced to a basketball at St. Ann's Parochial School. He was high scorer for that team in the city league that year and has been going pretty strong ever since.

North Catholic lost out to La Salle, and John got started off on the right foot at the latter school by making himself high scorer on the Jay Vees in his freshman year in the 1941-1942 season. From there he branched off into Varsity competition and by his senior year, had developed his court prowess to be picked for all-city, all-Catholic and all-scholastic teams.

In his senior year La Salle nosed out South Catholic by three points to take the Catholic crown and met Southern high for the city title. Josh played against Stan Brown in that game and held him to five points until banished by fouls late in the game. Brown's opponents on the teams that have faced the Spahs this year have found the task quite difficult. This tent-like covering of Southern's high scorer, was largely responsible for La Salle walking off with the City title.

At the Eastern States Catholic Invitational Tournament at Rhode Island in that season they beat Regis High of New York. When the totals were run up, John came out team high in scoring for his junior and senior year.

At 6'3" and 150 pounds, John held down left end spot in his sophomore year until his lanky frame and light weight caught up with him and he was forced to quit football due to a back injury.

Along with Basketball and Football, John found time to spread the word about La Salle in Baseball and was first baseman on the team that took the Catholic league title and defeated Northeast for the city championship in the 1946 season.

This article finds Josh out for a berth on the Wildcat nine, with a full season to play, we're looking for a little of that city championship form.

"Ollie" Announces Start Of Spring Football

Coach Jordan Olivar announced last week that spring football pratice would begin Tuesday, March 18 at the stadium. All of last years squad who have not as yet drawn their equipment are urged to do so immediately. It is estimated that practice will last six weeks.

The loss of "Bill" Sullivan, star end of last years eleven, and recently voted the outstanding football player at Villanova, will be felt, but this blow should be tempered by the return of almost all of last years squad with another year of experience under their belts.

Along with "Sully", Coach Olivar lost two more of his stalwarts in "Zig" Gory, and Vince McPeak. Although not taking part in many of last seasons games, "Zig" and Vince never lost the spirit and were plugging every minute they were in.

A new crop of freshmen and transfers are expected to aid "Ollie" very much in meeting this years schedule. Leading the returning regulars are Dan Brown, and Joe Rogers. Joe you will remember rolled up more yardage than any other back in the district last year; while Dan Brown was mentioned by more than one sports writer as a potential all-american.

All students interested in football are urged to turn out for practice.

Foley - Stuart Lead I-M Bowlers

Joe Foley and Mack Stuart set the pace for the Iron Men last Tuesday afternoon as they had a three-game average of 177 and 170, respectively. Totaling 811 pins to Alumni's 809, the Iron Men took three points from the second place Alumni squad. Toth rolled a high 235 game for the day. He also had games of 167 and 195 for a three-game average of 199. McCluskey averaged games of 180, 155, and 163 for Alumni.

The Red Eyes went into a tie with the Warriors and Fedigan for first place as they gained three points. Ringlestein and Nonahan had high games of 210 and 204, respectively. The Warriors broke the previous week's high game of 848 as they took the first game from the Red Eyes by having 853 pins for a five-man team. Carl Kramer for the second consecutive week had the high three-game average for the league by rolling games of 214, 202 and 192 for a 202 average.

Fedigan Hall took four points from the Indians as Berninger and Delaney led their team to the victory. Donoghue and Smith rolled high games for the Indians.

were not for Tony's celebrated hook shot which accounted for 18 points against the Wildcats that night, the game would have been a runaway from the very starting whistle. This is the second year in a row that Tony has made the All-Opponent giving him the honor of being the only repeater on this year's team.

Pep Saul, the Seton Hall brilliant, and 6' 4" Andy Kostcka of Georgetown were chosen for the forward posts. Saul led Seton Hall to a hard earned victory here not so long ago. Kostecka, whose feats are still very much in the memories of local fans scored 40 points against the 'Cats this season.

Strong Second Team

The second team is very bit as powerful as the first team with Ken Shugart of Navy and Rhode Island State's Jack Allen, another converted center, holding the forward posts. Fordham's Bob Mulvihill who did such a capable job of holding Joe Lord to 10 points, and Harry Donavan, Muhlenberg All-State sophomore, were chosen for the guard positions. Ken Brown of Georgetown, who was barely beaten out by Tony Lavelli in the last few ballots, completes the team.

ing in rapid succession are Joe Brehmer with 61, John Blong with 33, John Weglicki with 28, and "Major" McDonnell with 20 points.

Best Record Since '42

Looking back, we find that Villanova, this season, had the best record since Al Severance's boys, led by Bob Kelly and Bill Woods, won 19 and lost 2 during the 1942-43 season. Not only did they improve their won and lost record from 10 and 13 in 1945-46 to 17 and 7 this year, but they also boosted last year's total score from 1080 points in 23 games to 1436 points in 24 games. Last year's team averaged 51.3 points per game; this year's team averaged 59.8 points per game. That's not bad scoring in any league. Following is a complete scoring summary.

Intramural Race Has Fast Week

Barracks Streak at 5 As Austin is Downed; Mendel Climbs to Fourth Place

The Intramural league kept up its hot pace this week with six more games. The barracks had a scare thrown into them by a strong second place Austin outfit who almost upset their winning streak. The sharp eyes of Buckley and Roesgen were enough to pull the Barrackeers out on the long end of a 38-37 count.

In the second game of the evening, Alumni had an easy time with Doms, when they handed them a 30-13 shellacking. Never in danger, Alumni had its own way all through the game. Foley was high scorer with 11 points.

On Wednesday, the hapless Doms had another hard time when they ran up against the Mendel Hall squad. Led by Chuck Raffetto and Altman who scored 8 points each, Mendel took a 44-26 victory. This marked the third loss of the week for the Doms five.

The first game of the evening pitted Fedigan against Austin, with Austin copping the win 36-27.

Doms Lose Three

On Thursday night the Doms dropped their third. Facing an experienced and inspired Austin outfit who still felt the sting of their one point loss to Barracks, the most from Austin pasted a 39-30 loss to Doms record.

The final game of the week pitted Mendel and Fedigan in a contest that proved to be one of the most exciting of the week. With 6 minutes to play, Mendel hit a field goal to tie the score at 22-22. The score stayed this way until the end, which necessitated an overtime period. Points were plentiful then, too, but they were distributed evenly and this period wound up at 28-28. The second overtime period was played with both teams giving all they had. A goal apiece set the score at 30-30 and also set the stage for Wukitsch, Mendel guard to score his game-winning goal.

Tabulation of the week's events showed Barracks still with an unsullied record of 5-0, Austin won 2 and lost 1, Doms lost 3 and didn't win any, Alumni won one and lost 0, Fedigan lost 2 with Mendel winning 2 to round out the week.

By taking 2 games this week, Mendel managed to climb out of the cellar and into fourth place, pushing Fedigan and Doms below them.

Letters

Dear Editor:

As an alumnus of Villanova College, we would like very much to enter the contest for the carton of cigarettes that you offer. With a total of three years of V-12 duty at the Main Line institution, I feel that I can speak with a certain amount of realism.

On receipt of last week's issue, I found that the heading on the sports page was, by some unknown reason, up-side down. On the same page, oddly enough, was the story of Villanova's most disheartening defeat, the Georgetown Basketball game. Could this be a coincidence? Hardly. But then again, why not? One of Villanova's sorest spots is its lack of tradition. Why not, Dear Ed, set this up as a precedent?

Here would be the setup. Every time Villanova loses a big big game, just set the heading up side down.

Simple enough, heh?

Bob Latimer.

Above is a letter received from a former student. Thanks, Bob, we think its a very good suggestion and we'll be guided by it in the future.

If any one else has any suggestions that might prove helpful, we'd appreciate it if you'd send them in and we'll weigh their merits. Ed.

Thomas A. Daly, '84 Makes Contribution to Library

Bulletin Poet Offers Special Collection To Villanova; Contains Ornate Class Notes

Thomas A. Daly, well-known columnist and poet of the Evening Bulletin, has recently enriched the Villanova College Library's collection of books by his contribution of some colorful and rather unique books. This may not seem interesting until one learns the nature of these books.

This 'Special Collection' is really quite different than most others in the library for it consists of note-books that were used by Mr. Daly, 60 years ago, while attending Villanova College. Before I say more about these books, let me say a few words about Mr. Daly.

After completing his elementary education, he entered Villanova in 1881 when the High School and College occupied the same grounds. While he was attending college here he began his literary career. The short poems and essays that he wrote were quite impressive and written in very good taste. I have gathered from his note-books, that while he was here at Villanova, he submitted many of his early works to some of the popular magazines of the day.

However, all of his activities were not aimed in the literary direction. He was also recognized as quite an athlete. As a pitcher on the baseball team, he made an impressive showing. He displayed excellent form by making an outstanding number of "strike-outs" in almost every game that he pitched. In one game with a Bryn Mawr team he skyrocketed the team to glory by striking out thirteen of the opposing players and allowing them only one run and very few hits in the entire game. The final score was, Villanova, 30, Bryn Mawr 1. He also contributed five runs toward this decisive victory.

After he left Villanova, he attended Fordham University for two years, and since then has received honorary degrees from Boston College and Notre Dame.

He has been associated with the "Record," was general manager of the "Catholic Standard and Times," has been with the "Philadelphia Ledger," and has now been with the "Evening Bulletin" since 1929. He also writes for the "Saturday Evening Post" as well as the "Red Book."

Last year at Easter time he visited the campus to deliver a speech to the "Friends of the Library" and read some of his latest poems and writings.

The books that he contributed to the library prove to be both interesting and educational as well as amusing. One of his note-books is comprised of a complete set of notes on versification and types of poetry. This book was probably used for an English course similar to the course used at the present time (Eng. 125). Another book was filled with his early writings which are poems, odes, and short essays. It is in this book that he kept account of the baseball teams' standings and achievements — achievements that should certainly be praised.

The other two note-books attract even more attention. They are filled with all types of puzzles that were popular at that time, but whose popularity has faded with the passing of the years. They are somewhat similar to the cross-word puzzles of today, but in the shapes of inverted pyramids, rhomboids of triangles. The remaining puzzles are still popular today; they are anagrams, and 'double-letter enigmas' in the form of poems. It would be difficult to give a just description of these books since one has to read them to really appreciate them.

Senior Alumni Board Elections Postponed

William J. Friel, III, secretary of the Alumni association of Villanova announced last week that the Senior representative to the Alumni board would not be chosen for this year. The reasons for the postponement were made known by Mister Friel. He said, "by the time that the elections could be held there would be only one alumni meeting remaining in this semester. Since that meeting would not be held until late in the spring he would not be able to discharge his duties efficiently."

The Alumni, however, will receive a senior representative next fall and have petitioned the Student Council to include that election along with those of the Senior Class officers to be held this spring. The representative then elected would be able to assume his position in October and participate in the four general meetings which the Alumni association holds each year. He would be able to report to his class after every meeting and thus achieve the purpose of the office.

The representative is to be elected by the Seniors and approved by the College President. He is to be a man who is well known about the College and is capable of holding a responsible position.

PHYSICS FRATERNITY NEWS

The Kappa Gamma Sigma held another meeting last Thursday afternoon in the Physics Lab in Mendel Hall. At that meeting plans were formulated for the proposed Ultra High Frequency station and at this writing it seems likely that the equipment will be in operation within the next few weeks. Also being planned are a few talks to be given by various members on subjects of general interest. The first talk will be on the subject of the recently completed electronic flash gun and will be given together with a demonstration of its use by John Kane. Other activities of like nature are also being planned together with trips to manufacturing plants in the near vicinity.

The organization, perhaps the most recent on the Campus, under the guidance of its capable officers is moving right along with the various projects which it has outlined.

IRC TO HEAR RUBIN

The International Relations Club on March 42, will hear a prepared paper on the Palestine question which will be delivered by Emanuel Rubin. Mr. Rubin has spent an extensive amount of time and research on his topic, "Who is right in Palestine." This question treats of the main aspects of the problem, the Jewish, Arabic and British elements.

This situation is one of the more important impediments to world peace and is now under consideration by the United Nations Council.

This is one of the pertinent questions which will be discussed by the club during the semester. The meeting will commence at 8:15 P. M. in room 215 Mendel Hall and everyone is cordially invited to attend.

GERMAN CLUB TO MEET

Friday evening, March 21st, the Neustaedter Kreis will have as guest speaker for its monthly meeting Dr. Bauer. Dr. Bauer is professor of German at the College.

Fillowing this, Gunter P. Kaiser and Rev. W. Lunney, O. S. A., moderator, will outline the club's activities for this semester. Discussions from the floor will be welcomed.

A rehearsal of the program for the Joint meeting with Chestnut Hill College will be held.

All those interested in joining and cooperating in the formation of the club are asked to attend this meeting. Notices on the bulletin boards will announce the meeting place.

Interracial Club News

At a meeting held Tuesday evening, March 11, 1947, the following men were elected officers of the Interracial Club of Villanova: Robert Nix, president; John Stanley, vice-president; William Cusick, secretary-treasurer; James Wilkes, corresponding secretary.

After the elections, Herman Diesel, president of the Catholic Intercollegiate Interracial Council gave a resume of the activities which took place at St. Joseph's College on Sunday March 9, 1947.

Participating in the forum were students from Villanova, Immaculata, La Salle, Rosemont, Chestnut Hill, and St. Joseph's.

Speakers Listed

Speakers included: Judge Gerald F. Flood who acted as moderator; Thomas Reed, prominent negro lawyer; Rev. Anthony Flynn, professor of history at Rosemont and Chestnut Hill ; John Kane, professor of Sociology at St. Joseph's. These men and the student representatives from the six Catholic Colleges (Robert Nix and Herman Diesel representing our College) answered the controversial issues and questions brought up by the audience concerning the Negro and his rightful place in society. Some of the questions put to the six man panel were, "Is the negro an economic liability?" Should Interracial marriage be encouraged?" "Is the crime rate among the Negroes really higher than among the white population?" and many others. Mr. Thomas Reed, and our own Robert Nix were particularly outstanding in their answers to some of these questions.

The Interracial Club hopes to be granted space in the "Villanovan" in which the answers to the above questions and others will appear. This so-called Negro Problem is one of the most pressing in our American Society today. We feel that by asking the common questions which seem to arise in everyone's mind today, and by giving authentic answers to the questions we can help the students of Villanova to better understand and educate themselves to the solution of this problem.

Plans for the Next Meeting

Tentative plans for a guest speaker to address the club and students of Villanova were approved by Father Lunney O.S.A. our director, and the club officers.

Student Council To Hear N.S.O.

Due to the conflict in the schedule of the members of the Student Council, all important meetings will be held in the evening this semester. The first of these evening meetings will be held on Thursday evening March 20, 1947 at 7:00 P. M. in Room 214 Mendel.

At this meeting, Phil Barrett and John Stanley will present the case of the National Student Organization, after which the Student Council will form plans, with regards to elections etc. for the functioning of the organization on this campus. All council members are urged to attend this important meeting. Herman Diesel is also expected to speak to the Council on the National Federation of Colleges.

Meetings Open To Student Body

It has been announced that all future meetings of the Student Council will be open to the entire student body. This procedure is being taken to allow the student body to see how the Council operates, and render constructive criticism and submit petitions.

The Student Council has asked the college authorities for a number of foot-baths to be installed in the resident halls, to combat the spread of athletics' foot among the students. The Vice-President, Fr. McKee, has concurred in the petition, and it has been sent to the Controller's office for approval.

Monagle Chosen President of ACS

Senior Chemical Engineer Named Head of Science Organization

William Monagle was elected unanimously to the presidency of the combined student chapters of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers and the American Chemical Society at a special election meeting on Wednesday, March 12.

Edward Conway was chosen to fill the office of vice-president, vacated by Monagle and Al Dallago assumed the position, of treasurer, Thomas Hanratty will continue in his duties as secretary.

Dues were fixed at two dollars per semester by vote of the members. Monagle announced that plant trips and other functions are scheduled for the near future. Among them are:

(1) Attendance at the ACS convention to be held in Atlantic City from April 13 to 18.

(2) A joint meeting with the chemical societies of Drexel Institute of Technology and the University of Pennsylvania at Drexel's auditorium on or about May 1. The topic of the evening will be a general discussion of the petroleum industry.

Arts Fraternity Accepts Code; Now Named DPM

New Officers Announce Smoker To Be Held March 18

On Wednesday, March 19th, the newly formed and newly christened Delta Phi Mu Arts fraternity will hold its first social function of the semester—a "smoker" in the C.&F. auditorium. The "smoker" will be held at 8:30 P. M. and will be open to all members of the Arts and Education Schools.

The program will start with a reading of the new constitution which will be voted upon "in toto." One of the primary purposes of the affair, according to President Matt Kearney, is the attraction of new members to the organization. The first formal list of members will be drawn up consisting of those who attend the function. When the formal business of the fraternity is finished, the remainder of the evening will be devoted to a planned program of entertainment. This entertainment is designed to provide a congenial atmosphere for the establishment of friendship among the members.

Now Named Delta Phi Mu

Other decisions of last Wednesday's meeting were the adoption of the name Delta Phi Mu and the ratification of the preamble to the constitution. With this work of defining the principal aims of the fraternity finished, Matt Kearney called for rapid action on a definite series of activities and functions to bring these aims to realization and to establish the fraternity as one of the foremost groups on the campus.

The formation of permanent committees on programs and other projects will be part of the business of tomorrow night's "Smoker." A report on the Inter-Fraternity Ball by the Arts delegates to that committee will be read.

The "Smoker" is open to all members of the Arts and Education schools regardless of their term.

On English Lit

Our course in English Lit.
Is making quite a hit,
The miles of romantic verse
Couldn't sound much worse;
The metaphores and similes
The poets' personalities,
The backgrounds and histories,
The epoch trivialities,
While our persons slouch and bend
The stanzas have no end,
The rhymes come forth unread
And the endings all seem slurred,
And while Wordsworth's peep
We drift into divine sleep.
We forget the verse divine
To dream of sparkling wine.
The bubbles and the toasts
The past Thanksgiving roasts,
The dance floor and the whirls
The hometown with our girls,
The farther we drift
And wider grows the rift
Until we're in the spell
But it's broken by the bell;
Then our books we fetch
And rise, and grope, and stretch,
We leave rested quite a bit;
We just love that English Lit.

Engineering Students View Plastic Demonstration

Dupont's Man

Dr. Walter A. Drew, Eastern Manager of the Extension Division of the Dupont Co., outlined a program for industry to create more jobs and establish a higher standard of living at a nylon and plastic lecture demonstration last Monday evening in the C and F Auditorium. To accomplish this end Dr. Drew emphasized the investment of capital to provide for the research and development of new products.

Before 400 students of the combined engineering societies Dr. Drew delivered his talk entitled "Research and Better Living", which included a short history of chemical progress and its present day affect on the average American. In the course of his lecture Dr. Drew demonstrated and explained innumerable uses nylon and plastics have been subjected to. Of notable interest were short histories of the development and technical processes involved in the production of DDT, cellophane, rayon, neophrene and other amazing by-products of the nylon and plastic industry.

Production Details Discussed

At the conclusion of his talk, Dr. Drew invited questions from the audience and a short discussion involving details of production methods followed. Students were then free to examine the products on which Dr. Drew had lectured. Dan Redmond, president of the Civil Engineering Society presiding as M. C. introduced Dean Morehouse at the opening of the meeting. Mr. Morehouse expressed his desire that the other engineering societies would plan similar programs after viewing the large turnout for this demonstration.

Inter-Frat Ball Draws Near

Combined Campus Group Decide on Informal Motif

Plans for the Inter-Fraternity Ball have been progressing according to schedule.

Tickets on Sale

The dance will be on the first Saturday night after the Easter vacation. It will be an informal affair and the price of the tickets is $3.00 including tax. Tickets are on sale and may be obtained from any member of the various dance committees.

The Inter-Fraternity Ball will be the first social event in which the newly formed Delta Phi Mu Arts Fraternity will participate. Dick Randolph and Bill Mooney, both members of D. P. M., will supervise the decorations for the dance. The theme for the decorations is designed to blend with the informal atmosphere that will prevail during the evening.

George Sommer's orchestra will play for the dance and the band committee has decided to place the orchestra on the stage leaving the spacious floor of the Field House clear for dancing.

N. Y. Theatrical Group Coming To Villanova

Shakespeare's "Mid-Summer Night's Dream" and "Taming of the Shrew" Here April 22

As part of its spring tour of universities and colleges in the East, the Royal Theatre Players, of New York, will present two plays in the Villanova Field House, on April 22nd, at 8:30 P. M.

Two plays are scheduled: "A Midsummer Night's Dream," and "The Taming of the Shrew," by the immortal bard, William Shakespeare. It will be the first time since 1938 that Villanova students will have the opportunity to witness experienced acting.

The professional group is a permanent touring company of skilled actors and actresses specializing in performing Shakespeare, exclusively for American colleges and universities. At present, the troupe is in the last weeks of its western tour.

Production Modernized

The production has been modernized in view of presenting the Elizabethan-age drama in a form easily absorbed by the modern college student. Costumes and scenery have been preserved as in the theatre of the last century, but the new mode of interpretation will assure a thousand-fold intellectual benefit to audiences.

General admission has been scaled down to one dollar. Norman and Rogers Productions, of New York, is handling arrangements.

The Field House has been chosen as the site of the performance because of its massive, well-equipped stage, seating capacity, and its central location. Enthusiasm is rapidly building up, and full support is assured from the colleges of Immaculata, Chestnut Hill and Rosemont. It is intended to promote this theatrical as the leading cultural and social event of the present school year.

Further information will be printed in this paper.

Double Octette To Double With Brass

One of the newer activities to present itself on Villanova's "post war" campus is a new "Double Octette" under the direction of Rev. Ralph S. Handran, O.S.A. This group has for some time been hard at work rehearsing for its debut which will take place at a joint Octette-Band concert to be held in the near future.

Father Handran informs this paper that the "streamlined" choral group specializes in the rendition of some lusty sea chanties. This, of course, comes as no surprise since the Rev. Father is a former Chaplain of the U. S. Navy, who can himself "give out" with a salty line. However, the group's repertoire ranges from "The Jolly Roger," a song of the sea, to numbers such as "The Rosary," "Dunn," "The Hills of Home" and "Stout Hearted Men."

Schedule Difficulties Overcome

The difficulties of arranging rehearsals under the present schedules was surmounted by the method of separate practice for the various voice parts followed by an intensive rehearsal for all the singers once a week.

To date, the group has shown much progress toward becoming a well knit unit and its first appearance should be a notable one to all lovers of music.

So don't be overly disturbed when you next hear a loud, mellifluous melody issuing from a set of male vocal cords in an adjoining shower. It's probably one of the "Villanova's Own" Double Octette.

Vice-President Airs Views On Student Government

Canning Questions Efficiency of Council; Urges Revision of Constitution as Interested Students Look On

Answers Complaints

In a precedent shattering move, the doors of a Student Council meeting were thrown open last Wednesday, with approximately fifty students observing the proceedings. The meeting was concerned with the National Students Organization.

Reports were that several hundred students were to have attended the meeting, but due to last minute confusion as to whether the meeting was open or not, only fifty students appeared.

After the N.S.O. had been discussed, Joe Brogan, the president of the Student Council, called upon the Rev. Edward B. McKee, O.S.A., the vice-president of Villanova, to comment on the proposals.

Fr. McKee smilingly began by saying that he was brought to the meeting by reports that a group of radicals was attempting to overthrow the school, and that a large mob would be present to watch the "fireworks." He mentioned that contrary to what some may have thought, the college's purpose in entering the N.S.O. is not to bring about strong local student government or a free student press (which he supported) but rather to cope with problems of a more national character where Catholic philosophy would have an effect.

Fr. McKee then laid his cards on the table by declaring that he realized that dissatisfaction among the students of Villanova was rampant but he said that the Administration was doing everything in its power to protect student rights. He readily admitted that the food served isn't what it should be, but that under present conditions of high prices the best was being made of a poor situation. He also mentioned that the regulations on this campus compared favorably to any in the country, but that student appearance in the cafeteria is rather sloppy, and that, concerning parking fees, he was reluctant to level such penalties but that circumstances forced him to do so.

Sam Canning, the Senior Class representative, said that the large crowd of students was present because they wished to see how the matter of free student government and press would be disposed. He maintained that, as he understood the issue, the question was that of a free student government and press and not the disposition of

Stanley Offers Aims of N.S.O.

Firm Catholic Leadership Stressed by Speaker

By JACK CASBY

Phil Barret and Jack Stanley, presented the case of the National Students Organization to the Student Council last week while Herman Diesel, informed that body of the present status of them National Federation of Catholic College Students.

Phil Barret, the first speaker, explained the history of the N. S. O. and stated that Villanova is in the N. S. O. with "the specific encouragement of Fr. McGuire" and the ecclesiastical authorities. Also mentioned was the necessity of electing the delegates that would be sent to the constitutional convention next September.

Jack Stanley then took the floor to present the tentative aims and purposes of the N. S. O. Aside from these aims some of the other actions that may be taken were stated, such as direct aid to colleges to provide for scholarships, elimination of racial prejudice, and the increasing of allotments under the G. I. Bill of Rights. The later proposal caused a stir among the assembled students.

Mr. Stanley then struck home by saying that the most important concern was to foster representative, responsible students sensitive to student opinion. Student councils must be a "sounding-board" to alleviate tension because undercurrents discourage student loyalty. The main point stressed by Mr. Stanley was that Catholic student leadership in the N. S. O. and other national affairs is of the utmost importance and that this student leadership and strong student government go hand in hand. As was later evident, Fr. McKee and Sam Canning drew diverging interpretations from this statement.

Frustration, Whimsy, Mood Themes of One-Act Plays

College Players Cooperate With Rosemont Under Tutelage of Father Krupa

On Friday evening, March 28, in the Field House, the Villanova Dramatic Club will present its first production. A series of three one-act plays will constitute the initial offering of this recently revived group. The performance will begin at 8:30 P. M.

The series consists of Susan Glaspell's short American drama of poignant fustration, "Trifles"; Larry Gregory's bit of Irish whimsy, "The Workhouse Ward" and Eugent O'Neil's brief epic of mood, "Where the Cross Is Made". The trio encompasses sufficient contrast to warrant an enjoyable evening.

The staging has been handled by Rev. William Krupa, OSA, who holds a graduate degree in stagecraft, having studied under the eminent playwright and director, Walter Kerr, at Catholic University. The group of actors under Fr. Krupa's tutelage includes Dick Harnes, Ed Tuite, Joe Rogers, Bud Kane, Ed Keller, Tony Mammarella, and Ed Fanelli. The feminine roles are being essayed by four members of Rosemont's dramatic club: Loretta Moore, Peggy Jacobsen, Mimi Dransfield, and Mary Rose Brown. The property and lighting work is being ably handled by Frank Long and Henry Franzoni.

All members of the faculty, the Naval staff, and members of the student body, their families and friends, are cordially invited to attend. There will be no charge for admission and it is hoped that there will be a reasonable and appreciative audience on hand to launch the newest of campus undertakings.

All of Man . . .

Next to the Priesthood, the life of a teacher is one of the most noble. To mould characters and champion virtue by behests and example; to instill patriotism and foster loyalty for the faithful service of God and man and to offer to the mind of youth the highest principles and ideals of a better life are the exalted privileges of a teacher.

What a tribute to our civilization if all our teachers could fulfill these qualifications! Some do. Yet sad to say, there are many who do not make the grade.

Every day life attests to the fact that man is a physical, mental and moral being. Yet in public schools teachers must avoid religion and that is bad. Why should the moral and religious side of education be separated from the intellectual side of it? Society must necessarily suffer if an attempt is made to impart knowledge without first a buildup of moral character. No amount of culture can be substituted for virtue because the more thorough the intellectual factor becomes the greater is the need for sound moral training. This is impossible without religious training. Surely if a student's duties toward self and neighbor are sacred, are not those duties toward God more sacred? God and His principles are slowly fading from modern education.

As if this were not enough, some schools and teachers go far in the other direction. They are not satisfied with excluding the moral element in education, hather they substitute false beliefs. To some, Communism is a faith, a passion and a religion. It is taught in place of forgetting religion entirely, a general neglect in most schools.

Indeed as Catholic young men, as men of Villanova, we have the crown of Faith resting on the throne of our hearts. Thus it is that those of us who hope some day to enter the profession of teaching must realize our duty to impart this sacred trust of Faith. If this duty is guided by His divine grace we cannot falter. For His was a vocation to teach and how gloriously He fulfilled it by His perfect lesson of Calvary's Cross. That was real education!

Pride and Prejudice . . .

"The misery is that they who preach equality the loudest are generally the last to practice it."—Rev. Walter Cotton USN, 1830.

The greatest barrier in the way of lasting peace is the common misconception that people of the world differ radically from one another in certain fundamental and incompatible ways. These ways are presumably of a biological origin and are responsible not only for the physical differences of the nationalities, but also for their cultural differences. This erroneous attitude has resulted in one of the world's worst headaches—that of racism and nationalism. An exaggerated example of this is to be found in Hitler's systematic annihilation of the non-Aryans. It is interesting to note that we of the Western World have been one of the worst offenders of this policy of racism. We have oppressed and exploited over half the world. "White superiority over the lower races." Now why should this sadistic attitude persist among the so called civilized and enlightened peoples of the world?

There are some who contend that race prejudice is innate in man. Such is not the case. The finest example of a socially democratic nation can be found in Brazil. In no other nation are the problems of race relation solved in such a democratic and Christian manner. Why, an outspoken act inciting racial hatred there is considered by Brazilians as a betrayal of every ideal for which the nation stands. And so it should be here. Yet, we read of the lynchings, voting bans and the racial discriminations so evident in the South. The fact that Bilbo, and Talmadge and other politically influential men are able to rule in spite of their public denouncement of the negro and his rights is indication of the laxity of Americans in this regard.

Some of us preach a good game, but the man worthy of admiration is the one who substitutes positive action for fine words. Why talk about freedom and equality! Our obligation as Catholics and Americans is to rise above the erroneous attitude about white supremacy. No one person is superior to another regardless of race, creed or color for are we not all the children of God.

In the next issue of the "Villanovan" we shall present the question of the negro as an "economic liability," and then present the answer to this question.

Keep Your Drive . . .

Last week the president of the Student Council announced that henceforth the meetings of that body would be thrown open to the student body. Students have been asking for some time to be accorded this privilege.

Student government is a loose term. Just what it means depends in great part upon how well that government is supported by the students. In order to have any strength whatever the Council must have good men on it. Voting, until now, has tended to make the Council more timocratic than democratic. Good fellowship and popularity have been the criteria for too many elections to positions of trust and responsibility.

Student support is necessary if the council is to gain any position of importance. The only projects that the Council can act upon are those that are brought to them by the students. The members can act only as a formal funnel for public opinion. When there is no opinion expressed formally by the students' the meetings necessarily lose 'the name of action.'

Democracy is based upon the Catholic doctrine that rights and duties are correlative. There are laws that have been set up in this school for the administration of the students. The student council is supposed to be the main body for enforcement of these rules. If the students don't respect the Council in the performance of these duties, it can have no strength on the campus for any of its activities.

This newspaper has written editorials about the Student Council many times. We hope that at last there has been aroused some interest in the organization. But the main point that is to be drawn to the attention of the students is that this interest must be constructive, that the students themselves must be prepared to assume the responsibilities of their position.

The meetings are now open, you students have indicated your interest in the project. Don't let this new spirit fall flat on its face for lack of continued support.

THE COUNCIL BECOMES DEMOCRATIC

Letters

Dear Editor:

The undersigned were urged by the apparent interest of the students to express the desire and need for a weekly dance on the campus for the promotion of social activity.

The necessity for a greater opportunity for the students to gather at more college social affairs has become increasingly evident. The students desire to unite socially as well as academically. Therefore, it is felt that weekly dances on Friday nights with only a nominal admittance fee would promote and contribute much to the welfare of the students, resident and non-resident. It is also well known that other colleges in this vicinity have adopted policies similar to the one herein proposed, and they are successfully providing much enjoyment in a social way for the students. For example, Ursinus College has a policy of this nature, and it does contribute immensely toward the general welfare of the students.

The undersigned representative group of students thought it feasible to write to the editor of the college paper in hopes that this letter will be published and brought to the attention of the student body. Subsequenly, it is also hoped that the matter could be introduced to the Student Council for further action.

Sincerely,

I noticed many gentlemen (i.e. Villanovans) at the "Kindler" given by Chestnut Hill College on March 16. Some of the gentlemen thought that they had met the most wonderful, beautiful, exotic, charming, etc. girl in the world. But did these gentlemen ever stop to think how some girls act in class. The following are well known female characters in class.

The "Fluffer" wears numerous jangling bracelets to classes; takes time out every six minutes to powder nose, paint face and comb hair. Uses mirror to see what the answers to questions are. Always drops lipstick, comb or mirror on floor at least once in twenty minutes.

The "B. T. O." is ball of fire, full of pep and energy, always center of attraction. Unhappy when spotlight is turned off. Will do anything from smoking hubbley bubbley to breaking arm to be noticed. Usually ends career by being pushed into sewer by ardent admirers.

The "Analyst" finds subtle hidden meaning in jokes, is continually embarassed. Thinks all men are making passes at her, believes in all conventions until vacation, when is spotted as head dance girl in a burlesque show.

The "Card" always has joke to top joke, laughs briskly, opens mouth so wide people turn away for fear of having to pay toll on the bridgework. Gets biggest kick out of jokes like, "Why do harmonica players play in short pants?" or "They laughed when I picked up the saxaphone. They didn't know I was the installment collector." Is insulted when friends don't fall off chairs in a panic.

The "Knitter" spends busy hours in class knitting gruesome designs, while prof sweats through lecture; takes three or four semesters to complete project. Finishes job and ends up with one size six and one nine glove, takes three more semesters to even things up, sends pair to grateful friend in tropics.

Rachmaninoff Featured

By F. ANTHONY HOMANN Jr.

Commemorating the fourth anniversary of the death of Sergi Rachmaninoff, eminent Russian composer, pianist and conductor, Eugene Ormandy and the Philadelphia Orchestra will offer an all-Rachmaninoff program for the coming concerts of Friday afternoon, March 28, and Saturday evening, March 29. The famous Russian, familiar to Philadelphia Orchestra audiences while he was still alive, will be honored by two of his most popular works, the Symphony 2 in E minor, and the Piano Concerto 2 in C minor. It was Rachmaninoff who once called the Philadelphia Orchestra "the Stradivarius of all orchestras."

In his first performances with the orchestra Gary Graffman, 18-year-old pianist, will be soloist for the Second Piano Concerto. A graduate of the Curtis Institute of Music, where he studied for ten years, Graffman was engaged by Ormandy for a professional debut with the orchestra after he won first place in the Philadelphia Regional Auditions in the first piano contest under the sponsorship of the Rachmaninoff Fund.

The Rachmaninoff Fund was founded in 1944 to honor the memory and to perpetuate the work of Sergei Rachmaninoff who died at Beverly Hills, Calif., in March of the previous year. Pianist Vladimir Horowitz heads this non-profit organization, while Rachmaninoff's widow is the honorary president. Eugene Ormandy is a member of the artists' advisory committee for the Philadelphia region.

The second Piano Concerto, which will be played by Graffman, is probably the most popular of Rachmaninoff's major works. Recently the concerto was featured in the movies "Holiday in Mexico" and "I've Always Loved You."

It has been widely adopted for popular use, appearing as the melody in "Full Moon and Empty Arms." Composed at the turn of the century, it had its debut in Moscow a year later, with the composer at the piano.

The tenth and final concert in the Monday series by the Philadelphia Orchestra will be given on March 31 at the Academy of Music. Eugene Ormandy has chosen this occasion to observe the fiftieth anniversary of the death of another great musician—Johannes Brahms, who died in Vienna, April 3, 1897. The concert will be an all-Brahms affair, consisting of the Academic Festival Overture, and the Second and Third Symphonies.

The third symphony of Brahms has evoked much speculative criticism. Some people have seen in this symphony a tribute to Wagner, who died while Brahms was working on the symphony, because of the alleged interpolation of measures from the "Venusberg Music" from Tannhauser. Others have seen a musical representation of the forces of Good and Evil. However, the music is thoroughly enjoyable and very melodic, whether or not one would read a meaning into the measures. The music represents Brahms in his maturity, and bears his stamp.

Tickets for both concerts may be purchased at the Academy of Music, or Halys, and are priced from $1.30 to $3.90.

The rain that fell that fatal night must have dampened the wise spirits of our esteemed editor, for after hours of argument and forceful persuasion, he finally allowed this fabled piece of "Yellow Journalism" to appear again in the crispy folds of "Ye Villanovan."

Before we relate the tragedies of the year to you, we first wish to extend our sincere condolences to the past contributor of this sizzling column, "Over-Burdened by Work" LARRY LYONS lost his date at the P&W when he forgot to get on the car, so he decided to throw in the reins and let the horse roam for itself.

So from here we begin our harried trail and before we get too far, let's look back to what's been going on the past few weeks down and around the halls of this college.

It's been said (by those who know) that JOE TOPPER and HUEY (have you a spare axel) JOHNSON were scouting the prowess of two local college teams. One Friday night, sometime past, the boys packed in early to get their front row seats at the Immaculata-Chestnut Hill game.

Question of the Sports Staff: Could JOE LORD stand up against B. BISSINGER and M. FRANK?.

Speaking of Chestnut Hill, there was a grand old St. Patrick's gathering up that way when the colleens of the Sophomore Class threw their "Kindler." Although the men seemed to predominate, and the girls had to call out the reserves, those present seemed to enjoy themselves, except for ED KELLER, who walked in, took off his coat, took a ten-minute tour of the surrounding beauty, walked back to his coat, put it on, walked to the door and said, "Let's get out of here." Editor's question: What was the trouble, Ed?)

Among the majority of those that stayed were such numeraries as PHIL JAKEWAY, DAN REDMOND, RALPH PASQUARIELLO, SAM (I gave her my ring) CANNING, JACK (I wish I met you before Canning) CORR, BILL SPACE, who spent the day reminiscing with his North Jersey neighbors and, of course, not to be forgotten at Chestnut Hill, BILL CARLIN.

There were some that had formal entertainment elsewhere. By that we mean that there was a small gathering up Immaculata way with such greats as PAUL WALSH, ED LAGNO and DICK McDERMOTT keeping the girls up the way happy.

Drifting back to the old granite walls, we happened to stumble upon a new four credit course conducted in Mendel Hall by a Mr. Culbertson, Book III, for in a room in Mendel Hall, the tournament reges daily with such has-beens as BUD DILLON, DICK McMONIGLE, NED CONWAY and WALLY (Someday I'll buy a tie) DIETRICH. Occasionally a red-headed stranger silently comes in, takes up a few books and leaves. Question of the week: Who is this intruder???

The other night at the Plastics lecture, DAVE MARANO, Secretary of the ASCE, skipped out on his buddies with a few lovelies on each arm without contributing to the work involved in cleaning up. They waiteth visiting Civil Engineers or close friends of the family that DAVE had to see home safely.

Bouquet of the week goes to a couple of hard workers in the Engineering Department who are deep in remorse for that can't find time to get a date on Saturday night. The two afflicted are JIM CARROLL and MIKE CREWS. We hope they wait for you.

West Catholic Alumni's annual contribution to the joys of St. Paddy's Day found BOB (I'm playing the field) FUREY, JERRY POWELL and JACK (St. Patrick didn't wear a tie either) FOSTER attending.

That sly looking operator you've seen slinking around the campus BERNIE BORSCHKE lining up a few of the "elect" for gatherings at Roseland, Immaculata, Chestnut Hill and Bryn Mawr. The line forms on Lancaster Pike, fellows.

Before we tear ourselves from your eager eyes, we hear there's a hush-hush around the gym way since the baseball team is out on the green, the big question is, "Where will they find a suit big enough to fit JOHN SIANO??

All Stops To Paoli

By A. J. MULLEN

On the third floor of the Free Library of Philadelphia for the past week the International Salon of Photography has been exhibiting a collection of the best amateur salon prints of recent months. To know of the exhibition one must be a member of the inner circle of amateur photographers but once one knows of it, the admission is free.

Armed with these few facts, I recently sojourned to the free library and after checking my hat, coat, shirt, tie, shoes, socks, and undershirt at the check room, I proceeded to search for the exhibition. The gendarme directed me to a large iron gate which, according to his information, was supposed to be the entrance to an elevator. When the porticulus (English translation: door) finally opened I found, much to my surprise that he was entirely correct.

Arriving on the third floor, I entered a long hall which was lined on both sides by photographs covered by a peculiar type of highly reflective glass. The glass is put there by some vicious individual who wishes to make it as difficult as possible to see the pictures.

In the collection of pictures, some good, some just passable, I found an oversufficiency of uninhibited women. (Censored)

One of the pictures intrigued me and I stood for some time trying to discover what it was. After some puzzling, I found that it was the front of a building. My mistake had been in looking at the picture from the wrong angle. It was hung upside down.

It would seem that photography is a better medium for surrealism than painting. One notices that even the most ordinary objects take on a surrealistic aspect when photographed. Take Aunt Susie's cabinet picture. In that she looks like nothing of this world or the next.

Photography is an art. Anyone who doubts this has never tried to take a picture indoors with the aid of a blinding device known as a photoflood lamp. Somehow the most relaxed individuals can assume the most tense attitudes with no conducive properties other that two photoflood lights and a camera's lens.

The poor amateur photographer moans and groans, moves lamps here and there, focuses the camera over and over in an effort to make the victim relax. Meanwhile the innocent subject fidgets and keeps mumbling something about getting this over with. Eventually the subject manages a strained smile, the photographer throws up his hands in despair, and, figuring it is the best he can do, he snaps the picture.

Three days later he shows the finished print to his subject who screams, 'Do I really look that horrible?' Fishing vainly for a negative answer and having done his best, the cameraman excuses the look by saying that the light must have been too strong for the eyes but that the speed of the film required the strong light. Neither the subject nor the photographer quite understands what this means.

By ANTHONY COPPA

It is said that in the Springtime a young man's fancy turns to thoughts of love. The truth of this statement is quite obvious, for, with the coming of Spring many of us discover in ourselves a growing resolution to become better acquainted with that pretty girl at Immaculata or Chestnut Hill. Others, observing the rebirth of Nature, feel in our souls a swell of gratitude for this budding glory. Yes, it is easy and quite unavoidable in the Springtime for one to think of love. All Nature supports it—the dormant flower buds waking into bloom; the barren trees appearing in their verdant robes of life; the birds and beasts returning from their warm retreats, together voice Nature's approval of our feelings.

Yet, in a larger sense, if we are to think of love, how can we avoid considering the noblest manifestation of love, that of Jesus Christ for all mankind? How can we, the beneficiaries of that love, help meditating upon the love filled meaning of His message and sacrifice. How can we do these things without uttering a tear soaked sob, a sob arising not only from compassion for His offering, but even more so from a heartfelt gratefulness for His cleansing virtue and for His everlasting grace.

It is most fitting that the Church should celebrate the Passion, Jesus Christ's Crucifixion and Resurrection in the Springtime, when all the world is filled with new life, for by His death, He gave us life. In commemoration of His Passion, the Church has instituted the Lenten season as a time of self-sacrifice. We should also devote more time in His behalf. It should serve as a means through which we may arrive at a deeper realization of His excellence.

Outlook —

The rapid growth in numbers of chemical engineers in recent years up to and including the war forms no statistical basis for projecting this rate of growth into the future. Aside from accumulated demands and replacement needs, chemical engineers depend for employment today primarily on the expansion of chemical industries and their penetration into other fields. Employment has, or course, fallen off, generally, since the war, yet, chemistry engineering is still relying on the masses of young college graduates for tomorrow's and today's industrial backbone. The bridging of the gap between the laboratory chemist and the industrial engineer ever becomes more highly intricate and demanding. Thus many of the large chemical industries are gradually resuming their cadet training courses—and wage standards are higher than at any time before 1941, having held their own through the entire war period. For those immediately concerned, then, the prevailing "normalized" situation in chemical engineering will not change materially for the next twelve months, while further into the future there may be divined sharply ascending trends—comparable in scope to the gigantic steps of the past decade—if not indeed astoundingly surpassing in every way.

Current Opportunities

The call is for technical administrators, production planners, industrial research men and process designers. The most opportunely lucrative branches on all counts for the near future have been found to be these:

Nuclear Energy—truly the Colossus of modern science, the titan force has made itself greatly felt in Chemical Engineering; tremendouss new "Manhattan Projects" now planned can easily absorb all worthwhile ChE set-up man. Realizing that the number of Che's

By JOHN L. KUCHA

We haven't managed as yet to drop in on a meeting of Villanova's Poetry Club but we intend to do so soon. We may, perhaps, if not perchance, drop in to rhyme a rapid line or two or exchange a few iambic pentameters with the musing bards as they pluck the grapes hanging overhead an meet on yon Elysian Fields. Really though, every man is a poet whether his rhymes have reason or his verse is worse than blank. Even our minute ancestors, the ancient cave dwellers, had a hieroglyphic counterpart for the everlasting June, Moon, Croon, Spoon business, or else we wouldn't be here.

Of course, the Frank Sinatra of cave man days vowed his undying love to the adored one by quoting poetry and keeping time by the suvtle method of beating out a rhythmic tune on the female skull. Sure she swooned, what woman wouldn't? The caveman's line of approach was probably prompted by such monosyllabic logic as the following:

Ug Hug
Slug
Wife.

You will note that the last line is not in tune with the preceding three. This is typical of all Caveman poetry and is distinctly different in sound and meter from the Cliffdweller monotonous exameter which goes:

No!

doubled from 1934 to 1944, it is easy to see the impact this unprecedented field is to make in the next decade. Nuclear fission and atomic power plainly loom as Chemical Engineering future forti.

Petroleum Industry—"cat cracking" for super-octane aviation fuels; refining demands from black gold areas such as the Eastern Mediterranean lands, our own southwestern fields, and submarine West coast fields; organic solvent research, new hydrocarbon processes—these are but a few of petroleum's potential careers for today's Chem student.

Research Institutions—though replete already with superb talent, research foundations, under pressure of rapid development, are calling for more and more. Chemical technology applicators—those immediately concerned with industrial development and supported by manufacturing groups, especially need large ChE staffs. Typical are: Mellon Institute, the Battille Memorial Institute, and The Armour Research Foundation.

Other Primary Fields—Rubber, paper, resin production; pharmaceuticals, organic and metallurgical technology.

Trends—

For chemical engineers are general movement is toward the technical administration field and production and away from a? lyses and [illegible] analytic branches are ever ready to accept beginners, who find it no small task to step into administrative branches. All in all, Chemical Engineering is the field of youth.

Education, in turn, affects income, as will be seen later. It is safe to state ability with experience is the keynote ChE advancement.

Prevailing Qualifications—

Aptitude—the ChE must be a combination chemist, engineer and production manager. He must possess a many-channeled, grasping mind able to think not in terms of test tubes and grams, but of hundreds of tons and hundreds of thousands of barrels, able to convert as many processes as possible from batch to continuous operation, able to put into action the reports of control and research labs.

Formal Training — A.B.S. in Chemical Engineering, signifying completion of an approved 4 or 5 years college course (there are only ninety institutions in the U. S. offering ChE degrees, and only fifty-five of these are accredited). Intense course concentration having ceased with the ending of the war, choice of engineering branches is more free, though beyond the ordinary college course emphasis is put on those two subjects for ChE students: Chemical Economics and German (much scientific data is published in this language). English—the ability to express one's self, is far and away the greatest need. The regular college course is usually followed by several years experience in plant processes, analysis, research—the "practical" introduction to a life's work.

Specialization — for higher degree men, special needs are marked, though the trend today is toward more graduate work for all:

M.S.—1 academic year, or sometimes 2, after college.

Ph. D.—at least 3 years of graduate study and research.

Other Requirements—freedom to travel, and sound health are primary requisites for foreign-field workers.

Prevailing Income—

Income in the youthful Chemical Engineering industry is relatively high, varying, of course, with ability, function, type of employment, etc.

Administrative positions — the "top" positions—command the highest salaries, followed in turn by design and certain teaching posts. University instructors, for instance, receive more than the median, while secondary school instructors receive much less. Inventions, when reft of all their adventurous color, have been found to net no great fortunes for any sizeable number.

Incomes

	Median starting for figure	Median for 10-yr. men	Median for 26-30-yr. men
1941	1,700	3,200	5,800
1942	2,500	....	6,000
1943	2,545	3,998	6,620

$240-259	10.1
200-299	15.1
300-339	13.5
400-479	11.4

Chemical Engineering, with its median 33.2 year age rate, is a dynamic industry, of tremendous potentiality and opportunity, and its future should visibly hearten the ChE student of today.

problems of a national character. Mr. Canning added that if Villanova wished to enter the N.S.O. under these terms, the school constitution would have to be revised.

He stated that the Student Council was inactive; that it was neither "free" nor run by the students.

Messrs. Barret and Stanley then tried to clarify the situation by stating that the issue was neither one nor the other, but both that of free student government and press and national measures. Phil Barret then amplified this by reading all eight aims of the proposed constitution of the N. S. O.

Canning then asked Phil Barret what the Student Council was supposed to do about the N. S. O. Barret replied that the Student Council must set up machinery to elect delegates to the next national convention in September and that it must formulate a platform which the delegates would try to incorporate into the constitution.

In reply to another of Canning's questions, Stanley mentoned that the Student Council would not be obligated to affiliate Villanova with the N. S. O. if the constitution was not to their liking.

Before bringing the two-hour session to a close, Joe Brogan announced the following proposals:

1. Future meetings will be held in Room 215, Mendel Hall, at regular intervals and at definite times.
2. The meetings will be open to the students.
3. Any member of the Student Council missing a certain number of meetings will be dismissed.
4. A list of all members of the Student Council will be posted in a conspicuous place.
5. Freshman representatives will be admitted to the Student Council.

Pigskinners Face 9 Game Schedule

San Francisco Added to Schedule; Navy, U. of Florida Dropped

University of San Francisco is the only newcomer on the 1947 Villanova College football schedule announced last night by Rev. Edward B. McKee, OSA, moderator of athletics.

Villanova will close its season against Coach Ed McKeever's team at San Francisco on Sunday, Nov. 23. The trip marks Villanova's first West Coast appearance since 1937, when the Main Liners defeated Loyola University at Los Angeles.

Four home games, including one at Villanova Stadium and three at Shibe Park, are listed on the nine-game slate. The Blue and White gridders open the campaign against Kings Point on Saturday, Sept. 20 in a homecoming contest at Villanova.

Following the meeting with the U.S. Military Academy's unbeaten team at West Point the following week, Coach Jordan Olivar sends his squad against the University of Miami on Friday night, Oct. 3 at Shibe Park. The two teams met in a thrilling game last season.

Other home appearances are against the University of Detroit on Sunday, Oct. 19 and Georgetown University, Saturday, Nov. 15. Officials expect to schedule another home contest for Saturday, Nov. 1.

Olivar, who greeted more than 60 candidates as he began preparations for his fifth season on the Main Line, plans to work on the Wildcat's timing and deception during the drills. Andy Gordon, ace passer and quarterback, and Steve Romanik, reserve signal caller, are on hand for the sessions.

With 25 of 29 letter winners back from last season's squad which won six of 10 games, Olivar hopes to build up reserve strength for a heavy nine-game schedule. Heading the holdovers are George Pavalko, Pennsylvania All-State guard; Romeo Capriotti, All-Catholic halfback, and Joe Rogers, the East's leading grounder as a freshman in 1946.

The schedule:

Sept. 20, Kings Point, Villanova Stadium; 27, Army, away.

Oct. 3, U. of Miami, home; 11, Holy Cross, away; 19, Detroit, home; 24, Boston College, away.

Nov. 1, open; 8, Marquette, away; 15, Georgetown, home; 23, San Francisco, away.

Spring Football Brings Out 110

Facing one of the toughest schedules in recent years, the 1947 edition of the Villanova leather-carriers last week got down to the always hard work of getting into shape, after a long winter. Exercises, running down the field under punts, and brushing up on the basic "T" plays occupied most of the spotlight in the week's work.

With the exception of George Pavalko, Tom Smith, and Bill Lilinthal, all of whom were recouperating from heavy colds, the squad, about 70 strong, reported to coaches Olivar, Neri, and Ramio in excellent physical condition. This is most probably due to a realization by most of the fellows that competition for berths on this years eleven will be strong.

During the war years, every graduation meant that Coach Olivar would have to start from scratch in the moulding of a new team for the coming season. Not so this year. Only 3 seniors will be lost through graduation, Billy Sullivan, the winner of the recent football contest who left us in February, and Zig Gory, who played lots of ball with Billy in '42-'43, along with Vince McPeak, the mainstay of the '44 and '45 elevens, are the three the 6', 240 lb. fullback withdrew from school. However, The incoming freshman, along with last years reserves should have little trouble in filling these gaps. With such veteran high-school players as Bill Svitak from Northeast, who played in the backfield of Philadelphia's city championship team. Bobby Connors, who likewise played on a city championship team three graduating seniors Bob David, olic High in '44, along with Mickey Frinzi, a halfback from Phillipsburg, N. J., Rudy Teager and Don Pendino, both tackles, Ray Ricco, a halfback for New York, and Jack McConville, an end. Coach Olivar's job of supplying the necessary reserves to back up the starting eleven should be very much eased.

"We intend to have some contact work this week." Coach Olivar said, "but we won't get down to real scrimmage work until after Easter," We also hope to schedule at least 3 scrimmage games towards the end of the spring practice."

Coaches Corner

By NED HOFFNER

We looked around for an athlete that was occupying the limelight in inter-collegiate competition to get the dope on this week, but since none of our varsity teams are in action as yet, the search was a little fruitless.

We'd be guilty of quite an oversight, however, if we didn't find out something about a man that is quietly doing a lot for Villanova athletes down on the baseball diamond. This man is Coach Phil "Lefty" Weinert. This interview was no easy matter, since the coach's answer to our first question was, "Write something about the boys."

18 Year Veteran

Mr. Weinert's prerogative to tell someone else a little about the national game, is quite a legal one. When he hung up his spikes in 1937, he had 18 years of major league and AAA baseball under his belt.

In 1919, after three seasons on the mound at West Philadelphia High School, he went up to the Phillies. This jump from high school to major league was just as unusual in 19 as it is in this day. Phil was 17 at the time and didn't have to take up space in his traveling bag with a razor and associated equipment.

Leaving the Phils after five years Lefty's travels took him through a great portion of organized baseball. He pitched with Los Angeles and San Francisco in the Pacific Coast League from whence to the Cubs under Joe McCarthy. He next did some work on the mound for Louisville and Memphis in the Southern Association. Phil came up to the Yankees under McCarthy again in 1931. He finished up his active participation in baseball with four seasons in the hot Midwest American Association.

Still in Action

We were lucky enough to get a look at our subject in action. In this cold spring weather and with the opening game only two weeks off, conditioning is no easy matter for a coach to consider. The candidates for the ball club, clad in flannels were hustling and working in response to Lefty's quiet suggestions. Borrowing an item from Hanolsch's notes, the coach not only notices the mental type of a player's faults, but writes them up and hands them to whomever he feels in need of them. In this way, a man is kept more conscious of the faults that are marring his play. Since his personal experience has been in pitching, the moundsmen reap the most profit through his experience, and watching them belies the fact that they have only been at work for about two weeks.

Wildcat Baseball Set for Vermont

Newcomers Give Returning Veterans Run for Positions; Sluggers in Shape

In spite of persistent bad weather, Coach Phil Weinert's baseball squad has settled down to some hard work in preparation for the opening game with the University of Vermont. The cold weahter has prevented any really intensive workouts, particularly on the part of the pitchers, but Mr. Weinert has nevertheless been holding lengthy batting practices in order to see just what he has.

As a result, he has been able to cut his squad down to 32 men. Another cut is expected within a week, bringing the number down to the conventional 23, which will represent this year's Villanova baseball team. After the first few days of outdoor practice, Phil Weinert was well pleased with his material, but realizing the severity of the schedule, he is making no promises as to Villanova's chances.

Battery In Shape

Although there is no shortage of candidates for any position, the number of brilliant batterymen is particularly consoling.

Coach Weinert can choose any one of four to start behind the plate against Vermont. Frank O'Neill, John Siano, Joe Brehmer, and Charlie O'Malley are all seasoned veterans, and as a result the fight for catching position has become a wide open affair.

In addition to veteran pitchers Chojnacki, Donohue, and McDonnell, Mr. Weinert expects much of Billy Smith, who will divide his time between the outfield and the mound, and Bobby Green, a newcomer, who pitched some good ball while serving with the marines. Throwing from the portside, "Lefty Begley and Tom McCarthy, a varsity fullback, will provide additional strength to an already powerful pitching staff.

Price Shows Promise

The newcomer showing the most promise is Freddy Price, an aspirant for the first base position. He has been a terror during the early season batting practice, and his fielding is smooth in every detail. He and John Weglicki promise to give Charlie Cumerford a stiff battle for the starting position at the initial sack. Around the keystone sack Joe Lord still looks good, but keen competition

Barracks Five Sets Pace With Seven Victories

Wednesday Night Game To Decide Title

The Barracks quintet again proved victorious in another week of the Intramural basketball race. Their two additional wins have nailed them on top of the list with a perfect record of seven wins out of seven games.

Starting the week off, the Barracks turned back Mendel 32-29, Thursday they defeated the Doms 58-28, this was the highest score of the season for Intramural games. Buckley and Schaub stood out by scoring a total for the two games of 24 and2 1 points respectively.

Austin was enabled to retain their hold on second place in the League by winning their last three games, in defeating Alumni by the decisive score, 37-17. They followed this by an impressive win over the Doms 34-22, and finally closing a victorious week by defeating Mendel 38-25. Williams scored an impressive ten points in the Alumni game and Jakeway gathered seven to set a total of 24 points for the week.

Doms Defeat Fedigan

The major upset of the week was when the Doms defeated Fedigan by the margin of 38-31. The outstanding performer of the game was Slack who tallied twelve points for Pedigan to make him high scorer of the week, with a total of 32 points.

Fedigan accounted for one win and two defeat; they won over Alumni Hall 28-23, and were defeated by the Doms and Mendel by the respective scores of 31-28 and 22-29.

The Barracks will meet the strong five from Austin Hall this Wednesday night. This game will being supplied by Corr, Aigeldinger, and Hartnett.

Perhaps the sharpest and most bitter struggle has centered about the shortstop position. Here Bill Doherty, last year's starting shortstop, George Warner, who occupied the position during the seasons of 1942-43, and John Blong, of basketball fame, are all fighting tooth and nail for the starting assignment. At third, the infield is Kirshner giving him quite a bit of competition.

Litwa—Casey Fencebusters

Al Litwa and Dan Casey promise to give the team plenty of power at the plate, for both of these boys have been plastering the ball all over the lot during batting practice. Reaching the leftfield fence has been no problem for Litwa, and for Casey, who bats from the other side of the plate, clearing the rightfield stands is likewise child's play. Bob Polidor also shows a lot of ability in the outfield pastures, and that big-knob-handled bat he carries around packs a powerful wallop. Coach Weinert also expects much from "Shy" Raiken, Jack Heilmann and Romeo Cappriotti, who has been missing from batting practice because of a bad cold.

This season's team shows very great possibilities and with a few more weeks of practice should provide formidable opposition for any college team in the nation.

Deferred Prices For "Cyrano" Production Offered to Stud.

College students of the Philadelphia area will receive an opportunity to attend Jose Ferrer's production of Rostand's immortal "Cyrano de Bergerac", at reduced rates.

This offer has been extended to the student body of Villanova College, with the condition that the special rates be available for presentations on Monday through Thursday only. Tickets must be obtained in blocks of twenty.

Orchestra seats, intended to sell for $3.90, may be purchased by students for $2.90, if purchased in blocks of twenty.

"Cyrano de Bergerac" will be presented at the Forrest Theatre for two weeks beginning Monday, March 24, having had a successful run on Broadway.

Students wishing to take advantage of this opportunity should place their names on the bulletin board in the Villanova office.

The standings of the teams are; Barracks—seven wins no losses, Austin—six wins, one loss, Alumni—three wins, four losses, Mendel—three wins, six losses, Fedigan two wins, six losses, Doms—two wins, seven losses.

Staff Sidelights Seen at Smoker

Last Monday evening, March 24, the Villanovan staff had its first smoker Held in the Blue Room of the Field House.

Don Collins, the toastmaster introduced Reverend John A. Klekotka the Mederator of the Villanovan who made a few brief remarks wherein he expressed his thanks for the cooperation which the staff has been giving him.

Feature Editor John Kucha provided the entertainment and the talents of many new members of the staff were brought to light. There was a relaxed, jovial atmosphere and everyone had an excellent time.

Refreshments were served and the affair lasted until ten o'clock.

This smoker was one of the most successful of the present season. The staff members are now looking forward to their dinner dance which is going to be held in Philadelphia on the seventeenth of April. This affair is going to be held in a hotel and promises to be a very gala occasion.

Villanova's 1946-47 basketball team set more college scoring marks than any other team in Wildcat history. The quintet scored 1436 points in 24 games, an average of 59.8 points per game.

N.R.O.T.C. Plans Military Dance

Villanova and U. of Penn. Coordinate Efforts

The committee composed of Dan Redmond, Dave Marano, Ed. Lagno, and Paul Walsh announced the forthcoming Naval R. O. T. C. Ball to be held on Friday, the 18th of April at the Hotel Penn Sheraton. Music for the formal military ball is to be supplied by Michael Donnelly and his Orchestra, and dancing will continue from 9 o'clock till 1.

The Villanova unit has been working in close coordination with a similar committee from the University of Pennsylvania, and the joint body has decided to hold a dance combining the two units. The Hotel Penn Sheraton was decided upon, when the management offered its beautiful ball room at a reasonable fee. The Navy has also contributed greatly in the preparation of the necessary details.

The tickets have been put on sale for $3.00 per couple, and are obtainable from any member of the committee. The ballroom is particularly well adapted for a military ball which according to the advance predictions of the committee should be a complete success. An invitation has been extended to all R. O. T. C. alumni as well as all the current members of the unit.

DPM Proposes Literary Mag.

At a smoker-meeting last Wednesday, the organization and activities of the Delta Phi Mu "Arts" Fraternity were discussed for this semester, and groundwork was laid for the '47-'48 terms. The constitution was adopted by the members, sixty of whom were present in the largest turnout thus far.

Second only to the ratification of the constitution on the business agenda for the evening was the formation and selection of permanent committees to carry-out the aims of the fraternity. To provide an attractive as well as solid basis for inducing and maintaining membership, a committee on entertainment and guests was established. The chairmanship fell to Maurice Crane, vice president of the D.P.M. His will be the task of securing guest speakers and artists suited to the cultural ideals which the fraternity hopes to develop.

A "Publication's Committee" was also established under the joint leadership of Ed. King and Don Collins to investigate the possibilities of a literary magazine at Villanova.

The difficulties of organizing, printing and even determining the essential nature of the magazine became evident early in the discussion and the matter was left to a further examination by the committee.

The other permanent committee established during the course of the evening was that on "Expansion of Cultural and Social Activities."

A nominal initiation fee of $50 for new members was adopted as one of the by-laws.

Stanley

Mr. Stanley concluded with "I will not try to tell you what to do or how to do it—that is your responsibility."

Herman Diesel then followed with a brief history of the National Federation of Catholic Students emphasizing that although it was a dormant organization during the war, it is not a new organization like the N. S. O. for Villanova has been a member college of about five years standing.

At this point Mr. Diesel explained the aims and organization of the society. In explaining the first point he quoted from the present constitution—"It is," he stated "to assist in the development Student Councils or their equivalent and to represent the Catholic Student body in national and international life". He continued by quoting the definition of student council as used in the Federation manual—"refers to an agency—representative of all classes and all student organizations and serves as a clearing house for the student activities program".

Proceeding, he outlined the manner in which the N. F. C. C. S. is organized, going into detail on the matter of commissions. He stated that each member college is given a specific subject on which it must work. Villanova has the commission to promote interest in interracial matters.

Mr. Deisel then explained the need for taking an active part in such an organization. He mentioned that someday we would be expected to take an active part in bettering our country and that the way in which to train to be capable leaders is to actively participate in extra-curricular activities and organizations such as the N. F. C. C. S. He then directed at those assembled the question, "If you don't take an active interest in these things now, how do you expect to do something after you graduate."

"There are some who are leaders and those who are followers but let the best be brought out in them", Deisel concluded. He also said, that the National Convention of the N. F. C. C. S. at which the constitution will be ratified will be held in Toledo on April 18-19-20. Villanova is expected to send at least two delegates and it is the duty of the Student Council to see that the proper men are sent.

German Club Turns Out For Friday Night Smoker

Friday evening at 8 P. M. in Simpson Hall, "Neustadter Kreis" held its most important meeting of the semester. Doctor Bauer, professor of German, presented a talk dealing with German matters. Club officers previewed all club activities and spoke on the future plans of the organization in both cultural and social fields.

The most notable remarks of the meeting urged cooperation and coordination of club members for the success of future activities. Only those desirous of really participating in and carrying out the club's objectives would benefit fully and completely from their membership. It was also said that though there could be but a small group actually working on the projects, it is expected that all would devote themselves to some small share at least in these operations.

Radio Skit Previewed

Further plans for the scheduled meetings with Chestnut Hill and Immaculata College were made and a preview of the coming skit was held.

Joe King, Chesterfield representative, was present at the meeting. Through Mr. King three cartons of Chesterfield cigarettes were distributed among those present, courtesy of the Liggett Myers Tobacco Company.

Lecturer Discusses Pan-American Culture

Members of the Inter-American Union heard a lecture on the South and Central Americas by Mr. Stennius, a social worker and a widely traveled lecturer. Mr. Stennius, who has been all over the Americas and has done some traveling on the continent, spoke on the relations between United States and South America and particularly on the conditions in Argentina and Brazil.

The points of difference between the two cultures was the bulk of the lecture. He commented that the distance between North and South America exists more in system and culture than in actual mileage. As background for his talk, he outlined the differences in the settlement of the two lands and further drew a parallel between the industrial and social revolutions in our own land and the conditions of unrest in the South Americas today.

Mr. Stennius spoke of Argentina as one of the strong countries of South America to be reckoned with in Pan American relations. In his opinion, Peron is a majority leader in that country today and despite his faults is the least of many evils.

Brazil, the other important country in South America, he maintained, has been much weakened by the war, but will in time become a large factor in South American economy.

After the meeting, the students carried on further conversation with Mr. Stennius to clear some points in their own minds.

The members also furthered arrangements on a dance to be held in the near future. Plans for the dance have been proposed but have not reached any state of completion. The purpose of the dance is to stimulate membership.

I. R. C. NEWS

A college forum program was presented over Station WFIL March 17, at 9:30 P. M. At this time Miss Rosemary McAndrews took the affirmative side of the following resolution: the government of Germany should or should not be centralized. The negative side of this question was taken by Mr. John Carroll, of St. Joseph's College. The International Relations Club of Villanova was represented by Mark Doyle and John Kennedy.

Miss McAndrews in her speech mentioned the fact that Germany should have a centralized government for her economic recovery and that Europe in a greater sense must have a restored Germany for her economic recovery. Miss McAndrews' talk contained many essential features. The accomplishments of democracy in this country since its founding should be directly applied to Germany rather than try a trail and success method. Germany should have her own leaders and the Allied Council should serve only in a supervisory function. In response to queries as to the length of allied occupation she said Germany should if necessary be occupied fifty years and by this time Germany's knowledge of democratic processes would be sufficient for her to govern herself.

Mr. Carroll Proposes Federation

Mr. Carroll in his address advanced the argument that Germany should be made up of a federation of states. He voiced his support of this question in two specific points which in essence were: Control of a centralized Germany either by Russia or the Western Powers would be much easier than control of a federation of states. The industrial and military potential of Germany although now destroyed, will in the future constitute a threat to peace and should be carefully supervised. It was Mr. Carroll's opinion that one power would have more difficulty dominating a group of confederated states than a unified state.

Mr. Robert J. Courtney, instructor of Political Science, at La Salle College, summed up the essential points of the forum.

Mr. Ralph Dungan was student discussion leader for this meeting. Representatives from Rosemont, La Salle, Villanova, St. Joseph's, Immaculata and Chestnut Hill were present. The next in this series of college forums will be held April 21. The major participants being La Salle and Chestnut Hill Colleges.

Revived Belle Masque Scores in First Effort

Rosemont Players Impressive as Large Audience, Reacts Favorably

As its initial production Belle Masque, the campus dramatic club, offered three one-act plays to a receptive audience in the Field House last Friday night. Collaborating with four equally attractive and capable Rosemont College thespians, the campus players showed great promise.

The curtain first went up on "Trifles," a thought-provoking bit by Susan Glaspell. "Trifles" is essentially a "who dunnit" with the feminine players unwittingly solving the murder by uncovering the trifling clues that leave the audience with no doubt as to the murderess. Peggy Jacobsen and Mimi Dransfield, as Mrs. Hale and Mrs. Peters respectively, displayed evidence of past dramatic experience in handling their roles. Joe Rogers, Anthony Mullen, and Bob Keller in supporting parts turned in an excellent performance.

"Workhouse Ward," an amusing piece by Lady Gregory, related the quarelling of two inmates of an Irish Debtor's workhouse. It gave those two Gaels, Ed Fanelli and Tony Mammarella, an opportunity to reveal their Irish brogues and Loretta Moore the setting to give an effective performance as Mike McInerny's (Tony Mammarella) widowed sister. The audience reacted favorably as they displayed their talents in this three character vehicle.

"Where the Cross Is Made," a drama by Eugene O'Neill, provided a fitting close to a varied program for the theater-goers. Dick Harris and Mary Rose Brown, assuming the lead roles as brother and sister, were outstanding. There was action aplenty with buried treasure, death, insanity and apparitions all taking place within a very few minutes. Unfortunately the plot became a bit confusing as the anti-climax drew near. Ed Tuite as an old sea dog, Captain Bartlett (the father), Frank Kane as Dr. Higgins, Al Schmidt as Jimmy Kanaka, a South Sea native, Tony as Bos'n Cates and John Mallick as Horn provided that final touch to make the play a hit.

Plaudits are due to frank Franzoni, in charge of lighting, Frank Lang handling the props and Lou Rabaut, set decorator. The Rev. William Krupa, OSA, the director, was ably assisted by George Scanlon and Bob Whelan.

Paper to Sponsor Literary Effort

Delta Pi Mu, Villanova's Arts Fraternity, will publish a literary effort this spring. The first edition of the magazine will appear as a supplement to the Villanovan. The latter step was agreed upon to defray costs and to lessen the difficulties attendant upon initiating a new periodical.

Editorial Staff In Making

The editorial staff of the magazine has not yet been selected, but Rev. John McShea, O.S.A., Moderator, has already enlisted the aid of some of the best writers on the campus. All students interested in contributing to the effort are to see Father McShea or are to be present at the next meeting of the D.P.M.

The general aim of the publication will vary from that of the Villanovan, the only student publication now functioning on the campus. According to the plans made to date, it will include practically every form of fictional and philosophical writing with literary excellence the one criterion for acceptance.

It is still a question whether the supplement will utilize four pages of a regular edition of the Villa-

NROTC Dance Set for Friday April 18th

To Be Held Under United Sponsorship at Hotel Penn-Sheraton

In conjunction with the Naval ROTC Ball, the Villanova ROTC committee held a planning conference with the Penn committee on Thursday, March 27, in the Engineering Building, at the University of Pennsylvania.

The Ball, scheduled for Friday evening, April 18th, is the first social event ever to be conducted under united sponsorship of the two units. Hotel Penn-Sheraton's ballroom will be the site of the impressive pageant. The Commanding Officers, and staff officers, of both units are on the honorary committee.

Highlight of Year

This is to be the highlight of the year for each unit, and no pains are being spared for its success. Midshipmen will wear the formal dress blue uniform on this occasion. Alumni Naval officers of both ROTC units are invited to attend in uniform.

Since Villanova has become one of the permanent Naval ROTC units in the United States, it is planned to crown each year's activities with a similar gala Ball.

The orchestra of Michael Donnelly, a favorite at the Brookline Club, has been engaged for the Ball.

Interfrat Ball Features Local Name Band

Tickets for Post-Lenten Dance on Sale This Week at Information Booth

On March 12th, 1947, Villanova will be host to the Interfrat Ball. This informal event will feature the rhyme and rhythm of Philadelphia's own, George Sommer.

George began his musical career at the early age of six, when he was just tall enough to reach the keyboard. By the time he was eleven years old, he was the mascot of a drum and bugle corps.

Upon entering high school he was made a drum major in a sixty piece band, a position he held for the entire four years. In his senior year he was asked to form a dance band which immediately met with great success. With this start, George's lifetime work was charted out for him.

Outstanding In Musical Circles

After graduation, George and his Orchestra became an outstanding name in musical circles. Prior to the war, his organization was the fastest rising group in the Philadelphia territory being billed along with such popular bands as those of Benny Goodman, Gene Krupa, Bob Chester and Jimmy Dorsey. The orchestra was featured on long summer engagements at Hunt's Pier in Wildwood, N. J.; Willow Grove Park near Philadelphia and Wagner's Ballroom in downtown Philadelphia.

Upon cessation of hostilities, George and his men immediately reorganized and are once again giving dancing and music lovers the type of music which had gained the band so many admirers. The aggregation features the fine vocalizing of the Three Sherry Sisters, (Jean, Betty and Loretta) and the Gentlemen of Song, plus entertaining novelties and musical presentations by the entire band.

Most of the name bands throughout the country today are composed of at least one graduate of this organization.

The phrase "Rhythm and Rhyme in Sommertime" is now incorporated in all his arrangements and when the dance is over, you will find yourself humming or whistling "Summertime."

George and his band are said to pursue a path much like Elliot Lawrence, another local bandleader now one of the nation's favorites.

Tickets for the Interfrat Ball are on sale, this week, at the information booth, or they may be purchased from a member of the dance committee.

Early Class Elections on Council Agenda

The Student Council will hold its bi-monthly meeting tonight at 8:00 P.M. in Room 215 Mendel Hall. The gallery will be open to all students wishing to attend the session.

Foremost among the topics on the agenda are the problems concerning Villanova's participation in the National Students Organization. The Council will discuss and vote upon election machinery to obtain school delegates who will attend the forthcoming convention of the N.S.O. in Chicago this fall. Particular points in the constitution of this national organization will be debated.

Class elections will be discussed, with the purpose of holding nominations and elections shortly after the Easter vacation. This is being done at present to foster a heavy student vote.

Action will also be taken on a freshman petition for representation in the Council and on a movement, for broader and more extensive representation throughout the school. If these Resolutions are approved, the Council membership will be increased considerably.

The Council will also consider changing its old constitution to meet new needs or, if that seems impossible, it will amend the present one.

The Holy Days - - -

Again the friendly candle hides its light, again the joyful organ stills its roll, again the eyes of saints are veiled in grief. It is Holy Week.

Once more the pageant presses onward, the passion of Our Lord is at hand. The palms are strewn, the Last Supper is held, the Three Hours of Agony are ticked off. It is the cavalcade of Christ's death and resurrection, and we all bow our heads in memory of the Sacrifice. In sad dignity the Church throws open the door of His room, and we come to venerate the murdered Saviour. The pulse of life slows in tribute to the Cross that so long ago bore man's hope and man's shame.

But pause, was it so long ago? Can we measure in tawdry driblets of time the station of an eternal act? When Christ suffered, He suffered for us as well as for Tiberius; He died for our sins and for the sins in all times. The Crucifixion was not in Moses' future or in our past, it is in the eternal Now.

We strew the palms in the pathway of Christ, it is no reenactment. In the perversity of this year and last year and next year, we prepare the coming of the Lord only to shout out "Crucify Him." We pledge our fealty, bow to His magnificence, acknowledge His dominion, only to betray Him on the morrow.

We sit at the Holy Table and rejoice with Him. We partake of His Body and Blood. We protest our faith and steadfastness only to deny Him in temptation's time. We visit Christ in the tabernacle, we are united with Him at the Communion rail. We make our pledge of amendment only to scorn His Law.

Christ dies for our sins. He writhes in Gethsemane for us and we cannot watch one hour. We sit craven in the inn while Christ is questioned and humiliated by crass men. We see the cruel thorns pressed in, we hear the savage singing of the scourge, we cringe before the mad mob. We follow with disguised face the bloody path to Calvary, we stand afar off while the Heavens tremble at man's sin. We shirk our duty, we tolerate injustice, we bow to the dictates of our society, we scoff at eternal truth for fashion's fancy.

And Christ in His love triumphant rises for us. He smashes the vain manacles of greed and hate. He crushes this sordid world beneath His resurrected feet not two millennia ago, but now in the present. He is here with us in the Church, He has smashed the chains of persecution, He has crushed the lie and inspired our hope, He is risen, He rises today, He rises forever for "Behold I am with you all days, even to the consummation of the world."

One World But Whose? . . .

It seems that, at last, we Americans are awaking from our dream world of "one world." Last Thursday, J. Edgar Hoover finally confirmed our secret dreads (in his expose of a Communist 5th column. We had hoped that perhaps now after the greatest and most destructive war in history, man would find a way to live in peace and harmony since he was convinced that existence in fighting and strife was impossible.

Despite Lenin's utterance of the "unbridgeable chasm" between the Soviet Union and the "imperialist world" and Stalin's echoing of this belief, we had hoped that the war might have changed things. Our hope was strengthened by President Roosevelt's enthusiasm, Wilkie's "One World,," and the dissolution of the Communist International Organization.

Now this hope seems to be blasted by events which are too obvious in their intent to be overlooked. We are not throwing cold water on the U. N. nor are we becoming an impartial power by intervening in Greece. We are only recognizing and acting on a situation that has always existed.

We have finally seen that the only world that interests the Soviet Union is "one world" of Communism. We know that Stalin was not kidding when he said, "For the slogan 'the United States of Europe' we will substitute the Federation of Advanced Countries and Colonies' which have fallen out of or are falling away from the imperialist system of economy." Apparently a nation that has fallen away from "the imperialist system of economy" is any nation that communist forces can dominate.

Our position is clear. We do want peace. We do not want war. We realize however that the world is so interdependent that the peace of one nation is dependent on the peace of the whole world. The world is too unified economically to be diversified politically. Thus the peace of every nation becomes our concern.

If the Soviets continue in their policy of dominating Europe, the main issue will change from peace to the preservation of our social and governmental principles. The defense of these principles from the aggression of a totalitarian power can mean but one thing—WAR!

Situation Unwanted . . .

Philadelphia reads the Republican interpretation of the news. The principal daily newspapers have a Republican foundation underlying their policy. There is nothing off color about the situation but what about the persons who wish to read a paper in which the news is Democratically interpreted? They do not do so because there is no such paper in Philadelphia. It is not their fault that a strike and subsequent unsuccessful attempts at conciliation have forced the paper to be liquidated. Nevertheless the situation exists.

As a result, radical and socialistic newspapers have been coming into prominence. These papers are good—for Radicals and Socialists, but not as a substitute for a Democratic paper. Observations show that these newspapers are coming into the hands of those who merely wish to read something other than the Republican color of the news. The result—A gradual shift to sympathetic thinking along the policy lines of these radical papers.

Several New York publications, communistic, socialistic and radical in nature, are finding their circulation increasing in the Philadelphia area. Are they converting new adherents to their radical policies, or are these people buying the paper for its new's value.

While we personally follow a policy of progressive Republicanism we advocate a Democratic newspaper in the Philadelphia area so that the people will be provided with a well-rounded news interpretation.

The present situation, is decidedly unwanted. A drive for a new newspaper would have numerous backers. Let us strive for the desired effect so that we may all benefit from a knowledge of both sides of the story.

Suppression or Revolution . . .

Currently the wheels in Washington are discussing the advisability of banning the American Communist party. Practically every journalistic soothsayer has said what he considers sooth on this problem and the issue has become obscured by the footprints of the party-line crossers. There are some phases of the problem which are of some moment to us, however, and a short run-down of the situation would be hardly time ill-spent.

The main fact to be considered is that the Communist Party is not a simple entity. It has one purpose but represents two separate things. It is a political party having its own ideal of government, but at the same time it has been proven that it is also the militant agent of another nation. This dual nature is the difficulty that we must tangle with.

Our constitution guarantees freedom from federal restraint of thought in the Bill of Rights and from state restraint in the fourteenth amendment. As long as any group supports our constitution, no matter how much it wishes to amend it, it deserves the protection of that constitution. Should any group arise that would change our constitution by methods not prescribed by it, all the forces of the nation must suppress it. Ostensibly, or better outwardly, the Communist Party supports the constitution, if any real proof be offered that it does otherwise, the Party should be wiped out.

The agents of another nation should be kept under the closest surviellance and any propaganda which they dispense must be rigorously searched for untruths. Their statements must even be worded so that they will contain no halftruths. This is national security and necessary in the utmost. Since the Communist Party is obviously an agent of a foreign power, a similar watch must be kept on it .

How then to treat this double natured beast that threatens to become a monster? To suppress it would be to endanger constitutional rights and to force underground a power that works much better in the darkness. To allow it to run rampant would be to foster a lying viper in our breast. We must not hamper it, we must not restrict it, but we must make sure that it does not speak on a platform barren of truth. Wherever a Communist writes there must also write a defender of our present system. Wherever a Communist speaks there must speak also a defender of our present system. Lies can avail little where truth is present. Drag the Communist Party out of its rat holes, don't force it deeper, but drag it on the long, straight pikes of truth, don't let it coil out on its own Party line.

LETTERS

Dear Editor,

I have been reading your paper for some time and have in general enjoyed it. However, there is one new feature in your paper which I think deserves some comment.

I am referring to the column entitled "Professional Surveys" written by Ed Oxford. It is a service to the whole student body and one greatly needed by them. I personally have not been interested in either of the two professions written about so far but I have read them with great satisfaction.

It is certain that a great deal of research was necessary to gather the material for the article and it is written in a clever, snappy style.

Possibly, you have received other letters concerning this feature but I would like to add my appreciation for honest work of student service.

An Appreciative Student.

Pride And Prejudice

In this second article of a series on Interracial Justice we would like to propose the question of the negro and his economic position in our society. "Is the negro an economic liability?" In a one word answer, "Yes". However, is a one word answer sufficient for the question asked? The answer to this second question is in the negative since we must inquire into the reasons behind this problem of the colored race in America.

Let us consider some of the accusations made against the negro. We say that the quarters of the negro are, for the most part, slums, unhealthful, contaminated areas caused by the filthy mode of living in these dwellings. It is true that each large city has its Harlem—a ghetto for the negro. These places are dirty and poorly kept, and is it any wonder? Before the wealthy white landlord of Harlem will permit a colored family to occupy an apartment, it must be unfit for white occupancy. When these profiteering landlords can no longer extract high fees from the whites, the crumbs are tossed to our darker "brethren." So you see, the negro doesn't make the slum—the area must be a slum before it can be lived in by the colored families.

Another side to this question stems back to further ignorance on the part of white intelligentia. How many universities and professional schools can you name that keep the welcome mat out for negros? Even in many primary and secondary schools, in both the North and South of our country, the admittance of colored students —not to mention faculty members is frowned upon. How then, can we expect these people to improve their position in life? They are forced into the low income groups, and to make matters worse, the high rentals, mentioned above, are extracted from their meager wages. Is it any wonder, then, that we find disease, slums, vice and crime rampant in the locality of the negro's home?

Finally, let us glance at the health and welfare level of our subjects. There are many mentally deficient and physically ill colored men, women and children in our society today, as is testified to by Fr. LaFarge in his "Interracial Justice." Why are these menaces to our society not cared for? Why do they not seek help themselves? The answer to this last question is much the same as the reason why children fear a dentist or doctor. It is not until the confidence of the medical man or dentist is obtained that the child will consent willingly to treatment. And such is the case with the negro. There are not enough negro doctors and dentists for the negro population — the education story once again—and white doctors can not jeopardize their white practices by allowing colored patients to visit their offices. In the clinics provided for the colored, the treatment is rough and confidence is not gained here. Besides, who are we to say that this race must receive clinical treatment if they are to receive any? How many "old age" homes accept negros, and which hospitals provide better than ward and clinical facilities to this group.

Let us not be too hasty to damn the negro. He needs our help so that he can help himself. That is what he WANTS to do—help himself, but without us, he can't. YOU can help this problem in your own small way by spreading propaganda in the "Christian Direction" rather than away from the true path. Just think of the possibilities if each of our 2000 students influences two other people.

Villanova Only Ninety-Nine and Forty-four One Hundreths Per Cent Male

(Special to the Real Villanovan)

By JOHN McDERMOTT

So you thought that Villanova was an all male school! But things have changed! Ellen Schneider and Helen Schweinler, Rosemont lovlies, are currently attending classes here.

This fact was the top secret of the Chemistry Department until this reporter disguised as a hydrogen sulphide molecule gained entrance to the laboratory and discovered the two girls busily whipping up a new lipstick in some testtubes.

Spirited away to the REAL VILLANOVAN office, they then signed six thousand autographs for the large mob of students milling about. In a signed confession, they admitted that they were actually attending Physical Chemistry under Dr. Haenisch's personal supervision.

Blessed are the meek, for they shall inherit the earth . . . less 26 percent inheritance tax.

Physics Club Plans Trip To Venus

By YAKIMA KANUTT

Last Saturday night at the Physics Club meeting, Bill Connor announced that members of the club will travel to Venice, Italy to view the famous statue of Venus de'Milo

This has been made possible by Bill's untiring efforts in securing students rates on the boats. This statue will be of particular interest to students of Physics because ??

It is believed that this trip to Venus will become an annual affair. Reservations have been already been made on boats up until the year 1960. At this time the students who left in 1947 will return. A trip to the moon is also being contemplated. Please contact Bill if you are interested. He lives on Saturn which is comparatively close to Mars.

Bill predicts that the year 1980 will bring a trip to the Sun.

Fahy and Hubbard Wilt Under Third Degree

"Nails" Fahy and "Fingers" Hubbard (arrows) are led from headquarters by burly detectives as District Attorney leads the way.

(Special to the Real Villanovan)

By NIHIL FAHYSKI

In a sweeping raid led by FBI men, the D.A. and Harrington swooped down on the "Villanovan" (not to be confused with the REAL VILLANOVAN) office and arrested two embezzlers, Neal (Nails) Fahy and Richard (Fingers) Hubbard, as they were about to leave for Rosemont. Both gave up without much of a fight.

Hubbard and Fahy were under suspicion for some time as they were not eating in the Cafeteria but traveling into town for their meals.

The District Attorney's Office, acting on a tip from a Delurey Hall resident, checked the books of the Villanovan and discovered that $654,023.69 was missing. However, the D.A. waited until $5,489,026.98 more was taken in order to have conclusive evidence.

Hubbard and Fahy denied everything and claimed that the evidence was purely circumstantial. They were held under $2.00 bail, which was posted by William Kilroy of Connecticut.

P. H. E. W. Club Reorganizes

Group Plans Huge Smoker In Near Future

By ETAION SHRDLU

One of Villanova's oldest fraternities, P.H.E.W., held a reorganization meeting last night in the C&F Building.

The main purpose of the group is to have a whale of a time. A smoker is being planned at which whale sandwiche and Eskimo pies will be served.

Officers elected at the meeting were: Jack Kobbe (Austin), President; John W. Goldschmidt, Vice—; and Ed Sullivan, Sergeant at Arms.

The business of selecting a motto for the club was left undecided but was narrowed down to two, "Am I My Blubber's Keeper?" and "We're all blubbers under the skin."

The P.H.E.W. is planning an Artic Expedition soon but your correspondent believes that this is for the Byrds.

EDITORIAL

During the past week there have been many fake copies of the Real Villanovan circulating about the campus. Remember, there is only one real, REAL VILLANOVAN. Don't be satisfied with substitutes.

The Editorial policy of this paper shall be to fearlessly print the lie, the whole lie, and nothing but the lie, and we do not intend that anyone should take this statement lying down.

"Now is the time for all men to come to the aid of their party." The eminent statesman Josh Q. Blotz made this statement some one hundred years ago, but today, in spite of changing times, this statement is even more true, and the REAL VILLANOVAN is not one to face the issue squarely. Our policy will be to support with all our resources, the platform of the Anti-Prohibition party.

As a young boy, we were admitted to the bar where we have fought repeatedly for legislation to bring back the nickel beer. We even took a case to the highest court. Defeat will not stop us! Our heads will remain sudsy, but unbowed! Let us carry on the fight! Set 'em up! The drunks are on the REAL VILLANOVAN.

William Scharle Becomes "Boy of the Year"

Freshman Walks Off With Honors

By HORACE WIGGLEBOTTOM

"Boy of the Year," William Scharle, Engineering student of Allentown, Pa., became the one millionth Villanova Student to open the door, gape in, and slowly ooze away without saying a word.

For some time numerous students have been busy at this practice, but Willie was the one millionth. This fact was verified by an electronic counter currently being used to tabulate "Cut" lists.

Scharle is a Freshman; is not one of the men in seven who shaves daily; uses Mum; parts his hair on both sides; and is an ardent reader of the REAL VILLANOVAN.

Willie was quite overwhelmed, not to say nonplussed, when informed of the single honor that had been conferred upon him. "Gee," he said, "this is like winning an Irish Sweepstakes."

The Staff of the paper also presented Scarle with a blank check for two hundred thousand dollars. This will help solve the rubber shortage.

Scharle is a rather uninhibited chap who stands five feet eleven in his stocking shoes which he always wears. He has deep brown eyes and constantly carries a matriculation card (Do you know a better way to get a meal?).

Lloyds of London is currently waging twelve to five that Willie won't be the two millionth fella to open the door. The REAL Villanovan Staff has not taken any bets.

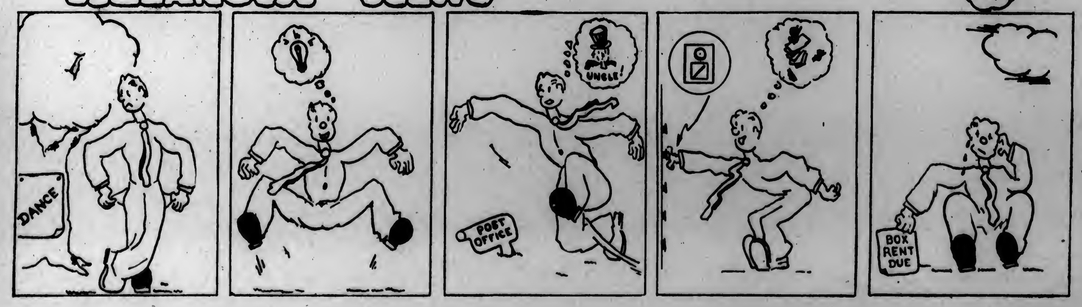
TONY'S COMMENT

New spring outfits for the football players have arrived and fellas, they're simply devine. Trimmed with aquamarine lace, and topped with a small bustle, they fairly radiate charm. Everybody who is anybody in football circles will be wearing them.



Bryn Mawr has been added to fill the Villanova Football schedule. The boys are really looking forward to renewing this bitter rivalry with the Bryn Mawr Huskies. I understand that Mamie Whoosit, their new star fullback is in great shape.

Isn't Lou Perry putting on a lot of weight. Careful, Lou, food isn't everything in life, y'know.

'Cats Take Road Opener From Quantico 5 to 1

Loosening up to face Leathernecks

Baseball Squad to Face Duke Blue Devils Monday, N. Carolina Tuesday

Al Litwa Hits Three Run Homer; Smith, Donohue Fan 18

Although a day late, the Villanova College baseballers opened their 1947 season nothing short of sensationally Saturday afternoon when they downed the Quantico Marines 5-1. After receiving the University of Vermont nine at the Field House, for the scheduled opener Friday afternoon, it was decided by mutual agreement to call off the contest due to the cold weather, and the possibility of the players developing the ball players headache, sore arms.

The rest afforded the players by this postponement paid off. Faced with a road trip consisting of four games in five days, the 'Cats didn't have much to look forward to in the way of rest. Coach Weinert and his crew left the Field House early Saturday morning and headed for the deep south. The first stop was Quantico. Here the team really clicked. The selection of reliable Bill Smith to do the chucking turned out to be a very wise one. "Smitty" was master of the situation all the time he was on the mound. The best the Leathernecks could do with his offerings was three singles. In the meantime Bill, working like a cold automaton, mowed the opposition down unmercifully.

Litwa Hits Homer

In the second inning the Camden clouter Al Litwa caught one of Ross' fast balls on on the fat of the wood and drove the horsehide 400 ft. to score Bill Smith and Bob Polidor ahead of him. This circuit smash tied the total of last year's home runs.

Jigger Donohue succeeded Smith in the sixth and he also was in form. Henry pitched four innings, allowed one hit and fanned seven. The lone Marine run was charged to "Jigger."

The fine work of Bob Polidor, who patrolled the left field pastures was also commendable. Besides doing a terrific job in the field, Bob came through with two safeties to lead the hitters along with Al Litwa.

The 'Cats next travel to Duke to take on those baseball minded Blue Devils and will finish the week with games at North Carolina and Wake Forest.

Iron Men Lead In I. M. Bowling

McGowan and Monahan averaging 172 and 173 respectively, led the way for the Red Eyes three point victory over the Indians. Aided by a thirty pin handicap, the Red Eyes took the second game by one pin and the third match by the close margin of three pins. Higgins had a high game of 230, while Smith, of the Indians, rolled games of 181, 187, 212.

The Warriors and Iron Men split four points, thereby enabling the Iron Men to remain in first place by one point. Mack Stuart had games of 172 and 159 and Pete Pillitto had a three game average of 162 for the Iron Men. Kramer and Mengini set the pace for the Warriors. Mengini had games of 188, 186 and 205 while Kramer rolled the high game of the day with a 232 score.

Fedigan Hall went into a first place tie with the Iron Men as they took three points from Alumni. Ray Berninger, of Fedigan, scored games of 179, 202 and 165. Flannelly had a three game average of 172 for Alumni.

In making your selection for the outstanding athlete who will receive the Jack Dempsey-Adam Hat Sports Welfare Trophy be sure to consider the following important requisites. Enthusiasm, Sportsmanship, Team Spirit and Co-operation, Athletic Ability and Accomplishments.

Lord Captures Second Round of Dempsey Contest

Intramural Golf Tournament to Get Underway

With the advent of the Spring sports season, steps have been taken by the college authorities to insure the student body of a complete sports program.

Resuming again, after a wartime lapse of five years, the Intra-mural Golf Tournament will commence either the first or second week following the Easter holidays. Announcements were made last week throughout the school by Bob Powers, chairman of the event, for all link enthusiasts—duffers and experts alike—to sign up for the event, but as yet the response has been disheartening. It was hoped that teams could be formed but unless the response of the student body increases greatly, the tournament will have to be medal play.

Intercollegiate Competition

The main object of the tournament is to locate any talented golfers so that steps can be taken next year to schedule intercollegiate matches with other schools in the East. In the person of "Jumbo" Elliot, a par-breaker in his own right, the school will have one of the most capable coaches in the state.

The tenative site of the tournament is the Main Line Country Club but high hopes are still held for obtaining the use of the Philadelphia Electric Country Club.

Anyone interested in signing up for the tournament should contact Bob Powers in room No. 12 Austin Hall.

Bob Polidor, Villanova football star whose 109-yard touchdown run against Miami was voted the top football thrill of 1946, is an outfield candidate for the Wildcats' baseball team.

Sabol, Wolf, Close Behind State Scoring Leader

DON WIEAND

The final returns of the election to determine the outstanding basketball player at Villanova have resulted in a victory for Villanova's captain and high scorer Joe Lord. Joe jumped into an early lead during the first week of voting and held it 'till the end. Tom Sabol and Leo Wolf spurted during the second week of the election, but neither was able to overtake the lead which Joe had established.

It was not without good reason that Villanova students gave this honor to Joe Lord, for he led his team to distinction through a gruelling season of stiff competition. Not only did he lead his team in scoring, but he also led the district and state. Several weeks ago Joe was chosen to the Pennsylvania All-State team; recently he has been chosen to represent Villanova on the All-East squad in the charity game played in New York; and last Wednesday he was honored by the Basketball Writers Association at a luncheon given at the Click in Philadelphia.

Lord Receives Palumbo Trophy

At this luncheon he was presented with the Frank Palumbo Trophy, which is given annually to the district's high scorer. By racking up 438 points, Joe has earned the right to keep the trophy for one year. In recognition of his leadership he was also presented with a pen and pencil set.

Joe captured the basketball popularity contest at Villanova by obtaining 29% of the votes cast. In second place, with 21% of the votes was Tom Sabol, whose height aided Villanova considerably during the latter part of the season. Tom was slow in getting votes during the first week of the contest but

Barracks Five Take Intramural Basketball Title

The Intramural basketball season came to a glorious close Wednesday night when the Barracks cagers copped their ninth straight, and the title, by defeating Austin Hall 60-40. In doing so the new champs set two new league marks. The 60 points scored on 25 field goals and 10 fouls was the highest team score of the season, eclipsing their own record set last week by 2 points. The sum of the two team's scoring also set a new high.

Led by Roesgen and Buckley, who scored 21 and 20 points respectively, the barracks five had their own way—all the way. The only two of the Austinites who could break through the defense of the title-holders were Phil Jakeway and "Red" Nealon. Phil was high for Austin with 17 points, while "Red" was talling along with 12.

Doms Mendel Tie For Fourth

In the second game of the evening Wednesday night, Doms took the measure of Alumni 36-35. This was enough to give Doms a tie for fourth with Mendel and keep out of the cellar.

Tuesday night, Alumni was on and took a close one from Mendel 37-29. The scoring throughout was pretty evenly divided. Bob Manske was high man with 10 points, followed by 2 men with four goals and 2 others with three.

The second game Tuesday was another rout for those red hot Barrackers. The title-winning quintet took Fedigan to the cleaners by a 53-25 score. The one-sidedness of this contest was mainly due to the sharpshooting of Schaub, Roesgen and Buckley. Schaub was high man with 15 points while Roesgen and Buckley had 12 and 13 points respectively.

Guida, Rossi Travel West, Place 2nd in Chicago Relays

Guida Takes First in Cleveland Meet; Places Second to Harris at Chicago

Two representatives of Villanova's track team travelled west this week to engage the best the nation has to offer on the boards and came off with more honors for Villanova.

On Friday night, at Cleveland, Villanova's George Guida, and synonymously America's I. C. 4 A.-National A. A. U. 600 yard king notched another victory in his long string of triumphs when he captured the 600 yd. run from such notables as Eugene Blackburn of Ohio Wesleyan and Ted Theodore.

Head for Chicago

Following this conquest, George and his running mate Browning Ross headed for Chicago to compete in the Chicago Relays. Running against the finest in the 600 field Guida was able to place second in this match, beating the nation's best, Herb McKenley by five yards, but bowing to Elmore Harris of the Shore A.C. At the break, Harris took the lead, but was soon passed by the flying Jamaican, Herb McKenley, who set the pace up until the last lap. At this point Harris took over. Passing McKenley on the far turn, Elmore was an easy winner. Coming down the back stretch George Guida put on his Sunday sprint and just overtook Herb to place Villanova second.

In the 1000 yd. run, Browning Ross got off to a slow start and had to kick hard to keep in the race. After hitting his stride, Browny kept a steady pace and finally started moving up on the last lap. The large lead that Rehberg of Illinois had compiled proved too much for the Villanova distance man, and Ross was relegated to the second spot.

Game Scheduled With Connecticut

A home game with the University of Connecticut on Saturday, April 12 has been added to the Villanova College baseball schedule, Rev. Edward B. McKee, O.S.A., moderator of athletics, announced today.

The game increases Villanova's total to 25 contests. Twelve of the games will be played at home.

Coach Phil Weinert, meanwhile, is busy preparing his squad for Friday's opening game with University of Vermont at Villanova. Weather conditions have slowed down the squad somewhat but Weinert expects the club to be ready for the early opener.

His big task at the moment is to find a capable second base replacement for Joe Lord, basketball captain who is with the All-East court squad in New York this week. Lord will not join the baseball team until it returns from a five-game southern trip.

Larry Aigeldinger, a freshman from Embreeville, Pa., who played in the Main Line League last season, seems a likely choice for the berth. Norm Kline, a senior from Lancaster, has the edge on the vacant third base post.

Three promising candidates are bidding for the initial sack. Charley Comerford, ex-Germantown High athlete who held the job last season, is receiving stiff competition from Fred Priceton, a lanky freshman who played at Trenton Catholic. John Weglicki, former La Salle High star, is also in the running.

Injured Gridders Back to Practice

Things down at the Field House were busier than a one armed paper hanger with poison ivy this week as Ollie's boys donned their pads and swung into the second week of practice. Last week's activities were confined mostly to loosening up exercises, going down under punts and a little work on the track. This week found the squad engaging in the first contact work of spring practice.

A poll of opinion around the squad during Jerry Neri's pre-practice grass drill would indicate a slight disagreement to a local sportswriter's quotation about the squad being in shape but exertion seems to be no fun unless you can beef about it.

Smith Back in Saddle

On Tuesday, the blocking dummies were trundled out to the field along with the helment cart and the boys went to work. Tom Smith, last year's starting guard, until sidelined by a broken ankle, was out for the first time. He and Sandusky, along with the rest of the squad, gave the canvas bags quite a working over. Practice also included a short line scrimmage in which guards and tackles participated. Bob Furey of last year's 150's was teamed with John Sandusky, which produced no small contrast.

Al Schmidt has been giving the ball quite a ride in punting practice, Andy Gordon and Steve Romanik's arms are finding a greater percentage of their marks. Tom Clavin's "long Johns" have added a lot to his agility and has been observed moving all that beef in the tailback spot.

Scrimmage After Easter

Bad weather in the latter part of the week forced the squad to the gym floor where they engaged in a light workout and a dummy scrimmage to brush up on play assignments. The team moved through the line plays given them with a lot of zip. We're anxious to see them in the first team scrimmages after Easter.

Dempsey Contest

came up fast in the second week to beat out Leo Wolf for second place.

Sabol Second

Leo Wolf did not succumb without a stiff fight, however, and just missed the runner-up position by two percentage points. He was able to muster close to 19% of the votes. "Sky" Raiken and Brooks Ricca were not left out of the picture either, for many students gave their votes to these two boys. Raiken gave Joe Lord his stiffest competition during the early part of the race, but he fell down considerably in the latter part and wound up with 13%. Brooks Ricca was right behind him with 12% of the votes cast by his fellow students. Others receiving votes were: Crossin, Del Purgatorio, McDonnell, and Brehmer.

The student body is thanked and congratulated for the splendid response in the poll. This week we are including in your paper a ballot for the most outstanding member of the track team. Consider each man carefully, with regards for all the necessary qualifications, and let us know who you think is the outstanding track man at Villanova. Let's make this contest a huge success.

SEEN
From the Sidelines

Villanova's 1946-47 basketball team set more college scoring marks than any other team in Wildcat history. The quintet scored 1438 points in 24 games, an average of 59.8 points per game.

Fred Price and John Weglicki, both members of Villanova's basketball squad, are candidates for the first base berth on Coach Phil Weinert's baseball team. They are both freshmen.

Accuracy at the foul line gave Villanova's basketball squad a season's total of 306 foul goals in 525 attempts.

In The Sportlight

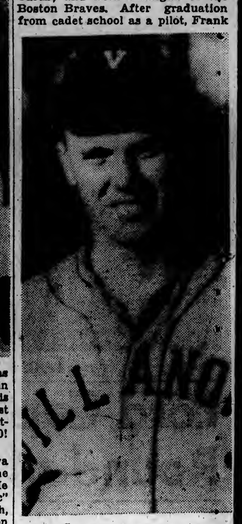
By ANTHONY MINYON

Heading the Sportlight this week is a strong battery combination which has already proven itself invaluable to the Wildcat baseball squad. Both of its members display their skill like true professionals. The players who make up this combine are Bill Smith and Frank O'Neill.

Bill Smith comes to Villanova from nearby Manoa. He attended Haverford High School where he captained the baseball and soccer teams. He also displayed talent on the basketball court. Bill claims his greatest thrill was attained in a no-hitter which he pitched in his junior year at Haverford. And just as sensational was his terrific batting average for this season—.640!

Played Under Jacobs

Smith matriculated at Villanova in 1941, and gained a berth on the varsity in his second year. He played under the guidance of "Doc" Jacobs, former baseball coach, whose advice Bill has banked on during the last few years.



Like many other Villanovans, Bill had to forget college for a few years and join up with Uncle Sam. He proved himself worthy of a position on the Camp Wolter nine, and later on the Waco Air Base team. During his two years of playing in Texas, he gained greater knowledge and experience about the game. While there, he was coached by "Birdie" Tebbets of Detroit Tiger fame. Smith was then transferred to Alaska from which station he was discharged.

Returning to Villanova last April, after three years service, Bill displayed his fine form throughout the entire season. His batting average of .405, the highest on the team last year, speaks for his successful season.

O'Neill Battery Mate

On the receiving end of Bill Smith's fine pitching is catcher Frank O'Neill. Frank hails from Philadelphia and is an alumnus of West Catholic High School. While there, he starred on the basketball team. Although West Catholic had no baseball team, Frank managed to keep in trim by playing ball with a local American Legion club while he was in high school. He entered Villanova in 1941 and proved successful in making the Freshman squad.

O'Neill's college career was interrupted in February, 1943 when he elisted in the Army Air Corps. He arrived in San Antonio, Texas, where he underwent his cadet training. While in training, Frank used his skill with the mitt and easily gained a berth on the Field team. He played and associated with such major leaguers as Enos Slaughter, outstanding player for the Cardinals in last year's World Series; Del Wilbur, also of the Cards; and Dick Mulligan of the Boston Braves. After graduation from cadet school as a pilot, Frank was attached to the Eighth Air Force in England in December, 1944. He completed twenty-five missions, piloting B-24's with the 466th Bombardment Group in his seven months of overseas duty. After returning to the States he served as an instructor for three months and was then discharged.

Frank returned to Villanova to continue his education in October, 1945. He is a student in the C-S school and intends to graduate next year. O'Neill displayed his ability at bat as well as behind the plate last spring to prove a definite asset to the Main Liners. He was a live spark on the Blue and White last year, and was responsible for several of our wins. Frank expects to make his living from baseball after he graduates from Villanova.

Watchin' The Wildcats

Blame it on Leighton and Hoffner

Disturbance of the Week Department: BERNIE MALLON ushered in his 22nd year on Saturday last, with a little gathering at the Cynwyd Legion House. Those in the know were: BILL MOLNAR, JACK HEILMAN and ART BLANCHE. BLANCHE insisted on bringing his transit, contending that he had a little work to do in "Route Surveying" on that lonely Cynwyd road. He was finally prevailed upon to leave it outside and join the throng. BUD DILLON, HUGH JOHNSON and TOM WARD were also there, but they insisted that they came to hustle out old beer kegs. The party was a huge success—MALLON is only getting injections of plasma every four hours now.

Lonely Hearts Club News: AL ZIMBA, ED SULLIVAN, VINCE O'SULLIVAN, JACK CORB, their porters and gun bearers were seen making their way over the wilderness trail to Rosemont, for the ostensible purpose of seeing some one-act plays. It's the first interest that ROGERS has shown in drama since he gave up wild west serials when he was thirteen.

The P&W Traveler (with apologies to the PTC): MARK MANNING'S act consisting of songs and zany sayings has been shifted to the 9:30 car due to schedule changes. The P&W is making plans accordingly to switch their rush hour. BOB MARTIN is also making a later car these days. He insists that there's a special conductor that he likes to give his business to.

Lenten self-denial department: Villanova's leading sweater model FRANK KELLY is abstaining from a lot of his lunch these days for car fare to North Philly. It's rumored that she likes those reindeer sweaters best. When he wears them, he can have a deer on each shoulder.

Economics: GENE MACFARLAND, the fellow who spent so much time on the first floor of Mendel, that the Dean mistook him for a clothes tree, is confining his activities to girls within a half-mile of the campus. GENE'S North Philly ex's are contemplating mass suicide.

Classified Ad Department: (More money rolls in). BILL PRICE has switched to Sun Dynafuel (for his Buick convertible) because he gets more gals per mile in his afternoon ramblings around the Rosemont campus. Top down???? Why sure . . .

Broadway Visits Villanova Friday

The details for the coming production of two of Shakespeare's plays, which will be presented in the Villanova Field House, on April 22, at 8:30 P. M., have been announced.

Marrian Walters, who recently appeared in John Golden's Broadway production of "Made in Heaven," assumes the leading lady role in both plays and is credited with the direction of "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

Frank Leslie, who was seen on Broadway in the Theatre Guild's "A Winter's Tale", and who toured with Charles Coburn in "The Merry Wives of Windsor", will play the leading male role. He has been acclaimed for his portrayal of Petruchio in "The Taming of the Shrew," which he also staged.

Abridged Version

Under the auspices of Norman and Rogers Productions, of New York, the troupe will present a streamlined, twin Shakespearean comedy bill, consisting of "A Midsummer Night's Dream" and "The Taming of the Shrew."

The Players have cut each play to forty-five minutes. Effective use of a public address system, accompanying narration, and musical background hinges the abbreviated sections of the plays together. The group carries complete stylized settings and costumes by Leopold.

College Appeal

Owing to the youth of the top-flight professional cast, the Royal Theatre Players have a particular appeal to college audiences. They believe that Shakespeare was a commercial playwright, just as the most prominent dramatists of today. He wrote his plays to be acted, not read. Students who have attended this production of 'The Dream' and 'The Shrew' have been greatly entertained and have come away with a new-found appreciation of Shakespeare.

Plans for the production are progressing with the joint cooperation of Immaculata and Rosemont colleges.

Spanish Club To Celebrate Cervantes Day

At a meeting of the Spanish Club last Wednesday night, it was decided that a dinner-dance would be held on April 23 in honor of Cervantes Day. The site of the banquet was tentatively set as Benedict Hall in Philadelphia.

Raymond Kelm was appointed Chairman of the committee for the dinner-dance. Other members of the committee are Edward Daley, Joseph Shannon, Edward Sullivan, Richard Dair, and Joseph Jaskula.

Awards For Literary Contest

Rev. L. Lozano, O.S.A., Moderator of the club, announced that the winners of the Cervantes Day literary contest would be awarded prizes at the banquet. A medal for the best essay and a certificate for the best poem written in Spanish on Cervantes will be the awards.

It was also decided that the Spanish Club would donate two Spanish volumes to the library.

Publication Date Uncertain

The date for publication has not been set and probably won't be for several more weeks. The difficulties in gathering a staff and material might postpone the first edition until late in May.

Beginning with the next school year, the fraternity hopes to publish the magazine four times a year.

I. R. C. News

On Monday March 24, Emmanuel Rubin delivered a prepared speech to the International Relations Club on the topic, "Who is right in Palestine." Confining himself to modern historical developments, Mr. Rubin presented the three sides of the question: the Jewish, Arabic, and British, which in brief are:

Jewish View

The validity of Jewish aims and desires was advanced by a quotation from the Balfour Declaration of 1917, which reads in effect that the British government favored the establishment of a Jewish National Home in Palestine. Largely because of this declaration, the League of Nations awarded the mandate over Palestine to Britain. By this document the British were to facilitate Jewish immigration and the development of the country. Later, Jack Stanley read the Balfour Declaration in its entirety to clarify any misunderstanding that could have arisen. The Jews, by the use of modern agricultural methods, have replaced swampland with fertile fields, and the standard of living has been raised ten fold. The war and it continuing Jewish persecution in certain countries of Europe has made it necessary for 1,200,00 survivors of (the recent holocaust) be allowed to enter Palestine. By making arable hitherto unfertile areas, many immigrants could be easily absorbed.

The Arab has two views in relation to this question. The landowner class is opposed to Jewish immigration because it will abolish their power, and will be against the interests of the feudal system. The sharecropper or fellaheen, who has had no voice in his government benefited by the advent of the Jews. They have helped him reduce disease a great degree, and have raised his standard of living considerably. In addition to these things, he has learned industry and agricultural from his Jewish neighbors. Relative to this, Mr. Reagan asked who was doing the fighting in Palestine? Mr. Rubin explained that the Stern and Irgun gangs — the trouble makers were only a small group comparable to the Klu Klux Klan, and were not representative of the Jewish people.

Comment On British Policy

According to the speaker, the British government has been lavish with its promises from the time of the Balfour Declaration, but has continually failed to adhere to them. As an illustration, he pointed out that the British white paper of 1939 was declared illegal by the Mandate Commission of the League of Nations. He further stated that the British fear of Russia has made her utilize Palestine as a great military base. It was further stated that the Brtish government agreed to establish a Anglo-American commission to take care of the admission of 100,000 Jews but in spite of a favorable decision nothing has been done about the matter.

SUPPER CLUB

Villanova students can now obtain free tickets to the Chesterfield Supper Club shows in New York. Joe King, senior engineer and Chesterfield representative on the campus has recieved a limited supply of tickets from the Ligget Myers Corporation for distribution to Villanova men.

The Supper Club features Perry Como and Jo Stafford and the music is supplied by the Satisfiers and Lloyd Schaeffer's orchestra. Although the broadcast lasts only one-half hour, the show proper is three hours long. The club meets five nights a week at seven o'clock.

All men wishing to go to the show in New York are requested to get their applications in early so that Mr. King can send for the reservations. However, it is possible that late reservations can be made.

Electrical Engineering

By E. OXFORD

OUTLOOK—For well trained new entrants and experienced engineers alike, prospects in Electrical Engineering in the near future are exceptionally good. Within a decade, however, keen competition is expected. Engineers may be cutting each others throats to secure positions of worth soon.

The demand today is much larger than before the war for two reasons: It has been the practice of large employers to hire graduate engineers by quota but this was abandoned during the war, leaving a large vacuum in the labor force. The greatly increased use of electricity in industry, transportation, communication, many public works, power developments, adoption of war-time developments to consumer use, the advances in new fields of electronics, radar, sonar, atomic power—all these mean new demands on the electrical engineering force.

Private industry, the ultimate employer of today's E. E. student, is even now absorbing 90% of all manpower and is prepared to continue this same absorption. Electrical Engineering is controlled by private enterprise, and this is subject to all the fluctuations of free competition. The opportunities in the engineering field are great for today and tomorrow but only real ability will realize them, and only real accomplishment will lead to greater ones.

CURRENT OPPORTUNITIES—(This enumerates specialization fields particularly outstanding for current and near future employment. Only those with the best offerings are described; no attempt is made here to cover every Electrical Engineering branch.)

a) UTILITIES

The pent-up demands of construction, expansion, and research have put a sudden premium on Power, Illumination and Transportation Engineers.

ILLUMINATION — Infra-red, ultra-violet rays, similar apparatus for medical use; new illuminating systems for street, factory and home; improved airport equipment; advertising illumination—neon, etc.

TRANSPORTATION — equipment of all electrical types for new strides in railroading and shipping; Airplane flight control systems; city surface and sub-surface electromotive power.

EMPLOYMENT DISTRIBUTION—Dictated movements within industry, the controlling factor.

Distribution Today	%	No.
Utilities	28	14,800
Elec. Mach. Mfg.	20	12,000
Communications	18	10,800
All Others	34	23,000
	100	60,000

N. B. Of all E. E.s only 10% are federally employed and only 2½% are self employed. Industry holds sway with 90% of all E. E.'s.

AGE—The age of this "baby" industry is gradually rising, having risen from the high twenties to the middle thirties in the last ten years.

SPECIALIZATION — Fundamentals are stressed more and more, as prominent engineers oppose specialization in its extreme forms. Many consider broad training more preferable than specialization for college students. Following graduation the E. E. is funneled, according to abilities, into one of the 6 major fields: Power Generation & Transmission, Communications, Electrical Equipment, Illumination, Transportation, and Electronics and Radio.

PREVAILING QUALIFICATIONS

APTITUDE—Persons bent on E. E. should rate well above average in Math. and Science courses in High School.

It is well to bring out for present E. E. students that a large part of those who enter engineering school fail to graduate and that successful engineers are usually found among those with high scholastic grades.

Electrical Engineers must be capable of dealing with precise measurements, using complex mathematics and as a thinking tool, visualizing 3-dimensional motions, understanding construction details, of widely, varied and complex machinery. Only sharp, probing minds are suited for these calls for initiative and ability.

FORMAL TRAINING

Minimum—B. S. in electrical engineering or related field, following four or five years of a full time College course.

For professional license — B. S. and four years experience plus passing an examination. Examining boards will now accept a longer period of experience in lieu of a College degree.

State license—Required by most states of those whose work directly affects health and safety.

ADVANCEMENT—

Most large electrical manufacturing establishments have training courses of from one to two years for college graduates, thereby supplementing text-book knowledge by training in industry. This is the familiarizing period in which the degree-armed engineer is shifted through shop, laboratories, offices, and plants. In accordance with shown ability the new engineer may rise, though slowly.

PREVAILING INCOME

Earnings depend on experience, competence, responsibilities, and the size of the establishments—in that order.

Entrance Salaries

Pre-War—1,200 to 2,000
Way—2,300 to 3,000

Income According to Training

	Av.	High
Inexperienced Grads	206	261
Inexperienced, but Masters	230	290
B. S. with 3 yrs. exp.	275	350
M. S. with 3 yrs. exp.	305	420
B. S. with 5 yrs. exp.	330	450
M. S. with 5 yrs. exp.	356	462

Phila. Hotel Scene of I. A. U. College Dance

Penn Sheraton Scene of Dance Open to All Catholic Colleges

On the night of April 19th, the Inter-American Student Union of Philadelphia will hold its first dance. The Union has secured the services of Tom Darlington and his orchestra for the affair. It will be held in the Mirror Room of the Penn-Sheraton Hotel in Philadelphia.

Rita Quigley, Rosemont junior, is chairman of the dance and Ed Sullivan, Villanova junior, is Publicity Director. The dance will be open to all Catholic college students in the Philadelphia area, and those students of Villanova who wish blind dates for the night can obtain them by contacting Ed Sullivan.

Tickets On Sale This Week

The preliminary plans for the dance were made last Sunday at the Philopatrian Club, headquarters of the Union in Philadelphia. Dorothy Rodgers of Rosemont was named Chairwoman of the ticket committee and has announced that the tickets will go on sale this week at $2.00 apiece.

The Inter-American Union of Catholic College Students is sponsored by the Philopatrian Club of Philadelphia and includes in its membrship students from Immaculatta, Rosemont, La Salle, Saint Joseph's, Chestnut Hill and Villanova Colleges and Temple and Pennsylvania Universities.

"51"...the world's most wanted pen
"51 writes dry—with wet ink!"
THE fame of the Parker "51" has broad dimensions. Every language, every continent knows this fine pen. Pride in its ownership is shared in every walk of life.
Surveys both here and abroad substantiate these facts. American pen dealers, for example, recently named Parker the most-wanted pen—rating it ahead of all other well-known makes combined. (Score: 72.7% for Parker; 27.3% for all others.)
Fortunately, more 51's are now being shipped. So see your dealer soon.
Here is a pen of simple beauty. Every detail reflects unhurried craftsmanship—working to highest precision standards. Its unique point has no moving parts to clog or fail. It starts promptly. Writes smoothly and with pressureless touch.
The precision-fit cap slips on—locks without twisting. Within the tapered shaft, the 51's filler is safely concealed.
This pen alone is designed for satisfactory use with Parker "51" Ink that dries as it writes! (It can also use ordinary ink.)

Seniors Attend National Science Conventions

A.S.M.E. Group Host To Eastern Colleges

Villanova was host to a Regional Student Meeting, Section Three of the ASME, last Thursday, April 17, at the Penn-Sheraton Hotel.

Engineering students from seven states and the District of Columbia heard apapers on technical subjects. These papers comprised many interesting topics from the newest improvements in jet propulsion to the manufacturing of laminated plastics.

Rhodes Opens Morning Session

The morning session of the meeting was opened by Allen Rhodes, Student Chairman from Villanova, who after a short talk introduced the speakers. The speakers represented Bucknell University, Catholic University, Johns Hopkins University, University of Delaware, Villanova College and Drexel Institute. After this the guests adjourned to the dining room for luncheon.

The afternoon session was under the chairmanship of J. Beals, of Villanova, who followed the procedure of the morning session by introducing the speakers. Students from the University of Maryland, Lehigh University, George Washington University, Pennsylvania University, Pennsylvania State College and Lafayette College spoke.

The best paper was presented by a student from Drexel Institute, who very ably illustrated and spoke on the "Theory and Application of Combustion Gas Turbines." Many other interesting papers were read during the two sessions.

Father McGuire Presides in Evening

Rev. F. X. McGuire, O.S.A., president of Villanova, was toastmaster for the evening session. Father McGuire introduced the president of the ASME, Eugene O'Brien, who spoke to the group. Mr. O'Brien had much praise for

Chemists Attend New Jersey Meeting

The American Chemical Society of the United States held its 111th Biennial meeting in Atlantic City, during the week of April 12th to 18th. Dr. E. L. Haenisch, Professor of Chemistry at Villanova, served effectively in several capacities during the convention.

Villanova was represented by the following members of the faculty: Dr. G. N. Quam, Rev. E. L. Jenkins, O.S.A., Mr. F. Blanchard and Mr. P. Mento. Six chemical engineering seniors attended the Wednesday session.

Haenisch Represents Phila.

Dr. Haenisch acted as a representative of the Philadelphia section of the society. He was appointed to the committee on tests and examinations, and served as vice-chairman of the division of chemical education.

The committee on tests and examinations discussed and revised proposals on national cooperative examinations in all branches of chemistry.

During the week, six hundred papers on various aspects of chemistry were presented. Many ideas contributed by members of the Villanova chemistry board were incorporated in papers submitted by the Villanova delegation.

All Branches Represented

Attending the convention were over seven thousand chemists and engineers representing education, research and industry from every state in the nation. The gathering was one of two held annually.

The American Chemical Society branch on the campus has taken over the position of the now defunct American Institute of Chemical Engineers. Consequently the society embraces all men on campus interested in chemistry—scientists and engineers.

Jakeway Chosen For Engineers Merit Award

Villanova Senior Receives Junior Membership in Engineers Club of Philadelphia

Dean Morehouse recently announced that Phillip E. Jakeway has been selected as the Villanova nominee for the merit award of the Engineers Club of Philadelphia. The presentation is made every year to an outstanding senior in the School of Engineering.

PHIL JAKEWAY IN HIS BASKETBALL PLAYING DAYS

The merit award entitles Mr. Jakeway to a Junior membership in the society for one year and the usual ten dollars entrance fee and fifteen dollars annual dues are waived. Necessary qualifications for the nominations are outstanding scholarship and extensive participation in extra-curricular activities.

Straight 'A' Man

It is evident that Mister Jakeway fulfills these requirements. Since he arrived here to study in the V-12 program he has been on the Dean's list, and last semester he maintained a straight 'A' average in the Chemical Engineering Department.

He has been active in sports on the campus, particularly during his V-12 days when he played varsity baseball and basketball. Phil was an outstanding star in the latter sport and was Villanova's high scorer for the '43-'44 season. At present he is a member of the Student Council and the Chemistry Society.

Hurt in Football

Phil played football at Kalamazoo College, Mich., but sustained a knee injury in his final game of the season during his sophomore year. This prevented his playing for the Waldcats. While at Kalamazoo he also won letters in golf and basketball, and was the first athlete in the school's one hundred seven years history to win three varsity letters in his Freshman year.

After finishing his training in the V-12 program, Jakeway went to the Midshipman's School at Columbia University. Upon completing this course he was commissioned an ensign and received orders to serve as an Assistant Engineering Officer aboard the Hoggatt Bay. Phil saw action on this aircraft carrier at Okinawa and Honshu and received a commendation from his Commanding Officer for efficiency.

Upon the cessation of hostilities he was transferred to an LST where he saw China duty until his separation from the Navy.

Construction Starts At Two Campus Spots

Classroom Building Begun Near Field House

Construction has started on the latest of Villanova's expansion program—the new classroom building. The building, as announced by Reverend Francis X. M. Maguire, O.S.A., last month, is being moved from a Navy Post in Maryland.

The construction is being handled by the Prendergast Company of Atlantic City. The Prendergast Company is the organization that erected the dormitory barracks. The erection is being carried on under a government program specifically designed to aid Colleges and other institutions in their post-war expansion.

Giant floor sections have been arriving all week from the south and the work is going ahead of schedule. The jurisdictional strike which is holding up the Pie Shop work has released men for work on the classroom building. There temporary structures for parts and storage have already gone up and the major job is now being undertaken.

The building will be erected in the temporary building area in the west end of the campus. It will faced Ithan avenue and be sixty feet north of the dormitory barracks. The dimensions and specification of the buildings appeared in a former edition and no new changes have been made.

The barracks proper will probably be finished in June and the summer will see the furnishing and equipping of the interior.

The new students which will matriculate in the Fall will need a great many more classrooms than the college facilities can now supply, therefore there is a very real need for this project. The record faculty will also require more space for offices and the building therefore will also be designated to meet this need.

Pie Shop Building Starts; Is Stopped By Union Fight

On March 27, 1947, the site of the new Pie Shop was staked out and construction was expected to proceed according to schedule. After the foundation was started, a controversy ensued as to which union had the right to construct the building.

Six 20' x 48' portable steel prefabricated barracks will be combined to form the new Pie Shop and both the carpenters and sheet-metal workers claim the right to assemble the building. Until this is settled, progress on the Pie Shop will be delayed.

The new building will have a frontage of 96 feet on the campus road and will be situated diagonally across from the Commerce and Finance building.

Kitchen in Rear

The dining room proper will be 96' x 40' with entrances from walks leading in from the road. Attached to the rear of this will be a 48' x 40' section that will house the kitchen, steam tables, the serving counter and washrooms. There will also be an entrance at the rear of the kitchen to facilitate deliveries.

The original construction schedule called for completion by July 1947. This would leave the remainder of the summer to install the kitchen equipment, steam tables, serving counter, plumbing fixtures and tables so the Pie Shop would be in operation for the '47 Fall semester. Every effort possible is being made to settle the difficulty so that the present schedule may be maintained and the new Pie Shop opened as planned.

Shakespearean Plays To Be Performed At Villanova Field House Tonight

Large delegations of girls from Rosemont, Immaculata, and the College of Chestnut Hill have pledged their attendance for the performance of the Shakespearean plays to be held on Tuesday, April 22nd.

Rev. J. I. Boyle, O.S.A., Registrar, who is in charge of arrangements, has urged a large attendance of Villanova men as a fitting welcome to the young ladies from the nearby Catholic colleges. Invitations also have been extended to La-Salle and St. Joseph's Colleges and to Philadelphia and suburban boys' and girls' high schools. Personal invitations have been sent to members of the faculty and their wives.

Stars Announced

As has been announced in the previous issue of the Villanovan, the Royal Theatre Players of New York will cast Marrian Walters and Frank Leslie in the leading roles.

The opening curtain is scheduled for 8:30 P. M. at the Villanova Field House. The program will include a performance of "A Midsummer Night's Dream," and "The Taming of the Shrew." Both of the classical comedies are to be presented in streamlined form, an innovation heretofore exclusive with the Royal Theatre group.

Costumes by Leopold

The play will weave its pattern about the action of the actors in a charming background of music, narration, dialogue, and a setting of scenery and costumes designed by Leopold.

No effort has been spared to assure the appeal of the production to a collegiate audience. Tickets will be on sale at the door of the Field House on the evening of the performance. General admission tickets are priced at one dollar.

Overbrook Country Club Scene of Alumni Club Dance

The Alumni Club of Philadelphia will sponsor a spring dance on May 23 at the Overbrook Country Club. Tickets are $3.00.

Mr. William E. Connor, class of '45, is chairman of the dance. While at college Mr. Connor was quite active in extra-curricular activities, especially social functions.

Letters have already been mailed to all alumni members in the Philadelphia area to allow sufficient time for returns. All members are requested to use the reply envelopes enclosed in the letter to make returns. Returns may also be made to the alumni office at the college.

Those members who are unable to attend the dance are asked to support the function by becoming boosters. Donations are from $1.00 up.

NOTICE

The Villanovan suggestion contest closes its second section next week. If you have any ideas as to how the newspaper can be improved please send them into our office or put them on the office bulletin board at any time.

This is your newspaper and we will include any ideas that you offer of worth. Please sign your names to your letters or ---ill not be given notice.

Field House Chosen For Guild Card Party-Dance

The Rev. John J. Coffey, O.S.A., chairman of the Augustinian Guild, has announced that the Fourteenth Annual Card Party and Dance will be held in the Villanova Field House on Tuesday, April 29.

Entertainment for the evening will consist of card-playing, bingo and dancing and will reach a climax when the winners of the raffle will be drawn. The raffle prizes are a hundred dollar suit (man or woman's), tailor-made by Nelson Trent and a Mahogany Hope Chest completely stocked with linen and woolen goods. In addition, prizes will be awarded to each card foursome and each bingo winner.

The "Villanovans" will provide the music for the dancing which will follow the cardplaying and bingo. The price of admission has been set at one dollar.

Proceeds received from the affair will be used to aid in the support of the Augustinian seminaries of the Augustinian College, Washington, D. C.; the Novitiate at New Hamburg, New York; St. Mary's Hall, Villanova and the House of Postulants located at Staten Island.

NOTICE

DPM, Villanova's Arts Fraternity, announced at its meeting last week that the deadline for receiving copy for the literary publication is set for Tuesday, May 6. Copy for the issue can be turned in to Rev. John McShea, O.S.A., or Don Collins at the Villanovan office. It is to be noted that students in any school of the College may contribute to the publication.

Villanovan Staff Has Annual Fete

Dining, Dancing, Awards And Humor Highlight Festivities

Last Friday night the Villanovan staff held its annual Dinner Dance in the Franklin Room of the Benjamin Franklin Hotel. The affair was attended by one hundred persons.

After the dinner was served, Rev. John A. Klekotka, O.S.A., presented keys to those members of the staff who had served successfully for six terms. The men who received keys were Joe Brogan, Sam Canning, John Brinjac, Lou Meccariello, Matt Kearney, Bob Flaharty, Dan Redmond, Dave Marano, Jasper Chen See, Jim Lyons, Roland Higgs, Bill Monagle, Pete McManus, Jim McNamara, Frank Dituri, James Conaty and Bill Wescott.

Collins Speaks

A short speech was then given by Don Collins, the Editor-in-Chief, thanking the members of the staff for their co-operation during the past year and expressing the desire that they continue their past performance in order to keep the Villanovan among the better college weeklies.

Mr. Joe King Chesterfield representative on the campus, distributed Chesterfields to the group.

The Awakening

Any organization in sympathy with Soviet Communism in American colleges must be abolished. The "American Youth For Democracy" is such an organization. Therefore it must be abolished. It is an organization whose policy is linked with Communism. It has been proven by The House Committee on Un-American Activities and by J. Edgar Hoover, Chief of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, that disloyal and subversive activities were engaged in by this organization.

The Villanovan has denounced this organization many times in an effort to awaken other college students to the dangers of this subtle influx of poisonous policy. The Communists, as with all their Totalitarian brothers, aim for the recruiting of youth. WHY? Because youth cannot believe that men will smile in their face while trying to stick a knife in their back. It can be done and is being done. Watch out for it. Get it before it gets you.

The Old Ball Game

"Play Bawll!", and last week, the great American pastime was once more under way.

A famous Greek philosopher once said that its not so important what leisure time one has, what one does with it counts. That is sound thinking and applies to all ages. The culture, the character, the soul of a people is laid bare in their recreation. The plays of the Greeks, the Gladiators of the Romans, the fencing of the Germans, support this thesis very well. What kind of souls do we have?

Every year, millions upon millions in our nation turn to baseball for recreation and amusement. Whether they put the dollars on the barrel-head, sit glued to a radio, or turn to the sports page when the whistle blows, the Joe Americans all over our country believe in Baseball with the same tenacity and fidelity as they do in the bill of rights. Maybe it is something they didn't put in the constitution, but it wasn't even invented then.

Baseball is an odd game. Some say that one has to play it once seriously to enjoy it. To describe it to the stranger, is like telling a blind man about light. Broken down into its essentials it does what it should do, fall apart. One is reminded of Schiller's, "Take a ray from the rainbow and it is nothing." There are some who say that you can't even get the feel of it in the box-seats, you must get out in the bleachers where the sun is warm and you can yell at the outfielders. It's clean, green, grass growing out of rich, brown, dirt and its more. It's running, and throwing, and hitting, and catching and it's more. It's bats, and balls, and umpires, and hot dogs, and it's more.

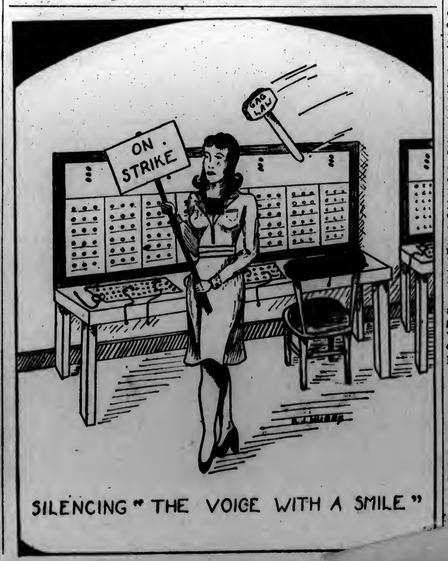
The reflection given of our national life is not a hard pill to take. It is a game for strong men, but there is little bodily contact. It is played by Harvard graduates and by orphans. There are many rules but a human must be there to interpret them. It demands speed when speed is called for; it has periods of rest. It needs power and it needs brains. It's good to watch and better to play. The batter gets his chance and the pitcher gets his and proficiency calls the turn. It's bawling out the umpires and it's what Chandler says goes. It's "movin' ups" and $80,000 a year. Its' late rallies and the September drive. It's fair, and it's clean, and ya gotta be good.

This is the little tablet that we didn't know future historians were going to read. Strength, power, and progress with as little harm done to others as possible. Equality of opportunity and there's plenty of room at the top. A codified law but honest humans in black to bring it to life. Effort and work, and enough time off for a few laughs. Cooperation of labor and planning, mind and body. The active life, keep moving. Freedom from restraints but preservation of society. Big business and the grocer's. Charity, reach down and give the downtrodden a boost. It's Catholic, it's Democratic, it's American.

They Call It the Jersey Bounce

Many times in the past this newspaper has criticized labor for its lack of forethought, responsibility, and fairness. We do not intend to change the statements in those editorials. To bait labor has never been our purpose. Our purpose is to see justice done. Pursuant to this we are writing this editorial.

The New Jersey state legislature has passed a bill rendering unlawful any strike by the state's public utility workers. The bill was passed after the Telephone Traffic Workers of New Jersey had gone out on strike. This union represents some twelve thousand workers. The bill has been called unconstitutional by union lawyers and the union at this writing has not heeded it. The state has undertaken enforcement of the law on the T.T.W. We do not question the justifiability of the strike, the issues are too far from our grasp to judge.



What we do question, however, is the right to prosecute the union now under this law and the general policy of strike suppression by law.

A strike is primarily a test of strength between capital and labor. Its successful outcome for either side usually rests on the ability of that side to resist the economic pressures brought to bear. Such a strike was brought about in New Jersrey. After the strike began, a law was passed which was to punish the laborers on strike after its passage. Theoretically, this law operated only after it was passed, but whether this is completely true or not is a moot question.

When a union strikes, the first few days are the hardest period through which it must pass. Public disapproval, no unemployment compensation for the members, inability to get part-time jobs, make this a period of travail for unions. The loss which this law would bring to the unions is a serious one not only in the present or the future, but in the past. This is an infraction of one of the most clearly expressed prohibitions in our constitution and one of our most dearly treasured and basic liberties, the freedom from "ex post facto" laws. The law of New Jersey brought punitive action on acts committed before the law authorizing such punitive measures was passed. This is unconstitutional; it is a violation of our basic liberty and fraught with danger to us all.

The primary duty of a government is the safety and welfare of its people. The competent and unbroken service of public utilities is necessary to the peopl's welfare. Strikes in public utilities break this continuity. Therefore, it is the duty of the state to see that strikes are averted. They can do his in a number of ways, most being consistent with our national policy of free enterprise. The system of enforced arbitration employed by New Jersey seems, although crude, of public utilities is necessary to the people's welfare. Strikes to be in the right direction. However, if the workers and employers are to be thus restricted in the exercise of their strike tactics, it is only fair that they become more of a public charge.

The state should take the financial burden of arbitration on its shoulders, still regarding, however, the responsibility of capital and labor. Most of all, the state should give fair warning to all public utility workers and industrialists that the system devised by the state will be rigorously enforced. To stop Communism we must clean our own house.

LETTERS

Dear Student Body:

We have received a few letters this past week concerning the publication of an article entitled "Pride and Prejudice." Some men have been confused by the repetition of the title.

About one month ago this paper received a letter from Mister Robert Horowitz, '47, suggesting that we run a column devoted to interracial issues. The editorial staff saw promise in the idea and commissioned the Inter-Racial Club of Villanova to turn in an editorial every week on some topic of race relations.

Mr. Horowitz and Mister George Guida have collaborated in producing "Pride and Prejudice" pursuant to the above.

The Editor.

Pride and Predjudice

In the past several articles on interracial justice we have attempted to point out the cause behind each problem which the negro in America has faced. In each case the solution seemed to be education —education of both the white and the negro. Today we wish to point out the type of handicap which confronts the attempts to educate both races.

Last week, "The Evening Bulletin" carried an article which announced the opening of a fund campaign to raise $1,300,000 for the purpose of building 33 colleges for the negro population. This article appeared in the same paper which displayed a front page banner headline proclaiming the end of the Red Cross drive, and a full column on the front page was devoted to the plea to go "over the top;" however, the article regarding the college fund campaign for negroes was contained in a few lines on page eight.

Is the consideration of a tenth of the population of the people of these United States unimportant to the American newspapers? Is it possible that our newspapers are deliberately turning aside the opportunity to utilize their educational influences to acquaint their readers with the problems of the negro?

Why is the training of negroes in higher education so important to all of the citizens of this country? Each negro student who enters college is a potential parent to the generation of tomorrow. These students will disseminate the cultural as well as the scholastic training to their offspring and to the other negroes with whom they are in daily contact. Furthermore, the negro who has been trained in the specialized professions will find it possible to earn a living which will enable him to live in an improved environment. The prestige which the negro doctor, lawyer, or engineer of today enjoys will be multiplied many times, and we will rapidly notice the decline of the so-called negro problem.

The education of the negro, however, is only a small part of the educational problem. The greatest problem lies in the training of the whites.

Every day we read articles on the care of your child's body. They are called health articles. Is the health of the minds of the American children unimportant? Isn't it time that parents stopped teaching their children to think of the black man as something vile and evil? The impressions which are made on the minds of children are indelible and can never be entirely removed. It is the duty of every parent to teach brotherhood and charity to his children before they can be influenced by hate and prejudice. Too often, however, the reverse occurs. The children learn hate and prejudice before they learn the meaning of charity and brotherhood.

We trust that our readers will acquaint themselves with this urgent American problem. All of us will someday be called upon to choose between brotherhood and prejudice. Which will you choose?

CIVIL ENGINEERING

By E. OXFORD

(Based upon reports of National Roster of Scientific and Specialized Personnel; Occupational Outlook Division, U. S. Dept. of Labor.)

Outlook

The unusually great post-war demands for Civil Engineers insure very good opportunities throughout the next five years for those already trained and those in training. The expected vast programs of expansion in the building field are being realized — particularly bridge, highway, flood-control and industrial plant projects. All add noticeably to the huge backlogs of war-delayed civilian construction.

Boom or no, however, authorities point out that ultimate movement is toward the prewar tendency of C. E. oversupply and its resulting competitive pressures. The current exceptionally bright outlook will gradually dim with the growth of these movements: satisfaction of war-pent construction demands; mass influx of today's C. E. college ranks,-so that those starting training now may find some difficulties by the time they are professionals. But, whether or not conditions will go so far as to revert to their 1940 status with 1 of 10 C. E.'s unemployed, and college men forced to do technician work, is not certain, but is considered improbable. A general keen competition will be the order following the next five boom years. During these years, however, if the government continues absorbing its lion's-half of available C. E.'s, and private industry claims 2 out of 5, in every state and in all fields there will be good opportunities for the able and ambitious.

Trends

There are over 90,000 Civil Engineers in the United States, or about 1/3 of all engineers. A clear idea of the distribution of members of these professions can be had from these statistics on C. E.'s registered with the National Roster of Scientific and Specialized Personnel:

Registered—48,158.
Median Age—45.2.
Age Groups:
30-39—11,187.
40-49—17,228.
Education:
Doctors—206.
Masters—2,747.
Bachelors—31,025.
Others—14,180.

Civil Engineering's age median is second only to Architecture in the specialized groups. This emphasizes the long term experience policies of the profession—seasoned men are its backbone.

The high percentage of non-degree men points to the "seniority" trend. Those who "grow up with the business," but never were formally educated, offer experience, while the college grads offer their school training. As to which is to be given preference is a matter of employer's choice. In construc-

Blame it on Hoffner and Leighton.

It pays to advertise. BOB MANSKE, heading the Real Villanovan's advertising, invested in a cake of Lux and returned from Easter vacation a taken man. Ah Spring! Ah Soap!

JERRY POWELL fresh from the triumphs in the world of the theatre has returned to Villanova and is now devoting his energies to the Powell Model Agency, specializing in supplying masculine forms (padded or otherwise) to Immaculata College for a coming fashion show. "Take a job with Powell and never be without a pal."

End of the Month Club: (A flat broke organization). DICE MAHONEY, ANDY GORDON, JOE HENNESY AND BUCKY (I like a crowd) COLEMAN turned their attentions to Drama on Friday last, free Drama that is, when they attended the Dramatic Society's initial presentation WD. COLLINS was so excited that we hear he forgot to use his sterling silver cigarette holder and dropped his book on Grecian Philosophy.

The Civil Engineers, in from a field trip, met at DICK DEVINE'S on last Friday and did a little survey work on the refreshments and some concerted study on some heavenly bodies. THE brain trust included JIM CARROLL, JERRY BAUER and FRANK KELLEY. From those who know, we hear that BAUER lost his Naval Reserve Pin to a comely chick in the Devine garden.

On Saturday, the stygian blackness of the Field House contained the organization of Mr. Sommer and some 500 couples gracefully moving to the strains of his music, the artful decorations looked down with pleasure upon the tranquility that manifested itself below. The rout that followed has been contradictingly described by different sources. As close as we can come to the truth is, "A body followed closely by A. J. MULLEN cleared the floor with three steps of his Ridley Park Rhumba and proceeded to give a demonstration of the dance never before seen in these hallowed walls. South America couldn't even give it away now . . . JIM HANEY was there closely followed by the future Mrs. Haney. She insists that it's the bald spot on Father Jim's head that really gets her. The shine from those Marine shoes is almost matching his pate in its brilliance.

JOE TOPPER arrived with Flossie. JOE'S eyes had a peculiar slant to them. It seems that he had japped out on his buddies, who were having a stag party that night. The Drexel Hill wolves kept some beer cold for him but when he didn't show by 12, they put together and polished it off so it could never be said that some suds went to waste over a woman.

BOB MERRIWEATHER went into competition with the Mill and had a little party after the Dance but it was so exclusive that we couldn't get a line on who was there. And speaking of post-dance parties, The Villanova branch of the Logan Boy's Club also had a little brawl down at the Pennsylvania Barge Club. REDS O'DONNELL led the proceedings down there, and reports that it was a quiet affair in that no one was heard to fall into the drink.

The West Philadelphia Back-to-Nature Club celebrated their yearly gathering on Last Friday with a hay ride. President BOB FUREY wasn't doing too well with his date and finally compromised by going forward and walking with the horse.

NROTC Notes

The Navy Office has received word from Washington that any Engineering, Pre-Medical, or Pre-Dental student may receive a commission in the Regular Navy. At graduation a representative from the Bureau of Officer Procurement in Philadelphia will visit the campus on May 6th to enroll candidates.

Those accepted will not undergo naval training until they are commissioned and will be considered as civilians until they have received their degree.

Any student wishing to take advantage of this opportunity may obtain additional information at the Navy Office, Room 104, Mendel Hall.

Captain Thomas, the Commanding Officer of the Villanova unit, visited the University of Rochester last Friday. The purpose of his visit was to inspect the equipment at the Naval Science Armory located there. The Captain is then expected to report to the Bureau of Naval Personnel, in Washington, to discuss plans relative to the progress of the Naval Science Armory under construction at Villanova.

Lt. Col. Roose, along with other Marine Corps officers from various schools, is trying out a new method of marine training at Quantico, Virginia. If the new system is found effective it will be inaugurated in all NROTC schools including Villanova.

All NACP students and all presently commissioned Naval aviators attending Villanova must attend classes this summer, the Navy Office announced.

In the interests of Law 'n Order, Villanova now has a Please force equipped with scout and patrol car. Do you know of a surer sign of spring than a Please sign? All kiddin aside, we've been keeping on the straight and narrow concrete path. The psychologically courteous impact of the signs really do have an effect. Let's all give the tender young grass a chance. Rather unusual to see a sensible thought passed along in this column, eh what?

In one of our Philosophy classes the other day the professor was giving out with the practical impossibilities of things; such as black light for instance. Well, Neal Fahy has just shaken our philosophical tenets to their very foundations. He has invented black light. This new invention enables one to see such unheard of phenomena as a snake completely swallowing itself. To those of us who are constantly seeing snakes (and elephants, too) this discovery is a real boon. With one of these Fahy Black Light Flashlights, you can go out and get a real snootful. So then the snakes start to appear. Do you worry? No siree! Whip out the black light and push puil, click, click; they disappear. Fahy tells me that his invention will also be a handy gadget to have along on movie dates. Need we explain more? See Tom (not to be confused with Ed) Sullivan for samples.

Father Tuohy passes on this little story that happened some years back in a parish in New York. It seems that every Sunday when the basket was passed, the collector noticed that someone had given five dollars. But when the time came for handing in the basket, the five dollars had mysteriously disappeared. This went on for a few Sundays until the Pastor had very logically figured out what was going on. He took a small pair of scissors with him the following Sunday and just as the ingenious soul placed in the fin, he snipped the rubber band that was attached to it, and very calmly proceeded on, five dolalrs the richer.

Any fool can learn from his own experiences; it takes a wise man to learn from the experience of others.

Incidentally, we saved the school a few million dollars the other day. We noticed the digging on the new buildings was going a little too deep. Lucky we saw that the builder had the blueprints upside down.

"How Are Things At Villanova" now ranks number one on the athletes' "Fit Parade." Don't ask us for the lyrics, but we hear they're pretty good.

Hand us another hypo, nurse, the stuff is wearing off!

By F. ANTHONY HOMANN

"State of the Union," 1946 Pulitzer Prize winner, has returned for a short time to Philadelphia, where it originally made its debut before reaching Broadway. Lucky are those people who can get tickets to this brilliant comedy. Howard Lindsay and Russel Crouse, well known playwrights, have given "State of the Union" the same treatment which brought "Life With Father," fame and fortune. Here, instead of satirizing family life of the gay nineties, the authors have turned their guns on the field of politics, and in particular on Republican politics. Once again, they have turned out a masterpiece of the American theatre.

Conrad Nagel, Irene Hervey, and Henry O'Neill take the leads in "State of the Union." Miss Hervey takes the part of the witty (though certainly wise) wife of the idealistic presidential candidate whom she rescues from a group of ravenous politicians who want to exploit him. Grant Matthews, played by Conrad Nagel, is a progressive industrialist who permits himself to be persuaded to get into politics. He is considered the ideal 1948 Republican candidate for the presidency by certain politicians who have been working without conspicuous success for sixteen long years. The politicians take over after Grant wins the nomination on the promise that he will make no commitments. This soon leads to a struggle between Grant's ideals and his ambitions, a plot which, if it is not new, certainly has been well handled by the authors.

The authors are at their best when portraying character. The characters are likeable, but not too good to be true. One can like Grant and Mary, his wife, without reservations, for the authors have done a masterful job on these roles.

"State of the Union" is at the Forrest Theatre until May 3d. Tickets are priced from $1.30 to $3.90. Tickets are scarce, so the sooner they are purchased, the better. The play is one well worth seeing.

The Philadelphia Orchestra will hold its usual concerts on April 25, 26 and 28. Alexander Hilsberg, the concertmaster, will conduct in the place of Eugene Ormandy in a program featuring Beethoven's Fifth Symphony. Also included on the program are a Von Weber Overture, the "Emperor" Waltz by Johann Strauss, and the Rhapsodie Espagnole by Maurice Ravel.

The Fifth Symphony is probably the mightiest work of Beethoven, the master composer. This work is intensely concentrated and powerful, giving the impression that it had been hewn from granite. There is not an unnecessary note in the whole score. On the four terrifying notes opening the symphony, Beethoven builds a monumental structure which unfolds with intensely dramatic grandeur.

Maurice Ravel was born in the Basque country, that mountainous strip between France and Spain, whose nhabitants display the characteristics of neither race. Hence it is not surprising that his music bears the influence of Spain, though he is generally classed as a French composer. His "Spanish Rhapsody" illustrates this point very clearly, being alluringly drenched in Spanish atmosphere and rhythms. It is a suite in four movements, played without pause between the sections. This first part is "Prelude a la Nuit," a sensuous and rapturous nocturne, followed by "Malaguena" a slow Spanish dance in three-quarter time. The next part "Habanera" is of Cuban origin, and exhibits the same characteristic rhythms employed by Bizet in his "Carmen." The suite ends with "Feria," the musical fair flamboyantly brilliant in its coloring.

Tickets for the concert can be purchased at Haly's, 1505 Walnut St., or at the Academy of Music, and are priced from $1.30 to $3.90.

The Spring social season opened with the Inter-Frat Ball, and naturally the B. T. O.'s of the campus were there. It's a funny thing in class—Joe Doe will call you a @$&:$—and everything else; while at a dance he will come over to you, shake your hand, introduce you to his girl and be as buddy buddy as possible—even offer you a ride.

Of course every dance has its aftermath. For instance: if you enter room No. 4 Simpson all you hear is, "She's wonderful, marvelous and all that mushy stuff." Poor Jack Dwyer, if he doesn't have a date with her in the near future his roommates will not take the blame for what happens.

Then there's the character who walks in his room at 4 A. M. and all he says is, 'I think I'm in love again."

All joking aside, I want to extend my congratulations to all who helped in making the dance a success. They did a good job.

Enough of the chatter and on with the jokes.

How to give a girl a surprise party:

Place arms around her. Draw her close. Start to kiss her. When she says, "Stop, how dare you!" Release her unkissed. Note surprise on her face.

Ray Eberle and Band To Preside at Prom

Former Glenn Miller Vocalist To Play For Juniors May 9

One of the brightest stars in the Glenn Miller alumni roster, Ray Eberle, will lead his own new band at the Junior Prom, on Friday evening, May 9th. Arrangements are in charge of Nick Marziani and Bernard Borschke, co-chairmen of the Junior Class Prom.

Eberle, regarded as one of the leading pre-war singers, is not new to band life. He put in six years as Glenn Miller's feature vocalist and toured the nation with that band.

RAY EBERLE

Motion Picture Star

Aside from his personal appearances, Ray was starred with Miller in 20th Century Fox pictures. He had leading roles in two top productions, "Sun Valley Serenade" and "Orchestra Wives." Those two pictures, plus all his theatre and club engagements made Eberle a much-sought-after entertainer.

After he left the Glenn Miller organization to start out on his own, Ray was signed by Universal Pictures, and starred in many of their top musicals. One of his best was "Mr. Big." His brilliant, though short career catapulted him into the national limelight. As was the case in so many instances, however, Uncle Sam stepped in with a new khaki suit, and Ray found himself in the Army.

Agents Prompted Band

As soon as he was discharged, Eberle was besieged with film offers.The urge to stay in Hollywood was strong, but Ray's many fans were clamoring to see their favorite again. Engagements in the east and mid-west proved that he had lost none of his polish or popularity.

After his successes, Ray's agents began to think of having a band formed around him. Ray seemed to fit the requirements, and he agreed to attempt the new venture.

Eberle actualiy was offered his first orchestra engagement before the orchestra was organized. Such an event is rare in the musical field. The offer served as ample indication of Ray's popularity. He is recorded on Apollo records.

Villanovan Sure Bet For Polish Club Office

The Polish Inter-Collegiate Club held its monthly meeting on Sunday evening, April 13th, at the International Institute, in Philadelphia. Nominations for club officers for the next college year climaxed the meeting. Ed Szkaradnik and Emeric Michalik, both of Villanova, were the only nominees for the office of vice-president, thereby assuring the seat for a Villanovan.

Three more undergraduates from Villanova, Joseph Tyszkiewicz, Frank Staregp, and Anthony Gawronowski were accepted as members. A committee was appointed to plan a swimming party for the month of June at a nearby Jersey beach. Election of officers is scheduled for the May meeting.

Grand Ball Planned

Final arrangements were discussed for the club's grand ball, titled "Polish Night," which is to be held in the Crystal Ballroom of the Benjamin Franklin Hotel, in Philadelphia, on May 1st.

Reports were heard from the committee which arranged a successful dinner meeting in conjunction with the International Institute at St. John Cantius' parish in Bridesburg, on March 30th. The former Pilish Consul, Hon Sylwin Strakacz, spoge on Polish traditions and their effect on present problems.

The club's gazette was distributed to the members. Refreshments were served after the meeting, and dancing to the music of the Walter Ossowski orchestra followed. The increasing interest of members from Villanova was marked by the attendance of eight men. Besides the men mentioned above, Eugene Przbylowski, Dan Ciechanowski and George Szymanski attended.

Spring Football Work Progresses

Tempo Taken Up After Easter Vacation

Villanova's Spring Football candidates returned from Easter Vacation with thoughts of gridiron exertion far from their mind. Coach Olivar recalled their thoughts to the matters at hand with stiff workouts and scrimmage for the remainder of the week. A five man bucker found its way to the field and it also added its protest to the exercise as five men hit in unison and propelled at along the grass. A great part of the practice was devoted to individual instruction by the head coach in different elements of line play and by Art Raimo and Jerry Neri on the ins and outs of backfield formations.

The rain that cancelled two of the baseball team's encounters also did its part to impede the workings of the Wildcat football machine for the early part of this week. Rested by Thursday, the squad donned the pads and went to work.

With the exception of Ralph Pasquariello and Dan Brown, both sidelined with injuries, the squad is in good shape after three weeks of work.

Gordon Impressive

Particularly impressive in team workouts was Andy Gordon. A year's experience working at the pivot in the "T" has shown itself in his deceptive ball handling and accurate arm. The defensive work of "Chuck" Veling and Steve Romanik has been up to par. Across the middle of the line, Lou Ferry Ed Lanigan, Milt Komarnicki, Tom Smith and John Sandusky present a formidable array in both offensive and defensive work. Backs Bob Connors and Dave Rowan, up with the Varsity for the first time, are showing a good brand of open field running and crisp blocking.

Scrimmages with other colleges are anticipated in the near future and we've a hunch that if the opposition finds the club in the shape that they are in now, they'll run into a hard hitting machine that will scatter chips in all directions along the Main Line.

Lesson in Logic

From the Tower comes this one:

A class is a group

A group is a section

A section of pie is a cut.

Therefore classes are meant to be cut.

Army, Marines to Meet Villanova This Week

Play Mules at West Point On Wednesday, Return Match With Quanticog Marines Saturday

Although the current baseball season is well underway, Villanova fans have had little opportunity to see their team in action on the home field. Bad weather has limited the number of games played so far. But this week, the Wildcats take to the road on Wednesday to meet a powerful Army nine at West Point and then return home for a return game with the U.S. Marines from Quantico on Saturday.

Villanova will meet Army with the avowed intention of avenging last season's 7-2 setback. Last year, the game was highlighted by the superb base-running on the part of Glenn Davis. This year, Mr. "Outside" will be on hand to lead his team in hopes of repeating last year's performance. Army had a record of 7 wins and 5 losses last year, but with the return of such veterans as Davis, Norm Robinson, the left fielder from Portland, Ore., and 220 lbs. of George Poole, the boy who scored the last touchdown against Villanova last fall, has greatly strengthened Army's chance for a great season.

Villanova, however, will be at full strength for the game. With plenty of rest, because of bad weather, the Wildcats feel confident that Army's luck will not repeat. The entire pitching staff is ready to start, but the nod will probably go to "Jigger" Donohue or Stan Chojnacki. The rest of the starting team will be the same that has begun previous. Frank O'Neill will start behind the plate; the infield will be composed of Comerford at first, Lord at second, Warner at shortstop, and Norm Kline at third, and in the outfield will be Bob Pollidor, Al Litwa and Dan Casey.

Saturday's game will bring the Quantico Marines to Villanova hoping to wipe out an early season defeat at the hands of the Wildcats. In the opening game of the season, Villanova took the measure of the Marines by a 5 to 1 score, behind spectacular pitching by Billy Smith and "Jigger" Donohue.

Guida Wins As Track Nominee

Villanova's Ace Runner Adds Another Victory

George Guida, Villanova's best claimant to national track honors has joined Bill Sullivan and Joe Lord, football and basketball representatives, respectively, in the finals of the Adams Hats Sports Welfare Contest for the Jack Dempsey trophy. George piled up nearly half of the votes to outdistance his teammates as easily as he has been leading opponents across the tape throughout his track career.

It was strictly "no contest" as the popular South Philadelphian topped Brownnig Ross, George "Buck" Coleman and Ed Fitzgerald, other scintillating cinderpath performers who trailed in the order mentioned.

Guida Modest

To enumerate George's track achievements is a privilege which is necessarily curtailed by the limited space of an eight page paper. Another limiting factor is George's sincere modesty which eliminates the possibility of ever getting an interview with him. If fortunate enough to secure this, however, you may expect to hear of the medal he won for perfect Sunday School attendance, the unnecessary amount of publicity he gets or the fact that anything can be secured through prayer.

First Villanova National Champion

Holder of the year's best time over the "600" distance, Guida brought Villanova its first national championship in history with his win over Elmore Harris in the National "600." He added to this the IC4-A crown for the same distance, the Buermeyer "500," the Boston K of C "600" and the Cleveland K of C "600." The same night that he won the Buermeyer "500" he was judged the best ex-serviceman performer in the meet (NYAC) and received the American Legion trophy for his feat.

All these honors he attained in one year. George holds the Junior National 200 meter record of 20.9 seconds which he set prior to his entry into the service and is also holder of the world's record for the 250 yard dash.

All Around Athlete

These accomplishments become all the more remarkable when viewed in the light of his versatility. George turned gridder this past year and it is rumored that he's a demon on the dance floor. The Post Office is still looking for a man to fill the hole that he left there after the Christmas holidays. (Or maybe they were referring to the empty slot he left.)

With three of the finalists picked there remains only the baseball representative to be chosen before the winner may be selecid from th "big four." The winner will be awarded the Jack Dempsey trophy and the right to represent Villanova in the national contest.

'Cats Win 2, Lose 2, Over Easter Holidays

Princeton and Connecticut Overwhelmed By Wildcat Nine

By HUGH W. JOHNSON

With one big win over the Marines from Quantico, under their belt, the Villanova Wildcats went deep into the "deep south" only to lose two straight ball games. The scheduled games with Norfolk NTS and Wake Forrest were rained out.

Crossing the Mason-Dixon again, Phil Weinert's nine journeyed over to the flatlands of New Jersey where they pounded the hapless Tigers of Princeton to the tune of 9-2. The scheduled Lafayette game was also rained out but Saturday a week ago, this year's squad showed that it still had its winning form by squeezing past the University of Connecticut, 3-2.

First Game

The first game at Durham, N. C., with Duke was a real heartbreaker. Things were on a seesaw basis with the score tied up at 4-all going into the eighth inning. With a terrific barrage of hits, the Blue Devils, coached by Jack Coombs, who may be remembered as the erstwhile Athletic pitcher with one of Connie Mack's greatest teams, began to show their colors. With some real long ball hitting, coupled with wacky ground rules, Texas League singles, and a batter hit by a pitched ball, Duke went on to break the deadlock with 7 quick runs.

The home front ledger showed some fine pitching on the part of Bill Smith and Stan Chojnacki along with excellent hitting on the part of Norm Kline, Fred Price, who lobbed out a long ball for a triple, Al Litwa, who has a knack of hitting long low drive, and that up and coming catcher O'Malley, whose pinch hit single accounted for a run.

The final score was Villanova, 6; Duke, 11.

North Carolina

Fresh from the loss to Duke, the squad moved over to Chapel Hill, home of many an ex-Navy Avcad, to take on the Tar Heels of North Carolina. Bill Smith, the starting pitcher, was rolling along smoothly, having given up 5 well scattered hits and only one run. But then something happened to the team. The loyal Villanova fans had hardly seated themselves after the seventh inning stretch, when Smith lost his touch and issued four successive walks. This touched off a sort of chain reaction which saw Bill Doherty boot one that let in 2 runs. Norm Kline's error let in another, followed by a third painful error charged to Aldinger that allowed 2 more runs to come across.

Villanova scored in the early innings on some real heads-up ball. After an error by North Carolina's shortstop which let in the first run, Fred Price stepped up and banged out a 371 foot triple to drive in 2 runs. A beautifully executed double steal by Polidor and Casey netted the fourth run while Charlie O'Malley's single permitted Aldinger to score the final tally. The score here again found Villanova on the short end, 7-6.

Continue Trip

Continuing the road trip, the Wildcats managed to get back in the winning ways by handing the Princeton nine a 9-2 defeat. Chojnacki, who went the first five innings, giving up 4 hits and 2 runs, was the winning pitcher. Bob Green, who gave up 3 hits and no runs, worked the final 4 innings.

Joe Lord was the big man behind the bat for the day. With Yielding oinly 4 hits, Stan Chojnacki)pronounced—Chi, as in chip, nack, as in knack, ee), the ace hurler of Coach Weinert's staff, pitched his first shutout as Villanova downed Dartmouth, 5-0. Teamwork in general and the hitting of Frank O'Niel in particular gave the all valuable assistance that a pitcher needs to win a ball game.

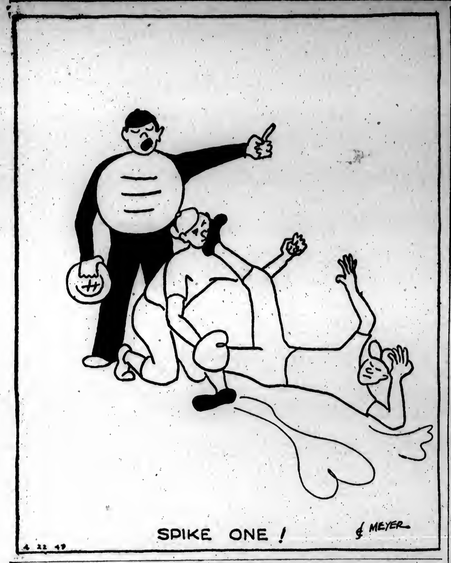
Villanova's first score came in the second inning. Norm Kline, the first man up banged out a single. He was followed by John Blong who drew a walk. Then Frank O'Niel, on the 2-2 count, blasted a long hard ball over second that was good for a triple to drive in Kline and Blong.

In the 5th inning, after Dan Casey walked and stole second, Blong came through with a timely hit that brought Casey all the way home for the third Villanova run.

Lord Scores



To start the sixth inning off, Joe Lord managed to beat out a well placed bunt down the third base line. George Warner then sacrificed to put Lord on second, but, Callagy, Dartmouth's third baseman, was slow in handling the ball and Lord scampered all the way to third. On the throw back to the hot-corner, Callagy again bobbled the ball and Lord got up, dusted hits pants off and walked home with the 4th run. Price scored the last run on his hit, a steal of second base, a sacrifice by Kline and a single by O'Niel who batted in his third run of the day.

Litwa Injured

The game, however, was marred by the injury of Al Litwa, who suffered a twisted cartlidge, Coming up in the third inning, Al slashed a hard grounder to Durham, the Indian's shortstop, who booted the ball. On the next pitch, Litwa started for second, and in his anxiety to make the steal, Litwa started his slide prematurely and injured his knee.

This was the third straight Wildcat victory but Wednesday's game with Army will be the real test.

In The Sportlight

By TONY MINYON

Again the Villanovan takes high privilege to introduce its readers to two outstanding baseball celebrities. They are Stan Chojnacki and Al Litwa. Since both come from the same neighborhood in the nearby city of Camden, it is easy to speak of them as being almost brothers. Al and Stan have been playing on the same teams together ever since grammar school. Their companionship followed them to high school where they led their team to win the state championship in baseball.

Chojnacki's fine pitching has showed likely prospect for big time professional ball playing. His splendid high school record is just an introduction to the kind of ball he has displayed while here at Villanova. Stan's last year's record speaks well of his ability when he was capable of pitching six wins and only one loss. He came close to pitching three no-hitters when he was able to hold the opponents down to only three hits. Villanova's win over the strong Yale team, who pride themselves as the best college team in the East last year, was owed this ace moundsman. The close of last year's season proved that Chojnacki had talent with the bat as well as on the mound when closing the season with an average of .343. He has done well so far this year and is credited with the recent win over Princeton.

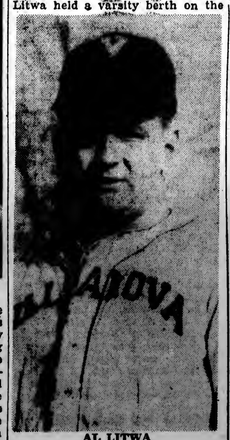
Stan gives as his greatest thill the time when he struck out Pellegrini, of the Red Sox, and twice striking out Jack Wallaesa, now of Chicago, in a game between the Camden All Stars and Fort Dix.



Baseball is not the only sport that absorbs all of Stan's Athletic ability. He was All City selection as guard on the Camden Basketball dream team, which he played for four years.

Stan Chojnacki's success for last year and so far for this, offers comforting feeling that he will lead the Wildcats to fame and gloryin another eventful season. We are not being to prodigal in saying that Stan is any coachee's dream boy when it comes to baseball.

Al Litwa

Good hitting as well as excellent pitching is needed on any diamond, and needless to say Villanova claims access to a great hitter in Al Litwa who proved worthy of this title when he hit a home run in one of our recent games. Al is claimed to have one of the best throwing arms in college ranks ever since his matriculation at Fordham University back in 1943.

Most interesting of Al's success story is the splended recored he left at Camden High School. He started on one of the strongest football teams ever to be produced in the state of New Jersey. This team featured such personalities as All American George Savitsky of Penn., and Joe Martin, who captained Cornell last season. Litwa held a varsity barth on the basketball team for two years and gained the title as one of the best and most active athletes ever to graduate from Camden High. Batting in his Senior year, Al finish the baseball season with the highest average on the squad.

Banking on such a good start in the athletic world Litwa has risen to become an invaluable asset on the Wildcat nine. His powerful throws from deep center field to home plate has saved the day in preventing many would-be runs.

Presently majoring in education, Al has high hopes of playing professional baseball after his graduation.

standard, but many feel it should be lengthened, since many take more than four years to graduate, and especially since today's college engineering courses are so specialized as to omit the "general cultural" education — which so many C.E.'s have found more important in the long run.

Professional

In forty-six states applicants for professional license must pass a written and oral examination of Boards of Examiners.

Civil Engineers responsible for work affecting public health and for safety must be licensed by State Board.

Employer Practices

An Engineers' Joint Council Survey lists these as the points on which prospective C.E. employes are judged: 1) Personality; 2) Scholastic record—individual promise; 3) Experience; 4) Cooperative ability; 5) Recommendation of others; 6) Promise for executive development; 7) Standing of college from which graduated; 8) Salary requested.

Income

Few men ever make fortunes in Civil Engineering. Top C.E.'s admit theirs is an underpaid profession. For several years following graduation, the C.E.'s income is modest, rising as does work assigned: rodman, chainman, instrument man, draftsman, etc., until good-paying professional status is reached.

Villanova Guest At Toledo NFCCS Convention

Diesel and Stanley Represent College in Revivification of Organization

By JACK CASBY

Herman Diesel and Jack Stanley represented Villanova College at the Fourth National Convention of the National Federation of Catholic College Students. The convention was held from Friday to Sunday, April 18-20 inclusive, at Mary Manse College, in Toledo, Ohio.

The purpose of the convention is to inject vigor into the organization which was dormant throughout the war years. To this end, a new constitution designed to overcome the shortcomings of the preceding constitution was adopted. Of equal importance was the discussion concerning the relationship of the N.F.C.C.S. with the National Students Organization.

Welcomed by Bishop

The delegates from the various Catholic colleges convened at 1:00 P. M., Friday, for the preliminary session. Late in the day, they were welcomed by the Vice-Mayor, and the Bishop of Toledo.

On Saturday, after a Pontifical Mass and a sermon delivered by the Most Reverend Richard J. Cushing, Archbishop of Boston, and Honorary Chairman of the Convention, the panel discussions of the National Commissions were held. Among the topics discussed were Inter-racial, International, Student Council, and Inter-American activities of the N.F.C.C.S. with a view to improving the functioning of the commissions held by the various colleges.

Inter-Racial Committee Here

The organization has delegated to certain of the member colleges topics of interest to a Catholic student group. The subjects have been divided into National and Regional Commissions. Villanova College has the regional commission for Inter-racial affairs, and the Inter-racial Club has been organized on this campus to further this aim.

Other Catholic colleges in this area have been assigned other topics. Immaculata College has been given the commission on Inter-American affairs. It is the duty of each college holding a commission to promote interest ni its particular field of endeavor.

Sunday was devoted to the plenary session, and all the major issues and panel decisions were presented and voted upon. At this session the national officers for the coming year were also selected.

For the entertainment of the delegates, the convention was punctuated with social activities, which lightened the strenuous agenda.

Ballots Mailed For Alumni Elections

Official ballots for the election of officers of the Alumni Association were mailed Saturday April 19, to all active members. Ballots were sent to all who have contributed to the alumni maintenance fund during the current fiscal year. The constitution of the society requires that the ballots be in the hands of the voters at least thirty days before the election. The nine men nominated will seek election to the offices of President, First Vice-President, and Second Vice-President. Those men currently holding these positions are running for re-election.

The candidates for office are: President; Paetrus F. Banmiller, '35, (incumbent); John J. McDevitt Jr., '28; Joseph C. Tomasello, '29.

First Vice-President: James F. Elliot, '35; John F. Francella, '25; Martin L. Gill, Jr., '32, (incumbent).

Second Vice-President: Joseph E. Fechan, '28; Francis T. Laughran, '27; J. Bradely McManus, '40 (incumbent).

"One Telephone Call, Please"

YOU KNOW, OF COURSE, that you don't order a telephone call as you'd order a candy bar or a cigar. Your telephone call is custom-built, exclusively for you—and it's our job to fill your order promptly, accurately, courteously, and economically—whether you call across the street, the town, the state, the continent, or the world.

IT TAKES A LOT OF PEOPLE and a lot of equipment and a lot of buildings and a lot of know-how and a lot of money to do all this, for the custom-built call you order is only one of over 9 MILLION calls that must be custom-built every day for the people of Pennsylvania alone!

Truman Policy Discussed At IRC Meeting

Rubin Opposes Stanley In Supporting 'Autocratic' Greek Regime

President Truman's attempt to prevent the expansion of Communhism was heatedly discussed Monday evening, April 14. Mark Doyle, President of the International Relations Club, read the proposed provisions of The Truman Doctrine and then found himself busily engaged in the discussion which ensued.

Emmanuel Rubin and a few other members objected to this doctrine for the following reasons: (1) The Greek government is not considered as a representative government of the people. (2) It was implied that our help to Greece and Turkey would be invading a Russian sphere of influence. (3) The prestige if not the stability of the United Nations would be greatly weakened by this plan.

Majority Support Doctrine

The majority of the members supported the Truman Doctrine and a few of their arguments were:

(1) The necessity of containing world Communism.

(2) It is vital to American interests to prevent any encroachments on their sovereignty.

Emmanuel Rubin and Jack Stanley engaged in one of the many exchanges of the evening in which Rubin questioned the fact that we were giving aid to an autocratic government. Stanley made the statement that it was the duty of government to protect its vital interests. Another objection voiced doubt that leftist elements were allowed to vote in the plebiscite which determined the character of the Greek government. A quick reply said that the opposition actually polled over 20 percent of the recorded vote in this election.

Inter Frat Ball Social Success

Decorations And Band Surprise Large Crowd

The Inter-Frat Ball, one of the most pleasant and successful dances of Villanova's post-war social season, was held in the College Field House on Saturday evening, April 12.

Music for the affair was provided by George Sommer and his orchestra. His group, a Philadelphia outfit, was very smooth. They played some invigorating novelties as well as the more popular tunes of the day and many favorable comments on their music were expressed by the student body and their dates.

Decorations Praised

Another distinctive attraction of the evening was the work of the decoration committee. Here, too, favorable comments were to be heard with the arrangement of the stage drawing particular admiration.

The burden of preparation for the dance was shared by the three campus fraternities: PKP, Engineering; DPE, Commerce and Finance; and DPM, Arts. Chairman of the Ball was William Feeney, junior engineer. Much of the credit for the affair's success goes to him and he in turn expressed satisfaction and gratitude with the work of the various assisting groups.

The profit from the affair will be divided among the three Fraternities to support the expanded programs which they plan in the coming semesters.

Fr. Hickey Named Augustinian Head

Very Rev. Joseph A. Hickey, O.S.A., was elected Prior General of the Augustinian Order at a General Chapter held in Vatican City, last week. Announcement of the election was made by Rev. Edward J. Quinn, O.S.A., Rector of the Mission and Vice-Provincial of the Province of St. Thomas of Villanova.

Until his election, Fr. Hickey was Assistant General of the Order and resided at Villanova College. As Prior General, he will be the Superior of all the Augustinians throughout the world and will reside in Rome with the General Curia. The term of office is for six years after which he can be reelected. He is the first American to become Prior General of the Order. Rev. Charles Pasquini, O.S.A., an Italian, is the retiring general.

Former Villanova President

Fr. Hickey was for many years closely associated with Villanova College. In January of 1925 he was appointed President of the college. In September of the same year, however, he went to the General Chapter in Rome as American Definitor, or representative, and there he was elected as Assistant General representing the English-speaking provinces. He has been Assistant General since that time.

A native of Chicago, Fr. Hickey was born on May 30, 1883. He was received into the Augustinian Order at Villanova as a Novice in 1902. He left Villanova in 1904 for Rome to continue his studies there. Two years later he was ordained to the priesthood at the Apollinare in Rome. In 1908 he received the degree, J.C.D., Doctor of Canon Law, from the Apollinare. Returning to the United States his first appointment was in Chicago. In 1910 he came to Villanova as rector of St. Rita's Hall. When the community of St. Mary's Hall was formed as a scholasticate, Fr. Hickey became Vicar-Prior where he remained until he was called to the presidency of the college in 1925. While at St. Mary's Hall the degree Doctor of Divinity was conferred upon him.

Taught Canon Law

As Prior of St. Mary's Hall, Fr. Hickey was Professor of Moral Philosophy. In recent years he has taught courses in Procedural Practice, in which he is an expert, in the School of Canon Law, Catholic University. He has likewise written for canon law publications.

Before he left Villanova for Rome, a testimonial dinner was held for Father Hickey in the Monastery, at which Most Rev. Amleto Cicognani, Apostolic Delegate, Bishop Lamb of Philadelphia, Bishop Eustace of Camden, Bishop Ochoa, Missionary Bishop in China, and numerous other clergy were present.

Vol. 22—No. 18 N. A. S. X-660 VILLANOVA, PA. TUESDAY, APRIL 29, 1947

Four Events to Highlight Junior Week Program

Junior Fetes Mother on Monday

Villanova's Juniors will have their own Mothers' Day celebration on the first Monday in May when they bring their mothers to the campus. Also invited to the campus for the day are the sisters, aunts and other close relatives of the Juniors.

This special day, which will be a holiday for those Juniors who escort their mothers, or any relation or guardian who may have necessarily taken her place, will mark the beginning of Junior Week activities—a standing college tradition in pre-war days.

Old Tradition Revived

The 1947 Junior Week will be the first since 1941. The agenda for the week will be more marked with the revival and resurrection of old customs rather than by innovations.

Monday's activities will begin with the celebration of Mass in the College Chapel at 11 A. M. The Rev. Michael J. O'Donnell, O.S.A., Junior Class Moderator, will be celebrant. A short sermon will be delivered by one of the priests of the college faculty.

As each mother enters the Chapel, she will be given a corsage of gardenias as a gift from the Junior Class. The corsage will also serve to distinguish the mothers from the other guests of the Juniors.

Following Mass, a tree planting ceremony will take place in the triangle between the grotto and the Monastery. The tree will be of the blossoming type in order to enhance the beauty of the campus. At the scene of the planting an appropriate marker, properly engraved, will be placed to commemorate the event.

Classes Suspended

All classes between 12 M. and 1 P. M. will be dismissed so that the resident students will be out of the cafeteria before the Mother's Day luncheon at 1:15 P. M.

In the Field House at 3 P. M. Father O'Donnel will introduce the Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., College President, who will address the mothers.

Junior Wears Blazer On Wednesday

The Blazer Ball, mid-Junior Week's feature, will be held in the field house Wednesday night, May 7th. The dance will be informal and the Villanovans will supply the music. The dance will be open to all members of the student body and to the Alumni.

The tickets will be $2 and can be obtained from Andy Gordon, Dance Chairman, Ed. Crotty, Joe Ringlestein, Ernie Williams, Jack McGowan, and at the door. Gordon would not disclose the decoration theme of the affair.

Junior President

PETE PALITTO

Villanovans Reappear

The Villanovans will be making their second appearance on the campus. They made their debut at the Library Dance in November. At last week's Junior meeting it was decided that the dance would be informal so that it would be easier for the rest of the school to attend. The Juniors will be dressed in their blazers which are to arrive May 1.

The blazers are now being made up for the Juniors at the factory but it will be necessary to make final adjustments when they arrive.

Junior Swains Swarm for Social Swirl

By MATT KEARNEY, Jr.

The biggest week of the Villanova school year will begin on May 5th when ceremonies commemorating Mother's Day will launch Villanova's first post-war Junior Week. The mothers of the Junior Class will be guests of Villanova on that day. Two days later, on Wednesday, the traditional Blazer Ball will be in full swing in the Field House. The Villanovans will supply the music for this sparkling affair. Exactly 48 hours later, one of the biggest and finest Junior Proms ever to be held on the campus will take place. Ray Eberle, nationally known orchestra leader, and his band will provide a balanced and enjoyable program of dance music from 9 till 1.

After forty winks, the Juniors will attend their Dinner Dance at the Ben Franklin Hotel on Saturday night. The evening's dance music will be supplied by the Haverfordians.

On Mother's Day

A Mass in the college chapel will open the Mother's Day program. The mothers of the members of the Junior Class will be the guests. They will be presented with corsages and given a luncheon in the school dining hall.

Between the Mass and the luncheon, the traditional planting of the ivy will take place. After the luncheon, the Villanova College Symphonic Band and Glee Club will present a concert under the direction of Rev. Ralph Handnan, O.S.A. A delightful program of light classical selections has been arranged for that afternoon.

This concert will close the first day of the event-filled Junior Week, the first Junior Week since the recent emergency.

Informal Blazer Ball

On Wednesday, all students are invited to join with the Juniors in dancing to the music of the Villanovans at the Blazer Ball. There, for the first time, the Blazers will be worn. Corsages will not be worn. Tickets will soon be on sale. The price is $2.

Highlight of the Week!

Ray Eberle and his noted band will supply the music at the Junior Prom. The committees have spared no pains in making certain that the large crowd anticipated will have the finest time of their lives! This formal dance is "the" dance of the year. Tickets are on sale for $5.50. A novel decoration theme is being designed at the present time.

The highlight of the evening will be the crowning of the Queen of the Junior Prom and her attendants. The Juniors are submitting photos of their young ladies and the final judging will take place a day or two before the Prom.

And Still More!

A tasty dinner and more dancing will be awaiting the Juniors when they arrive at the Ben Franklin Hotel Saturday night for their Dinner Dance. The plans for this final affair of Junior Week are complete.

Junior Dons Tux And Tails on Friday

A large spring garden will be virtually transplanted to provide a setting for the annual Junior Prom on Friday evening, May 9. The event is being held to feature Junior Week festivities.

Junior Proms, in the past, have revolved around some particular spring motif. Last year, a glittering fountain centerpiece engaged the attention of the dancers.

Nationally known Ray Eberle, and his orchestra, will be in the spotlight. Eberle is the latest in a long line of brilliant names that have appeared on the stage of the Field House. Many of the orchestras have reached international prominence since playing here.

Former Miller Vocalist

Before he went into the Army, Ray Eberle was the featured vocalist with the Glenn Miller orchestra, and starred in several motion pictures. Since his return to civilian life, he has devoted himself to personal appearances at leading theatres throughout the East and Middle West, and only recently was prevailed upon to organize his own orchestra.

Nick Marziani and Bernard Borschke, Co-Chairmen of the Junior Prom committee, are busy handling the many details of the affair. Decorations are occupying much of the committee's time, and the garden motif has already been approved.

Tickets are now on sale, at $5.50, and can be purchased at the Information Booth, in Mendel Hall, and from members of the Junior Class.

Social Season's Climax

The Junior Prom is the formal climax to Junior Week and to the social calendar of the college year. It will be the last formal dress affair before the vacation. The committee invites the support of the entire student body, resident and day-hop.

Dancing will begin at 9 P. M., and will continue until 1 A. M. Complete details are expected to be available in the next few days, and will be made known to the student body in the Villanovan.

Rev. Michael O'Donnell, O.S.A., is Moderator of the Junior Class.

Junior Dines And Dances On Saturday

As the climax to the Junior Week program, Chairman Thomas W. Braun announced the details of the forthcoming formal dinner-dance to be held in the Grand Ballroom of the Benjamin Franklin Hotel, Philadelphia. The affair will be held on Saturday evening, May 10th, at 8 P. M.

Chairman Jr. Week

ED KELLAR

A seven-course dinner will be served, and tables will be arranged in cabaret style to allow for dancing between courses. Five couples will be seated at each table. Table reservations are to be made directly to the chairman.

The affair, the first to be held since the war, is expected to excell all previous events because of the large Junior class membership. Music will be furnished by the Haverfordians, and floral decorations will be handled by the Hotel Flower Shop.

Beta Gamma Takes Third At Princeton Debate Test

Representatives of the Beta Gamma Debating Club of Villanova finished third in the Second Annual Debating Tournament of the Benjamin Franklin Debate Conference. The tournament was held on the campus of Princeton University, April 18th and 19th, under the sponsorship of the Philadelphia Inquirer.

Ten colleges and universities of the area participated in the two day tournament which was won by Princeton. Temple University was second and participated in the finals against Princeton. Villanova finished third and there was a three way tie between Rutgers, Bryn Mawr, and Swarthmore for fourth place. Rider, Ursinus, and the University of Pennsylvania and St. Joseph's College followed in order.

The national debating topic, "Resolved: That Labor should be given a direct share in the management of industry," was the point of issue throughout the tournament. Villanova had two teams in the contest, under the direction of Father John Krupa, O.S.A. Carl

Student Council Angered At Laxity of Members

In a series of swift actions last Wednesday night, the Student Council summarily dismissed four of its colleagues and severely criticized the state of apathy that exists within its ranks.

The four men, were automatically dropped in compliance with a clause in the constitution. The section reads that if a member should absent himself three times, he is to be discharged and replaced in the same manner in which he gained his post.

In addition, there were five other members of the Student Council absent. These members were retained because they had not overcut their allotted absences.

Meeting Impossible

Don Collins, the vice-president of the Council, called the meeting to order at 7:20 P. M. after a fruitless twenty minutes wait for a quorum. Within five minutes the roll call was taken, the dismissals

Our Sheepskin Factory . . .

Time and again, this paper has been accused of not being a true voice of the student body. We are told that the Villanovan does not paint a true picture of Villanova College life. We are accused of being nothing more than a mere recorder of events rather than a real energetic newspaper, covering all events on the campus.

This kind of criticism is not to be passed off lightly. The students who publish the Villanovan receive no monetary compensation. The only return for their work, excluding the experience gained, is nothing more than the honor of holding their positions; and there is little honor indeed if such is the general estimate of our efforts.

Are our critics correct? Does the paper give a rosy impression of Villanova when, if the truth were told, the effect might be the opposite?

The Editorial Staff does admit that there are reasons for this type of criticism. But we had believed that the best way for this college to get back to the pre-war atmosphere and a general feeling of good will, was to try to ignore the overcrowding and many other situations which are our inevitable, and not singular, post war headaches.

This policy is not paying off. Such caustic criticism is evidence enough. We now must plainly ask—What Is Wrong With Villanova?

This campus has no more spirit than a factory. The meetings of the various classes are a farce. Those who have the floor must fight even to be heard. The Student Council must dismiss four persistently absent members to have a quorum. Some students don't know the names of their next door neighbors. If you ask someone the words of the Alma Mater, you get a laugh for your answer.

This is hardly the atmosphere for securing a well rounded education. To develop ourselves, to perfect ourselves, we need do more than merely attend classes and routinely hand in assignments. We must interest ourselves in extra-curricular activities where the theory and principles of the classroom become the reality of practice. A conducive atmosphere is not just a nice addition to college life but is, rather, one of the chief functions of campus life.

If you want your school to remain an educational factory, don't participate in anything. Stand off to one side and criticize and be a mere cog in the sheepskin assembly line!

O. P. A. Must Return . .

Last week President Truman made a public appeal to the producers of the nation to lower prices. An appeal from the highest office in the land should bring about prompt and wide effects. It is still problematical whether this will happen, but indications are that the industrialists of the land to whom the appeal was broadcast cannot be trusted to serve the public by any means but direct supervision.

The office of Price Administration was set up for the nation during the war, its purpose was to keep the economy within some reasonable bounds under the strain of the crisis. This was a very legitimate step, since the state has the duty to protect society whenever it is faced with serious difficulties. The O.P.A. continued in force after the war to maintain its protection during the period of reconversion. Soon there was a great demand from all the people, consumer and producer alike, to do away with it and to let the competitive system again set economic standards for the nation.

The administration succumbed to this pressure and the O.P.A. was abolished. Slowly prices rose. This effect was expected until the supply could once more equal the demand. Yet, now after many months, goods are still scarce and prices are still rising. Industry has had ample opportunity to get back into shape and to bring production up to wartime volume for civilian goods. Yet prices are reaching higher than they ever did in our history.

If industry cannot hold up its end in our economy for this time of price crisis, then government must again take over the control that crises make necessary. Democracy is based upon the value of the individual and his ability to serve himself and society with responsibility. If industry cannot be trusted, if it is not responsible, then the fruits of democracy cannot be extended to it.

Prices today amount to little less than exploitation. Their height has forced the strike waves that are threatening to continue the spiral of prices. Industry must prove itself to the nation. It must show that it can shoulder responsibility and that it will bear temporary hardship to reap the greater gain of free enterprise. The importance of these times must be recognized if we are not to fall into a world-shaking depression.

Co-operation is our keystone, co-operation of industry with society is imperative in a free enterprise system. Industry is not co-operating with society today.

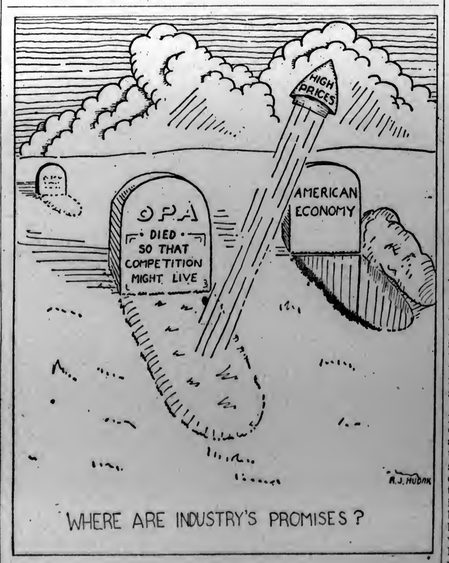
Blake on Black and White . . .

A few weeks ago, Catholic Colleges throughout the country held an Inter-Racial week whose purpose was to create a better understanding of one of our national problems, that of the American Negro.

William Blake, one of English Literature's truly original figures, summed up the issue quite aptly in the eighteenth century. We reprint his powerful poem and will let you draw your own conclusions. The poem is as fresh today as it was then and as it will, in all Catholic eyes, ever be.

My mother bore me in the southern wild,
And I am black, but O my soul is white!
White as an angel is the English child,
But I am black, as if bereaved of light.

My mother taught us underneath a tree,
And, sitting down before the heat of day,
She took me on her lap and kissed me,
And pointing to the east, began to say:



"Look on the rising sun; there God does live,
And give His light, and gives His heat away;
And flowers and trees and beasts and men receive Comfort in morning, joy in the noonday.

"And we are put on earth a little space,
That we may learn to hear the beams of love;
And these black bodies and this sunburnt face
Is but a cloud, and like a shady grove.

"For when our souls have learned the heat to bear,
The clouds will vanish, we shall hear His voice,
Saying: 'Come out from the grove, my love and care,
And round my golden tent like lambs rejoice.' "

Thus did my mother say, and kissed me;
And thus I say to the little English boy,
When I from black, and he from white cloud free,
And round the tent of God like lambs we joy,

I'll shade him from the heat, till he can bear
To lean in joy upon our Father's knee;
And then I'll stand and stroke his silver hair,
And be like him, and he will then love me.

WHERE ARE INDUSTRY'S PROMISES?

Pride and Prejudice

Different Skin

"I am the person who was born to live in a skin with a different color than yours
I could not choose my parents,
nor you yours.

Thus, the color pigments embedded by the unchangeable hands of nature in your skin are perchance white, while mine are black, or brown, or yellow.

But underneath I am just like you.

My muscles ripple in the same waves of power, and thrill to the same throb of joyous action.

My mind has the same functions as yours.

I reach out, just as you do, in aspirations of the soul.

I love and hate, hope and despair, rejoice and suffer, along with you.

When my children lose their fair chances of life, and become aware of the bitter road of prejudice they must tread, then
I know what my color has cost.

I offer you my hand in rebuilding an unjust world, that you and I can make better than we have found it.

I am a person in a different skin."

This anonymous classic expres-es the true sentiments of our negro brethren in his rightful quest for human liberties. Liberties he is deprived of because his skin is of another color. Just think, the bigotry and intolerance he "enjoys" justifies itself on such an insignificant claim as color difference.

Perhaps if we, cognizant of our heavenly command — "Love our neighbors as ourselves," would try to understand his problems, if we would only be tolerant enough to make his problems and difficulties relative, perhaps then we would appreciate and fully understand the grave injustices, unfairness and discrimination our negro brothers must fear. And why? Did you ever stop to consider why he must pay the price he does for being born into this so-called free world?
Reflect, if you will, on this question: Can you account for your biased opinion, if any? Can you justify the way the negro is treated? If you are to be truthful, you cannot. Why we scarcely give him a chance.

"His skin is different from mine, therefore I am superior."

Too many of us draw such conclusions. Of this, Joseph R. Cushing significantly wrote:

"As days stretch out to mould
the years,
As these dark hairs begin to gray,
As more of life and folks I meet
The less I feel a man may say
I'm better than my fellow man.
None can deny some lives will gleam
As bawdry jewels, and others cast
Foreboding shadows, while a third
May radiate a bliss that lasts
The centuries through. Yet none of these Can show substantial proof that he,
By virtue of his way of life
May claim superiority."

"You Can Help Now"

We who have plenty to eat, a good place to live, and decent clothing to wear may find it dim-cult to understand that today, in the city of Philadelphia, there are people who have little better than rags to wear. It is this group which seeks our help at this time.

The negro parishes of the Philadelphia area are beginning a drive for clothing this Monday, April 28. They have asked that the students of Villanova contribute whatever they can in the line of wearable clothing for use by some needy people. Will you do your share?

Each of the halls will be supplied with boxes to receive your donation of clothing. They will be appropriately marked to identify them. The rest will be up to the student body. Day-hops are not excluded; in fact, they are urged to bring things which their families can no longer use. You may be sure that our help will be deeply appreciated. Let us prove that we are not blinded by "Pride and Prejudice." Let us give all we can with open hearts, NOW!!!

The Top Hatter

The Big Five

By F. ANTHONY HOMANN

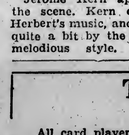
If we were to analyze the history of the American musical comedy, we would find, like the history of America itself, a heterogeneous mixture representing every type of style and thought in musical lines. American musical comedy has gone through a good deal of evolution, until at last the United States seems to have developed a national tradition.

The United States has been fortunate in having composers like Jerome Kern, Irving Berlin, George Gershwin, Sigmund Romberg, and Victor Herbert, to mention a few. Through the genius of these men, we have inherited a cultural tradition which is thoroughly and uniquely American.

The evolution of the American operetta began around the turn of the century with the appearance of Victor Herbert's delightful shows on Broadway. His music, though it was patterned on European styles, was nevertheless distinctly American, and it has appealed to Americans of all generations. Unfortunately for Herbert, the librettos for his comedies rarely equalled the music, and though the music survives, the shows themselves are only infrequently revived.

Jerome Kern appears next on the scene. Kern openly admired Herbert's music, and was influenced quite a bit by the latter's smooth melodious style. Under Kern's masterful hand, American musical comedy grew in prestige, while becoming a part of the people. His shows reflected the growth and strength of the nation in the story of the people. In "Show Boat" we see a nation teeming with activity, and we see the colorful story of a young and powerful country woven in the story of the mighty Mississipi. Long after America has followed so many other nations into oblivion, strange people will agree the "Show Boat" is superb theatre, and use it to evaluate our culture.

Along with Jerome Kern, there was George Gershwin. Like Kern, he too had something to add to American musicals. The colorful jazz of the Twenties and Thirties is reflected in Gershwin's music, and the nervous, exciting moments of that post war era is seen in Gershwin's librettos. Gershwin's music was catchy, and most of all it was refreshingly American. He wrote music about Americans for Americans. In "Strike Up the Band" he departed from the traditional "boy meets girl" story to satirize the political situation, a move which was warmly ecclaimed by the critics and audiences alike. Likewise, he set a precedent in the American opera field when he produced "Porgy and Bess," a folk opera of the South. By using backgrounds and settings heretofore not considered suitable for grand opera, Gershwin gave us a new cultural tradition.



Richard Rogers and Oscar Hammerstein have likewise done much to develop the musical comedy. In

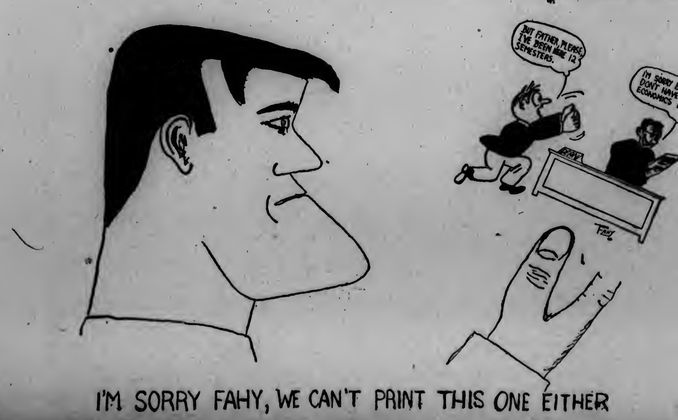
The Bull Pen

By JOHN L. KUCHA

All card players, from the sunny halls of C & F to the dynamo bound shores of Mendel basement (not excluding refugee card players from the Pie Shop) are invited to attend the card party being held tonight at the Field House. It's for a worthwhile cause so buzz the girl friend and come on out.

We visited the Whistlers Club at Rosemont last week. The membership of this club is composed of those who have not made the honor roll. The nicest part of this club is the fact that it is composed of girls. The nicest part of the girls is that they're well composed.

We understand that the Debating Team is going to ask for a training table. It's just a case of making them eat their words!



Here we go with the second chapter of that mystery thriller, starring the Student Council, entitled, "Who Stole the Quorum?" or "Democracy Sleeps Again!" The scene takes place in an empty room, the window of which is open. Canning comes in and closes the window. Two members object that it is unconstitutional and they are proven right. On the left side of the room sits McKinley chiseling Phillip Morris ciggies from Ruane. (This last line has no bearing whatsoever on the plot but enables us to get 69 cartons of butts from somebody).

In the audience sit ten students. Nine of them are hungrily looking over the menus in the newspaper. The tenth is eating a toothpick, which, when smeared with mustard, is simply delicious. But on to our story, which is, at best, an old one.

"The Student Council, all six of us, are in oder," says the chairman. "Does anyone have a pinochle deck so that we can proceed with old business or shall we stretch ourselves across the river and play a little bridge?"

The motion was carried by a three to three vote. Business of three months past was then discussed and promptly referred to committees for further action and delay. By a show of hands it was discovered that one Student Council member had three hands, and had been swinging all the recent elections. He was dropped from the roles. This was rather high-handed treatment and two members objected. They were ejected. (Boy, were they dejected!) The motion was rejected. No one objected so it was referred to the committee on committees. Having done a tremendous piece of work, the Student Council adjourned. Six thousand students attended the meeting. A mimeographed copy of the proceedings may be obtained by writing to the Real Villanovan Office, Room 619, Mendel Hall.

Spring is really here. We understand "signing out" has jumped 400%. These statistics are from the Bureau of Ed Sullivan. Ed Sullivan, that's Villanovoese for "Lover Man."

I'M SORRY FAHY, WE CAN'T PRINT THIS ONE EITHER

All Stops To Paoli

By A. J. MULLEN

The question has been raised by some who have had the misfortune of having the feature page of the Villanovan read to them too many times, (those who can read avoid the page carefully) why our neighbor college of Rosemont is mentioned so many times in the various columns.

Several tentative answers to this problem have been advanced but the most complete answer was that the feature page of the Villanovan has a larger following in Rosemont than at the Alma Mater. Another possible answer was that the crew that writes this material cannot get their minds off the beauties for an instant. This latter is of course ridiculous.

My own excuse for the occurrence of the topic in question in this column is that at any occasion where there are enough Villanovans to make an affair representative there are also enough Rosemontians to make a quorum.

Last week Villanova and her neighboring schools went literate and attended the presentation of abridged versions of two Shakespearean Plays in the Villanova Field House.

It was all an accident though. A number of pre-med and biology students thought that The Taming of the Shrew was a lecture on natural history and a few engineers arrived because homework was light and they had nothing else to do. Five students arrived looking for the same Rosemont girl because they knew that she would not pass up such an opportunity for culture. She arrived in time for the second play with a fellow from Saint Joe's.

During the intermission we noticed that there were plenty of girls for all. The boys, however, were a little slow to react to their chance. The second play gave the men some ideas and several of them showed up later in the evening with black eyes and delicately pink lips.

One fellow was particularly disgruntled at the end of the evening. It seems that he spent the night becoming familiar with one girl and when the plays were over she went home on a special bus.

There were an amazing number of pictures taken at the affair. One engineer did three problems in Thermodynamics by utilizing the intermittent flashes to write and by doing his thinking during the periods of darkness. Other students found better uses for the semi-darkness and were only disturbed by the flashes.

Out of the Copy Basket

By JOHN P. MALLICK

Last Tuesday night was intellectual night at Villanova. Ah yes, they all appeared at the field house to witness the staging of the two Shakespearean plays. But could this large turnout be due to the arrival of a bus load of beautiful Immaculata girls? One of the girls told me, "For women who know men best it's Villanova two to one. Ah yes, in pocket newspapers, your best bet is the Villanovan." She also stated, "For a treat instead of a treatment, try Immaculata."

"The Taming of the Shrew" will be staged again for the benefit of those students in Wife Training 121 who were busy that evening. To quote the professor, "This play is a perfect example of the primary purpose of the course." (The prof is not married.)

If you think this is bad, wait till you read the rest of the column.

Getting a newspaper out is sometimes fun, but it is never a joke. If we print jokes, people say we are silly. If we don't, they say we are too serious. If we clip things from other papers, we are too lazy to write our own stuff. If we don't they say we are biased. If we print contributions, the paper is filled with junk. If we don't, we don't appreciate true genius. Now like as not, someone will say we swiped this piece from some other paper—We did!

Fred Allen has nothing on this column, CHARLIE HOPKE must have an uncle on the copy reading staff, for they left out one of the week's most important deeds. Having gotten a girl and a place to squat for a hayride, CHARLIE made friends with some alfalfa and spent the rest of the evening with a box of Kleenex.

At this writing, with the bids to the Rosemont and Chestnut Hill Spring formals given out, those that "are," can easily be discerned from those that "aren't", by a harried look on the faces of those that "are". They can be heard to be doing quick mental arthmetic in the way of, "Let's see now, Corsage, five bucks, Tux, Seven, Chow, Three . . ." and on into the night. The boy with the most harried expression is DON WAY, he's got a bid to both of them. There's a movement afoot to supplant his statue in place of that of St. Thomas on the school drive.

The McCloskey Construction Co. has been receiving some very viligant direction from former G. I. Engineers AL SCARCELLI, JIM MULIGAN and JOE BERGMAIER.

They spend their time in Fr. Dyer's back yard playing with the cement mixer.

The weekend was packed with a great many social events as witnessed by the hollowed-eyed expressions on many of the brethern on Monday morning. A lot of the boys beat their way down to the Penn-Sheraton Saturday to attend the I.A.U dance, although a great majority of them were at a loss to explain what the I.A.U. stood for. In any event, from KARL ENNIS, ED SHULMEYER, ED HEISKILL and JERRY BRUNO we hear that it was a pretty fine affair. DON WAY and ED DOYLE arrived late. DOYLE had a blown-out tube over his arm to explain his tardiness, saying he had eyebrows raised over that excuse before. LOU BLAZIK claims he saw dancing girls all evening. They according to his description, were dressed in green ballet costumes and carried baskets of fruit on their shoulders. Come now Lou, we never got that feeling for $.85 . . .

They moved the three-ring circus that takes place on the first floor of Mendel Hall to the Ben Franklin on last Friday night when the Villanovan staff held their annual Dinner-Dance. LEO DODD had a date for the affair but the ship that she was unloading down on Front Street, pulled out and left LEO holding the bag,or not hpiding it, depending on how you want to look at it.

Professional Survey

Mechanical Engineering

By ED OXFORD

(Based upon reports by the Bureau of Labor Statistics; National Roster of Scientific and Specialized Personnel)

OUTLOOK

Good immediate prospects for Mechanical Engineers are insured. The demand for M. E.'s is exceeding pre-war levels though not touching wartime peaks. For those beginning their engineering studies in the next few years, professional competition will be found to be considerably more keen than for those already started or advanced.

Over one-third of the 85,000 M. E.'s employed in 1940 were in Machinery Production, Aeronautics, and Automotive fields ,and others less important. Wartime levels were so high that let-down was inevitable. Twin sustainers-retooling and reconversion having passed, absorbing demands are now centered in industrial modernization and expansion. Prevailing supply is large—second largest group among engineers before the war, mechanical engineers now constitute the largest group—and are steadily growing—as with all record ME college enrollments. Understandably, authorities thus declare that mechanical engineers of 1950 on will be confronted with keener competition than any other engineering group.

SPECIAL OPPORTUNITIES

Heavy Equipment Manufacturing—The great rise in construction and new methods is putting a strain on heavy tooling, the heart of industry. The greatest opportunities today are to be found in centers producing textile machinery, die-casting machines, transmission equipment, paper-making devices, industrial furnaces, etc.

Aeronautical Engineering—Rising phenomenally in the last 5 years, aviation has run the heart out of older engineering branches which attempted to match its strides. War gave this prodigy its big kick. Aeronautical engineering enrollment tripled from 1940 to 1943 and rose steadily thereafter, while research continued at such a pace that it pushed aviation 20 years ahead of its time. At the moment, employment in other fields is more easily had (war-trained men control aviation's ground floor), but with the dawn of super-sonic speed, jet, diesel and even electric power plants; intensified commercial travelling; inter space exploration aviation's near and distant future potentialities become tremendous.

TRENDS

The Education Question-Labor department figures show:

3 out of 5 who enter engineering schools fail to graduate;

1 of the 2 who do graduate requires more than 4 years to complete his course.

Art Exhibit Opened At College Library

Forty Entries Contributed by Nine Students Viewed by Friends of Library

On Sunday, April 13, the Friends of the Library held their third annual meeting. The guest speaker, a noted authority on American drama, was Arthur Hobson Quinn. Mr. Quinn spoke on the manner in which the University of Pennsylvania developed its Library of American Drama.

It was with this meeting that the Library opened its art exhibit. The works were contributed by Villanova students and the offerings proved to be of high caliber.

Forty Entries

There was a total of forty entries contributed by nine students, all of whom are ex-servicemen. Many of the paintings were done while these men were overseas. William Savage painted his "Study in Green" while in Melbourne, Australia and Jonathan Naylor did most of his work while in the South Pacific.

Jonathan Naylor's works, which were very impressive, were all painting of the sea. He succeeded in capturing the true spirit of the sea, showing ability that is lacking in many artists.

The impressionistic type of work done by Walsh was excellent and proved to be most interesting.

One of the outstanding pieces of the exhibit was the surrealist painting skillfully done by Chester. It was the only painting of this type in the exhibit and caused considerable comment.

McKay's oil painting done on velvet, entitled "White Cirute," was the most beautiful of all the entries. It was a picture of sunset at sea, and was impressive.

A group of pictures, done in black and white, contributed by Wagener were well done and quite expressive.

Other contributions were made by Siano, Capallero, and Wilbur. Those entries made by Wilbur will, more than likely, be used in this year's Belle Aire.

The exhibit will last until the end of this week. It is a very striking display of art and a few minutes spent in viewing them would be time well spent.

German Movies Held by Club

Last Wednesday evening Neustadter Kreis attended Immaculata's Saint Boniface Club dance held in their college cafeteria from 8:00 P. M. to 10:30 P. M. Movies and refreshments were the order of the night, and many happy faces and pleasant conversations indicated the success of the affair.

The film produced in America, entitled "Wilhelm Tell," was a dramatic account of peasant attempts to free Switzerland from the monarchial rule of a cruel king. In it the famous 'apple shooting' sequence of great fame in which Wilhem Tell was forced to shoot an apple from atop his son's head with an arrow.

Mr. Amelotti Leader Of New Math Group

The Mathematics Society, which was first organized in 1938 and then became dormant soon after the outbreak of World War II, was reorganized on Saturday, April 19. Mr. Amelotti, the club moderator, explained the constitution and outlined the various activities of the organization. As a result of elections held during this meeting, William Wynne was elected president, Bud Hunter vice-president, and William F. Owens, secretary-treasurer.

Membership is open to those who have completed freshman math and who have shown proficiency in mathematics, or anyone else whom the moderator deems worthy of membership.

Guild Party and Dance at Field House Tonight

This evening the Augustinian Seminary Guild's annual Card Party and Dance will be held in the Villanova Field House. The entertainment will start at eight-thirty and will continue until one o'clock.

The program for the evening will consist of cards and bingo until ten-thirty, when two valuable prizes will be raffled. These prizes are a mahogany hope chest, and a one hundred dollar suit tailor-made by Nelson Trent. Prizes will also be awarded to the winners of each table and to the bingo winners.

After the awarding of prizes there will be dancing, to the music of the Villanovans, until one o'clock. Admission for the affair will be one dollar. The proceeds will be used for the support of the various Augustinian seminaries.

NOTICE

The Sanctuary Society will meet Thursday evening, May 1, at 8:00 P. M. in 215 M. This meeting is important; elections for club officers will be held.

Hugh Johnson, C & F Jr. Appointed New Sports Head

This week the Villanovan announces the appointment of a new Sports Chief in the person of Hugh Johnson, Class of '49. Hugh first came to our campus in November of 1943 as a member of the V-12 program. After a year on the campus, Johnson left for Florida when he joined an Underwater Demolition Team and saw service in the China-Korean Theatre. He returned to the campus last July.

Interracial Club Host to Grad

On Thursday evening, the Interracial Society was host to Mr. James Richardson, Villanova negro graduate (class of '41), who addressed the group on "Interracial Relationships."

Mr. Richardson's first reference was to Lincoln's Gettysburg Address. He conceded that this was the embodyment of the American Principle but, regrettably enough, not of our American practice. "Society has failed the American Negro," he added and gave evidence of actual cases where our negro brethren have had to suffer injustice and intolerance. To remedy this, he outlined the part we as Christians can play. "Follow the Christian principles outlined by the Catholic Church — Fatherhood of God and Brotherhood of Man in the Mystical Body of Christ," he concluded.

The ovation which Mr. Richardson received was indicative of the eloquence and effectiveness with which he spoke.

An open forum followed Mr. Richardson's address in which both he and Mr. James Finlay aptly answered questions proposed by the audience which included some Immaculata visitors.

Football Team Unveils Power Against NYU

- Joe Tulskie, Andy Gordon And Al Schmidt Make Long
- Runs in Scrimmage on Saturday

A few hundred spectators at the Villanova stadium last Saturday afternoon were given a preview of the 1947 football team which, from appearances, should prove to be one of the best elevens in Villanovas' history.

The Wildcats really looked good in the scrimmage game, definitely outclassing the willing but comparatively weak Violets of New York University. The evidence of this is the eleven touchdowns and eighteen first downs made by the 'Cats. NYU's offence was limited to two first downs by a hard charging Villanova line.

Villanova's superiority was shown right from the start when they marched 70 yards in five plays, Veling going over for the first of his two touchdowns. Al Schmidt scored the next one on a beautiful 30 yard run. The third tally came from Andy Gordon who returned a punt 60 yards to score. Coach Olivar then yanked his starting team and began to send in a long line of subs which included everyone on the bench in order to give all a chance and to see many new players in action.

The other touchdowns were scored by Schrieber, Tulsie, Kozick, Finklestein (on a pass from Wolf), Sivtak, and McGovern (on a pass from Young).

Among those who looked good on the line were Sandusky, Ferry, Pavalko and Kane who performed particularly well at his end position. Excellent blocking and good tackling were the main factors in the victory.

The NYU line found it almost impossible to lay a hand on any one of the starting backfield combination of Gordon, Schmidt, Veling and Jack Tulsie.

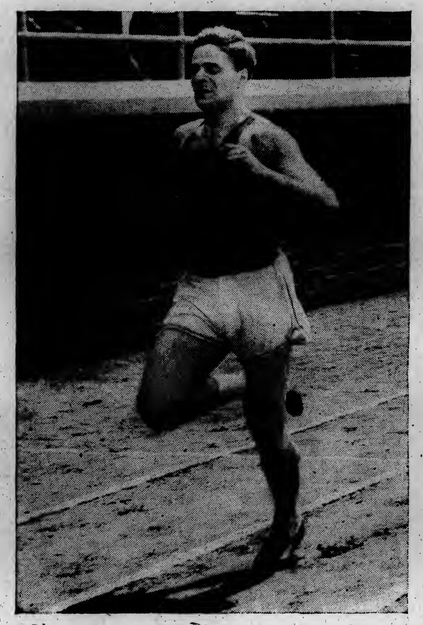
The scrimmage was an informal one lasting for two hours, both coaches interrupted play at intervals to correct players.

Day-Hops Nose Out Alumni Hall In Swim Meet

- Jameson Leads Team to Victory in Intramural Swim
- Meet Thursday Night

A well-balanced Day-Hop team highlighted by the spectacular low board grace of Charlie Jameson nosed out Alumni Hall 32-28 in the intramural swim meet in the Field House Pool on Thursday evening. Fedigan Hall placed third. The winners placed in every eevnt, taking a first and a second in the 50 yard free style event. The outcome of the meet was in the balance up until the last event. The Day-Hops needed a third to cinch the meet. The Alumni team took first and the Day-Hops took second giving them the nod for the nights events. Chuck Veling participating in almost every event was the force that held the runners-up together.

Winners



The events and their outcome in their order are as follows:

50 yard freestyle: 1. Connoly, Day Hops; 2. Feeny, Day Hops; Veling, Alumni.

50 yard breast stroke: 1. Veling,

Villanova Turns in Best Time for College Mile

McCreary, Kelley, Fitzgerald and Guida Run a 3:21.7 Mile in Penn Relays

By DON REDMOND

Gaining solace for some of their previous disappointments, Villanova's determined mile relay quartet literally ran away with their class mile relay and won in the excellent time of 3:21:7 last Saturday at the annual Penn Relay Carnival at Franklin Field.

Up to that time in the two day carnival, the Wildcat thinclads had done nothing recognizable as a team, although certain individuals had stamped themselves as men to watch with sparkling individual performances.

On Friday, George Guida, ace of the Main Line speedsters turned in a 48.0 second quarter mile in trailing Illinois' Herb McKenley to the baton exchange zone by two yards in the fast leg of the Distance Medley (440, 880, ¾ mile, and mile).

A few hours later, Browning Ross, the Woodbury Wonder, raced through a scintillating anchor leg of the Sprint Medley (40, 220, 220, 880) in 1:56 only to be edged at the tape by Navy, which took third place in the section.

Ross had been scheduled to anchor the Distance Medley team earlier in the day, but when George Thompson and Dave Williams, who followed Guida with the baton, could not keep Villanova in contention, Coach Jim Elliot pulled the mite miler for the Sprint Medley.

Saturday morning saw Villanova's half-mile relay foursome of Joe McCreary, Dick Muscelli, Ed Fitzgerald, and Guida win their heat in 1:29.1. However, the Cat's time wasn't one of the four best, and hence they didn't qualify for the final which was won by Illinois. Anchored by the wing footed Guida's 21 second 220, the Villanovans led Army, Penn, and CCNY to the tape in their heat victory.

George "Buck" Coleman, the best pole vaulter in this section of the country, upheld his claim to that title with a tie for third in a crowded field of 49 entrants. The "Bucko" battled gamely, his 13 foot leap equalling last year's winning jump. Richard "Boo" Morcom of New Hampshire, twice previous winner of this event, vaulted 14" 3' to set a new carnival record. Runner-up Bob Richards, Illinois' Big Ten champ, stopped at 14' to secure second place. His team mate, Herb Matter shared third place with Coleman.

Turning in one of the smoothest performances of the day, Villanova's mile relay team completely outclassed the field in its section, and for that matter in other sections also. Nearest time to the Elliotmen's, outside of the National Championship events, was Wayne's 3:26.1. Even Army, National Class "B" Champions, were only 0.8 seconds faster than Villanova, and this could easily have been made up with competition.

Leading from the start, the Blue and White won by 60 yards over St. Francis, Bucknell, Gettysburg and five others. Joe McCreary indicated that he is arriving early at the peak that Coach Elliot perdicts for him with a fine 49.8 quarter. Gene Kelly, returning to his early indoor season shape, breezed through a 51.3 second leg to hand Ed Fitzgerald a comfortable 30 yard lead.

Weinert's Nine Loses to Army at West Point; Beats Quantico Here

Army's Conover Blanks Wildcats on Wednesday, 9-0

Last Wednesday damp, chilly weather seemed to prevail, not only as an atmospheric condition, but in the play of the Vinnanova nine as they lost their third game of the season. The Army team, winners of eight straight games this year, held the Wildcats scoreless for the regulation nine innings while they themselves pushed across 9 runs.

Bill Smith, who was charged with the loss, worked the first five innings, giving up 6 runs while striking out three. Climbing to the hill in the sixth, Bob Green went on to finish out the game. He had four strikeouts and gave up 3 runs.

Conover Yields 6 Hits

Conover went all the way for the boys from West Point in winning his first shutout game of the season. Yielding only 6 well scattered hits while striking out 7, he not only pitched a great game but helped out his own cause by scoring the fifth Army run.

Villanova's only flare came in the fourth inning. With 2 outs and nobody on, Joe Lord stepped to the plate and banged out a long triple. George Warner was the next man up. Really bearing down on the batter, Conover threw a hard outside ball that George stepped in to and sent sailing into right field. With anybody else covering that section of the outfield, it would have been a sure double but first-baseman Glenn Davis, who happens to play in that section of the field, was right there under it for just another out. That ended the rally and except for the good hitting of Al Litwa, Villanova was stripped of all their power. For the rest of the game.

Davis, Lobe and Wagner, each of whom had 2 hits apiece, were the men that backed Conover in his third straight win this season. Johnny Wagner also scored two of Army's 9 runs.

Please fill out this ballot and drop it into the ballot box outside of the Villanovan Office. This is the only week that the baseball ballot will be run, so get your returns in.

Chojnacki Wins Third Straight Game in Downing Marines, 5-2

Giving up only 5 hits and 2 runs, Stan Chojnacki worked the full 9 innings in beating the Quantico Marines for his third straight victory by a score of 5-2. He had plenty of team support from Dan Casey and Frank O'Niell, both of whom hit home runs.

O'Niell Hits Homer

Villanova scored most of their runs in a big first inning. Dan Casey was the first man up. He reached first on an error by Fred Volk, then stole second and went on to third on a wild pitch. After Al Litwa flied out, Norm Kline drew a walk, setting the stage for Frank O'Niell's four-bagger. On a 2-2 count Frank tagged one of pitcher Cherinko's best balls and sent it sailing out over the left field fence, scoring Casey and Kline ahead of him.

In the second inning with the bases empty, Dan Casey poled a long ball over the fence in center field which landed right plunk in the middle of the end zone on the football field.

O'Niell, who had himself a field day, crossed the plate with the fifth and final run in the eighth inning on a single, a stolen base, an error, and a long fly ball by John Blong.

Russo and Stanley scored the two Quantico runs, Russo on a single, passed ball, and a timely hit by Bob Scott. Cherinko, trying hard to win his own game, smashed a double into center field to drive in Stanley, who had reached second on a single and stolen base.

Chojnacki and O'Niell Star

Chojnacki and O'Niell, the battery mates, were the most potent elements for the Wildcats. Chojnacki, in giving up only 5 hits and one walk, was master of the situation most of the way. Quantico did threaten in the 4th and 5th innings, but for the remainder of the game, Chojnacki bore down on the visitors and not a man got as far as second base.

O'Niell, who caught the whole game, came up with 2 hits in 4 times at bat. He was given credit for 3 RBI's and scored 2 runs himself.

Seton Hall Here This Thursday

Chojnacki or Donahue to Start for Villanova's Nine

The Seton Hall Baseballers will make their first appearance here in recent years, this Thursday afternoon, when they oppose Coach Phil Weinert's Wildcats on our field, game time, three o'clock.

Returning to the campus with a string of defeats at the hands of the Army Cadets, the Villanova baseballers are anxious to get back into the win column.

Seton Hall is best known around the Main Line Campus for their dazzling basketball performance that coach "Chick" Davis and his courtmen gave on their last visit here. From all available reports the baseball representatives from the Jersey school have all the poise and finesse shown by the courtmen.

After being held to six hits by the Army moundsmen, three of which were collected by Al Litwa, the Wildcat nine are due for an explosive ball game. With the big bats of Litwa and O'Neill still pounding out base hits, some help from the remaining six will be plenty to bring home the bacon.

The starting pitcher for Villanova will propably be either Hen Donahue or Stan Chojnacki.

Intramural News

The Warriors gained the second half title as they swept all four points from Fetgan Hall. The team composed of Menghini, Keller, Spina, Keehn and Kramer moved up from third position to win the Intramural bowling league title by the close margin of one point. Menghini rolled scores of 206, 201 and 180 while Kramer had a high game of 208. Bruyette, of Fedigan, rolled games of 172, 171 and 204.

The Iron Men took three points from Alumni as Pete Pallitto had games of 189, 191, and 180. Bisanti and Toth rolled games of 197 and 196 respectively. The Red Eyes and Indians each gained two points as both teams forfeited their matches.

League championships will be held today at the Main Line Bowling alleys as the Iron Men, winners of the first half, will oppose the Warriors. With the two squads being evenly matched, it is expected that the five man total pin record of 946 will be surpassed.

Final league standing and high averages will be announced in the issue of the Villanovan.

along with Guida, ran five races over the two days, clicked off his leg in 49.9 to increase the gap. Then dependable and capable Guida sped easily through a 49.7 anchor 440 which was little more than a workout for him, George eased up in the homestretch and coasted home with plenty left.

Because of some unfortunate (and evidently new) ruling which prevents Class Mile Relay winners from entering the Class "B" Championship of America Mile Relay with the same team, Villanova was not allowed to enter the Class "B" Championship event which was won by Army. Army won it in 3:20.9 seconds, a time which appears easily within the Villanova foursome's reach.

Villanova garnered a fifth place in the National Four Mile Relay Championship and the 'Cats were only about fifteen yards out of third place. Milers Jim Kennedy, Dave Williams, George Thompson and Browning Ross turned in respective times of 4:36, 4:33, 4:30 and 4:24 in their relay stints to trail Penn State, Manhattan, NYU and Navy in that order. Ross' blazing finish enabled him to nip Columbia's Bill Berger at the tape.

In the National Two Mile Relay Championship, Villanova's team of Roy Cameron, Fitzgerald, Ross and Guida was up against too much and Fordham's fast foursome led the field with the good time of 7:50.7.

Villanova's field men, with the exception of Coleman, did not fare so well. They did, however show promise of help to the runners in the coming dual and triangular meets which have been absent at Villanova for the past few years.

This Saturday Villanova's cinder path performers will travel to Annapolis to hook up with two of the east's best performers. In the quarter mile Manhattan has Johnny Quigley who has run a 47.9 this year while Navy has John Garibaldi and Art Bigley both of whom have broken 50. It is improbable that all these men will meet since their coaches will probably shuffle the order of things.

In the mile Browning Ross will meet two top notch performers in Ed. Walsh of Manhattan and Nick Smusyn of Navy. Last year Smusyn did a 4:18 mile against Villanova.

Coleman will be favored to cop the pole vault event with Tom Lee and John Barrow and Phil Finsman his nearest rivals.

Opponents' reserves plus Villanova's weakness in certain events as the hurdles are coach Elliott's chief worries and it will take a master manipulation of limited personnel to pull a victory out of the fire.

Villanova's Unofficial Crew

Villanova Boys Organize Crew

Alumnus Charles Kain to Coach Newly Organized Group

For quite some time now, a number of fellows who had become acquainted with one another while rowing on the Schuylkill River and in various regattas, have met each other on the campus. The first thing they talked about, of course, was the good old days on the river. In one of these conversations one of them came up with the suggestion that a crew team be started at Villanova.

Activity in the direction of getting a crew started increased steadily, but it took an alumnus, Mr. Charles Kain, to really get the ball rolling. Mr. Kain not only offered his services as a coach but also has obtained permission for Villanova to row from the Fairmount Rowing Association. Incidentally, he is the present holder of the National Championship paircared without cox and it goes without saying that he is a very capable coach.

Crew Unofficial

While the crew is not officially one of the school's athletic teams, a number of fellows have already started practice. They are: McHugh, Roletter, Torpey, Hudak, Ariano, Enright, Clowry, Connor, Malloy, Stefano, Gerold, Hanney, Hoffner, Cassidy, McDonnell, Mallan, Homan, Dietrich and Maguire.

Numerous Openings

There will be a Freshman eight, a first and second 150 lb. eight, and a varsity first and second eight. In view of the many candidates needed, Mr. Kain requests that all men interested turn out for this sport. Inexperience will not bar any man from participating as the greater part of the candidates are novices in this field. If you are interested, please give your name to Hugh Maguire in room 243 Mendel.

Sportorial

By HUGH JOHNSON

Sports Editor

As the new Sports Editor of the Villanovan, I would like, first of all, to thank Father Klekotka, our faculty advisor, Don Collins, and Bill Altenpohl, all of whom have had leading roes in my appointment to this position. I just hope that I can reciprocate this good faith by living up to their expectations.

However, most important of all, to you the readers of this newspaper, I promise to bring all the news of all the sporting events relevant to Villanova sports, whether it be on or off the campus. In other words, our goal shall be: (A) complete coverage, (B) accuracy, (C) the best in style. We have an excellent staff, ably headed by Jim Plunkett, our new Associate Sports Editor.

I should like to make one last point by way of introduction. This feature Sportorial, is not new to Villanova. On looking back through the old Villanovans, we discovered that almost every sports editor from 1936 up to and including Hughie O'Rielly in late '45, wrote a Sportorial (Matt Kearney and Sam Canning had an editorial in '46 but not under the same name.) Thus dormant for two years, we are going to give it a shot in the arm and make it a weekly feature again. 'Nuff of that.

Well, once again it's spring and hence, outdoor sports. Why just the other day we saw Crotty etching the back nine behind C&F. Speaking of golf, right now there is an intramural tournament in progress. Father McKee informs us that the fellows with the best scores in these matches will form the nucleus of a golf team to represent the school next year.

Today we're running the last of the elimination ballots for the "Ace Athlete" contest. The winner will receive the Jack Dempsey Trophy. As a result of previous balloting Billy Sullivan won the football nomination, Joe Lord the basketball, and George Gulda the track. That leaves only a baseball representative to be determined and ballots are provided for that purpose in this issue.

Until now, the voting has been light. Roughly, only about 8 out of every 100 fellows in school have cast their ballots. This, in my book, depicts a lack of school spirit. Everybody around the campus seems to have shown a recent interest in the (shall we say) Philosophy of Sports. Well, this is one way to show your hand . . . or way to show that you're behin the teams. Let's make this th largest vote yet polled. Submit you ballots before 4 P. M. Thursday Next week we'll run the finals o the contest.

The scrimmage Saturday wit NYU was a huge success. For tha matter, any scrimmage, win, los or draw is always intrinsically success. But this scrimmage wa successful especially because gave an adequate view of the tean that's going to avenge those 19 points when they meet Alm (there's that word again) this fal Father McKee scheduled anothe scrimmage game for this Saturda with Lafayette. It hasn't been de cided (as we go to press) whethe the game will be played here or a Easton.

The swimming meet last Thurs day was a real thriller. The phy sical conditioning may not hav been there but the old do-or-di spirit sure made up for it. Charli Jameson was the big gun of th evening as captain of the Day Hops. Charlie has a lot of goo swimming experience behind him Ho was the big mahog of Lowe Merion's crack team of '44.

Final Team Standing: 1. Da Hops—32; 2. Alumni—28; 3. Fedi gan—13.

Jameson and Schmidt Star

Highlights of the meet include the close competition on the spring board between Charlie Jameson an Al Schmidt. Both showed surpris ingly good form since neither o them work at the art steadily.

The 100 yard four man relay wa closely contested and the judge had to be on the ball to catch th men in the correct order of finish The difference between the Alumn and Day Hop time was only second.

Officiating was handled by Fath ers Kemme, Girolami, Burke an Wynn. Jack Burke, one of the bes swimmers ever to graduate fro Villanova, was the head starter.

Cole Awarded D. F. C. for Jap Raid in B-29

C & F Soph Decorated by Colonel Carrol at District Headquarters

By GEORGE SZYMANSKI

Francis A. Cole, Jr., C&F sophomore, received the Distinguished Flying Cross in a recent ceremony at the Eastern Pennsylvania Military District Headquarters. Colonel James B. Carroll, senior instructor of the Organized Reserve Corps of the district, presented the award.

Served on B-29

Cole, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis A. Cole, of 1420 West Pacific St., Philadelphia, was decorated for extraordinary achievement on a B-29 flight from the Marianas Islands against an aircraft factory in Kagamigahara, Japan, on June 26, 1945. He and other crew members succeeded in inflicting heavy damage on the Kagamigahara factory despite poor weather, enemy fighters, and prolonged anti-aircraft fire.

His citation reads in part: "Through the competent and well executed performance of duty by this mission, which involved over 3,000 miles of over-water flight, hazards created by weather and the enemy, and the imminent danger of "ditching" many miles at sea, a substantial portion of the factory was destroyed. The courage and skill displayed by these veterans of repeated assaults against the Japanese homeland reflect great credit on themselves and the Army Air Forces."

Holder of Many Citations

A graduate of Roman Catholic High School, class of 1941, and currently a student at Villanova, Cole holds the Air Medal with six clusters, Asiatic-Pacific ribbon, and the Good Conduct Medal. He is a member of American Legion Post 319.

At the college he is associated with the softball team as assistant manager.

Witnessing the ceremony was Cole's fiancee, Miss Helen Sparks. The local press featured the couple in a picture, displaying the medal.

effected, the meeting adjourned, and a new meeting called to order. This move was designed to obtain a quorum so the meeting could proceed and some positive action could be taken. Until Wednesday night there were seventeen members of the Student Council; with the membership reduced by four, the eight representatives present constituted a quorum.)

It was then discovered that a special meeting could not be held unless twenty-four hours notice was given. Thus the second meeting was void. Its hands tied, the Council made a motion that was seconded and passed that the meeting be adjourned and an informal discussion of the agenda followed. The discussion lasted until shortly after 8 P. M. when it became apparent that no definite action on the agenda could be taken.

Members Voice Disgust

After the discussion Matt Kearney commented: "As Secretary, I posted notices in prominent places and in plenty of time for the meeting. Some of them were ripped down, for what reason I don't know. Complete lack of student interest seems prevalent. Two or three men can't do the whole job. This should be a lesson to the student body to watch carefully whom they elect, and to take more active interest in elections."

The attitude expressed by Don Collins was similar:

"The matter on the agenda was important and urgent. The time lost by the poor attendance will result in curtailment of some programs already decided upon. Unless the members of the Council are sincere in trying to make the organization a true student voice we will never get anywhere in solving the problems we must face."

Jack Stanley was prevented from entering the Student Council as the representative of the Arts Fraternity because of the lack of a quorum.

PREVAILING QUALIFICATIONS

The engineering student best equipped for advancement in school and profession is, according to the fields leaders, that one with interest and better than average ability in mathematics and physics; an analytic and planning mind; a capacity — a large capacity — for work. These are the bare essentials: the degree to which they are developed in college and professional years will determine advancement. A decade hence, plenty of mechanical engineering should be readily found, and employers will turn to those with the best proved backgrounds — not to those with simply "big plans." Formal training consists in the 4 or 5 year college course leading to a B. S. in a major branch of engineering. Besides this prospective employers inevitably look for industrial experience prior to graduation — night, part-time, summer work etc. Pre-professional apprenticeship is offered to the graduate by most large concerns; in these cadet programs, new men are put on the board, into the shop of engineering office, or sent on field work so that they may be broken in.

Only after at least several years of experience in responsible positions may an executive position be obtained.

Those engineers whose work affects public welfare and safety must be licensed by their state to practice "professional engineering." This registration is law in practically every state.

INCOME

Rates are fairly uniform throughout the industry, depending primarily upon experience.

Hartman Speaks On U. S. Policy

Last Monday evening, the College Forum on International Relations completed its sixth and final broadcast over station WFIL. La Salle College and Chestnut Hill College, represented by Mr. James Pie and Miss Dorothy Tucker respectively, were the debators. Villanova's Dr. H. F. Hartman, Ph.D., summarized the issues. The topic discussed was: "Is the Truman Doctrine Detrimental to World Peace." The affirmative side was represented by Mr. Pie and the negative by Miss Tucker.

Mr. Pie's Argument

Mr. Pie, opposing the Truman Doctrine, listed a number of reasons for his opposition, which were essentially:

1) The tide of Communism cannot be stemmed by money.

2) In by-passing the United Nations we encourage fear and distrust that will undermine that body and eventually lead to war.

3) We are aiding a reactionary Greek government and militaristic Turkish government, rather than true democratic states. In doing this, we alienate ourselves from democracy in the eyes of the peoples of the world.

4) With the Truman Doctrine, small nations will lose faith in the United States and be drawn within the Russian sphere of influence.

5) The Truman Policy interferes with the affairs of sovereign nations and may justly be called economic domination.

6) The economic aid we give to Greece will provoke civil war and aid its government, rather than the people themselves.

Miss Tucker's Argument

Miss Tucker confined herself to more general terms, but in the course of her talk expressed the following views:

1) There is an ideological conflict involved in this issue. Communism is spreading across Europe and has established puppet governments in Yugoslavia, Rumania, and Bulgaria. Its sphere of influence in the Balkans would be complete with Greece.

2) The Truman Doctrine is a step to offset this spread of Communism.

3) Realistically speaking, food and money are vital for achieving the friendship of these nations, and the United Nations is at this time immature and incapable of taking care of these necessities.

4) It is the duty of the United States to prevent the spread of communism.

Joseph Barrick, Edward Fanelli, Edward Sullivan, and Mark Doyle questioned the speakers during the open forum portion of the program.

Scanlon Elected President of ASCE Society

Dan Redmond, President of the A.S.C.E., announced the results of the election of officers for the fall semester. John Scanlon was elected President; John Brennan, Vice-President; James Carroll, Secretary; and Thomas Burke, Treasurer.

This semester, the office of Secretary-Treasurer, which in previous years was held by one student, was divided into two distinct offices due to the large enrollment of the society.

John Scanlon, a resident Senior I student, has previously been associated with the Villanovan on the Circulation Staff.

John Brennan, a Junior I student, attended the C&F School at Villanova before the war. During the war, John was an Ensign in the Naval Civil Engineering Corps, and after re-entering Villanova, switched to Civil Engineering.

James Carroll, a Junior I student, attended Villanova during the war years as a member of the V-12 unit. He was then sent to Georgia Tech and Missouri State Teachers' College before returning to Villanova to finish his schooling.

Smoker Planned

A smoker has been planned for the near future to introduce the new officers to the society, and outline the plans for activities to be held in the following year. Mr. Gallen, the Moderator of the society, has planned to take the senior students up to Whitemarsh on a field trip.

Dan Redmond expressed his thanks to the members of the society for the fine turnout for the voting.

Sullivan

Yeager and Thomas R. Sullivan, supporting the affirmative of the question, debated teams representing Princeton, Swarthmore, St. Joseph's, Pennsylvania and Rider. The negative team of Peter Turney, President of the Beta Gamma, and Thomas Daley, met Bryn Mawr, St. Joseph's, Swarthmore, Rutgers, and Ursinus. In all Villanova won six debates and lost four, each team winning three and losing two.

Sullivan Wins Contest

Aside from the debating proper, there was a contest in extemporaneous speaking, which was won by Thomas R. Sullivan of Villanova. This contest, a recent innovation, was held with one representative from each school. Each contestant drew a topic at random from several which had been selected from the past two issues of "Time" magazine. He then had twenty minutes in which to prepare a five to seven minute speech on the topic. The prize was a gold medal bearing the likeness of Benjamin Franklin.

This tournament draws to a close the inter-collegiate activities of the Beta Gamma. During the past season they participated in approximately sixty debates with various colleges and universities. Highlights of the season were the trips to the New York metropolitan area, and the Boston-New England trip. The rest of this semester will be spent in completing the reorganization of the administration of the council which was begun earlier this year. Several details must be attended to in order that the council may start early next year. Peter Turney, president of the council, will call a meeting for the near future.

such shows as "Oklahoma!" Carousel" and so forth, the American theatre has been enriched. These works are typically American in their rousing songs, and believable plots, their historical backgrounds and plausible characters.

These composers, if they are part of the leaders, are not the whole story. We must pay tribute to George M. Cohan, whose flag-waving shows are as much a part of our tradition as are the fascinating musicals of Sigmund Romberg and Irving Berlin. These have given us a tradition which is as colorful as any European one, a tradition which is mellow and ever adaptable to the country's growth. For our cultural background, reflected in the musical comedy, is something which is strong and vigorous, and like America itself, derives its strength from the people.

Belle Aire to be Distributed During June; Motif is Saint Augustine's "City of God"

With all material in the hands of the printers, publication of the 1947 edition of the "Belle Aire" will soon be announced. The college annual is expected to be released during the first week of June.

The yearbook's dedication will be to the college itself. It will express a fervent hope and belief in the religious, cultural and educational benefits which will follow the current building expansion the institution is undertaking.

Theme Depicts Struggle

The theme of the senior annual is a pictorial and verbal representation of the constant struggle between good and evil. The derivation of the motif is Saint Augustine's "City of God." From this work, artistic applications were suggested to the Art Editor, Eamon Walsh.

The six illustrations presenting the visual theme are described by the Editor in Chief of the yearbook staff, Thomas M. Schubert, as follows: "Pictures indicate the coexistence of good and evil in the universe down through the ages. The first evil was the rebellion of Satan against the will of God. This is the opening illustration. Other manifestations of evil depicted are: Primitive worship of false gods in the jungle and pagan worship in Rome. The representation of good existing in the world at the same time is the portrayal of the Risen Christ displaying his wounds to Thomas.

"Next, there is the application to the world today of the truths expressed in this 1500 year old book. Communism represents the forces of evil in the world today, and Christianity is the opposing force for good. Artist Edward Wilbur, freshman engineer, has personified the two; and pictures them engaged in a death struggle.

"The final illustration suggests the influence for good on the youth of America of the Augustinian Fathers, who preach the ageless message of their founder."

Senior M. E. Student

A graduate of the Roman Catholic High School in Philadelphia, Thomas M. Schubert, Editor in Chief of the 1947 Belle Aire entered Villanova in 1942, taking a Mechanical Engineering course. He served in the Navy in the V-12 unit. The editor has worked on the Villanovan staff in capacities of Managing Editor and College Editor. He is the second member of his family to become editor of the senior journal, his brother William holding that position several years ago. Schubert has been affiliated at various times with many campus organizations including the Phi Kappa Pi, the ASME, and of course the Belle Aire.

Photography editor of the issue is Sam Canning, C and F senior. His excellent management of that very important phase of preparation drew favorable commendation from all quarters. He recently served as chairman of the Senior Prom Committee.

Editorial Board

Milton Climati, junior C and F student, succeeds himself to the office of Belle Air Sports Editor. A former College Editor of the Villanovan, Jim McWilliams is the Copy Editor. Eamon Walsh, sophomore arts student, retains his position as Art Editor. The drawings in the 1945 publication were most-

Ill Health Forces Brogan to Retire As Council Head

Joseph Brogan, Chairman of the Student Council, announced his resignation of that post last week. Brogan, elected to succeed James Bonner in January, was forced to quit because of ill health.

Joe suffered a relapse of a malaria ailment which he contracted while in the service and has been ordered by his physician to resign from all extra-curricular activities. He will be succeeded by Don Collins, the present Vice-Chairman, until new elections can be held among the members of the Council.

Tonight the Student Council will convene in Room 215, Mendel Hall at 6 P. M. for perhaps the most momentous meeting of the entire year. At this meeting the Student Council will vote on the election plans submitted by the committee on NSO elections and nominations. Plans for the election of class officers and Student Council representatives for the coming school year will also be submitted and voted on.

Of equal importance on the agenda will be the matter of revision of the present constitution to provide for redistribution or expansion of representation on the Council. The Student Council has received many complaints concerning representation, especially from members of the Freshman Class who maintain that although they are the largest group on the campus they have no voice in student affairs.

The Student Council has voiced its sympathy with their opinion and has promised to correct the situation. It also hopes to agree on some plan to increase membership on the organization to meet the changed conditions on the campus resulting from the great influx of students. In order to accomplish this the constitution will have to be drastically revamped.

The hour has been set at 6 P. M. for the convenience of those day students who wish to attend the meeting. Plans are also being made to allow the day students to eat in the cafeteria.

Mothers Honored In Old Ceremony

Mass, Planting of Ivy, Address by President Highlight Day

Yesterday was a red-letter day for the mothers of Villanova's Juniors. Anticipating the national Mothers Day by six days, the Junior Class honored their mothers with a memorable celebration.

The day began with an eleven o'clock Mass celebrated by the Rev. Michael J. O'Donnell, O.S.A., the Junior Class Moderator. In the sermon, Fr. O'Donnell took the opportunity to welcome the mothers to Villanova. On entering the chapel each mother was presented with a gardenia corsage.

Following the Mass, the mothers escorted their sons gathered with friends and relatives to observe the traditional tree-planting ceremony in the triangle near the Grotto. The Junior Class officers officiated at the event; placed the Junior Tree in the ground and fixed a marker to commemorate the occasion.

At 1:15 P. M. the mothers were entertained at a buffet luncheon in the student cafeteria. After the luncheon each Junior was allowed ample time to show the campus to his guests. The newly inaugurated expansion program was a source of great interest to all the visitors.

Doctor P. Thomas Guest Speaker at ASME Smoker

Veteran Scientist to Give Illustrative Lecture at C.&F. Auditorium Monday Night

Dr. Phillips Thomas, veteran scientist of Westinghouse Research Laboratories, will be a guest speaker at a ASME smoker in C&F Auditorium next Monday at 8 P. M. This will be a revival of the annual smoker held by the ASME and it is open to all students.

The speaker will present an illustrative lecture on "Adventures in Electricity." Included in this lecture will be demonstrations on Communications, Light Beam Relay, Vortex Gun, Light Beam Radio and the Stroboscope.

During the communication demonstration, Dr. Thomas describes the discovery and evolution of high speed communication, from the time of Samuel Morse to the present. He treats each step in the progress of communications as a piece in a jix-saw puzzle—fitting in one piece after another until the picture is complete. For further clarification he sets up a complete 100 watt, 200 million cycle per second transmitter transforming 110 volts to 2200 volts and rectifying them.

In another demonstration Dr. Thomas literally "blows out" the floodlights on the stage and lights them again with a match. He plays "Reveille" on a series of light beam relays connected to chimes.

One of the most fascinating demonstrations involves stroboscopic illumination. In this demonstration the speaker revolves a $20.00 bill on a disc which to the amazement of the group he increases to $40.00 — then to $80.00 etc. — by stroboscopic illumination.

This smoker, although given by the student branch of the ASME, will be open to all students and especially members of the AIEE, AICE, and ACS. Students are invited to bring their friends to this demonstration.

May Devotions

Reverend Edwin Grimes, O.S.A., College Chaplain, announced that there will be special devotions to the Blessed Mother during the month of May. May hymns, prayers and sermons will be held every week.

Reverend Thomas Burke, O.S.A., gave the first address and was followed by Reverend James Hannon, O.S.A. The next address will be given by the Reverend M. Girolami, O.S.A., and Reverend W. Eagen, O.S.A., will fill out the month.

The topic of Father Burke's sermon was "Our Lady of Good Counsel, Patroness of Villanova." Father Hannon spoke on "Our Mother of Sorrows."

Tickets for Junior Class Dinner Dance Saturday, May 10, are available at the information booth.

Big Social Week Features Blazer Ball, Junior Prom

Villanovans to Play at Ball on Wednesday; Prom to Feature Ray Eberle

Tomorrow, May 7th, the third day of Junior Week, will be marked by the first post-war "Blazer Ball." The Villanovans, will provide the music.

The Juniors will wear their "blazers," white with a blue college seal, or blue with a white college seal, and they have decided to maintain the informal spirit of the event by refraining from supplying corsages for their dates.

The climax of the week, however, will be held in a formal atmosphere, when the social event of the year, the Junior Prom, is held on Friday May 9th.

Ray Eberle and his orchestra will set their instruments up on the Field House stage, and play May-time music for the dancers in the transformed gardens on the gym floor.

The committee announces that tickets are available for both affairs, and can be purchased at the Information Booth in Mendel Hall. $2.00 per couple is the price of admission for the informal Blazer Ball. The tickets for the Junior Prom, featuring Ray Eberle and his orchestra, are $5.50 per couple.

Competitive Exams Draw Over Hundred High School Students

On Saturday, April the 29th, the annual competitive scholarship examinations were held in the Commerce and Finance Building auditorium. This examination is held each year for all High School Seniors who are considered eligible by their principals to compete.

This year there were a hundred and sixty-nine hopeful participants representing approximately thirty high schools from the eastern section of the country.

Three students will be selected from these participants and each will receive a four year, partial scholarship with a value of one thousand dollars. The awarding of these scholarships will be based upon the results of the examinations and the needs for financial aid in securing a college education.

This examination consisted of tests in English Usage and Literature, Algebra, Plane Geometry, General Science and Social Studies. It lasted for about three hours.

The three students who are to receive the scholarships will be notified as soon as the results of the examinations have been completely reviewed and the winners decided.

Sophomore Class Elects Officers

Politics held sway in the Commerce and Finance Auditorium on the night of Thursday, May, 1, when the Sophomore class held its annual nominations for class officers.

The meeting developed into a remarkable demonstration of activity and awareness on the part of the Class of '49. It soon became obvious that party factions were forming and that the coming elections would be hotly contested.

A faction labeling themselves "Progressives" decended upon the meeting and in an organized manner proceeded to nominate those men previously selected at a caucus held prior to the gathering.

Following is a list of nominees and the men by whom they were nominated:

Charter Granted To New College

Degrees Offered in Arts and Sciences at New Augustinian College

It was announced today by the Rev. Vincent A. McQuade, O.S.A., President of the Augustinian College that a charter had been granted to the new institution. Father McQuade stated that the legal title of the institution was the Augustinian College of the Merrimack Valley. Commonly the institution will be known as Merrimack College. The college will service the Greater Lawrence, Lowell and Haverhill areas and the name has been selected to identify the institution with the locality.

Merrimack College has been authorized to grant and confer degrees such as are usually conferred by colleges in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, except degrees in medicine and degrees in law. Plans are underway to provide for an early opening of the institution and definite information concerning applications and courses of study will be available in the near future.

Father McQuade, the new president of Merrimack College, had served on the faculty of Villanova since 1938. During the last few years he has served as veteran advisor and prior to that he was Assistant to the President, Acting Dean and head of the college's V-12 program.

Operation - Subsistence . . .

Stymied in a committee of an economy-minded Congress lies House Resolution 870. This bill, introduced by Representative Edith Rogers of Massachusetts, proposes to raise veterans' monthly subsistence from its present and inadequate level to one which will enable student veterans to meet the high cost of living. This piece of legislation would pay single veterans one hundred dollars, and married veterans one hundred and twenty-five dollars per month plus ten dollars per month for each additional dependent. It would also raise earning ceilings to three hundred and three hundred twenty five dollars monthly for single and married men, respectively.

Evidently this bill is a legislative "hot potato", and one which both parties would rather not consider on the floor of the House. The Republicans, and the Democrats are too fearful of shifting political winds to make a definite stand. Mrs. Rogers introduced her bill on January 13th. Since then, it has been pigeon-holed in the Committee on Veterans' Affairs. There it will remain unless veterans themselves take action, to force this prosposal out the committee and on to the House floor by writing their various Congressmen.

The cost of living has dizzily spiralled upwards. Business and labor both seem to be taking a "Devil take the hindmost" attitude. Every day veterans are dropping out of schools throughout the country. An Associated Press dispatch has estimated their number to be 600,000. General Bradley has admitted that 300,000 is a very conservative estimate. Whatever the exact figure, it is a alarming one. The situation is acute.

Veterans are not seeking a handout. They merely ask that in return for their three to five years of service they receive enough subsistence to pay for their monthly necessities while attending school or undergoing training. The G. I. Bill is rapidly becoming a hollow mockery, for its subsistence grants were estimated when the O.P.A. was holding the line on prices. Today there is no O.P.A. Today there is only the student veteran regretfully digging into his savings and wondering what the next month will bring.

America stands to lose its most valuable asset, an educated citizenry. Your future and the future of the country can be greatly improved by the passage of H. R. 870. Write your Congressman today!

May Day in New York . . .

Down the streets of New York, that's our own New York just ninety miles north, May Day parades wound last week in tribute to our allies, and to our uncle Joe.

Oh, what a free nation we are! We don't get sore at anybody. We are the nicest people in town.

In that parade, there were 4500 officers and men of our armed forces, 4500 hundred officers, and women, and men of the armed forces of the United States, serving our nation, flag and constitution, marching under the Red Banner. What's the difference? We march under a green banner on Saint Patrick's Day.

Banners are symbols, what does the Red Banner symbolize? According to the official publications of the Communist International, this banner symbolizes the revolution of the proletaria. Revolution is the only method by which the bourgeois governments can be converted into the desired dictatorship of the proletariat. Our government fits into the Red definition of the bourgeois state. Therefore, our nation must be overthrown by the revolution. The people in the May Day parades are either aware of this feature of the faction they support or they are not.

If they are aware of it then they are treasonous, if they are not, then they are misled fools and should hold no official positions in our government, in armed service or out.

Mother's Day . . .

Writing an editorial on Mother's Day is no easy job. It's not hard to sink into trite sentimentalism on such a subject and the forthright impressive tones used in opinions on national affairs are hardly appropriate.

Love for mother is a very simple thing. It's as natural as playing ball on warm spring days or the smell of burning leaves in the fall or sleighing on the local hillside in the depths of December. It's real and honest and good.

So what can we say? Expression is great when the essence of the subject is truly captured. Love for mother is simple, but great, and it will take more than a college editor to paint the true picture.

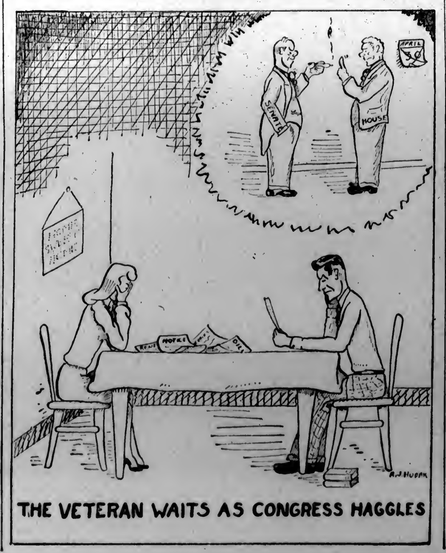
Here goes:

MOTHER'S DAY

A thousand diamond dewdrops
Are sparkling on the grass,
A hundred birds are chirping
A lyric, joyful Mass:
Amid dancing golden daffodils
The tulips nod and wave,
And shafts of golden sunlight
The earth with glory pave.
All Nature's smiling beauties
Bid me be joyful, too;
But that is hard dear Mother,
So far away from you!
God bless you, Mother dear,
And keep you sweet and gay;
God bless you fondly, always —
But especially today.

—WM. M. MOONEY.

But Not One Cent for Veterans . . .



Last week the subsistence checks of the veterans on training or in schools were delayed by the lack of funds. These funds were held up in congress by its neglecting to pass a deficient appropriation bill. These funds were only part of the substance of the bill.

It is very possible that the bill which finally did pass the congress contained appropriations for agencies of doubtful use and that the subject therefore demanded more debate. This feature, however, did not lessen the difficulties encountered by veterans when the money for them did not come through.

Bills of the type under question are known as omnibus bills since they contained much matter that is unrelated. Omnibus bills lend a great deal of efficiency to the work of congress but unfortunately they occasionally confuse the separate issues. Such was the case in hand.

The veteran in school and on training lives what might be called a hand to mouth existence. His income is so low and expenses so high in these inflationary times that a small delay in receiving subsistence causes great hardship. The veteran with a family especially feels this delay for the first of the month is bill day as well as check day. This is so obvious to every veteran that it seems useless to consider and it should seem so to any casual observer.

However, our congress did not consider this difficulty until a storm of protest brought them out of their parliamentary doldrums. We know the money was there, we know that the veterans money was sure to be paid, but we wish that there was a little more legislative efficiency.

LETTERS

Dear Fellows,

Now look, fellows! I admit that my future spouse didn't win the war single-handed. It's quite possible that Eisenhower might even have gotten along without him. It's true that the only brass he ever came in contact with was in saloons from Salina, Kansas to Berlin. Only one stripe (two for a while) ever graced his muscular arm. But he was there! So help me. To read your story on the ASCE elections on page 8 of your April 29th issue, one would guess that he had sweated out the past six years circulating Villanovans.

Just for the record: He enlisted in the Army in December, 1942; June of 1943 found him in the ASTP, first at Fort Reilly, Kansas, and then at the University of Nebraska as an engineer. The high boys decided they needed guys with big feet (though flat) more than engineers, and he was shipped overseas in September 1944 with the 44th Infantry Division of the 7th Army. He was in France, Germany, and Austria before he was finally hospitalized. He next went to Berlin with the US group control council. Jack was finally discharged in January, 1946 and he returned to Villanova in February.

Now, Mr. Editor and Staff, I read your publication with eager anticipation. I enjoyed very much your party at the Ben Franklin. I will even confess that your speech of were the better than most I heard at my own alma mater . . . I just KNOW you would have printed the facts had you known them. So "woncha" set the record straight?

Many, many thanks.

Most sincerely,
Betsey Doughty,
Bucknell, '45.

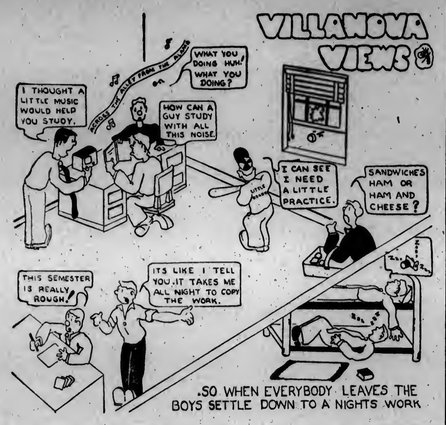
Ed. Note: Be careful what you say to us; our copy reader has a fiancee too.

Pride and Prejudice

The topic which we will consider in this article refers to the opportunity which the Negro has for going into business. This subject was proposed by one of the visitors to the Interracial Club meeting last Thursday night. The thoughts which we give were expressed by Mr. Finlay, one of the guest speakers at this meeting.

"How can the Negro improve his prestige in the American community?" was the question which led to the suggestion that the colored people open their own shops. Usually, successful business people are respected in any given community. However, there are several stumbling blocks which have been placed before the Negro which prevent him from going into business.

First, Mr. Findlay pointed out, a Negro cannot enter into normal competition with white storekeepers, because they cannot buy in the same quantities as whites. Mr. Finlay, who has a small business of his own, explained this fact by indicating the necessity of a small business man making loans to finance his buying. Negroes, generally, cannot walk into a bank and make a loan.



Speaking of loans, the colored veteran should be able to borrow money under the G.I. Bill of Rights. In this case, however, there are two factors to consider.

Primarily, the government will loan up to one half of the desired investment. This holds for both blacks and whites. However, if we consider a cost of $6,000 to open a small shop, we immediately see that the individual is required to put up $3,000 cash. Who, would you say, has the better chance of raising $3,000, the White or the Negro?

Secondarily, Uncle Sam is interested in the type of investment which is going to be made with his money. If the establishment which is to house the new business is appraised at $4,000, it probably is worth only $2,500, because of the repairs which must be made. The low appraisal is due to the locality in which the Negro is permitted to take occupancy, and our government is not interested in a "bad risk locality. (Can't blame it for that.)

This locality question brings up a second point made by Mr. Finlay. Who will purchase the goods of this new enterpreneur? As we stated above, the Negro is not permitted to open a shop in the heart of Philadelphia. The Chestnut Street Merchants Association will not consider a colored member.

The Bull Pen

By JOHN L. KUCHA

This week we are deviating from our usual pattern and will dedicate this entire column to publicizing a matter that is of extreme importance to the veteran student body.

On this page appears a questionnaire which is a serious attempt to find out what economic conditions veterans on this campus are facing. This is not a laughing matter. We sincerely ask that each veteran fill in accurate data. No name need be signed.

During the next week a petition to increase veterans' subsistence will be circulated. We ask all those in sympathy with its requests, sign it and also write their congressmen that the Bill might receive favorable action.

The petition:

To the Majority and Minority Leaders of Congress: WHEREAS, thousands of veterans of World War II have been forced to abandon their education because subsistence rates of Public Laws 346 and 16 have been far outpaced by the rising cost of living, and, WHEREAS hundreds of thousands of other student veterans are in severe financial straits, even though they have exhausted their savings, cashed in war bonds, and borrowed heavily in an effort to complete their schooling, and WHEREAS it was the intent of Public Laws 16 and 346 that veterans be allowed adequate educational opportunities without undue hardships and since it is in the public interest that this aim be fulfilled,

THEREFORE do we, the undersigned, petition the 80th Congress to adopt such legislation that will increase the payments of Public Laws 16 and 346, as presently amended, by $35 monthly with $10 additional for each dependent child.

These increases are embodied in House Resolution 870 which is slowly suffocating in the Committee on Veterans Affairs of the House. Veterans on campuses throughout the country are backing this bill. The major veterans' organizations are reported to be in favor of this bill. But it is up to student veterans themselves to back this legislation. College veterans throughout the country are faced with the common problem of making ends meet. The Universities of Pennsylvania, Temple and La Salle, to mention a few in this locality, are taking part in this general movement to support increases in subsistence.

Bureau of Labor Statistics, U. S. Department of Labor, states that from Jan., 1946, to Jan., 1947, living costs have increased 19.4 percent.

We believe that at the present time they have risen even higher. Student veterans who obtain part time employment to relieve their economic burdens find that their studies suffer as a consequence. Some veterans cannot find this employment in an ever increasingly tight labor market. Married veterans realize this situation even more acutely, since their expenses are proportionately higher.

That's the veterans' problem in a nutshell. Let's see what we can do to help. It's up to you to see that this does not go . . .

Summer Season

By F. ANTHONY HOMANN '50

Dimitri Mitropolos and the Robin Hood Dell Orchestra of Philadelphia are featured in a recent Columbia Masterworks release playing the Serge Prokofiev Piano Concerto No. 3 in C. Mitropolos, as might be expected by one familiar with the recent history of the Robin Hood Dell, not only conducts the orchestra, but plays the solo part as well. This concerto has been performed with Mitropolos as conductor-pianist at the Dell for the last two seasons, and if the concerto has not been well received, certainly the versatility of the conductor-pianist has been enjoyed by the audiences. The idea of Mitropolous playing the piano while conducting the orchestra dates back to 1930. When informed of the illness of Egon Petri, prominent pianist who was to play the Prokofiev concerto under his baton, Mitropolos volunteered to perform his duties. The concert was a success, and the concerto has been associated with his name since then.

The concerto itself, however, does not grow on the listener with repeated hearings. Mitropolos and the Dell Orchestra are equal to the tremendous technique needed for a work which is predominantly percussive and which often shows traces of caustic humor. The concerto was composed rather early (begun in 1917, finished in 1921) in Prokofiev's career, and is notably lacking in the lyricism found in his later compositions, such as "Peter and the Wolf" or the G Minor Violin Concerto.

The fact that this is a recording, and not an actual concert, will not help the listener to appreciate the extraordinary ability of Mitropolos and the orchestra, for the value of the concerto does not equal the ability of the performers.

Decca has recently released its most ambitious adventure in Americana. Assembled together in one album are Bing Crosby, Pat O'Brien, Frederick March, Walter Huston, Brian Donlevy and Agnes Moorehead, who render recitations of American literature which mark milestones in the national culture. The album is called "Our Common Heritage," and contains eight 12" records. All of the renditions are commendable, and to mention one as best of the group would be to slight the others. However, we were singularly impressed by Mr. Huston's interpretative reading of Vachel Lindsay's poem "Abraham Lincoln Walks at Midnight."

Though the album is rather expensive ($10), it will be found eminently worthwhile by those who can afford it.

Jazz fans who favor New Orleans would do well to hear "Kid" Ory's latest recording for Columbia. Leading a Creole jazz band, Ory sings two numbers in Creole French, and displays some first rate trombone playing in the remaining six numbers. Included among the numbers are blues, barrelhouse and stomp. Especially outstanding was a shouting version of the spiritual, "Joshua Fight de Battle of Jerico." It might be mentioned that this album is strictly for fans of New Orleans Jazz, for what is heard on these records will probably not conform to what the average listener considers as jazz. The album will be a welcome addition to the libraries of those who appreciate this type of music.

NROTC Notes

By JOE KENNEY

The Navy Office announced that plans have been completed for all NROTC students to inspect various ships anchored at the Philadelphia Naval Base. The purpose of the trip is to observe the mechanical and electrical construction of the vessels.

Civilians May Attend

Arrangements have been made with Dean Morehouse of the Engineering school, which provide that the Midshipmen accompany the civilian engineering students. A tour will take place every Thursday for four consecutive weeks beginning this week. Transportation will be furnished by the Navy.

Pistol Match to be Held

Penn State, the University of Pennsylvania and Villanova will participate in a national pistol tournament. The aforementioned teams will fire on the range at Penn State. All the other teams will also hold triangular meets, the results of which will be compared to determine the winner.

Graduating Midshipmen, both regular and contract, are eligible to receive NROTC class rings. The rings are similar to those received by the Midshipmen at Annapolis.

Midshipmen Get Shots

The members of the unit are busy receiving innoculations against smallpox, typhoid and tetanus. The shots are required before they take their summer cruise. The men, recently X-rayed by a mobile X-ray unit, are reported to be in fine physical condition.

Watchin' the Wildcats

Blame it on Leighton and Hoffner.

The spring social whirl continued this weekend and the activities that centered around the various colleges over Friday and Saturday found many Villanova men quite prominent.

Chestnut Hill led off last Friday with a big dance and the operators brought back word that John Goldschmidt, Bill Carlin, Hugh Johnson, Don Way and a lot of the other usual Chestnut Hill commuters were in the limelight. The social must have been a real whistler because we looked up from our books in an 8:00 o'clock class on Saturday morning and saw Neal Magee, attired in his Tuxedo, and accompanied by a seeing eye dog, feling his way into class. Neal opened his eyes for an instant when the roll was called but we didn't catch him in a wakeful mood for the rest of the day.

Not to be outdone, Rosemont followed on Saturday with "One Touch of April." From the looks of some of the boys as they made their way home, they were not only touched by April but they were punched in the nose by it. Those seen trying to get over the barbed wire entanglements around the Tea House were: George Phillips, Jimmy Brennan, Joe Remy and Paul Kelly. Bill Price was there, accompanied by his fiancee. Newt Ward, Louise Alvarez, Johnny Platez and Dave Cushwa stood around and watched as Joe Kerrigan tried three times to hit the fountain with his date.

The Haverfordians have filed suit against Walt Chevy who stole the show by performing coin tricks for the benefit of the assembled multitude. He owes his success to the completeness of his Junior Mysto Magic set. Seriously, the boys really handed out bouquets to the girls for two fine affairs.

Hugh Maguire is giving the girls along Route 30 quite a thrill every day as he, clad in shorts, rides along in his Italian built racing bike on the way to crew practice. Upon proper provocation, Hugh will do stunts, "Look Mary, no hands! Look, Mary, no teeth!"

The wave of suicides that has been currently sweeping the campus and concentrating itself in the Junior class can be directly laid to Uncle Sugar's inability to come through with the monthly manna. Many Juniors, anticipating a lean Junior Week, are petitioning the Chaplain to hold special evening services in the chapel for the intention that the greenbacks will be smiling up at them the next time that they go down to the post office.

Gene Feeney has given up looking for meat in the Pie Shop sandwiches and is now looking for the Sports Editor with a loaded gun. It seems that he won the 200 for the Day Hops in the intramural swim last week and the event didn't make the paper. Now Evelyn will never know about it. . .

Professional Survey Teaching

By E. OXFORD

Based upon reports by: U. S. Office of Education; Occupational Outlook Division, Department of Labor; Newsweek).

Outlook—Above all else, American education today stands as an institution of tremendous size: 1 person of every 4 is directly connected with the pursuit of knowledge, with no fewer than 1 million teachers in 225,000 schools instructing over 30 million pupils.

Similarly huge is the vacuum in teaching resources—a war born depletion which can't even aproach being filled for years. This great demand for teachers is more simply explained than it is satisfied:

1. The profession is underpaid.
2. Its burdens are multiplied, particularly in colleges, by increased enrollments.

The average annual salary has risen from $1,440 in 1939 to $1,940 in 1947, a 25% increase, but at least $500 less than private industry income comes. A decade ago, the teacher was envied in his secure position; today he is pitied. Their woeful difficulty is this: the nationwide weekly pay is only $37 a week; 20,000 are receiving no more than $25 per week; 10,000 are making only $12 per week. Economic pressure has pushed teachers into all sorts of spare time jobs: furniture repairing refrigerators, running gas stations, picking cotton, and what have you—anything to gain a living wage.

Student loads are already great and the situation steadily gets worse.

13,000,000 babies born since Pearl Harbor will soon be swarming into schools.

1,550,000 children entered school for the first time, October, 1946; a jump of 60,000 over 1945 entrance enrollment; this entrance rate should reach an all time record of 1,940,000 in 1949, reflecting record-smashing 1943 birth rate of 2,935,000.

Colleges already staggering under mass enrollments can expect, according to Office of Education prediction, a doubling of present enrollment by 1950.

Teachers' college enrollments are gaining after plummeting in 1942-43, but even with an all-time high of 109,000 "emergency" teachers (sub-par replacements) there is not even hope for relief of the present vast shortage, much less for the tougher problem already looming.

Summarily, there is an unprecedented demand for teachers today—demand which will grow as inadequate salaries and overwhelming student loads prevail.

Special Opportunities

Physical Education — With a World War I 60% rejection rate and a World War II 40% rejection rate, America has been, and is, putting more and more emphasis on the Roman "sound mind in a sound body," as shown by the steady increase in the number of P. E. instructors: 1900—4,000; 1930—18,000; 1940—50,000.

But growing much more rapidly is the demand for these teachers: before the war there were over 100,000 positions to be filled and fewer than 20,000 qualified instructors. This balance simply can not change for years. Although the armed forces trained many P. Ed. instructors, few of these can meet school and civilian employment requirements. Further mechanical advancement and shorter working weeks are increasing free time and the need for physical recreation.

The field is wide open for the right men; it is growing and will offer outstanding oportunities for years.

Best Subject Fields—the rapidly changing outlook of America is nowhere better illustrated than in teacher needs by subject: Even in the teacher-dry war years there were enough and almost plenty of English, History and Foreign Language teachers; these branches continue steadily, always, but offer, no spectacular progress as regards mass interest. Today's prodigies, for better or worse, are the industrial arts, commercial education, and the so-called "social studies." The particular demand is for instructors of: Agricultural Science, Home Economics, Business, Physics, Chemistry and Engineering; another opportune field is that of vocational teaching and guidance counseling—"new branches already overburdened in correcting misdirected efforts, etc."

For the prospective teachers, then, the best opportunities center about Science and Business—keynotes of an era of competitive industrialization.

Trends

Elementary and Secondary Schools

1942-43 — Enrollment., 24,155,146; Total teachers, 577,703.

1943-44 — Enrollment, 23,263,616; Total teachers, 865,038.

1944-45 — Enrollment, 23,225,784; Total teachers, 864,547.

1945-46—Enrollment, 23,825,000.

Colleges and Universities

1939-40 — Enrollment, 1,493,203; Total teachers, 131,652.

Fall, 1943 — Enrollment, 1,120,300; Total teachers, 118,125.

Present — Enrollment, 1,500,000; Total teachers, 125,000.

Fall, 1947—Enrollment, 2,000,000; plus.

1949 — Enrollment, 2,500,000-3,000,-000.

1950—Enrollment, 2,800,000-3,300,-000.

Colleges, already crammed with 1½ million students, by Office of Education figures, can expect this enrollment to double in three years. To accommodate this unheard of three million, institutions wil have to spend 5½ billion dollars, or actually twice the value of the nation's entire college plant facilities. They must expand 93%, yet they have fund for an increase of only 33%, and thereby hangs the tale.

Teachers College

1941—October Enrollments, 106,-960.

1943 — October Enrollments, 52,-869; % change, minus 50.6%; Graduation, plus 6%.

1945 — October Enrollments, 66,-803; % change, plus 26.3%; Graduation, plus 13%.

The 1943 enrollment loss is equalled in no other type of 4-year institution. The sub-normal enrollment rates mean similar graduation rates. Substantial increases are expected next year, but not nearly enough. No only has there been an enrollment loss, but quality has suffered as well. Admission requirements having been relaxed in all teachers' colleges having them. This quality rivals quantity problems in American education.

War Emergency Certificate Teachers—The emergency attempt to span the vast gap in the "certificate" teacher—a sub-standard replacement permitted to teach for one or two terms only. Their number has risen alarmingly, jumping to 108,932, an increase of 955% in seven years. This quality-harming level is expected to drop soon.

Qualifications

Traits—Authorities list as essential: Intelligence and The Right Personality. This "right personality, according to polled students consists in: 1) Fairness; 2) Kindness; 3) Appearance; 4) Humor; 5) Patience; 6) Interest in work. Native mental powers include: ability to simplify complex ideas, to organize and clearly demonstrate ideas; the interest to stimulate student; the tolerance to think from another's standpoint; the ability to speak well—these are but the basic fundamentals; the degree of their development determines advancement and teacher value.

Education — The usual license minimum is B.A. or B.S. which includes courses in professional education, psychology and subject of specialization. Education must satisfy the particular state's requirement for certification. Certificates (not wartime papers) are state-issued and allow the owner to teach within the state's boundary.

Elementary teachers are required by most states to have two years of college; twenty demand more than two years; fifteen demand college graduation.

Secondary teachers are generally required to have four years of college; a few demand but two; others specify five. Many large cities want only those with Master's Degrees.

College teachers must have: Bachelor's for instructor; promotion demands Master's, preferably Doctor's degree; Professor's rank calls for Ph. D.

Physical Educators—Physical development plus: a Bachelor's degree is school minimum and a teacher's certificate required in many states. More and more Ph.Ed. instructors must be bona fide faculty members.

Income

Rates varying widely with location and teaching level; the average salary has risen thusly: $1,441 in 1939-40; $1,720 in 1943-44; $1,786 in 1945; $1,900 today.

Population, Location Factors

1946-47—Average, $1,900; Population 10,000-30,000, $2,200; over 100,-000, $3,000 plus.

The pay definitely is in the cities. The nationwide weekly average is something near $38. Mississippi, typifying rural conditions, is lowest of all with a $15.47 average; (Figures from Newsweek).

Teaching Levels

Average, $1,900; Elementary, $1,-850; Junior High, $2,040; High, $2,270; Principals, $2,500-$7,500.

College

Jr. College, $2,100-$3,900; College Instr., $1,800-$2,900; Asst. Prof., $2,200-$4,000; Asso. Prof., $2,900-$5,400; Prof., $4,000-$12,000.

Physical Education

Average, $2,500-$3,000; Beginners, $1,700-$2,100; College instr. 10 yrs., $3,000-$3,500; College directors, $5,-000-$9,000; Coaches, $2,700-$9,000.

Teachers are now striving for minimum of $2,400 a year; For further information write: U. S. Office of Education, Washington, D. C.; (Ph. Ed.) — American Association for Physical Education, 1201 16th St., N. W., Washington, D. C.

Chestnut Hill Is Guest in Song Fest

From 8 to 11 P. M., last Wednesday evening, Neustadter Kreis presented its finest musical talent to the girls of the Chestnut Hill College German Club. The girls enjoyed the program. Refreshments and dancing followed the musicale.

The German Club band, led by George Szymanski, played two of the more famous German pieces, "Lie Lorelei" and "Zu Lauterbach." Then all joined in the rendition of "Du, Du Liegst Mir im Herzen." Jack Reyner, accomplished pianist, played "Toccata in D Minor" by Bach and "Valse in A Flat" by Brahms. Vocalist Martin Binder accompanied by Peter Binder on the piano sang "Wasserflut" by Schubert and "In Der Fremde" by Taubert. Both clubs then joined in singing "Am Brunnen vor dem Tore." A repeat performance by the German band played "Hi-le, hi-lo" and "Trank der noch a Tropche." This was followed by the group singing "Da komnt von den Blauen Huegeln." A duet with Herman Diesel on the violin and George Szymanski on the piano rendered "Serenade" by Schubert and "Traeumerei" by Schuman. The vocalizing of Martin Binder, accompanied by Peter Binder on the piano, treated guests with "In Wunderschoenen Monat Mai" by Schuman. Guests and hosts then joined in rendering "Kein Schoener Land."

Al Litwa Wins Nomination As Outstanding Ball Player

Chojnacki and O'Neill Tied for Second; Kline and Lord for Third

The final returns of the Jack Dempsey Sports Trophy contest to determine the outstanding baseball player has resulted in a clear cut victory for Villanova's stellar center fielder, Al Litwa.

Litwa needed only the paltry sum of 10 votes to win the contest. Once again, this proves that the average Villanova student, even though he talks a lot about school spirit, he rarely backs this talk up with action.

O'Neill and Chojnacki Second

The first string battery mates, Frank O'Neill and Stan Chojnacki were tied with second place with five votes each. Frank has proven himself to be the leading sticker on the team by virtue of his consistent hitting "Staush" with a record of 3 wins and 0 losses is rated the top pitcher on the squad by Coach Weinert.

The third place balloting also resulted in a tie between Joe Lord, who has already won the outstanding basketball player's award and Norm Kline, the stocky little third baseman of the Wildcat's nine. Both player received three votes.

Final Vote

Now that representative players of the four major sports have been chosen, students will be asked in this issue of the Villanovan to choose one from this quartet who they think most completely fills the prerequisites of Sportsmanship, Team spirit, Co-operation, athletic ability and accomplishments. For those who haven't had any interest in this balloting (and there seems to be quite a few) we will list the four athletes chosen as representative of their sport.

In football, Bill Sullivan, Joe Lord in basketball, George Guida in track finally, Al Litwa in baseball.

Litwa Excellent Hitter

Litwa, an education Major, started his baseball playing career while attending Camden High. In his senior year, while playing the same old outfield spot, Al turned in the best batting average of his team. So far this season, he has proven himself by his good fielding and excellent hitting, especially in the Quantico game which he broke up with a circuit clout. In high school, Al also had a varsity slot on the basketball team.

Baseball Team Host to Bucknell And Kings Point

Mariners Here on Wednesday, Bisons to Play on Saturday

The Kings Point Mariners and the Bucknell Bisons invade the campus on Wednesday and Friday of this week. Villanova will be carrying a record of five wins and three setbacks into the midweek encounter when they meet Kings Point at 3 o'clock at Villanova. Kings Point led by a former Villanovan, Ray Stoviac, will offer strong competition for the Wild - cats. Losing to Navy and Maryland in recent games on the road, the Mariners will be at Full strength for their battle with the Weinert-men.

Stoviac Experienced

Ray Stoviac may be remembered as the running mate of Andy Stopper and Jordan Oliver. Ray also played three seasons of baseball under "Doc" Jacobs before going to the "Phillies." During the war Ray played centerfield beside Ted Williams at Pensacola. After the war, he assumed the position as the Kings Point mentor.

Kings Point will be trying to avenge a 44 to 7 trimming at the hands of our gridmen last fall when they meet the "Cats" for the first time on the baseball field. Stoviac promises a tight game if his club can get over the jinx of the road.

Bucknell on Saturday

Bucknell will be here Saturday at 2:30 P. M. The Bisons, while handicapped by weak hitting, hope to come through with a win. Although winning only one game in five starts, the pitching of Art Ralnor has been an encouraging factor in Bucknell's future.

The squad consists of several holdovers from last year. Billy

Wilmington Wins Filler Game, 11-7

Blue Rocks Score 5 Runs in Fifth to Overcome 'Cat Lead

The Blue and White met the "Blue Rocks" of Wilmington on the latter's diamond on April 27th. The event turned for the worst in the fifth inning and the college boys came home with a loss to the Interstate League baseballers.

Wilmington led off with three runs in the first inning but the Vills piled up four in the second. The advantage was of short duration for the 'Rocks' came back with three in their half of the second. The 'Cats returned in the third with one run and garnered two in the fifth to assume the lead for the second time. Then came the storm of five runs and the scoring was over for the day.

Wilmington had 15 hits to Villanova's 9 but in the field the clubs were even with two errors apiece. Charley Comerford led the losers with two hits and every 'Cat safetied but O'Malley and the pitchers.

The game was hastily arranged as a filler for the postponed Phillie classic, when Wilmington invited the College down before their season began. The Blue Rocks are in the Class "A" Interstate League and operate as a farm club for the Philadelphia Athletics.

Guida Paces Track Team at Annapolis

Ross Wins Mile, Coleman Ties in Pole Vault as Villanova Places 3rd in Triangular Meet

George Guida, Villanova's ace trackman, lived up to all pre-season billing, by winning the 440 and 220 events in the triangular meet against Manhattan and Navy at Annapolis last Saturday. Browning Ross nosed out Navy's Nick Smursyn in the mile. Bucky Coleman was the only fieldman to even place against the strong Navy team in tieing for first pace in the pole vault, while Dave Williams took the mile event.

Ross Wins Mile

Despite Guida's double win, the big news of the day was Ross Browning Ross breezing in over Smusyn, the favorite. The 4.19 mile turned in by Ross was one of the fastest ever turned in by the Villanova Freshman and was featured with a last minute kick. Ross started his stretch drive on the last lap and breezed in front of Smusyn by three yards at the tape.

Guida drove home in the four-forty in 49.1 leading Rogers of Manhattan and Bigley of Navy by a good margin, Cutting the distance in half, George picked up his slippers to the tune of 21.8. This terrific pace wore down Rogers and Cianciabella of Manhattan. George seems to be picking up speed earlier than he has been, it might be that George will add a few more crowns to his already be-diademmed head come next season.

Williams and Thompson of the "Old Vill" ran one-two in the two mile. Hall, of Navy and Flinn, of Manhattan followed the blue and white pair into the finish far behind the 9.40.8 posted by Williams. This was the fourth track event won by Villanova as against five for Manhattan and none for Navy.

Coleman Ties

Bucky Coleman, former West Catholic flash now with the Big "V" was the only man to cause the Navy supremacy in the field events. He tied towering Ed Burrow of Navy in the Pole Vault at 12 ft. 6 in. Bucky had some small trouble with his poles or the ace would have certainly rigged a higher mark. Allen, of Villanova tied for second in this event with Dwight, of Navy with 11 feet.

Coleman was the only bright spot for anybody but Navy in the win column of the field events but Manhattan came through with himself and shot down the near sideline for 68 yards and the third score.

Phil Snyder was the fourth man to cross the double white line. Tom McCarthy, with 44 yards in two tries and Andy Gordon, with two completed passes, set the ball up on the Lafyette 2 for Snyder to push over.

Although the boys from upstate didn't actually score, they did constitute a threat to the Villanova goal line all day. On one occasion, Blozijowski, a 212 lb. fullback, galloped 47 yards over his own right tackle to set the ball on the Wildcat 7. On the next play, he carried for 5 more yards. However, the Villanova front wall hardened and on the next two tries, Mr. Blozijowski got nowhere. So on fourth down, Jimmy Kovacs, the Lafayette h.b., dropped back and shot a quick pass over the line. But Bobby Connors, Villanova's new freshman halfback from West Catholic High, reached out his right and batted down the ball to end the threat.

The final tally came as the result of lots of preliminary work. Johnnie Pendino, still another promising freshman, intercepted a Lafayette pass and ran off 18 yards before he was pulled down. Tom Clavin added 14 more. The next 3 plays netted only 7 yards, so on last down, Andy Gordon again dropped back and chucked a long pass to Al Schmidt, who had to fight 11 Lafayete men for 11 yards, to score.

On the defensive side of the ledger, big (27-0), good-natured John Sandusky proved he has lots of speed in knocking down two men to block a punt in the closing minutes of the scrimmage.

Aside from the usual cuts and bruises, Villanova sustained one injury that might prove to be permanent. Tony Cocco, a substitute end, twisted a cartilidge in his knee while blocking Lafayette's line backer. Tony was sidelined all last year with the same injury.

Unofficial Crew Practice Starts

Villanova's unofficial crew continued into the second week of work on the oars in semi-darkness. Due to schedule difficulties encountered, the workouts have been starting at 6:30 so that all candidates can be on hand.

Practice thus far has consisted mostly in the eight oared shells with Mr. Kain, who is coaching the team, in the coxswain's seat giving individual instructions. Constructive criticism given by more experienced candidates is helping the green members get the feel of the boat.

Large Turnout

After last week's call, a large turnout resulted on last Tuesday evening. The new men were all given an opportunity to row with the various eights. A greater turnout is expected this week.

It is hoped that after one of the eights gets a little seasoning, they will be able to participate in a few informal races with other schools that row on the Schuylkill river. In that case, they would be working at a distinct disadvantage since other crews on the river, organized late in the winter, have gotten quite a head start.

Lane, coach of the Bisons, announced that his infield would consist of Doeblieron at first base, with Hockburn, Holter and Bobby Camac to round out the infield. Camac, a Radnor boy, played against several of the Villanovan players in the Main Line league league while a member of the Wayne squad.

Rainor or Swanson to Start

The mound duties will be taken up by either Rainor, who has posted Bucknell's only win or Hal Swanson. Directing the Bisons behind the plate will be team captain Gene Hubka, a veteran with a loud and strong bat.

Coach Phil Weinert will probably use the same lineup that did so well against Quantico last Saturday. The boys are looking forward to finishing the season in a blaze of glory with a streak of wins.

In The Sportlight

By NED HOFFNER

The business at the "Hot Corner" this year is being capably handled by Norm Klein. Though heavy-set, his agility and consistent batting performances have made him Mr. Weinert's choice for a starting position for the past two seasons. Last year his batting mark topped the .300 notch and all performances to date indicate a repetition of '46's feat.

Norm got his start in athletics at Lancaster Catholic High School where he participated in both football and basketball. He was a guard on the basketball team for three years and captained the squad in his senior year, 1939. Fall found him as a guard on the football team and he was first string material in that department. Baseball wasn't included in the sports curriculum at Lancaster Catholic so Norm picked up his experience in sandlot games and on various teams in the service.

The next step in Norm's career was the Army Air Corps. He flew B-26's in the E.T.O., and after his discharge matriculated at Villanova in the Fall of 1945.

Besides keeping up in his studies in Civil Enginering, Norm found time to hold down a starting spot on Mr. Severance's five for the 1945-46 season. He leans to baseball, however, as his first love.

Klein has two years of ball ahead of him before he graduates from Villanova. He hopes to stay active in some form of organized baseball after graduation.

SPORTORIAL

By HUGH JOHNSON
Sports Editor

Well, Al Litwa won the baseball contest, and our hats are off to him for some fine work so far this year.

Now comes the sad part. In a school of 1900 students, there were only 33 that voted last week. What's the story? Did somebody steal all the remaining 1867 ballots out of the box? Hardly! We had an ex-Navy lock on the ballot box.

Did we miscount the votes? Hardly, again! We had two Chem. Engineers on the counting committee. Could it have been that the rest of the school just didn't give a hang as to which baseball player should be singled out for individual merit????

What do you think about it? . . . After all, do you go to this school or no?

Let's look at ourselves as we really are! The other day, I heard a fellow say: "Villanova — boy, there's a school with spirit!" I had to sit down for a minute to figure out just whom he was trying to kid. If he had seen the Georgetown students last year, 150 miles away from home, almost shout the Villanova cheering section out into 21st Sreet with their "Hoya-Saxa's," even though they lost, I doubt if he would have said that. If he had seen the meager handful of students that followed their team to West Point and Annapolis, each no more than 150 miles away from Philly, I don't doubt that he would have changed his mind. He would have hidden his face if he had counted the number of rooters at the home basketball games before Lord & Company made the national headlines!

At the recent Villanova-Dartmouth game, I heard someone shout, in apparent sincerity: "Go on, you're not playin' in the Ivy League now." Obviously, this outfit must have something and . . . they do!

They might not have a winning team, as proven by the score, but they did have close to a hundred fans on hand . . . all the way from New Hampshire. Spirit . . . School Spirit! What did we have? Oh, just a team that played shut-out ball, and about 300 of the old standbys to cheer their team on.

Where is everybody? Where are the rest of the fellows that go to this school? Home, listening to the A's game? . . . or down at Convention Hall catching the doubleheader? . . . or are they all standing in line in front of Weightman Hall waiting for their season tickets to the Penn games???

And finally, what about the fellows that play on the teams? Y'know, this is a ballot about YOU! One of your teammates is going to win this, and you, above all, should know who would best be fit to win this award . . . the highest honor that can be bestowed upon an athlete to know that his schoolmates chose him above all others as the school's ideal. If every member of the track, football, baseball and basketball team voted, we would have at least 200 votes to start with!!

Come on fellows, this all yours . . . This is a way to show that you are behind the teams . . . this is one way to show your hand.

This is the last balloting for the outstanding athlete. The winner will get the Jack Dempsey Trophy. You can pick from only one of the four previous winners, namely: Bill Sullivan, football; Joe Lord, basketball, George Guida, track; and Al Litwa, baseball. Remember, the six points on which you should base your voting, (printed on the ballot).

Let's go on this last vote fellows. The fellow that you elect will enter the Adams Hat Contest Finals all over the nation. Keep this thought in mind when voting because our representative will be competing against the "Outstanding Athlete" of over 400 colleges throughout the country.

C&F, Engineering, Summer School Schedule Listed

Half Semester Students to Attend Last Summer School

Villanova college will hold summer school sessions during the months of July and August this year for all students needing credits to complete their respective semesters.

All Engineering students who completed approximately 9 credits last summer and are currently registered as Freshman 2½, Sophomore 1½, or Sophomore 2½ must attend during July and August and will take the courses listed below decided to make them regular.

Present Freshmen 2½ will be registered as Sophomore's 1 and will take:

Religion 105, 1 credit; Mathematics, 131, 4 credits; Psychology 34, 3 credits.

Sophomore 1½ to Sophomore 2: Religion 106, 1 credit; C. E. 210, 12, 5 credits; Economics 102, 3 credits.

Sophomore 2½ to Junior 1: Ch. E., electives C. E., C. E. 234, M. E. 211; E. E., Eco. 102, Rel. 106, C. E. 210, 212; M. E. 201, M. E. 229.

A number of students lack a few subjects of being clear through the semester for which they are currently registered. Many of these will be offered this summer if there is sufficient enrollment.

In order to arrange for courses other than those listed on the above notice, it is necessary that this be made known to room 112, Mendel Hall as soon as possible.

Alumni Awards Memorial Plaque

The Villanova Club presented a hand-embossed memorial resolution to Mrs. Martin J. McLaughlin in memory of her late husband's loyal and devoted service to the Alumni Association.

Mr. William Friel, Secretary-Treasurer of the Alumni Association, accompanied by Jeffrey Dougherty '12, and Dr. Micheal Fogarty, '18, made the presentation. Mr. Dougherty and Dr. Fogarty were close friends of the late Mr. McLaughlin '14, who died in October 20, 1946.

Mrs. McLaughlin was deeply touched and she expressed her thanks to the Alumni Association for their thoughtfulness and consideration in presenting the resolution.

An active member in alumni activities. Mr. McLaughlin served as a member of the Advisory council to the college president, as president of the Alumni Association, and as a member of its board of governors.

Adopted at a meeting of the Board of Governors of the Philadelphia Club and incorporated into the minutes, the resolution reads in part, "Be it resolved that this is a remembrance of, and a sincere appreciation for, the loyalty, zeal, and devotion displayed by this outstanding person to all things Villanovan."

campus, all assembled in the Field House at 3 P. M. Here they were addressed by the College President, Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A. After Fr. McGuire's address a musical program was offered by the campus musical organizations under the direction of the Rev. Ralph Handran, O.S.A.

The Symphonic Band presented a spirited program of light music with such works as "National Emblem March," "Mexican Hat Dance" and "Night and Day." Fr. Handran then introduced the Double Octette which sang three sea chanties ("Song of the Jolly Roger," "Eight Bells" and "Away to Rio"). Also included in their program were the songs "On the Mall" and "Oklahoma." The final offering was "Reverie," a piano concerto, with Vincent Gammachs at the piano accompanied by the band.

With this last event the first day of Junior Week was officially closed to an end even though many of the visitors lingered on the campus.

A Special Announcement!

Due to the fact that Mr. Mallick is resting in his sack in preparation for the coming Junior Week, I have been asked to write this column. So here goes!

Things have been humming in the Villanovan office for the past few days. It seems that the final arrangements for Junior Week are being made in this office, and it is a regular battle to push your way into this sanctuary. To get to a typewriter is just impossible. So let us hope that Junior Week will be as big a success as is expected.

This one was taken from a local paper the other day, and we repeat it for those who do not read anything but the Villanovan: "Joe Krantz—Your wife called while you were in class. She wants you to come home after your last class in order to take care of the baby. Also please don't forget to run the sweeper through the living room."

All that we can say about this is that it never would have happened a few years ago.

The Contract students, after visiting the Philadelphia Quarter Sessions Court, came back with this one.

"Guilty or not guilty?" thundered the judge. "Dunno," said the prisoner meekly, "I ain't heard the evidence yet."

Quizzes

I think that I shall never see
A quiz on which I'll get a "B."
A quiz on which I'll do my best,
And with the others pass the test,
A quiz that almost seems to say,
"Come, come, you fool, don't take all day."
A quiz that almost seems quite fair,
But secretly holds a dare,
Upon whose answers fate has lain,
Why must I always miss the train?
Quizzes aren't made by fools, you see,
Nor are they passed by fools like me.

We welcome the coming of spring with this one:

Gone are the field jackets
Brought home from the war.

Civilians once more!

The new math club should enjoy this contribution from the Brown and Gold:

Given: I love you.
To prove: You love me.
Statements:
1. I love you
2. Therefore I'm a lover.
3. All the world loves a lover.
4. You're the whole world to me.
5. Therefore you love me.

The Brown and Gold also comes through with this one:

Soph Boarder: "Please, Father, may I go out tonight?"

Junior Boarder: "May I go out tonight, Father? The show is over at ten."

Senior Boarder: "I'm going out tonight, Father."

P. S. What happens to the lowly "Frosh"?

Flash! John P. Mallick was just seen returning to his sack after waking up for his daily trip to the mail box.

Rumor has it that a resident of Mendel Hall is taking part in Immaculata's Fashion Show in the near future. We are certain that he would welcome a large attendance from Villanova.

The prof was fuming because some of his students were late. In a rage by the time they got there, he finally calmed down long enough to say, "You should have been here at 8!"

"Why?" they asked, "What happened?"

That is all, brother.

Seminarians Ask Students To Save Cancelled Stamps

Seminarians at the Augustinian College in Washington, D. C, announced the formation of an Augustinian Mission Stamp Department to raise funds for Augustinian foreign missions. These missions are located in China, Africa, Bolivia, Peru and the Philippine Islands.

Cancelled stamps, if collected in large numbers and sorted, can be sold to stamp dealers. While the funds thus raised are not great, in the case of mission work a little goes a long way. The Augustinian seminarians in the theological college at Washington have requested the cooperation of the Villanova students and Alumni in collecting cancelled stamps. To be helpful in this endeavor the stamps must have about a half inch of paper from the envelope around the stamp. The stamps thus collected may be sent to Augustinian Mission Stamp Department, 3900 Harewood Rd., N. E., Washington, 17, D. C.

Polish College Club Holds Dance At Ben Franklin

Villanova Men Present at Pageant of Folk Lore

Amid colorful and gay trappings reminiscent of Polish festivals, the Polish Intercollegiate Club held its pageant and ball at the Benjamin Franklin Hotel in Philadelphia. "Polish Night" took place on Thursday evening, May 1st with a great number of Villanova men on hand.

At 10:30 P. M. the ballroom lights were dimmed, and a pageant was presented on the stage. The orchestra rendered traditional polkas, mazurkas and kujawiaks, and the Polish Folk Dance Circle of New York, under the direction of Bronislaw Matusz, vigorously interpreted the music in well-executed dances. This group has appeared in several operas, including a performance of Moniuszko's folk opera, "Halka."

Miss Blanche Nowicka, of Philadelphia, a talented young singer sang some songs of Poland. They were received with enthusiastic applause, and she graciously obliged the audience with several encores.

Many Parents Attend

The event gave an opportunity for the parents of the members to mingle with the collegians and guests from surrounding areas in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and New York, were very much in evidance.

In its formal aspect, "Polish Night" increased the prestige of the Polish Intercollegiate Club. Before the program representatives from many Polish parishes and civic organizations were received by the chairwoman of the affair, Miss Adele Przybylowska.

Walter Ossowski and his orchestra played the music for the dancing and the full ensemble provided polkas and obereks with the gusto of a symphonic orchestra.

Hence, back to the slum which you came, black "brother." There can be no black trade in the heart of the white neighborhood, and the colored cannot afford to spend what they are not allowed to earn. To make matters worse, the white shop keepers, buying at the advantage, sell in competition with the Negro in the Negro's own community. This means that the white man can benefit by trade from the white and colored consumer, but the colored man can receive no white and very little colored trade. Fair isn't it?

We have offered this problem as practical evidence of the Negro situation today. This has been purely an informative discussion offered in the hope that the readers of this article will stop to consider the truth of the Negro problem before condemning these Christian brothers.

Needy Negro Clothing Drive Continues Here

Student Contributions to Aid Philadelphia Area Colored Parishes

The Catholic Intercollegiate Interracial Council, comprising the six Catholic Colleges in the Philadelphia area, is sponsoring a clothing drive. Starting on May 8th, this drive continues for two week, terminating on May 21st.

The purpose of this drive is to obtain needed clothing for the poor in Negro parishes in this area. Conditions are so deplorable that the children of many families are unable to attend school due to the lack of necessary clothing. These little ones are our younger brothers and sisters before God.

Many of us have been called upon to aid the victims of war-torn Europe and Asia, and most of us have gladly contributed. Here we have an opportunity to help the unfortunate in our own country, so let us give no less generously.

Any article of clean, wearable clothing will be appreciated. Not only is children's apparel needed. Every piece will serve a good purpose. Although you may not have much to give, every item you contribute will give some family that much more reason to give thanks.

Boxes in which you may deposit your gifts will be placed at the main entrances of Mendel Hall and the Commerce and Finance Building.

Prom Goes Over With Applause

Subdued lights, floral beauty, and strains of sweet music by Ray Eberle and his ensemble were the setting for the 1947 Junior Prom, held in the Field House, on Friday evening, May 9th. The affair, the crowning social event of the year, was a great success from an entertainment standpoint.

The Prom was the climaxing event of Junior Week, bringing to an end the first Junior Week since 1941. Nick Marziani and Bernard Borschke, of the Prom committee, were pleased at the turnout.

Ray Eberle and his orchestra, playing here for the first time, were well received, and the popular orchestra leader graced the occasion with vocal interpretations for which he is best known. The music was well received, as attested by the applause and favorable comment.

The affair uncovered many of the personalities of the campus in an atmosphere of joviality, and many acquaintances were renewed among the mingling couples between dances, Rev. Michael J. O'Donnell, O.S.A., Moderator of the class, received the couples as they arrived, and contributed to the success of the evening.

Mr. Friel Asks All Seniors To Complete Questionnaires

Mr. William Friel, 3d, Placement Director, has announced that all Seniors graduating in June are requested to visit him in order to complete placement questionnaires. The questionnaire, together with the personal interview, will be used to establish contact with personnel representatives from various industries. It will enable the Placement Director to facilitate immediate employment in existing vacancies. Mr. Friel will receive the Seniors in his office in room 221 Mendel Hall, at their earliest convenience.

The placement service is rendered by the college as an aid in placing all graduates in positions of their choice. The bureau has been expanding steadily since the end of the war, and maintains contact with personnel placement executives from many companies who are in search of ambitious college graduates.

Doctor Thomas Impresses ASME

Large Audience Enjoys Spectacular Science Demonstration

One of the most stimulating lectures given at Villanova this season was delivered by Doctor Phillips Thomas at the A.S.M.E. smoker. The smoker was held last night at the C&F auditorium.

Dr. Phillips Thomas is a scientist of long standing and is connected with the Westinghouse Research Laboratories. The lecture was entitled "Adventures in Electricity," and included demonstrations of communication devices, light beam relay, heter-o gun, light beam radio, and the stroboscope.

Interesting to All

Although the audience was made up of a majority of potential engineers, the subject was handled so capably and with such clarity that everyone present left with an understanding of the principles presented. This affair was the revival of the annual smoker held by the A.S.M.E. and all students were invited.

The demonstrations were spectacular, and enhanced the subject matter greatly. Dr. Thomas' delivery was excellent. He was especially fine in his account of the development of high speed communications. He presented an historical sketch which portrayed all the eminent inventors in their respective historical positions.

Impressive Demonstrations

Some of the more impressive demonstrations were: blowing out the lights and relighting them by means of a match, playing reveille on a series of light beam relays connected to chimes, and a stroboscopic demonstration in which a ten dollar bill was made to appear as though it were eighty dollars.

The students who attended this lecture will attest to the fact that this was one of the most impressive scientific lectures of the year.

Arts Frat Literary Publication Due in Villanovan May 27

Under the present plans of the Publications Committee of the Delta Pi Mu, the Literary Magazine sponsored by that group will be published on May 27.

This edition will represent the combined efforts of contributors from all departments of the college. This fact, stressed in an earlier issue of the Villanovan, is one of the main hopes of the Arts Fraternity for making the magazine truly representative of student literary ability.

Contributions may be poetry, short stories, essays, or prose sketches. The one qualification for acceptance is general literary excellence.

All projects may be turned in to Don Collins at the Villanovan Office or to Rev. John McShea, O.S.A. The original deadline of May 9th has now been extended.

Due to the current newspaper shortage, the circumstances of the publication's release are not certain. It will probably appear as a supplement to the regular issue of the college weekly on the aforementioned date.

Cuban Scientist Visits College On U. S. Tour

Dr. Francisco de La Carrera y Fuentes Inaugurates Tour By Visit to Villanova

By GEORGE SZYMANSKI

Inaugurating his tour of colleges and universities in nine states, Dr. Francisco de la Carrera y Fuentes, Director of the Department of Chemistry and Vice Dean of the School of Sciences at the University of Havana, Cuba, visited Villanova College on Wednesday, May 7th. He was received by Rev. F. X. McGuire, O.S.A., College President, and Dr. E. L. Haenisch, Professor of Chemistry, who accompanied him on a tour of the campus and the chemistry laboratory.

Dr. de la Carrera is visiting the United States at the invitation of the Department of State. He has been awarded a grant-in-aid by the Division of International Exchange of Persons to enable him to visit universities, educational centers and scientific institutions in the United States, and to confer with colleagues in the field of chemistry. Dr. de la Carrera expressed his admiration of the efficient handling of the increased number of chemistry students at Villanova. He had a first-hand opportunity to become acquainted with the problems that he will face when the University of Havana begins the construction of a new chemistry building. He inspected the embryonic chemical engineering building and was impressed by the bustling activity. The entire staff of the Chemistry Department was presented to the distinguished guest.

Dr. de la Carrera, whose special field of interest is inorganic chemistry, conducted advanced studies in chemistry at Columbia University during the summer of 1934, and at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and Harvard University in 1938-1939.

Villanova Veterans Dissatisfied With Present Allotment

Results of the recent "Veteran's Subsistence Poll" show that the great majority of Villanova's veterans are not receiving large enough allotments to maintain themselves without drawing upon their savings, or acquiring other sources of income.

A total of 229 questionnaires were turned in to the Villanovan office. Of these questionnaires 32 were turned in by married men and 197 by single men.

The single men reported monthly expenditures of approximately $42 in excess of their monthly subsistence checks, while married men reported a $53 excess in expenditures.

Consensus of Answers

In answer to the question, "Have you had to seek employment?" 54 single men answered affirmatively and 110 answered negatively. Of the married men, 14 said "yes" and 12 said "no."

To the question, "If not, will it be necessary for you to do so in the future in order to continue at school?" 115 single men answered "yes" and 15 answered "no," while 16 married men answered in the affirmative and one answered in the negative.

In answer to the question, "Do you think the government should raise the subsistence allowance?" all but eleven checked "yes," and all but fourteen favored the Rogers Bill (H. R. 810) for increasing subsistence.

Of those who disapproved the Rogers Bill, two said that it did not provide enough of an increase, while one said it provided too much. One married man said he would rather see lower prices than an increase in subsistence.

Only eight men reported that they were able to maintain themselves on their subsistence checks. All of these were single and they averaged 22 years of age, which is also the average age of all the veterans answering the questionnaire.

The average age of the married men was 24.

One student who reported no excess expenditures added a note saying, "I am living with friends, thank heaven, otherwise I would be financially embarrassed at all times. Next year I don't believe I will be able to live with my friends. Financially I will be 'kaput.' $65 will supply nothing."

Of those veterans under Public Law 16, 83% reported that their expenditures exceeded their income from subsistence checks; 42% stated that they had to seek employment to maintain themselves.

Summary

In summation:

Present subsistence allotments are not sufficient for veteran students to maintain themselves. The Rogers Bill meets with the approval of these students and the subsistence allotments under its provisions approximately meet their needs.

Apparent discrepancies of total votes are due to the fact that not all questions were answered on each questionnaire.

Letter to 'Bulletin'; N.S.O. Election Procedure Passed by Council

After the establishment of a bare quorum, the Student Council meeting was called to order at 6:30 P. M. last Tuesday night in Room 215 Mendel Hall by Acting Chairman Don Collins.

Listed on the agenda were five items:

1. Acceptance or rejection of a letter to the Sports Editor of the "Philadelphia Evening Bulletin."
2. Revision of the Constitution to allow greater representation, and to change existing criteria concerning those eligible for membership.
3. Acceptance or rejection of the suggestions submitted by a committee on NSO nominations.
4. Formal acceptance of the Arts Fraternity representative.
5. Plans for nomination and election of class officers and Student Council representatives and plans concerning election of the Chairman and Vice-Chairman of next year's Student Council.

Bulletin Letter

Concerning the first item, the Council voted to send the letter. The letter was written due to an implication appearing in a sports story in the Bulletin about six weeks ago concerning Joe Lord's sportsmanship. The article stated that "Chink" Crossin, U. of P. basketball star, could have been high scorer of the area had he not shared the ball with his team mates. The Council took offense at the article because they believed that it implied that Joe Lord, the high scorer, did "hog" the ball. The letter stated that the students of Villanova College take offense at the article and asks that the Sports Department of the Bulletin exercise more discretion in editorial opinions in the future.

The second article of the agenda was postponed for discussion at a later date.

Council Posts For Next Year To Be Filled Tonight

Parent Group Holds First Elections for '47-'48 Terms

Members of the Student Council will elect their officers at a meeting in room 215 Mendel on Tuesday, May 13, at 6 P. M. Councilmen will choose their Chairman, Vice - Chairman, and Secretary-Treasurer at this time.

In accordance with the constitution of the Student Council, the Chairman and Vice - Chairman must be chosen from the ranks of the Junior II councilmen, while the Secretary-Treasurer may be a Soph II, Junior I or Junior II.

The men elected at this time will hold office for two semesters, barring unforeseen circumstances.

Men eligible for the offices of Chairman and Vice-Chairman are: Don Collins, Matthew Kearney, Pete Palillo, Bill Altenpohl.

The following men, along with those listed above, are eligible for the office of Secretary - Treasurer: Gerry Connors, Joe D'Auria.

Don Collins, Acting Chairman, will conduct the nominations and elections. The present Secretary-Treasurer is Matthew Kearney.

The coming elections assume an aura of extreme importance with the ever-increasing activity of the Student Council. In the past few months the council has made strides in the fuller exercise of student government, and from all indications, its role will become even more important in the future.

The Home Stretch . . .

As they round the last turn, both jockey and horse let everything out for the finish. This final burst of speed wins for many a combination. So too, it helps all come closer to winning.

Let's apply this system to our semester's work and see what happens. For many, a little extra effort will put them in the front of the field. For others, it will pull their averages up a little higher. For none will the effort be wasted. This extra effort is hard to get into motion, but once in motion, it is not very difficult to continue.

To be sure, some students feel they have passed "the hump" and are going to coast to a finish. Others may be in a kind of lethargy and may not realize it. Let us all investigate our standing. No matter where we are, an extra effort cannot hurt us. So give that little extra and finish "in the money." Then, no matter how we finish, we will feel better for it.

Men of Intelligence Needed . . .

If college has any effect on you at all, it is very probable that you will leave Villanova with at least a respect for intelligence. Although there are many college graduates to whom a college education is little more than a pleasant four year sojourn, it is more than an optimistic guess to say that most college graduates "know that they don't know." Only the most dense or the most indolent student fails to come to a realization of his own inadequacies.

Although this realization is one of the most simple and common of a college student's characteristics, its good effects on the society as a whole can not be overlooked. The political history of the United States is too full of instances where the public did not appreciate the importance of intelligence in the selection of their representatives. They did not realize that the representative of a group has to be more than a mere member of the group. The result of this has been a great amount of backtracking and wasted time for men who don't understand a problem can hardly make laws to solve it.

This fumbling while it had its ill effects, confined itself for the most part to the United States. Today the situation is no longer the same, for America in the light of her physical might is looked to as a world leader. For the sake of the world Congress must act with profound intelligence on many everyday problems. The effects of our action are too far reaching and too important to world peace for them to be fraught with error.

It is no longer sufficient that our representatives be "upright people" or know "what we want." Our representatives must be intelligent men of the world and not merely Kansas farmers or Pennsylvania steelmen or New York bankers. They must have a true and large understanding of the whole world. In other words — they must be well educated men.

Aiding the selection of such men is the role of any college man. The college student is a good judge of intelligence as well as character. He can exert influence to see that the right men do get into office. He can aid society by utilizing his realization of the need for men who have what it takes.

Security in A Shifting World . . .

The United States Navy is interested in having a number of college graduates commissioned as Ensigns in the Supply Corps of the Regular Navy. The proposition offered is very enticing to both married and single college students. Security in a time of great economic crisis is the foremost feature of the offer. A substantial yearly salary of $3000 is offered to single Ensigns and approximately $500 more to the married men. This is a substantial increase over the wartime level of pay for this rank.

Higher ranks are being offered according to the years of experience acquired after obtaining a scientific degree. Some of the principal offers are:

Navy veterans with two years college: Ensign.
Graduate Engineers: Ensign.

Graduate Engineers—3 years experience: Lieut. (j.g.).

Petroleum Engineers—3 years experience: Lieut. (j.g.).

Ex-Coast Guard Officers: approx. same rank.

Ex-Marine Officers: approx. same rank.

Doctors: Lieut. (j.g.).

Dentists: Lieut. (j.g.).

The eligibility requirements for each category may be obtained from The United States Naval Procurement Officer, 13 So. 13th St., Phila., Pa.

Another highlight of the program is the fact that one may enlist now and complete his schooling before entering active duty.

The social and professional contacts gained while in these service capacities will be more numerous and more advantageous than those found in normal civilian life. You can have all the opportunities of travel, education, security, social life, and a pride in serving your country, in the finest peacetime Navy in the world.

I. R. C. News

The Regional International Relations Club conducted an imitation Session of the Security Council of the United Nations Monday evening, May 5. Delegates took an active part in the two questions discussed. The topics discussed were: (1) the Palestine Problem; and (2) Aid to Grece and Turkey.

Regan Represents Poland

William Regan of Villanova speaking for the Polish Delegate submitted the following points relating to the Truman Aid Program. 1) The issue of financial aid to Greece and Turkey is far more simple than it is made to seem. The interjection of flowery rhetoric obscures the attempt to divide the nations of the Assembly into separate camps. In this manner unity on any issue that comes before this body may be destroyed.

2) This is an attempt to draw the line between those nations who would help Greece and those who would not. In observing the plight of the starving Greeks, so courageous and noble in their struggle, you picture yourself as the acme of mercy. Yet, all who do not see eye to eye with your keenly heralded charity are accused of political aggrandizement and cultural murder.

3) Our nation is as sincere in its desire to aid the Greeks as any other one. We cannot, however, support any plan where the real purpose of such financial assistance is to form a blockade excluding nations of divergent views.

4) This is a violation of the General Assembly resolution forbidding aid to any country for political purposes.

5) My country asks thorough supervision of all that Greece may receive express help for the Greek people. Thus an economic instrument would not be utilized to achieve political ends.

6) In conclusion if you actually desire to aid the Greeks why do you not agree to such a simple arrangement?

Sullivan Represents France

Edward Sullivan of Villanova representing France presented his views as follows:

1) In relation to the Palestine question France wishes to see the refugees receive homes but agrees with the United Kingdom in her quotas for entrance.

2) Our North African lands make us desirous of continued British control in that area.

3) My country is of the opinion that another European nation is using its influence in European countries to force itself on a Free Palestine Government and constitute a threat to our North African possessions.

4) Aid to Turkey means much to France for economic and military reasons, but the right of the Soviet Union cannot be ignored. Russia has a legitimate reason for being concerned about Turkey since that nation controls the openings to her ports.

5) France would like to know the extent of military aid to Greece and Turkey.

6) Do the people of Greece favor the present Greek Government?

Britain Represented by Stanley

The United Kingdom represented by Jack Stanley submitted the following statements:

1) The British are carrying out the League of Nations Mandate and therefore must be allowed to remain there that order be kept neither to the determent of the Jews or Arabs.

2) The British Army is effectively standing between Jews and Arabs and preventing civil war from breaking out between them.

Commenting on the Truman Aid Program he spoke as follows:

1) It has been the traditional policy of the British government to see that the Russians did not enter the Eastern Mediterranean especially since the advent of Communism. British home problems now make this burden impossible to be carried out and American aid to the Turks and Greeks is greatly welcomed by them. In such a way Greece and Turkey will be saved from Russian influence.

The Bull Pen

By JOHN L. KUCHA

The political pot seems to be brewing and may be boiling over tonight at the Student Council meeting to be held at 6 in Mendel Hall. Rumor has it that a few dead cats may be exhumed. Be there!

The Stork seems to be giving "Prospective Poppa" George Pavalko a hard time. We hope that by the time you read this, George will be passing out cigars. If he isn't, probably it will be George who will be passing out.

Headline in the Bulletin: London Breathes Easier; Fish Market Strike Ends. And speaking of the Bulletin, Villanovans all seem to enjoy "Ethical Problems" which appears in that paper daily. Here's a sample from Thursday's paper. It's written by a puzzled young lady:

I have beautiful long, black hair and dark brown eyes. I would be very popular with boys if I didn't have to wear big, thick glasses. When I take them off, I am very pretty, only unfortunately I cannot see. Therefore, I am being dated less and less often. What should I do to regain my popularity? The gang says I should get modern glasses with tricky frames, but my mother objects. Please advise me what to do.

Beautiful But Dateless.

We don't know how the general reading public will answer but this girl has a genuine problem. With her glasses on nobody wants her. With them off, she can't see what she's getting. Love may be blind but in this case, bifocals don't help. Dorothy Parker summed up this situation quite aptly with her:

Men seldom make passes
At girls who wear glasses.

Incidentally, our personal opinion is that if you really have a tricky frame, you needn't worry about anything. The solution is quite obvious. Throw away your glasses (and your mother, if she objects) send your phone number to this paper, leave the rest in our hands.

Physics

PHYSICS—
(Based upon reports by: American Institute of Physics; National Roster Of Scientific and Specialized Personnel; Science Research Associates.)

A branch of the physical sciences as ancient as man, Physics nevertheless went practically unnoticed until Alamagordo. As Science Research Associates writes:

"Way back, in prehistoric times, someone invented a wheel — the physical scientists were off! They have been gaining on us ever since. . ."

Now — after New Mexico they threaten to leave us behind. Today, an almost too-potentially-powerful Titan, Physics, is flexing its muscles — and shaking the world.

OUTLOOK

To those who would enter this profession of Physics, its authorities say this: "Few, if any, fields of science can rival its current and future opportunities; fully qualified men are in great demand."

Three movements account for this open field:

(a) Only a limited number of student scientists were in colleges during the war, causing a supply deficiency which will be evident for years.

(b) Industry's clamoring for new equipment, particularly the needs of chemical and electrical fields, has visibly increased physicist demand. Sorely needed are those capable of devising and operating new analysis equipment, and constructing electronic equipment.

(c) A world-wide research race is on. Practically every shred of pure research — that cold, hard collecting of fact of the last 50 years was absorbed by the Manhattan Project. A gigantic new storehouse of research must be built before the expected greater things are done.

Physics, once an obscure collection of formulae, now has suddenly stolen the limelight. The attention focused upon it shows a tremendous future in it for all concerned.

PARTICULAR OPPORTUNITIES

Nuclear Physics—this division is so fraught with obvious opportunities that any attempt to present them would be futile. It will absorb all of the right men our colleges can turn out, but it must be remembered, this is the inner sanctum of physics, the "physicist's physics," reserved for science's elite.

Aviation — stands or falls with physics—its every advance dictated by the research of physicists and aerodynamicists. Today's wind tunnel, pressure chamber, and G-rotor will determine tomorrow's supersonic jet and guided missile.

Biophysics—"Surgeons, at a recent conference, comment that they need people with a knowledge of oxygen tension, barometric pressures, the gas laws, and technicians

Watchin' the Wildcats

Blame it on Leighton and Hoffner.

At this writing we are in the midst of the long heralded JUNIOR WEEK. The Blazer Ball, Wednesday's affair, was very well attended. The most surprising note of the dance was the accomplished music-making of the Villanovans. They have come a long way from the Library Dance held early in the fall.

TOM FOX AND MIKE MC. CARTHY are making plenty of conversation for the Bull sessions held up at Chestnut Hill, due to not too infrequent trips up in that direction.

The coal-dust twins, PAVALKO and CONCHES, are bustling around the campus again, making preparations for their trips up state.

BILL SCANLAN has a new habit of throwing clocks at his roommate. That's one way of passing the time.

STEVE HOHMAN is having his troubles along the woman line, in competition for a Bryn Mawr lass.

DAN McGRATH seems to know all the conductors on the Collingdale trolley. She meets him at the station, we understand.

No. 430 Mendel now proudly sports a dart board. They would be in direct competition to Ford's if they could supply something along the same line in refreshment. We're expecting television presently.

COLEMAN and FITZGERALD are burning the midnight oil in an attempt to succeed. (With whom?)

ED DE SIMONE has many of his hall mates anxiously awaiting his return to the campus from New Jersey each weekend. His mother bakes a mean cake, and at least he gets a chance to see the boys once a week.

ACE REGAN has retired from track to enter a YO-YO tournament.

BERNIE NAPPEN, returning south from Berwyn, doesn't know whether spring has reached that fair town as yet, or whether his girl? ? ? works for Carrier Air Conditioning. Perhaps he got a cold shoulder. . .

TONY MINYON disturbed the hallowed reverence of the U.S. Naval Academy with a few long, low, whistles. We thought all the Waves had been demobilized.

We find JIM WILKES doing his homework at almost any hour of the day in the Pie Shop. Could be that something is occupying his evenings???

Find of the week: A girl in the stands of the Maritime Academy game that hadn't met ED BERRANG.

OUT OF THE COPY BASKET

Mr. Mallick has not recovered from the festivities that took place on this campus last week, so I will collect this week's assortment of jokes, puns, and what have you.

While we are looking at the past, let us look back to the times when the Temple-Villanova game and the rivalries among the various dormitories really showed the school spirit, some of which is reappearing on this campus. Let us take to heart what has happened in the past, and make it a part of the future.

Enough of this chatter, let's see what the mailman has put in our box this past week.

Here is a different twist to an old gag:

A student—veteran, no doubt—was seen about the campus closely examining every piece of paper that he found lying about. After a while, the members of the faculty became worried, and to save the reputation of the school, among other things, gave him his sheepskin. The young lad smiled and as his eyes lit up, was heard to utter, "That's it."

This one was heard at the Junior Prom last Friday evening:

Fellow: "What's wrong with the alphabet?"

Girls: "I don't know."

Fellow: "U and I aren't close enough."

Romberg's Baton

By F. ANTHONY HOMANN '50

Sigmund Romberg and his popular Concert Orchestra will visit the Academy of Music on Monday, May 26. This genial composer is presenting a concert of light favorites, with, of course, a good number of pleasing Romberg tunes among them. The soloists for the evening will be singers Gene Marvey, Leonne Hall, Esther Borja, Nita Carol, and Gail Manners.

Romberg has long been a favorite with Philadelphia audiences, both as composer and as a conductor. He is well known to Robin Hood Dell audiences where he appears every summer, leading the Dell Orchestra in his "Pops" concerts. This is the type of program that Romberg does with particular spirit, and after seeing him conduct one of these concerts, it is difficult not to share in his enthusiasm.

Sigmund Romberg is a civil engineer by training, having received a degree from the University of Bucharest. When he arrived in the United States in 1913, instead of pursuing enginering, he made his living by playing in a restaurant orchestra, using his limited Viennese piano training. From this meager beginning, Romberg began a career which has taken him to the top of the popular music world. Romberg himself states that "Up in Central Park," which had a recent run in Philadelphia, was his seventieth show. Some of his other shows are the well known "Student Prince," "Blossom Time" in which he adapted the music of Franz Schubert for the theatre, "The Desert Song," "Maytime" and "New Moon." The last three have each been made into movies twice, and each has met with conspicuous success.

This prolific composer remarks that America has a vast audience for "middlebrow" music, something between "highbrow" and "lowbrow" —music with plenty of melody, lilt, and rhythm—good music between symphony and jazz. Indeed, "Pops" concerts of this type brought tremendous success to such earlier musicians as John Philips Sousa and Victor Herbert. Today that tradition is being carried on by such men as Romberg, Arthur Fiedler, and just recently, in Philadelphia by Max Leon and the "Philadelphia Pops."

Tickets for Romberg's Concert are priced from $1.30 to $3.90, and can be purchased at Haly's Ticket Office, 1505 Walnut St., Phila.

The Robin Hood Dell has assembled an outstanding group of soloists for its 1947 season which will run from June 23 to August 7, and consist of 28 programs. Jack Whittemore and Victor Lowe, brilliant young two piano team, will appear at the Dell playing concertos by Bach and Liszt. Zino Francescatti will appear playing two famous violin concertos — the Tchaikowsky and Paganini concertos in D major.

Dimitri Mitropoulos will resume his post as musical director of the Dell, and will lead the orchestra in twenty concerts. Other conductors during the season will be Vladimir Golschmann, present conductor of the St. Louis Symphony, who will direct three concerts, and Morton Gould, who will feature his own works in two concerts. Sigmund Romberg is expected to appear for his customary two concerts.

'NEATH THE SPIRES

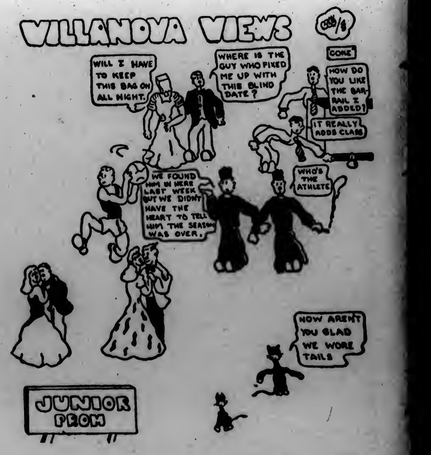
By ANTHONY COPPA

May has been called the Month of Mothers. There seems to be something about May to support this appellation. Perhaps in May's pleasant warmth is felt the soothing touch of motherly love.

We honor our mothers in May. We attempt to express our gratitude to them for all they have given us. But, where are we to find the words and eloquent phrases to voice our thanks? Indeed, words were not made to mold such mountains of emotion. Only by our love and sacrifice for our mothers can we attempt to repay their devotion.

While honoring our mothers, we cannot fail to remember another mother who, long ago, brought a Son into this world. She was the chosen of the chosen, the most blessed of all women, for she gave the world the incarnate Deity, Jesus Christ. Hers was a greater glory than that of all other mothers, for she not only brought a child into the world, but brought Life into the world.

Her duties were not different from those of the mothers of other generations. She spent the same endless nights in comforting her Babe, suffered the same deprivations in providing for Him, and bore the tame tears of anxiety. The Holy Mother, however, suffered more sorrows than those which accompany the rearing of an ordinary child. She was to see Him manifest the ideals of life, and to suffer the sight of His crucifixion.



In all her suffering, however, she never despaired or questioned the cause of her misery. Instead she attained the height of perfection of all mankind. Born untouched by the stigma of original sin, she weathered life's storm on a sea of virtue. She was, and is Full of Grace.

EARN EXTRA MONEY

Do you fit any of the following requirements? Needed immediately for reserve duty with VMF 451 at the Naval Air Station at Willow Grove, Pa. are ex-Marines with training as aviation mechanics, radar men and office clerks.

All interested should contact the Marine Air Department at the above address or Joe King c/o The Villanovan Office.

Reserve duty consists of spending one Saturday or Sunday once every two weeks at the air station. For that day you receive two days full pay on the basis of your last rating before discharge.

Beta Gamma Completes Very Successful Season

The Beta Gamma Debating Society of Villanova completed its very successful season last Tuesday evening in a debate against Haverford College at the neighboring campus. Once more the national question of labor and management was under discussion; an innovation in style of debate was attempted, however, with the usage of a three man "Oregon Type" debate. This method closely approximates court-room procedure and is of greater audience interest.

Peter Turney, John Kucha, and Thomas Sullivan, represented Villanova in upholding the negative. Haverford's arguments in support of labor were rather novel as they were based upon the advantages such a proposal would be in aiding a communistic-type revolution of the proletariat.

Highlight of the night, from the audience standpoint, was John Kucha's shedding of coat and tie to cross examine the "Comrade" from Haverford. However the definitive arguments from Communism and the varying types of oratory displayed were of great interest to all who attended.

skilled in the operation of physical controls. Men of medicine emphasize the inter-relationship of the two branches, and point to the promising future of this combination.

TRENDS—

Movements in Physics may be pictured by this computation of the National Roster of its 9,683 physicists (registered as of January 1st, 1947):

DISTRIBUTION—

Education

Registered—9,683.
Median Age—34.2.
Doctors—2,629.
Masters—2,626.
Bachelors—4,194.
Others—284.

A relatively small field, Physics, as a class group, represents but 2.7 percent of the Roster total. It approaches more nearly in size the field of Architecture.

A "young" profession, Physics boasts a 34.2 median age, substantially lower than the Roster's overall 38.4 median. Only chemical engineering's 31.4 and aeronautical engineering's 31.7 medians are lower.

The stiff educational requirements are evidenced by the high percentage of upper-degree men: 27.2 percent are Doctors as against the Roster's 9.4 percent average; 27.1 percent are Masters, as against the Roster's 13.7 percent average.

Physics, then, has developed into a small, young, high-standard profession.

QUALIFICATIONS:

Personal Talent—This highly exacting field presupposes in its new ranks high intelligence; the ability to apply this intelligence; an aptitude and liking for mathematics and science—as shown by higher grades; the ability to do intensive research; the patience to pay attention unfailingly to minutest detail, in short, the premium is on the elemental, "scientific mind." Far and away the outstanding characteristic of the successful physicist is the ability to perform and find some reward in long, gruelling work. Tireless, honest effort is expected of him at all times.

The physicist is that one who "can look at any physical process and formulate and answer questions about the detailed mechanism of the process; the one best on those problems about which nobody knows anything or on which nobody knows how to proceed. The average engineer is better than the physicist in outlining a well-defined program of procedure . . . if, however . . . it is really a fresh problem, the physicist will do the best piece of work on it."

FORMAL TRAINING—

A Bachelor's degree with a physics major and considerable work in mathematics and related fields is practically the bare minimum. For the future industrial physicist authorities stress the best training as including: classical physics, electronics, and chemistry or engineering. The academic physicist must, of course, secure training in professional education.

More and more the newcomer finds it necessary to hold a Master's or even a Doctor's to compete with this highly trained group. For those entering college education, for instance, the Ph. D. is almost essential—while the Master's is similarly becoming accepted as the high school level standard. Industrial physics newcomers are likewise in need of higher degrees, as competition here is particularly keen.

INCOME—

Civil Service listings of eight professional grades of physicists, ranging from $2,000 to $8,000 a year, typify the varied income levels so prevalent. Training and experience are the deciding factors.

In the academic field, salaries are comparatively low:

Assistants, Fellows—$500-$1,500.
Instructors—$1,800-$3,000.
Professors—$4,000-$6,000.
University Professors — $7,000-$12,000.

Momentarily inferior to industrial fields, the academic brand nevertheless has its advantages: it is more the "individual's"; one can proceed more as he pleases—following his own research hints, unpressured by competitive business.

The Industrial Physicist's income compares favorably with the engineering fields:

Beginner—$2,000 plus.
Beginner, Ph.D.—$3,000 up.
Beginner, Gov't.—$2,000 $3,000.
Heavily experienced — $4,000-$10,000.
Executives—$7,000 up.
Civil service, top man — $6,000-$7,000.

The degree man fresh from college will reap no fortune. His first years will be, according to those who know, his "bare" years, with hard work, with achievement often credited to superiors. Incessant labor lies ahead, to be rewarded moderately by income, more fully by personal satisfaction.

The financial gains may be but average, but the exacting research, the challenging intrigue of physics—these are its own reward.

Scanlon Chosen A.S.C.E. Head

Inauguration of the newly elected officers of the A.S.C.E. took place last Friday, May 9, at a meeting of the society held in Mendel Hall. Those men who took office were: John Scanlon, president; John Brennan, vice - president; James Carroll, secretary; and Thomas Burke, treasurer.

Plans were drawn up for a smoker to be held on Tuesday, May 27. Mr. Charles B. Ruckdeschiel, presently an engineer for the Hercules Powder Co. has been contacted, and will be present at the smoker to give a talk on "Caissons."

Temporary committees for refreshments and entertainment were formed, and a committee on publicity was organized. Business taken up at the meeting included collection of dues and issuance of membership cards to those members who had failed to receive them.

Retiring president Dan Redmond, Senior II, thanked the members for their effort and cooperation during his term of office.

worth three credits, in the fundamentals of sailboating. What a life!

From the Philadelphia School of Horology we hear the following little ditty:

A young girl was asked by her aunt to collect her pay. On the she told him, "Someone stole my way home she was held up.

When the cop finally came up, aunt's pay."

To which the cop answered, "Stop talking pig Latin and tell me what happened."

That's enough from that school.

With the labor situation in its present state, the Tatler furnishes us with this one:

Teacher—"If a man gets four dollars for working eight hours a day, what would he get if he worked ten hours a day?"

Johnny—"Ten hours a day? He'd get a call-down from the union!"
